Death of Frank Carlson

Frank Carlson passed away March 25th, at 3 o'clock p. m., after only one week's illness. He was 49 years of age and was born at Smoland in Sweden. He came to this country in 1890, going first to Nebraska. Two years later he moved to Red Wing, Minn., where he was married to Miss Ella Anderson. In 1896 he came to Holt, and later took up a homestead in East Valley, where he has lived up to the present time He leaves his wife and three children to mourn his loss, and a lot of other relatives and friends.

Mr. Carlson died from blood poisoning which came from scratching his hand with a rasty nail.

The funeral will be held Saturday March 28th, at 1 o'clock from the Holt church.

Mr. Carlson was a hard worker and good farmer, and will be missed very much.

On Monday evening, April 18th, the music lovers of Holt and vicinity will be afforded a rare treat when Rev. A. B. Roseland will bring his choir here from Thief River Falls to render a beautiful Easter Cantata. Mr. Roseland was here Sunday evening and delivered a splendid sermon to a large audience. At that time he mentioned his choir and the cantata and was given a most cordial invitation to bring them here at the time above stated. This choir is composed of some of the best vocal talent in the northwest and we predict that they will be greeted by a packed house on their appearance here.

Svenke Svenkeson left for Middle River to run the Johnson sawmill for a couple of weeks.

Rev. Martin T. Strom returned Wednesday after a couple of weeks absence on mission work.

The auction sale of Ed. Silbaugh was a very successfull sale. He received good prices, one cow being sold for $86.

The town board at Holt met Friday to organize, and they appointed Fred Wegge as road overseer for the town for this year

E. M. Phillips, [illegible] board of education will be in Holt March 28th to explain all the matters of the expenses and benefits of consolidated schools and also to answer any questions that may be put to him. He will be well worth hearing and as there is a big mix up about consolidation in the three adjoining districts we expect a big attendance — and that's what we want. Come in all, both in favor and against. Remember the date Saturday, March 28th

ARTESIAN WELL

An artesian well is a spouting well bored down to a point, usually at great depth, where the water pressure, owing to the geological conformation, is so great as to force the water out at the surface. This is the proper meaning of the term, but it is now often applied to any very deep bored well, as for petroleum and even when pumping is necessary, as in an ordinary driven well The name artesian is derived from Artois, in France, where the first well of this kind in Europe was sunk.

EMPIRE CREAM Separators

REMARKABLE FOR SMOOTH, QUIET EASY RUNNING

Used by Three Generations

THE HANDSOME EMPIRE

[illegible] buying a cream separator, [illegible] value of the machine depends on quality. Buyers are looking for quality, too. But they don't look for it by squinting through a magnifying glass, or by feeling the parts to see if they are smooth. They try the crank to see how the machine "feels" and "sounds" when it runs. They want to know how long the machine has been on the market.

Many young farmers are buying EMPIRES today, both because they like EMPIRES and because their fathers and grandfathers used EMPIRES before them.

Come in and see the EMPIRE, or ask to have it sent out to your place.

PARCEL POST MAY REDUCE HIGH COSTS

PRODUCE EXCHANGE IS TO BE MADE FEATURE OF SYSTEM.

TO SECURE DIRECT MARKET

Postoffice to Quote Lists of Farmers Who Can Supply City Families With Products.

Washington, March 24.—Preliminary steps have just been taken by the postoffice department to perfect its plan for reducing the cost of living by having the parcel post carry the products of the farm directly to the door of the consumer.

Ten Cities Chosen.

Ten cities have been selected to begin the work of establishing direct connections between producer and consumer. Postmaster General Burleson had previously issued an order permitting the use of crates and boxes for butter, eggs, poultry, vegetables and fruit shipped by parcels post.

Orders went to the postmasters at Boston, Atlanta, St. Louis, San Francisco, Baltimore, Detroit, La Crosse, Wis.; Lynn, Mass., and Rock Island, Ill., directing them "to receive the names of persons who are willing to supply farm products in retail quantities by parcel post." Printed lists of these names, showing kind and quantity of commodity available, will be distributed among towns and city patrons.

May Get in Touch.

"By the use of the lists," said First Assistant Postmaster General Roper, "the city consumer will be able to get in touch with a farmer who will fill his weekly orders for butter and eggs and other farm produce.

"The consumer will receive the produce fresh from the country and the personal relationship established will no doubt tend to improve the quality. The farmer will be relieved of carrying his produce to market, as the rural carrier will make daily connections at the farmer's own door of these retail shipments to city consumers.

"The point has been raised that difficulty wil be experienced in the return of hampers and other containers. This problem does not appear to me to be difficult of solution. The farmer may use inexpensive hampers, whose value would not warrant their return, or he may use the higher grade hampers for which he may include and additional charge to be credited to the consumer upon the return of the hamper by parcel post.

Will Lower Living Cost.

"The postmaster general is convinced that this plan is the one thing necessary to enable the people of this country to enjoy the potential benefits of the parcel post. No one has ever questioned the possibility of reducing the cost of living by entertaining direct relations between the ultimate consumer and the original producer.

"A complete means for such direct transportation was provided for the first time by the establishment of the domestic parcel post, but there has been lacking an agency by means of which the individual producer could get in touch with the individual consumer.

"The postmaster general's plan is designated to provide this agency for the most economical distribution of those products which are consumed in the form and condition in which they are produced."

CROWDS FLOCK TO CHURCH

Announcement of Sylvia Pankhurst Brings So Many Out That She Can't Enter Herself.

London, March 24.—Sylvia Pankhurst, carried on a stretcher and surrounded by about 1,000 members of her East End People's army, attempted to attend service at Westminster abbey. She was unable to gain admission, however, as every seat in the edifice had been taken in view of the fact that she had announced her intention last Sunday to be present in the abbey.

The militant suffragette and her followers, however, held an open-air meeting in the street, in the rear of the abbey.

The vanguard of the East End contingent was lead by a Church of England clergyman, Rev. Edmund Willis, rector of a church in the Shadwell district. Clothed in full vestments, he opened the street meeting with prayer, and after the singing of "Onward, Christian Soldiers" by the members of the "army," preached a short sermon.

Cardinal Gibbons Makes Statement

Baltimore, Md., March 24.—Cardinal Gibbons commented on the Ulster situation as follows: "To my mind, it appears that the government is to blame for not taking the upper hand and restoring peace. It could do this if it went about it the right way. There is only a small proportion of the population in Ireland engaged in the present uprising and I cannot understand why the government permits it to dictate what should be done and what should not be done."

REBELS ABOUT TO ATTACK TORREON

KHAKI LINE OF VILLA'S ADVANCE SURROUNDING CITY.

ARMY IS IN HIGH SPIRITS

Villa's Men Believe Federal Troops Cannot Long Withstand Force Being Brought Against Them —The Maneuvering.

Bermejillo, Durango, March 24.—The ragged khaki line of General Villa's advance is surrounding Torreon, with the other divisions scattered along the route for 15 miles further back, but hastening to the support of the vanguard.

Villa Goes to Front.

Villa has left for the front to take personal command. While his main guard is closing in on Torreon, having driven the federals from the outposts in the smaller town to the north, other rebel columns are reported to be drawing closer to the invested city from the south and southwest.

From Gobez Palacio, a suburb three miles from Torreon, to the city itself the country is laced with irrigation ditches which the Federals are reported to have adapted for rifle trenches. At some point along these three miles a pitched battle is probable, possibly at Cerro La Pila, a mountain which the Federals are reported to have fortified.

Must Be Taken.

If this proves true the position must be taken, as the big guns have ample power to cover the three miles between the mountains and Torreon. It is said that the manning of La Pila would be a legitimate part of the defense of Torreon, although its comparative isolation would make support from other parts of the Federal defenses practically impossible. The defenders would be in danger of being absolutely cut off, and for this reason the Rebels doubt that the enemy if really there, will make more than a long range defense before falling back upon the main force.

Army In High Spirit.

The army is in high spirits and the generals are of the opinion that Torreon can not hope to hold out against the forces now being brought against it.

The first important move of the week just passed took place when General Villa, having appeared suddenly from Chihuahua, set his troops in motion early Friday morning from Yermo, which is about 100 miles north of Torreon. Fifteen miles north of this city he came upon a strong advance column of the Federals, who are believed to have been under orders to retreat upon appearance of the enemy. The appearance of the Rebels was so sudden, however, that the retreat became almost a rout.

The Federals, like the Rebels, were mounted, and the encounter became a sort of a steeple-chase, with the pursuers, smothered in the dust kicked up by their mounts, firing blindly from the saddle, not in the least impeded by the scattered bullets which the Federals sometimes turned to fire.

The fight continued at a gallop right into the streets of this little city, and here it was that most of the Federal losses occurred. The bodies of 108 were picked up by Villa's men. The Federals are believed to have carried off those who were wounded in this city, as only three were found. The Rebel loss was practically nothing.

On the heels of the cavalry came other troops, and General Benavides, with a superior force was sent, by rail, against Tlahualilo, a town northeast of Bermejillo.

At a great irrigation ditch, shortly after leaving Bermejillo, Benavides came upon a Federal force which he estimated to number 400. An hour's engagement ensued, as a result of which the Rebel commander reported to General Villa the rout of the enemy, leaving 90 dead on the field. His own loss he reported as three killed and seven wounded.

TRIPLE ALLIANCE QUESTION

Three Monarchs Will Have Conferences and Consider Question Quite Fully.

Berlin, March 24.—Emperor William is enroute for Corfu. On the way he will have conferences with Emperor Francis Joseph and King Victor Emmanuel.

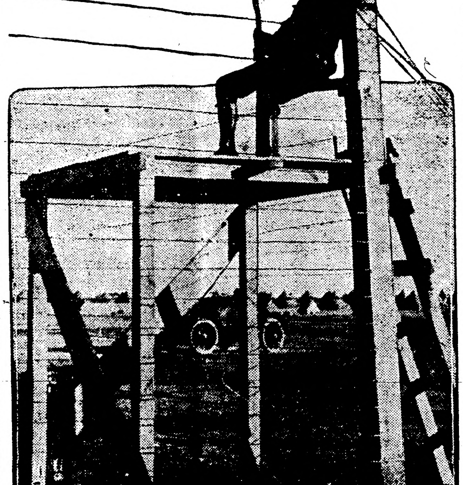
It is probable that the future plans of the Triple Alliance will be fully considered.

The emperor was present Sunday at the dedication of the Royal Library and Academy of Sciences. Ambassador Gerard represented the United States.

Great Pacific Northwest Wheat Crop.

Portland, Ore., March 24.—The Pacific northwest is to see the greatest wheat yield in her history, for estimators place the 1914 harvest for Washington, Oregon, and Idaho at 70,000,000 bushels, with a farm value running above $60,000,000. Winter wheat in Washington not only is in better condition than it has ever been, but there will be more of it. The total acreage of wheat in Walla Walla county, one of the biggest producers is approximately 280,000 acres and 85 per cent of this is in fall sown grain.

ON GUARD AT THE "BULL PEN"



The photograph shows a corner of the "bull pen" at El Paso, Tex., where the captured Mexican rebels and federals are being held by the United States soldiers.

SUFFRAGISTS SEE VICTORY IN DEFEAT

CLAIM RESULTS SHOW CAUSE IS GAINING AND ARE VERY JUBILANT.

SENATE VOTE STANDS 35-34

More Than Majority Secured by Friends of Resolution, But Two-thirds Vote Is Necessary—Southern Solons Solidly Against It.

Washington, March 21. — Woman suffrage advocates lost their fight in the United States senate for a resolution proposing an amendment to the federal constitution giving women the ballot. The vote was 35 for the measure to 34 against it, a two-thirds affirmative vote being required for passage, and when it was over suffrage leaders jubilantly pointed to the majority of one as conclusive proof that their cause had scored a triumph in defeat and was immeasurably stronger than its opponents had ever been willing to concede.

The action, following weeks of debate on the floor of the senate, during which many leaders in the suffrage movement pleaded for postponement of the final vote, marked the climax of a spirited campaign launched here the day before the inauguration of President Wilson.

Immediately after the vote, Senator Shafroth of Colorado sought to introduce a new resolution for a constitutional amendment requiring each state to vote on granting suffrage to women upon petition from 5 per cent of its voters. The senate went into executive session before the senator could get the floor, however, and the resolution will be offered later.

The resolution defeated was the first introduced in the present congress. It was presented by Senator Chamberlain of Oregon and the woman suffrage committee later authorized Senator Ashurst to report it favorably.

Though otherwise the vote virtually was nonpartisan, the southern senators, all Democrats, lined up almost solidly against the amendment. They contended it would complicate the negro question in the state. Of the southerners only Senator Ransdell of Louisiana, Sheppard of Texas, and Lea of Tennessee voted for the resolution.

Senator Vardaman led a movement among the friends of woman suffrage in the South to repeal the Fifteenth amendment to the constitution, by which the states are prohibited from denying the right to negroes to vote. With the negro question removed he said he favored the granting of suffrage to women. His proposal was defeated by 48 to 19, and a proposition by Senator Williams to give the ballot to white women only was defeated by 44 to 21.

Wants Men "Who Can Shoot"

Austin, Tex., March 23.—Reports of new disorders along the Mexican border, including the attempted kidnaping of an American citizen by five Mexicans yesterday caused Governor O. B. Colquitt to order the Ranger force recruited with "men who can shoot." "I have instructed Captain Hughes to look for more men suitable for the Ranger service. My instructions are to get men who can shoot and who will shoot when necessary," Governor Colquitt said.

ROBS EXPRESS CAR OF $14,000

LONE BANDIT BOARDS SANTA FE TRAIN AND OVERPOWERS MESSENGER.

Big Posse Searching Woods but Forest is Dense and Affords Good Shelter —Lumber Concern is Loser.

Beaumont, Tex., March 20.—After bundling the messenger, "Reb" Martin, into a gunny sack, a masked man robbed the express car, attached to northbound No. 202, of currency, estimated to aggregate about $14,000, and escaped from the train at the village of Helbig, 12 miles north of Beaumont.

Up to a late hour posses, which went to Helbig from this city in automobiles, had not found trace of the bandit, who is believed to be hiding in the dense forest about the city.

G. A. Taft, general superintendent of the Wells, Fargo Express company, estimated the amount stolen at $14,000. The money was part of a shipment made by a Houston lumber concern to be used in paying employes at camps along the road.

The train was bound from Houston to Center, Tex., and it is believed the robber secreted himself in the express car before the train left Houston. Martin heard the man, who apparently was middle aged, leap from behind a pile of baggage shortly after the train left Beaumont and demand the messenger's keys. Martin refused and was bound and thrust into the sack.

The region through which the train was passing at the time of the robbery is heavily wooded and sparsely settled. When Martin failed to appear during the stop at Silsbee, several miles north of Helbig, the train crew forced the express car, which had been locked by the robber.

U. S. GLAD TO NEGOTIATE

Renewal of Diplomatic Deliberations With Huerta Favorable to Wilson.

Washington, March 21.—The United States government will welcome a reopening of negotiations with the Huerta government or the Constitutionalists, and will be glad to consider any proposal that will tend to draw the various factions together in a plan for the restoration of peace in Mexico.

This is the attitude of President Wilson as it was revealed after reports reached here saying Senor Portillo Y. Rojas, minister of foreign affairs in the Huerta cabinet, had gone to meet John Lind, to seek a resumption of the peace parleys. Senor Rojas has been mentioned as the man who would succeed Huerta if he retired.

The president spoke in complimentary terms of the Mexican minister of foreign affairs as a man of high character.

Another Lobby Is Charged.

Washington, March 21.—Allegations that a fund of $50,000 had been raised in the interest of prison contractors to defeat the Hughes bill to regulate and restrict the interstate transportation of convict made goods, will be investigated by the senate lobby committee. Champions of the pending legislation assert that for 26 years similar bills have been blocked in congress. Four times such a bill has passed the house, only to die awaiting action in the senate. They say the present situation is similar.

ULSTER SITUATION IS CAUSING MUTINY

SEVERAL OFFICERS RESIGN AND SOME TROOPS BALK AT MARCH ORDERS.

SOLDIERS OVERRUN PROVINCE

Large Armed Forces Occupy Every City In Attempt to Crush Opposition to Home Rule.—Unionists Quiet As Yet.

Ulster Defense Ready.

Belfast.—While representatives of both the British government and the Ulster party insist that the situation is easier, the reports or resignations of army officers are confirmed, and the officers of the Ulster army continue military preparations. Uniforms were to be issued today to the special service corps of 4,000 men. This corps is composed chiefly of old soldiers and sharpshooters and it will be Ulster's chief reliance in the first attack, if hostilities are begun. The corps is designed as a mobile striking force.

London, March 23.—A mutiny of two companies of the Dorsetshire regiment stationed in Belfast is reported by the Pall Mall Gazette. The message says: "When the men of the First batalion of the Dorsetshire regiment were paraded in Belfast and notified that they were being transferred elsewhere, they threw down their arms. A sergeant stepped forward, saluted the officers, and said: 'We will have no home rule here.'" This is thought in some quarters to be an exaggerated version of the reports of unrest among the regular troops in Ulster.

Dissatisfaction Is Seen.

The outstanding feature of the news from Ireland, however, was the dissatisfaction among the officers of the regular army under orders to proceed to Ulster with their regiments.

Ahe actual number of resignations among them were problematical, although it was reported that 100 officers of the Curragh camp have offered their resignations. That the situation is serious is evident from the earnest consultations of cabinet ministers regarding the best plans of counteracting the movement.

The actual fact of this disaffection is the more discomforting to the military authorities since the army is already seriously short of commissioned officers.

Threats of a crisis in the army if a movement of regular troops was undertaken against Ulster had long been current.

A Martial Aspect.

Belfast, Ireland.—Ulster presents a martial aspect. All the towns are occupied by soldiers of the regular army, and other detachments are marching along country roads, with long trains of baggage and ammunition carts, on their way to strengthen the various garrisons. In the meanwhile, at all unionist centers, there is great animation among the "Ulster volunteers." Throughout the province a feeling of intense excitement prevails, and everybody seems waiting in anxious expectation for something to occur—they know not what.

Within twenty-four hours over 3,000 regular troops, including four battalions of infantry, with machine guns and two batteries of field artillery, all equipped for active service, arrived in the various towns of Ulster.

These troops form the advance guard of a large armed force which the military authorities are sending to the northern provinces of Ireland to prevent the assumption of local government by anti-home rulers.

Still more troops are on the way to the north from the local military camp at Curragh and from other army stations.

No Public Demonstrations.

The sudden preparations by the war office thus far have not created any public demonstration in Belfast. The leaders of the so-called unionist provisional government, however, await their anxiety lest their overenthusiastic followers precipitate riots giving their opponents the sought-for opportunity for enforcing rigorous repressive measures.

Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster Unionist leader, and his lieutenants desire the government to take the first provocative step. Sir Edward realizing the great need of preventing an undisciplined outbreak, as protest against all these troop movements again urged the Ulstermen to keep cool.

For Ambassador to Russia.

Washington, March 23.—That President Wilson has practically decided to name Representative Sharp of Ohio as ambassador to Russia in place of Henry M. Pindell, resigned, is the opinion at the White House.

G. N. Man to Denver Road.

Portland, Ore., March 23.—Word was received here that J. Russell, general superintendent of the Great Northern lines, west of Troy, Mont., with headquarters at Seattle, has been appointed general manager of the Denver & Rio Grande, with headquarters at Denver. Russell was for years head of the operating department of the Hill lines in Oregon and became general superintendent of the Great Northern on Jan. 1, last. His appointment is effective April 1.

BANK BANDIT KILLED; 3 HURT

FIVE HUNDRED SHOTS EXCHANGED IN GUN BATTLE.

Robber Had Very Coolly Driven Cashier Into Vault and Walked Off With $1,200.

Shawnee, Okla., March 23.—In a fight with a sheriff's posse near here Jose Patterson, who, it is charged, robbed the State Bank of Newalla, Okla., of $1,200, was shot and killed, and Chas. Hawk, chief of police of Shawnee, and Frank Timmons, a deputy sheriff, were wounded.

H. C. Hulse, a farmer, who was a member of the posse, also received slight wounds. The money was not recovered.

Patterson, a native of Newalla, returned there after an absence of years, and walked into the state bank. Burt Braley, the cashier, knew him and spoke to him as he entered. For answer, Patterson covered the cashier with a revolver and ordered him to "get into the vault quick."

As the door closed behind the official, Patterson reached into the cash drawer and took $1,200. Then he walked out and through the main section of town.

It was two hours before the cashier could get out of the vault and give the alarm. Then a posse was organized and pursued Patterson to the thick timber near the town. He made little effort to conceal himself from the posse.

"Come on and fight," he shouted, from behind a barricade of fallen trees.

The fight lasted three hours and 500 shots were exchanged. Patterson saved his ammunition, using it only when a member of the posse came too close. He fell with a bullet from the rifle of Deputy Timmons.

When Patterson's clothing was searched only $3 was found. It is believed he buried the money.

SECRET PAGE IS REOPENED

Escape of Alleged Swindler an Issue Since Shooting of Editor Calmette.

Paris, March 23.—Two former premiers of France Joseph Caillaux and Ernest Monis, and the chief public prosecutor of the republic, Victor Fabre, were questioned by a parliamentary committee concerning their acts and their motives in hindering the trial of the banker, Henri Rochette, who, it is averred, duped investors out of $3,000,000, and ultimately escaped punishment.

The death of Gaston Calmette, editor of the Figaro, at the hands of Mme. Caillaux caused this secret page in the judicial history of the country to be reopened.

While M. Caillaux, restless and with an air of suppressed passion, replied to the questions put to him by the members of the committee, the bells for M. Calmette's funeral were tolling. Almost all the notable literary and dramatic personages in Paris either were in the church of Saint Francis de Sales for the funeral service or followed the hearse to the cemetery.

HIRES MEN TO SPEND MONEY

Indianan Who Inherits $7,000,000 Wants Friends to Share His Riches.

Hammond, Ind., March 23.—Receiving a letter from Greece that he is heir to a $7,000,000 estate, Mathias Constante, a steel worker here, has hired five close friends at $5,000 a year apiece to help him spend his money. That is all they will have to do. Word of the estate came to Constante this week. He obtained credit for everything he wanted and exclaimed as he read the letter: "What will I ever do with so much money?"

When he went to work at $1.75 per diem he told his five warm friends of his luck. They accepted his offer to go all over the world with him and help him spend his money. The six are celebrating. They left for Chicago and the police predict that they will land in jail.

Invalids Take Music Cure.

Baltimore, Md., March 23.—Before the assembled patients of the Phipps psychiatric clinic of the Johns Hopkins hospital a string trio rendered a program of chamber music as part of the curative treatment by the clinic to cure mental disorders. The doctors have found this an effective means of taking the patients' minds off their illness. There are many pianolas, music boxes, and phonographs in the building.

Canal Action Deferred.

Washington, March 23.—Consideration of the bill to repeal the toll exemption provision of the Panama canal act will not be undertaken by the senate committee on inter-oceanic canals for several days, despite efforts of Democratic senators who favor the repeal to hurry action.

President Unbosoms Himself.

Washington, March 23.—Woodrow Wilson unbosomed himself to the members of the National Press club, telling them in a conversational way how he felt as president of the United States, how difficult it was for him to imagine himself as the chief executive with the formal amenities of the position, and how he had struggled to be as free as the ordinary individual without the restraints of his office. It was an intimate picture of Woodrow Wilson, the man.

A Human Churn

WHEN the food reaches the stomach it is subjected to a peculiar churning movement by the muscular walls of the stomach"—(See Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, page 45). In the liver, kidneys and skin, the blood is purified of its waste materials—these organs act as human filters, leaving the blood pure and clear—unless liver, digestive tract and kidneys are clogged.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

is a stomach, liver and kidney tonic—by assisting the stomach to assimilate, the liver to filter, the kidneys to act—the poisons are removed, the red blood corpuscles are increased and one feels light, fresh and active instead of logy, dull and heavy. The "Discovery" stimulates the stomach, increases action of heart and arteries and is a most satisfactory alterative in blood-taint of any character. The refreshing influence of this extract of native medicinal plants has been favorably known for over forty years. Everywhere some neighbor can tell you of the good it has done.

"CASCARETS" FOR LIVER; BOWELS

No sick headache, biliousness, bad taste or constipation by morning.

Get a 10-cent box.

Are you keeping your bowels, liver, and stomach clean, pure and fresh with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passageway every few days with Salts, Cathartic Pills, Castor Oil or Purgative Waters?

Stop having a bowel wash-day. Let Cascarets thoroughly cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour and fermenting food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will make you feel great by morning. They work while you sleep—never gripe, sicken or cause any inconvenience, and cost only 10 cents a box from your store. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never have Headache, Biliousness, Coated Tongue, Indigestion, Sour Stomach or Constipation. Adv.

400,000 Settlers a Year

Immigration figures show that the population of Canada increased during 1913, by the addition of 400,000 new settlers from the United States and Europe. Most of these have gone on farms in provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Lord William Percy, an English Nobleman, says:

"The possibilities and opportunities offered by the Canadian West are so infinitely greater than those which exist in England, that it seems absurd to think that people should be impeded from coming to the country where they can most easily and certainly improve their position.

New districts are being opened up, which will make accessable a great number of homesteads in districts especially adapted to mixed farming and grain raising.

THE BEST TREATMENT FOR ITCHING SCALPS, DANDRUFF AND FALLING HAIR

To allay itching and irritation of the scalp, prevent dry, thin and falling hair, remove crusts, scales and dandruff, and promote the growth and beauty of the hair, the following special treatment is most effective, agreeable and economical. On retiring, comb the hair out straight all around, then begin at the side and make a parting, gently rubbing Cuticura Ointment into the parting with a bit of soft flannel held over the end of the finger. Anoint additional partings about half an inch apart until the whole scalp has been treated, the purpose being to get the Cuticura Ointment on the scalp skin rather than on the hair. It is well to place a light covering over the hair to protect the pillow from possible stain. The next morning, shampoo with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Shampoos alone may be used as often as agreeable, but once or twice a month is generally sufficient for this special treatment for women's hair.

Good Rule to Follow.

Half of the fun of anything is looking forward to it, and the other half is looking back at it; the climax, the event itself, is merely the point at which the two kinds of pleasure meet in the middle.

Learn to go to your good time, when you have earned it, with the full expectation of enjoying yourself; and when it is over, let the happy memory of it keep coming back to bless and sweeten the subsequent days.

To a great extent, however, you go, you bring your own happines with you. You will have the best time by giving it to others, contradictory as this may seem. You will look back with most satisfaction on the occasion, when you were "the life of the party," when you entered into the fun and made most of it yourself, and did not sit back and expect to have it made for you.

Non-Inflammable Movies.

Neptune, being the god of the Seven Seas, very properly comes to the aid of the moving picture in banishing the menace of fire, but he does not offer water—sea-weed is the thing. From this an English experimenter has found that a product called "algin" can be extracted. It is used in the manufacture of non-inflammable films and in the treatment of paper to make it waterproof, flame-proof and germ-proof.

WANTED TO KNOW
The Truth About Grape-Nuts Food.

It doesn't matter so much what you hear about a thing, it's what you know that counts. And correct knowledge is most likely to come from personal experience.

"About a year ago," writes a N. Y. man, "I was bothered by indigestion, especially during the forenoon. I tried several remedies without any permanent improvement.

"My breakfast usually consisted of oatmeal, steak or chops, bread, coffee and some fruit.

"Hearing so much about Grape-Nuts, I concluded to give it a trial and find out if all I had heard of it was true.

"So I began with Grape-Nuts and cream, soft boiled eggs, toast, a cup of Postum and some fruit. Before the end of the first week I was rid of the acidity of the stomach and felt much relieved.

"By the end of the second week all traces of indigestion had disappeared and I was in first rate health once more. Before beginning this course of diet, I never had any appetite for lunch, but now I can enjoy the meal at noon time."

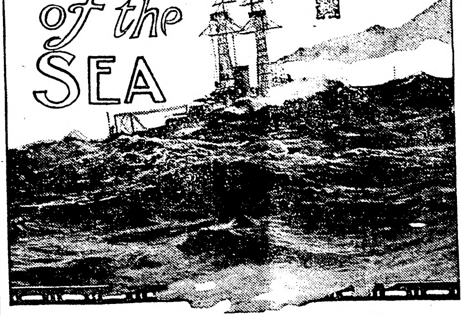
IN the GRIP of the SEA



DREADNAUGHT DELAWARE IN RAGING SEA

IT WAS on the bark on which I served my apprenticeship, and we were homeward bound, says a writer in Cassell's Saturday Journal. We had swept up past the foam girt Azores and we were saying that five more days would raise the Lizard light.

As we plunged farther north the breeze freshened and grew until it seemed as though the very powers of the air were conspiring together to waft us onward at our best pace.

Still the gale increased and when at length we breasted the waters of the Bay of Biscay we found it arrayed in all its grim majesty to greet us. As far as our salt filled eyes could see there was nothing save a heaving waste of darkling, greenish-gray water, whipped across by flying sheets of solid spindrift, that ever and anon was lifted in the arms of the storm and flung aboard us in chilling wreaths. Before we could spit out the salt from our mouths the great, green combers rolled sullenly up, the low side of the vessel heeled to meet them and then, rising as a heavy squall struck down upon her, hove aboard a few hundred tons of the Atlantic ocean in one solid mass that filled the deck waist high.

So the night fell, and men looked one another in the face, and perhaps for the first time fear dawned in the eyes of some. The captain hung grimly to the weather shrouds of the mizzen and peered with staring eyes through the vibrating gloom at the overwrought main topgallant sail on which our very safety depended. It was an old sail, for we had not had time to bend the heavy weather canvas properly before these vigorous gales had commenced, and this sail was only the fine weather sheet we carried through the tropics. If that sail split, they said, nothing could save the ship. There would be one hunted heap as a sea caught her up astern, a wild swirling of down dragging water and then—the inevitable end.

Ship on Her Beam Ends.

Though the night was black with the blackness of the grave, there was a sort of ghostly sheen given off from the spray that showed us occasionally how the ship was behaving. Throughout that voyage we had bestowed every anathema in our vocabulary on the craft for her unkindliness, for she was loaded deep with niter, and was as buoyant as an iron bridge. Now she hove her streaming bows high in the air, while her squattering stern sunk down as though it would never rise again. Again, with a swoosh and a sullen roar, she buried her sharp bowsprit to the knightheads and far beyond, while the solid sea climbed up the slope of her decks to the very main hatch. The stern waggled drunkenly against the black gray sky, and we who lay there, with blinded eyes and grasping hands, hung madly to any rope that drifted our way, for dear life.

It seemed impossible that the sky could hold more potent powers than those that were now thundering about us, and yet, as long minute dragged itself away after long minute, the wind gained a velocity that was tremendous. It was more than a hurricane; it was a typhoon, a pampero, a black norther, all welded into one awful whole.

On the stroke of midnight a squall flared upon us with such a whistling velocity that, though we were lying at length on the poopdeck, we were blown like feathers hard against the lee rail. The breath was knocked completely out of our bodies and we said the end was come. The ship was thrown flat on her beam ends. She lurched wildly and a long groan from every straining plate rose above that fiendish din of the storm. A sharp cracking aloft told of something amiss, and when the next lightning flash sizzled overhead we sent our eyes to the main topgallant sail with one accord. But it still held. A dull rumbling crash forward told us where the damage was done; there was the thunder of falling spars and the fore topgallant mast went by the board.

And then, when the squall was at its height, the wind shifted like a flash. It had blown hard from the southwest, it now blew harder from the northwest. We thought no wind could blow so ferociously, but the force of the preceding breeze was as a maiden's sigh compared with what followed. By the light of the binnacle we could see the helmsman and the captain, together with both mates, laboring hard to get the helm up and the ship away before the shifted wind. Their faces gleamed ghastly and we could hear the panting of their heavy breathing where we lay helpless; but that shift of wind was just what was required to right the ship. She lifted herself with a glorious motion and shook herself like a duck; then, as the wind caught her full astern, she sprang forward like an arrow from a bow.

At half past two the weather helmsman almost fainted at his post. He had been kept up to his work by copious doses of grog, but the strain was too severe to be kept up. The next best man in the ship took the spokes, the helmsman let go and for a second the ship went on as usual. But not for long. The new man had not got the "hang" of things, and he allowed her to jibe a little. Instantly she was awash.

The whole Atlantic ocean seemed to pour aboard this time, and we in the half deck, where we had gone for temporary shelter, hearing the sullen thud, thought it was the end. One of the men sprang to the door and tried to open it, but a solid wall of water was behind it and it resisted his stoutest efforts. Another, with the sweat drops of fear shining on his forehead, jumped on the table and thrust up the skylight in the room. Immediately the place was half filled with water. The lamp went out and the horrible sound of swishing water filled our ears.

An Awful Plunge Into the Deep.

Why dwell on every detail of that awful night? Suffice it that the old helmsman was sent back to the wheel at once, that his skill made our escape possible, and that after what seemed like long years had passed, the chill dawn broke, and showed us our plight in all its gruesomeness. Not a thing remained about the decks save those solid structures that were built into the fabric's hull. Every boat we carried had disappeared, having been smashed into splitwood and then carried over side.

As we raced through the gray light a large bark appeared in sight ahead. We ranged toward her, and as we drew near the red ensign stood out. It was union down—the signal of distress.

We could not even lift a hand toward her salvation! We had not a boat that would float, and if we had had all the boats of a liner they would not have floated a second in that raging fury of the wind lashed sea. We passed on, and a low groan burst from a score of throats. Well it might! At one minute the helpless ship was high poised on the crest of a wave, at another she swerved giddily downward. We waited with bated breath for the reappearance, but we saw nothing more. She had run under.

Experience Comes First.

That age and experience as a rule count for more than youth and enthusiasm is a theme sustained vigorously by the editor of the American Machinist. To illustrate his point he cites the following experience:

A short time ago we spent a few days in a large machine shop where a man is considered young until he reaches sixty five or seventy years of age. We met a number who had seen from twenty to forty years of service with this company. When inquiries were made as to their work we were told that it was as good as and often better than that of many younger men in the company's employ.

In this shop was noticed the absence of waste motion; no 'goose steps' were seen. Often much of the hurry and bustle exhibited by the younger man is useless motion and parade action.

To the superintendent who looks only at appearances such actions might indicate a live shop, but in fact they do not get anywhere."

Woman Explorer of Arabia.

A Russian woman, Countess Moltor, has just started on an attempt to cross Arabia at its widest part, from west to east, penetrating the Desert of Roba-el-Khali. This huge desert is absolutely blank on the maps has never been entered by a European, and is practically unknown even to the natives of adjoining parts of Arabia. The countess proposes to dress as an Arab and to be accompanied only by natives.

A Warning.

"I was charmed with Miss Smith. She certainly is a lady of winning ways."

"Then you be careful how you accept her invitations to her bridge parties."

Believed in Daylight Saving.

The late King Edward practiced daylight saving on lines similar to those proposed in the daylight saving parliamentary bill. For many years and Sandringham he caused his clocks to be advanced 30 minutes during the summer months, and in the last two years of his life he caused the same rule to be observed at Windsor and Balmoral, and said that he was favorably disposed towards the bill.

Getting Eyes Closer.

"You know it is said that the proper distance between the eyes is the width of one eye," said the sweet young thing on the sofa.

"Well, move up closer, then," suggested the gentleman present.

A Message To Women

Those of Middle Age Especially.

When you have found no remedy for the horrors that oppress you during change of life, when through the long hours of the day it seems as though your back would break, when your head aches constantly, you are nervous, depressed and suffer from those dreadful bearing down pains, don't forget that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the safest and surest remedy, and has carried hundreds of women safely through this critical period.

Read what these three women say:

From Mrs. Hornung, Buffalo, N. Y.

Buffalo, N. Y.—"I am writing to let you know how much your medicine has done for me. I failed terribly during the last winter and summer and every one remarked about my appearance. I suffered from a female trouble and always had pains in my back, no appetite and at times was very weak.

"I was visiting at a friend's house one day and she thought I needed Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it and I have gained eight pounds, have a good appetite and am feeling better every day. Everybody is asking me what I am doing and I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. You may publish this letter if you wish and I hope others who have the same complaint will see it and get health from your medicine as I did."—Mrs. A. Hornung, 91 Stanton St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Was A Blessing To This Woman.

So. Richmond, Va.—"I was troubled with a bearing down pain and a female weakness and could not stand long on my feet. Of all the medicines I took nothing helped me like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am now regular and am getting along fine. I cannot praise the Compound too much. It has been a blessing to me and I hope it will be to other women."—Mrs. D. Tyler, 23 West Clopton St., South Richmond, Va.

Pains in Side, Could Hardly Stand.

Lodi, Wis.—"I was in a bad condition, suffering from a female trouble, and I had such pains in my sides I could hardly move. Before I had taken the whole of one bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I felt better, and now I am well and can do a good day's work. I tell everybody what your medicine has done for me." —Mrs. John Thompson, Lodi, Wisconsin.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with woman's ailments does justice to herself if she does not try this famous medicine made from roots and herbs, it has restored so many suffering women to health.

Your Great Chance to get a California Farm is NOW

In the great San Joaquin Valley, California, are chances today for money-making in fruit-growing, in dairying, in poultry raising, that appeal to the man who wants to make his effort count for most.

Your markets are unlimited. There are the hungry big cities of the Pacific Coast, two of which are to have great expositions next year. Thousands of mines and lumber camps never get enough farm products. The rest of the world is glad to pay good prices for California fruit.

You will find a well developed country. You will find good roads and rural delivery. A neighborly, get-together and work-for-the-benefit-of-all spirit makes a success of co-operative effort in getting the profit for the grower.

Ambitious, progressive farmers are wanted to settle this wonderful valley. I know where the opportunities are, and I will gladly point them out. I can save you time and travel, because you need not duplicate the investigations my staff has made.

Our books "San Joaquin Valley," "Dairying" and "Poultry," will give you a great deal of information. Then if you will write me what more you would like to know, I will tell you. The books are free. So is all the assistance and information which I can give you.

Santa Fe agricultural demonstrators will assist new settlers in selecting the right crops to get best results. One of these men will help you settle here.

Just say: "Send California books."

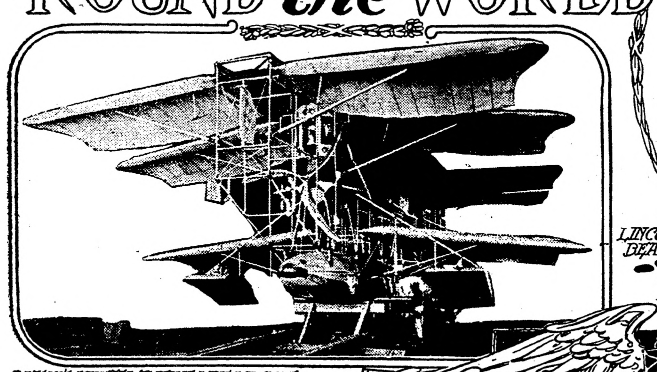
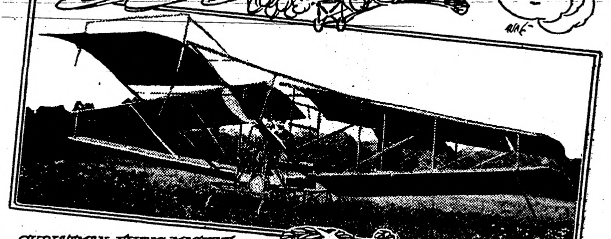
The AIR RACE 'ROUND the WORLD



BATSON'S MONSTER TWELVE WING MACHINE

LINCOLN BEACHEY



CHRISTMAN FLYING MACHINE

ROUND THE WORLD AIR ROUTE

A MAJORITY of experienced aviators believe the proposed aeroplane flight around the world this summer, while it will be a marvelous demonstration of human progress and efficiency, is nevertheless feasible. The directors of the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco are assured of the co-operation of all the great nations over whose territory the monoplanes and aeroplanes will whirl.

Feat after feat of endurance must be performed by the aviator who traverses the broad American continent, makes the great jumps from island to island of the North Atlantic, pursues the well-traveled air lanes of Europe, safely passes over the bleak and forbidding wastes of Siberia, and fringes the almost uninhabited coast line of northern Asia and Alaska.

But each of these feats has been exceeded already in the air records now on the books. Now all that is needed is the combination of them. The performance of one great air journey after another means luck, enormous luck, to a greater degree than in almost any sporting contest ever organized.

Several aviators have signified their intention of entering. They are willing to take the risks. They are not actuated by the desire for gold, for even the successful contender, who will win the $150,000 first prize and also the $50,000 offered by Lord Northcliffe for the first crossing of the Atlantic, will find his $200,000 and perhaps more eaten up by the expenses of his undertaking.

It is quite certain, however, that plenty of men of large fortunes and sporting proclivities will be found to finance this peerless air event.

The eyes of the world will be upon the brave contenders, even more than they were upon the pioneer aviation racers in that first meet at Rheims in 1908.

The attention of the close students of the race is centered upon the problem of the Atlantic. After passing due east from San Francisco across the Sierras, through Reno, Nev.; Cheyenne, Wyo.; Kansas City, St. Louis and New York, the aviators will coast along the seaboard to Belle Isle, between Newfoundland and Labrador. Here the flight across the Atlantic will begin. The flyers will probably head for Cape Farewell, Greenland, 610 miles away. From Cape Farewell to Iceland the distance is 670 miles, and from Iceland to Stornaway, in the Hebrides, is 570 miles.

Three enormous leaps—610, 670 and 570 miles. None of them insurmountable in itself. But to hit the bull's-eye three times in succession—there's the rub.

Then these seas are not always as hospitable as the Mediterranean, which Roland Garros has now crossed twice. There are fog and wind and rocky landing places.

But if a row of warships patrol the course, lent by their governments in the interests of science and human progress, the risk will not be greater (for instance) than that taken by the late John B. Moissant when he set off in an untried machine with a fog in his face to fly from Paris to London at a time when the channel crossing alone was considered almost a miracle.

Compared with the Atlantic crossing, too, the rest of the journey seems fairly simple.

The proposed route is by way of Edinburgh, London, Paris, Berlin, Warsaw, St. Petersburg, Moscow and the Trans-Siberian railway to Manchuria and then south to Vladivostok. The next lap takes the aviator across the sea to Corea.

He must then cross the Japan sea to Kobe and Tokyo, turn north to Kamchatka and travel along the coast either to East cape or to the Aleutian islands. The distance between the two continents here varies from 30 to 200 miles. From Alaska the course will be southward to Vancouver, Seattle, and home to San Francisco.

The aviators who hesitate about pronouncing the journey possible in the present stage of their are calling attention to the distance—28,000 miles. The successful flyer must travel an average of more than 200 miles a day for four months. Will it be possible to accomplish the trip in the few months of summer of the Northern regions through parts of which the course lies? Vedrines was five weeks in doing the 3,500 miles from Paris to the pyramids, flying at an average of only 100 miles daily.

This explains clearly how greatly the proposed journey would outdo anything yet accomplished. Besides the notable flights already mentioned, Oscar Bider has flown over practically every high mountain in Europe, Garros has made a flight from Marseilles to Paris without stopping, Brindejonc des Moulinais has toured the capitals of Europe, and two besides Vedrines have reached Egypt from France. Yet these journeys pale before the difficulties of the race around the globe.

It is to be noted, however, that the history of aviation is one succession of surprises. Scarcely anything of importance accomplished has not been called impossible beforehand. Aviators have done so much that one hesitates to doubt their ability to do anything.

Special aeroplanes will be constructed for the race. These will probably be swift, but not built for the maximum speed. They will make say, 60 miles an hour. Reliability will be the object. There will be accommodations for two men, both pilots, who will relieve each other at the tiller. A large supply of fuel and oil must be carried. It will be a splendid test for the machine builders, and most of the factories on both sides of the Atlantic are expected to be in the field.

In the United States the following constructors have tentatively signified their willingness to build a 'round the world plane: Glenn H. Curtiss of Hammondsport, N. Y.; Orville Wright of Dayton, O.; W. Starling Burgess of Marblehead, Mass.; Thomas Benoist of St. Louis, Emile Berliner of Washington, D. C.; the Heinrich Brothers of Baldwin, L. I; John E. Sloane of New York city, Editon F. Gallaudet of Norwich, Conn., and Ingles Uppercu of New York city.

There are now 7,000 licensed aviators in the world. Out of this field there must be several hundred who would attempt the proposed flight if the financial backing were forthcoming. The first man in America to get in his entry was Beckwith Havens. Capt. Mathew A. Batson of Savannah, Ga., a former army officer, who is the inventor of a flying boat, announces he will enter the race. Lincoln Beachey will also compete. From abroad come many expressions showing enthusiasm for the race.

The time before the start is short, however. By May 1, few could have their machines in readiness at the Golden Gate. Claude Grahame-White, the noted English aviator, thinks the exposition officials should take off the time limit entirely. He thinks the trip around the globe cannot be made this summer, but might be accomplished in 1916. He said:

"They (the exposition officials) might as well offer $10,000,000. It is as safe as in the Bank of England if the offer is to be withdrawn at the end of 1915. I do not believe you would have time now to get a machine ready even if you worked day and night.

"I think it would need to be a comparatively slow machine for the race; that is, one doing 60 miles an hour. I certainly would not have a monoplane, for I do not think monoplane construction lends itself to a big weight-lifting machine."

The London Daily Mail, Lord Northcliffe's newspaper, doubts that the feat can be accomplished. It says:

"The exhibition committee's offer indicates remarkable confidence in the future of aircraft, though there is little prospect of the feat being accomplished by the proposed date. But it is merely a question of time before an airman puts a girdle around the world."

Roland Garros said:

"They can count me in, provided oceans are eliminated, as in the case of an automobile trip, and other conditions are decently fair. I am an aviator who will not attempt the impossible. I am positive that no engine today could stand the whole journey. Without having to fly across the oceans, I believe I could accomplish the feat with one engine, provided I were allowed to repair it."

Capt. Thomas Baldwin, a veteran of the balloon field before he took up aeroplanes, said the greatest difficulty would be to cross the Atlantic ocean, and for this trip special machines with arrangements to carry provisions and fuel for 20 hours at least must be constructed.

"Except for the flight across the Atlantic," said Captain Baldwin, "the race will not be difficult. I figure that the aviators will have to travel 28,000 miles. Of course it will be necessary for two pilots to travel in each machine so that they can relieve each other.

"Motors now are made so that they are fairly reliable, and the trips across the water for stretches of 500 or 600 miles may be accomplished with comparative ease. The trip by land over Europe and Asia will be made without great difficulty, and arrangements for crossing the Bering strait will insure success for that stage of the journey."

The exposition officials expect to have at least $300,000 to offer in prizes. The first prize will probably be $150,000, although it may be $100,000 or $200,000. The race will be under the supervision of an international commission consisting of men from all the countries on the route of the race. The commission will be scientific and advisory, and its duties will be to suggest the route and offer counsel on geographic, meteorologic and scientific problems.

The commission will be named by the president of the United States, the king of Great Britain, the president of France, the German emperor, the emperor of Russia, the emperor of Japan, and the premier of British Columbia. An international fleet will be organized. Japan and the United States will be asked to patrol the Pacific ocean course with scout cruisers, and the United States, England and France to establish the same sort of a guard in the Atlantic. Russia will be requested to distribute troops over the desolate wastes of Siberia and Manchuria.

TALKED TO DEATH.

The toastmaster was in despair. Looking down the table he saw a friend, an Irishman, noted for his wit, and he thought that he might help. He called on him. With due solemnity the Irishman responded:

"I cannot say what I want to say," he began with "for we are all limited to five minutes. So I will tell you of an Irishman who came to this country. He wrote home telling of things here, and recounted that no longer were men put to death in this country by being hanged. 'The way they kill 'em here,' he wrote, 'is by elocution.'"—Raleigh News and Observer.

PRACTICAL HINTS PICKED UP IN HOG YARD

Fine Matured Sow—The Right Sort for Breeding.

(By HENRY G. GROWN.)

For many years I have followed the method of allowing my pigs to run with the sows as long as the sows will permit them. My theory is that sows are made for that purpose, and I see no reason why young pigs should be taken away from their mother as long as she has milk for them. The more milk the pigs get, the better it is for them.

I use matured sows for breeding, and try to have them in very good flesh at farrowing time, but not fat. They do not get too thin from suckling, and very often come in season in time to breed for fall litters, before pigs are weaned.

Another thing: I feed my pigs nearly all the corn they will eat, although I know this practice is condemned by many hog raisers. When they are very young, I give them a little slop made of shorts, water and a bit of oil-meal.

I feed the pigs in an inclosure by themselves, and never give more at one time than they will clean up. I feed them a little slop all through the summer, and give them a free run of the pasture. I take care that they have all the sweet grass they can eat, clover and alfalfa.

They root up the alfalfa slightly, but I did not believe they would do any permanent damage to it until the last year or two, when I became convinced that it would not do to pasture alfalfa, and I now keep my pigs out of it. I am satisfied that pasturing alfalfa to either pigs or hogs will cause it to run out.

I begin to feed oats to the pigs as soon as harvest comes on. They eat it with a relish, and I find it one of the best foods I can use to give the pigs stamina and start them on the road to fattening.

When the corn is past the roasting ear period, I begin to feed them that very lightly at first, gradually increasing the ration, until the late corn is ripe. I always feed some oats or old corn along with the green corn, and have never had any trouble from thumps.

I consider it very important to feed the pigs in dry warm quarters, and never allow them to stray out in the cold, wet rain. I have good shade in the pasture under which they can lie during the very hot weather.

I spray my hog houses regularly twice a year, and keep them whitewashed inside and out, and have never been troubled with lice on my place. I raise from 50 to 75 hogs every year, feeding them what I raise on the farm, and always manage to make a profit.

KEEP ALL STRAW FOR STOCK FEED

With Silage, Roots or Grain It Makes Good Ration—Also Valuable Fertilizer.

Many farmers do not realize to what extent straw is valuable, or how to make the best use of it. Large quantities of straw have been burned, in the past, as the easiest method of disposal, but from now on it will be used to a great extent with silage, roots, grains and the like. In using it with silage it serves a double purpose—it helps keep certain kinds of silage from spoiling in the silo, and it is a good filler for stock feeding.

Straw is especially poor in crude protein and fat, and rich in cellulose, or woody fiber. This makes it particularly useful in the winter time for horses and cattle, as it requires a great deal of energy to masticate, digest, and pass it through the body, thus keeping the animal warm. Wheat straw is being used at the Hays experiment station at the present time, along with other feeds. The cattle are eating quite a large amount of this straw and have gained in weight. Oats straw is far more nutritious than wheat straw and is much preferred by stock.

After stock have been allowed to run to a straw pile, the straw will soon decay and contain a considerable amount of droppings from the animals, which makes it valuable as a fertilizer. Wheat straw makes excellent bedding material, as it does not break up badly, and will absorb more moisture than either oats or rye straw.

Wheat straw is often used by manufacturers for packing purposes. It is also used in the paper industry. If a farmer has a large amount of straw and has good shipping facilities, he may be able to dispose of it at a profit.

WHITEWASHING IS EXCELLENT HABIT

One of Old-Time Customs Which the Present Generation Might Profitably Follow.

The old-fashioned New England habit of whitewashing everything, from the front yard fence to the stable, at least twice a year, was a most excellent one, and is one of the old-time customs which the present generation might well adopt.

The following is the recipe for making whitewash published by the United States department of agriculture:

Slake half a bushel of unslaked lime with boiling water, keeping it covered during the process. Strain it and add a peck of salt, dissolved in warm water; three pounds of ground rice put in boiling water and boiled to a thin paste; half a pound of Spanish whiting, and a pound of clear glue, dissolved in warm water. Mix these well together, and let the mixture stand for several days. Keep the wash thus prepared in a kettle or portable furnace, and when used put it on as hot as possible with painters' or whitewash brushes.

ALFALFA PASTURE FOR LIVE STOCK

Has Higher Feeding Value When Cut at an Early Stage—Better to Feed Than Sell.

Alfalfa is invaluable as a pasture for live stock. For hog pasture it is especially so. Ten pounds of green alfalfa produces one pound of pork. Figuring on this basis, an acre of green alfalfa, weighing 20,000 pounds, will make 2,000 pounds of pork which, at five cents a pound, is worth $100. This estimate is true when corn and alfalfa are fed together.

Alfalfa has a higher feeding value when cut at an early stage of maturity, about one-tenth in bloom, than when out in full bloom. It contains more nutrient value, pound for pound, than any other forage crop, being almost equal to wheat bran in digestible nutrients. Alfalfa compares favorably with cottonseed meal, soy beans and wheat bran in amount of digestible protein. Since the price of these concentrates is higher than the price of alfalfa, it is cheaper and more profitable to feed alfalfa.

The best way for the farmer to market alfalfa hay is in the form of horses, hogs, beef, mutton or dairy products. Such products are easily taken to the market, and the manure, which may be returned to the soil, is almost equal in value to the hay itself. Under all conditions, it is better to feed alfalfa to live stock than to sell it as a marketable product. It is advisable for the farmer to sell his hay only when he has more than enough to feed his live stock.

BUILDING A RACK FOR HAULING WOOD

Use Two Pieces of Very Strong Wood and Have Blacksmith Make Standard Sockets.

(By W. H. UNDERWOOD.)

Take two 4 by 5 pieces of very strong wood not less than eleven feet long and not more than twelve and cut a notch so as to fit down over hind bolster of wagon to prevent rack from slipping backward or forward. Use four or six standards on each side and the same number of cross pieces and at the same places make sure that the standard in going down through the standard socket catches and pries against the end of the cross piece. Make standards three and one-half feet long. They may be afterwards cut off if desired. Have a blacksmith make standard sockets from old wagon tires to admit a standard one and one-half by four inches and with bolt holes for one-half inch bolts. Bolt all cross pieces firmly. Have wagon nearby when making rack and have the rack go as far forward as possible so that when it is turned so that front wheels strike the side rail on one side and the other wheel will just miss the front end of the other side rail, and also the front standard pocket. Boards may be used on the wagon to get these measurements.

NAPOLEON SMITH
Real Estate Promoter

Captain Hammond passed the gate of the modest Smith residence at a good round clip, for he had his usual scant seconds to catch the eight twenty-seven. An elastic step at his side suddenly swung into perfect accord with his heel and toe rhythm, and a young voice, which nevertheless sounded like that of a "regular man," bade him a very cheerful good morning.

"Mr. Hammond, I want a job," was the next remark of the voice. Captain Hammond frowned and turned to find himself looking slightly upward, straight into the grin of young Napoleon Smith.

Now the grin of young Napoleon was the most infectious and ingratiating joy ever devised.

Meeting the grin, Captain Hammond relaxed and smiled in spite of himself.

"What can you do?" he asked.

"Hustle," stated young Smith in reply to the question.

This time Captain Hammond laughed outright.

"That's the most valuable asset you can own," he declared. "Your name's Smith, isn't it?"

Napoleon admitted that it was.

The eight twenty-seven just then whistled for Briarscot, and both men started to run.

"But about that job?" suggested young Smith again.

"Oh, yes," said the captain, and unconsciously he frowned once more. "I don't know of a thing at our place. You say you've had no business experience at all?"

"None that I care to tell about," replied the other, smiling reminiscently. "All through college I served as a correspondent for various papers, and through vacations I worked on general assignments on the Courier. I could go to work on the paper now, but the occupation doesn't seem to promise much of a future."

The captain nodded his head with a jerk.

"Choosing a profession is like making a wise investment," he said. "I understand your father's estate didn't cut up quite so well as was expected?"

"No," returned young Smith cheerfully. "It totaled to exactly nothing, and nothing to carry. You don't think, then, that there is anything in your place?"

"Not just now," said the captain. "However, I shall bear you in mind."

Captain Hammond strode into his office and fired off his usual morning question.

"Where's Bluffing?"

"Not down yet," said the girl of the straw-colored hair, slightly worried.

About half an hour later, Bluffing, a young man with a big straw hat and puffs under his eyes strolled in, smoking a cigarette, and, after a moment's deliberation, decided that he might as well work as not.

"Mr. Bluffing," said the captain, "I'd like to remind you that the address of this office is 710 Green street, and that we look forward with eager anticipation to the pleasure of your society between the hours of nine and twelve and one and five. If those hours seem a trifle inconvenient to you, you might state so in writing and I'll put the matter up to the board of directors."

"Very sorry, Mr. Hammond," said Bluffing with a wink at the straw-haired girl. "You see, we got caught in a jam at—"

"I don't give a continental what held you," responded Mr. Hammond. "The point is that we want you here at nine o'clock, with no excuse short of a broken leg."

On the second mail an excessively large order soothed the captain somewhat, and at noon the arrival of a tall, black-haired young lady with a color in her cheeks which never came from a chemist's shop, soothed him still more.

"I suppose you have a lot of old business engagements for luncheon, haven't you, daddy? Now tell me yes," she said.

"But I am going to tell you no," replied the captain, all smiles.

"Then," she informed him with a mock courtesy, "I am going to allow you to buy some eclairs and things for a stunning young lady to whom you may point with pride."

"By George, Margie," said the captain, now as gentle as any suckling lamb, "how you have developed! There is just a little bit of a pang in that last remark of yours. Some of these days it will be some other fellow's place to point with pride and fill all other male hearts with envy."

"Indeed!" she said, quite loftily, "maybe that time has already come."

He laughed and closed his eyes for a second.

"I had a queer experience this morning with young Smith, up in our suburb," he said.

"Pole Smith?" she inquired.

"Pole!" he repeated.

"Yes; Napoleon, you know we called him Pole because he was such a gangling, spindle-legged youngster when we organized the Briarscot Tennis club. Since he's grown handsome he doesn't like the name very much, so we call it to him all the time."

"You know him pretty well, then?"

"Why, he fairly haunts our front porch! Haven't you seen him there?"

"No."

"Yes, you have, I know; but you're a fine, trustful daddy, and you never put a microscope on the young men I bring around."

"What sort of a fellow is this Pole Smith?" he asked.

"Why, daddy, he's a regular, sure-for-truly, cross-my-heart, hope-I-may die fellow."

He looked at her in affectionate wonder.

"If you had all those words in your system, I am glad you got them out," said he. "By the way, I formed about the same impression of your Pole Smith that you've given me. He's good to look at, and I've been remembering that wonderful grin of his all morning. It's like a drink of good wine."

"He's a perfectly grand grinner; he invented it, I think," agreed Marjorie, and they went to lunch.

That evening, just before closing time, Hammond looked suddenly up from his memoranda and snapped:

"Bluffing, did you see about securing that adjoining tract of land for the extension of the Eureka Works?"

"Why—no," faltered Mr. Bluffing, "I haven't seen to it yet."

"You haven't!" roared Hammond, "Bluffing, I am going to pain you. Go do business with the cashier, and don't bother to come back and shake hands. Good-by."

That evening, after having accepted the angry resignation of the girl with the straw-colored hair, the captain took a train 15 minutes earlier than his accustomed one, and stopped at the gray cottage of the Smiths' on his way up to his own big stone residence at the end of the boulevard. In answer to his ring a very pretty brown-haired girl came to the door, and Captain Hammond, whose heart was growing younger through the day's experience, fairly beamed upon her.

"My goodness me! And you're one of the grown-up Smith children, too, aren't you?" he said, as one awakening to a startling discovery.

"Yes, Captain Hammond," she replied, dimpling. "I'm June."

"Where's your brother?"

"Oh, he's up at your house playing tennis, I think. We were just going up to join them," and she looked back over her shoulder and smiled, as a chubby young fellow of about twenty-two strolled out hatless and saluted the captain with a flourish of his hand.

"Hell, Peters!" said the captain; "you're a great one. I never see you twice with the same girl."

"Hush!" said Billy Peters in a careful burlesque of a confidential undertone. "I don't dare encourage any of them too much." And he gave a fine imitation of a man yawning.

"Some of these days, my boy," warned the captain, laughing, "you're going to be so hard hit that it will make a man of you. By the way, June, I'm suddenly so interested in all you young people that I forgot my errand. I understand that your brother is looking for a position."

"Oh, no!" she said, beaming with sisterly pride, "he found one this morning."

Then the captain, who usually tried to be most circumspect in the company of ladies, forgot himself.

"Hell!" he said.

Napoleon Smith had "scouted" in perhaps a dozen places before a good Samaritan led him to the offices of Forsythe and Spencer. They called themselves promoters, did Forsythe and Spencer, although they chiefly promoted real estate deals and would follow a dollar through Hades, or until they had annexed it. Forsythe's hair, face, mustache and beard were the color of a dish of ice cream, and he looked up at one through shrewd old eyes which bored down through the soul to the pockets.

"Yes, Mr. Smith," he quavered in his high-pitched and nasal voice, "we do need a man, but I'm afraid from what you tell me that you haven't had enough business experience."

"Assuming that you are correct," he said, "how much money would you be willing to pay me?"

"Ten dollars a week."

Napoleon grinned. Forsythe liked that grin; he knew it had commercial value, and he waited with concealed anxiety for the answer.

"And what would I be expected to do?"

"Anything you're told."

"No," decided Mr. Smith. [illegible] more money for that. We'll say about 25 dollars, and even then there'd have to be reservations."

Around the corners of Forsythe's mouth there came an unfamiliar twitch, and after a hard struggle the corners turned upward.

"I see," he said. "Well, Mr Smith, suppose we leave the question of salary an open one. Suppose you work with us for two weeks. At the end of that time, we'll sit down and have a good quarrel upon the matter of pay."

"I'll take you," said Napoleon, with an alacrity which almost startled the older man.

"Come in and meet Mr. Spencer," he said, grimly.

So it came about that Napoleon Smith was put out in Sunnyview and began the herculean task of selling building lots to prospective home-seekers. The first week he was well-nigh discouraged, for, in spite of all his engaging efforts and his pleasing personality, and even despite his grin, the flock of people attracted by the Forsythe and Spencer advertising came and looked at the appalling forsakenness of the place and went away; and by Saturday noon he had only sold eight lots.

"What do you think of that Smith boy?" said Forsythe, rubbing his bloodless old hands together. "He sold eight of those Sunnyview stickers. It's a record for that type of place."

"Keep him out there," advised Mr. Spencer sagely. "And tell him he'll have to do better if he's going to stay with us."

A hint to that effect on the following Tuesday, however, set Napoleon, heretofore humble, upon his defense.

"I'm doing the best I can, and hope to do better," he declared. "What ought my sales to reach?"

"Well—um—not less than 15 lots," stated Forsythe.

The younger man was silent for a moment, looking into the beady little wrinkled eyes of his employer.

"How much profit do you make on those lots?" he suddenly asked.

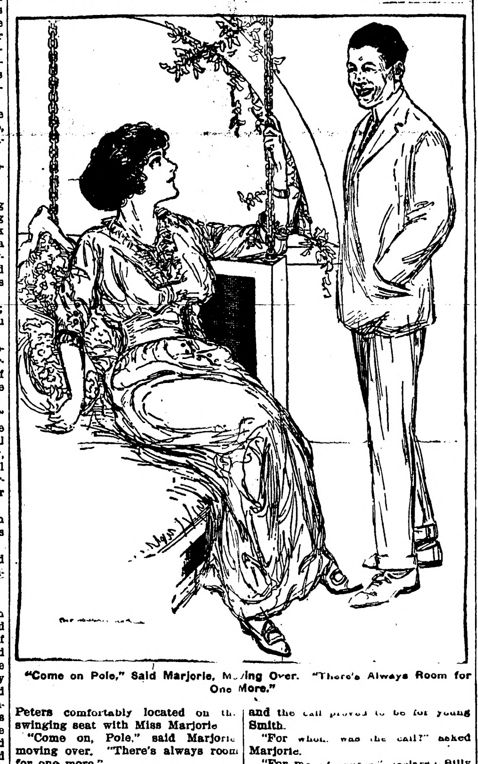
Mr. Forsythe visibly winced.

"Profits!" he exclaimed. "Um—you see, Mr. Smith, it's impossible to tell until we're all through, on account of advertising expenses, cost of selling, and other items, to say nothing of the heavy investment in the site."

The famous grin sprang into instant illumination, and scared the astute Mr. Forsythe nearly into heart disease.

"Yes," said the owner of the grin with calm joy, "I met the former proprietor of that land out at Sunnyview just yesterday, and he told me your exact investment. I think, Mr. Forsythe, that on Saturday night I am going to have more salary than I have mentioned; or else I may go on a commission basis."

Napoleon walked up on the moonlit Hammond porch and found Billy Peters comfortably located on the swinging seat with Miss Marjorie.



"Come on Pole," Said Marjorie, Moving Over. "There's Always Room for One More."

"Come on, Pole," said Marjorie, moving over. "There's always room for one more."

"Indeed there's not," declared Billy, moving squarely into the center of the remaining space. "Go away, Pole Smith, I'm making love."

Napoleon regarded him for a moment with tolerant humor.

"All right, Billy," he agreed. "Where's your father, Margie?"

"He's in the library," she replied, laughing as he had done, at Billy Peters' drawling avowal.

As he walked away, Marjorie looked after his tall figure with appreciation.

"Isn't he a certainly fellow?" she observed.

"Declared irregular," announced Billy cheerfully. "Against the rules to ask any smitten swain to praise the deadly rival."

"Billy, Billy," she laughed. "Don't you ever think of anything serious?"

In the meantime, Napoleon sought the library where Captain Hammond, then poring over his plans for the extension of the Eureka Iron mills, arose instantly with a smile of pleasure and extended his hand.

"Well, Pole," he said, "you got away from me."

"I couldn't wait," explained Pole.

"How do you like your new place?" went on the captain, offering him a cigar.

"Oh, it's interesting, though I'm not sure I'd like it for a life occupation. It's wonderful how much business can be done on a small amount of ready money. I find Forsythe and Spencer are swinging that whole Sunnyview deal on an initial cash payment of a thousand dollars, mortgage notes for the balance. They do a big business in options, too, I've found, and they make a dollar go farther than I'd ever dreamed it could reach."

"You've only known the spending dollars," returned the captain with a smile. "A single, ordinary, spending dollar is of no more use than a safety razor at a colored picnic, but a business dollar has no time for foolishness. I'd like to see you succeed, Smith. To do that you've got to appreciate that there's no sentiment or friendship in business. If there is, the business fails. Remember that, will you?"

"I'm not likely to forget it," replied Napoleon seriously. "It was because of such lovable weaknesses that my father failed."

"Yes," admitted the captain. "Your father always was a sentimentalist, and he lost many a good opportunity through it. The sooner you get out of your head, young man, that money has any emotions, the better off you'll be."

"I see," said Napoleon dryly.

"The quicker you see, the better," insisted the captain, dwelling upon the subject so strongly that one might think he had really almost need to defend himself. "Where would I have been if I had stopped for such considerations? As it is, I built the Eureka iron mills out of nothing—a little bit of a 16 by 20 shop, where we made plain castings—to its present 20-acre spread. Not only that, but we must have more room, large additions, too, right away."

"Where is your plant?" asked young Smith with growing interest.

"Out on the Cedarpong division of the L. & I., at Hammondville."

"Hammondville! Why, I pass the Hammondville station every day on my way to the Sunnyview addition, but I never noticed your plant."

"No, we haven't the business advantages that we ought to have," admitted the captain; "I'm thinking of cutting away the sand ridge which shuts off the view of our factory from the railroad."

Just then the telephone bell rang, and the call proved to be for young Smith.

"For whom was the call?" asked Marjorie.

"For me, of course," declared Billy Peters. "I'll gamble it was some one of the girls calling me up."

"No," said Napoleon abstractedly, thinking upon other matters so deeply that he had no time to reply to Billy Peters in his own banter. "It's from June. She wants me to come down and get her."

"Just what I told you," said Billy triumphantly. "I wish your sister would quit following me around. You ought to speak to her about it, Pole. But never mind; you stay here, and I'll go ahead. You may try to make love to Margie while I am gone."

"Trying to make love to Margie is rather a bromide," said Napoleon. "Everybody has the same idea." Nevertheless, he sat down most comfortably and contentedly by Marjorie's side, and allowed Billy Peters to stroll negligently after his sister.

Hammondville consisted of a station and three streets of well-populated workmen's cottages. Beyond, reached by a wagon road and a spur track, was the Eureka plant, a low-lying collection of brick buildings which sprawled in every direction. To the front was a sand ridge; to the rear, the sound, to the east, a stretch of level land; and to the west, an equal area which, however, was one-third marsh. As young Smith stepped into view around the turn of the road, workmen were removing the "for sale or lease" sign from the better tract, and Napoleon stopped to look upon this operation with a trace of annoyance.

"Quick work," he said. Then he approached the workmen. "Who's bought this place?" he asked.

"I couldn't tell you, sir," said the older man of the crew. "Mr. Panz told us to move the sign over to Greeneck."

Panz was the real estate agent whose name was on the board, and with a sigh Napoleon saw he had been correct in his surmise; that the captain had taken extraordinarily prompt action.

"A fool's errand," he told himself. He hurried back to the station, where there was a public 'phone, and called up Panz's office.

"I understand you have a tract of land for sale at Hammondville," he observed.

"I couldn't tell you about that," said the clerk at the other end. "Who's this speaking?"

"Smith, of Forsythe and Spencer's office."

"Oh! I'll find out about it right away, Mr. Smith." Then a moment later: "We no longer have control of that tract. It was sold yesterday."

"To whom?"

"To the Consolidated Hame-ring Manufacturing company, which we understand intends to erect an extensive plant there."

"Good," said Smith. "Thank you," and he rang off.

"Who owns that piece of property to the west of the Eureka iron mills?" he asked the station agent.

"Mrs. McGundy," said the lantern-jawed station agent, scraping his finger nail tenderly over his nose. "She lives in that sky-blue house just to the end of the frog pond."

Napoleon hurried away to the little blue house, where he found Mrs. McGundy to be a globular person cut into two hemispheres by an apron string.

"Mrs. McGundy," queried Napoleon, "do you wish to sell your land over here?"

"Show me the man that will buy it?" said she. "I surely could part with it without breaking my heart. Twenty years ago, when Jim bought it for a song, it was supposed that if we held on to it for 20 years it would be worth all the money in the mint, but in all that time never have I seen the man that would ever be wanting that land, unless it would be Captain Hammond. But he don't want it. Twice I have gone myself to sell it to him, and twice he gave me to understand that if he bought any land it would be the other piece. You're not representing Captain Hammond?"

"No," said Napoleon brisky. "What will you take for the land?"

"Well, there's 20 acres, and it's worth, Jim always said, 200 dollars an acre. That's $4,000. Give me that and I'll take the next steamer for Dublin."

"I can't give you the four thousand cash," said Smith, "but I'll give you one thousand cash, and a mortgage note on the balance, payable in 60 days. You can wait the two months for the collection of that note, or you can probably discount it."

"Let me understand that," said Mrs. McGundy.

He carefully explained to her about the mortgage note, and with each period she nodded her round gray head emphatically.

"It sounds well," she said, "and you seem like an honest boy. But before I say aye, yes, or no, I'll go in and see Mr. McShane of McShane and McShane. Do you know Mr. McShane?"

Mr. Smith was unfortunate enough never to have had that pleasure, and he expressed himself contritely about it.

"What time does the next train go?" he wanted to know. "Can you come to town with me right now?"

Mrs. McGundy looked him over carefully, and glanced at the clock.

"Lord love you, boy!" she said. "What a ragin', tearin' hurry you're in! Oh, well, it's been many a long day since I took a jaunting with a handsome-looking young fellow like yourself, and I think I'll treat myself to it just this once. There's a train goes in about 20 minutes. Do you go down to the station and wait, and in due time I'll come along with my best bib and tucker on."

Napoleon lost no time in getting down to the station, and lost no time, furthermore, in calling Captain Hammond by 'phone.

"This is young Smith, Captain Hammond," said he. "I want to borrow a thousand dollars."

"Oh, you do?" inquired the captain. "On what security?"

"Mortgage on our house," returned Napoleon crisply.

"When do you want it?"

"Within an hour or so, captain. I want you to let me have the check this morning and let me fix up the mortgage with you tomorrow."

"It isn't business, but I'll do it," agreed the captain after some hesitation. "But would you mind telling me what you want it for?"

"Oh, I have a little real estate opportunity."

The captain pondered a moment.

"You want to be careful about that," he warned. "Real estate deals are not always what they appear on the surface."

Napoleon Smith grinned sweetly into the 'phone.

"I'll guarantee this one to be all right," he confidently affirmed.

"All right," said the captain. "Come into the office and get your check at any time."

On the way to McShane and McShane Napoleon had Mrs. McGundy stop a moment in the lobby of the Kingston building while he ran up to Captain Hammond's office and got his check. Still on the way, he stopped and deposited that check at the bank where he had a small account, and then was ready for business. The broad-boned old lawyer would have made the deal pompous and difficult had he been left alone, but Mrs. McGundy stopped him as soon as she saw his direction.

"Stop your blatherin' and foolin' now, Terrence," she commanded. "Hurry up and finish the business with this young man. I like the cheerful face of him."

After that, Napoleon went out to Sunnyview and sold lots with particular vim and energy.

Mr. Forsythe, having sent for his new assistant in extreme haste in the afternoon of the same day, peered up at that young man with something tigerish in the expression of his white old face.

"I understand that you secured possession of a tract of land in Hammondville," said he, "and that you only purchased it this morning."

Napoleon grinned cheerfully.

"All quite true," he confessed.

"Don't you know that was most unethical?" demanded Mr. Forsythe. "Why, in our employ, and upon our time, you took occasion to do some private business for yourself in our exact line!"

"Yes, sir," admitted Mr. Smith, with no abatement of his pleasant expression. "How do you come to know about it?"

"Because Mr. Hammond called us up early this morning and commissioned us to buy that very piece of ground for him."

The grin of Napoleon was positively radiant now.

"Do you think I ought to turn it over to you?"

"Well not exactly that," said Mr. Forsythe. "But as our employe, you are bound to consult our interests. Captain Hammond has commissioned us to secure this piece of property, which he imagined could be purchased for $4,000. You have purchased it, and I presume intend to sell it to him at an increased price. Now, we might arrange to fix the price between Forsythe and Spencer and yourself, and you and us split the profits."

Napoleon paused for an extra special grin.

"No, I resign," he stated. "That's a still better scheme. Now I'll sell you that land for $6,000 cash."

In vast pain Mr. Forsythe eventually was compelled to call up Mr. Hammond, and inform that gentleman that the land for his extension would cost him the modest sum of $6,000.

"Buy it," directed Hammond.

"I might add," said Mr. Forsythe with a malignant glance at his ex-employe, "that the property in question is at present owned by young Smith, formerly in our employ, but today resigned."

"Smith!" exclaimed Hammond. "Is he in your office now? If he is, put him on the 'phone." And if Mr. Forsythe indicated the captain's desire to Napoleon, he could hear the captain, at the other end of the wire, saying to himself: "Well, I'll be damned!"

"Look here," demanded the captain of young Smith, "did you actually have the nerve to borrow that thousand dollars from me this morning to buy the very piece of property you knew I wanted, so as to compel me to pay you a two-thousand-dollar profit on the loan?"

"That's right, captain," admitted Napoleon cheerfully.

"Well, Smith, don't you think that was a little ungrateful and unfriendly? Don't you think you stepped over the bounds of both business and social ethics?"

"By no means," said Napoleon. "You told me yourself, just the other night, that business knows no friendship, and that a dollar has no sentiments or emotions. Moreover, captain, I intend to retrieve the reputation my father made with you for allowing his feelings to interfere with business. Do you want this property at six thousand?"

"Of course I do, you young ingrate," said the captain.

"All right," laughed Napoleon. "I'll be right over, thank you."

"Thank nothing!" snorted the captain. "I ought to have you arrested."

That night as the captain sat in the library, Marjorie came in to use the telephone, and paused behind her father's chair to pull his ears.

"Who's that you have with you on the porch, Margie?" he asked.

"Pole Smith," she informed him. "He's just telling me all about how well he's going to like business. He says he made $2,000 in one deal today."

"Yes, confound it, he did!" exploded the captain. "He made it out of my pocket and borrowed my money to do it with."

Her laugh upon that was delicious; so much so that the captain stopped to listen to it in positive joy, all his annoyances of the day forgotten.

"I guess I'm a lemon," he confessed, laughing with her.

"A nickel's worth of them," she agreed, twisting two corkscrews in his gray hair. "I should think that a shrewd old business tiger like you would feel humiliated to have a mere youngster like Pole Smith come along and eat him all up."

The captain smiled grimly.

"He's a fine chap, young Smith is," he said.

She slipped her arm around his neck and laid her cheek against his.

"A fine chap? Just finding it out? Daddy, daddy, daddy! You don't keep up with the news very well, do you?"

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF

LEE SELECTED AT STATE CONFERENCE

SO-CALLED ANTI-MACHINE REPUBLICANS HOLD ELIMINATION MEETING.

THOUSAND DELEGATES THERE

Todd County Man Wins Out Over Iverson, Peterson, Lee and Elwell—Nomination Made Unanimous.

Minneapolis.—William E. Lee, of Todd County, was the unanimous choice for govenor of the so-called anti-machine Republicans of the state, who met here Thursday.

The vote for the candidates was as follows: William E. Lee, 555; Samuel G. Iverson, 197; James A. Peterson, 186; Senator J. T. Elwell, 11; and J. F. Jacobson, 1.

After the vote had been taken by counties, Lee was declared the unanimous choice of the convention amid deafening cheers.

Lee Thanks Delegates.

Mounting the platform, Mr. Lee said:

"I want to thank you for this honor. I would willingly have served in the ranks, but you have called me to lead. I propose to lead from now until the polls have closed.

"I accept this nomination, free to do the right thing as I see it. I am a Republican and all Republicans shall be alike to me. I recognize no individual. I shall stand by this convention until the next gubernatorial election.

"Corruptness and dishonesty may work their way into any administration, but if they stay there the fault is with the people. The people know the evils of our government, and it is for them to cure them. They can lower taxation by lowering the cost of government."

Iverson Vows Allegiance.

Following this address Mr. Iverson was called to the platform. He said: "I want to repeat what I said a short while ago. I am for the man whom you have selected. I am for William E. Lee for governor. What is more, the selection you have made today will be ratified by the people next June and November.

"There is a grand victory in sight. We are going to have an unmuzzled press, and thousands and thousands of upright men believe it is time for them to protect themselves from the enemies of good government."

Elwell Is Satisfied.

Mr. Elwell said:

"It is all over except the work. I am with you as much as I was this morning, and will be with you until after the election. We are going to elect William E. Lee next November."

The morning session was given over to speechmaking by the four candidates for the Republican anti-machine nomination for governor.

Denunciation of the "present government" of the state of Minnesota and of Governor A. O. Eberhart were contained in a vigorous series of resolutions submitted by a committee of which E. T. Young was chairman.

Delegates rallied around the county standards and practically one thousand filled the seats provided when the chairman of the conference committee called the gathering to order.

Frazee Lumber Camps Break.

Frazee.—The camps of the local lumber company are breaking up and the town is full of lumberjacks. The men are spending their money freely, but are orderly and no serious disturbance is expected. The company has had a good season, getting in many millions of feet of logs for the mill here. In about a month the sawing season will begin. As soon as the river thaws the log drive will be started. It is about ninety miles by river to the mill, the logs being driven through a dozen lakes and Otter Tail river. The mill will run night and day shifts, as usual, employing more than 400 men.

Indians File Charges.

Virginia, Minn.—Eight of the members of the Nett Lake Indian band, living on the Nett Lake reservation near this city, have returned home from a trip to Washington, D. C., where they filed charges against A. B. Regan, Indian agent on the reservation. The delegation was headed by Rev. Pequette, Indian agency minister. A special representative of the department of the interior has come.

Lower Temperatures Welcomed.

Winona.—Farmers in southern Minnesota are elated with the change in the weather conditions and welcome the lower temperatures. They believe it means ideal growing conditions when warmer weather finally becomes steady. Farmers in this section, it is argued, have had their experiences with early springs and do not long for them. Invariably when the early seeding is accomplished before the normal season arrives a killing frost comes.

STATE UPHOLDS PRIMARY LAW

Minnesota Supreme Court Holds Measure Constitutional—Candidates to be Active.

Minneapolis.—The non-partisan primary law has been held constitutional by the state supreme court. It had been attacked as unconstitutional on five separate counts.

The law makes the following changes in the present system:

All county offices and all legislative offices are made non-partisan.

The primary election is changed from September to the third Tuesday in June.

The "Bull Moose" party is legalized and can nominate candidates in the primaries. No petition will be necessary this year, the necessary 5 per cent vote having been polled last year.

Nomination by petition for non-partisan offices after the primaries is prohibited.

Provision is made for the non-partisan election of county surveyors without a primary.

The position of Minnesota is unique, in that the election of the state legislature is placed on a non-partisan basis. This provision was incorporated in the law only after a bitter fight.

Many candidates have been waiting for the decision of the supreme court. The decision is expected to stimulate political activity. More men are expected to file for the legislature and county offices. With the primaries a little over two months away no time will be lost by the officeseekers.

FERGUS FALLS BOY LUCKY

Court Holds He Is Lawful Owner of Coal Claim Which Is Worth Millions.

Fergus Falls.—News was received from Seattle that the United States land office had decided a long disputed coal claim case in favor of five claimants, one of whom is Joseph Frankoviz, a Fergus Falls boy, who will become a millionaire as a result of the decision.

Mr. Frankoviz went west five years ago and filed on a rich coal claim near Glacier, Wash. Its full value was not at that time appreciated. The tract consists of 160 acres underlaid with a fine grade of hard coal. As the time for completing title arrived, he arranged with a wealthy western man to furnish him with the money, about $3,000. The man waited until the last minute and then notified him he had decided not to go into it.

Fortunately, Mr. Frankoviz had written to his father, who is in business here, and the latter arrived on the scene in time to supply the money. Then the man who was to have furnished it filed upon the land as a timber claim, contending it was timber land, not mining land, and that Mr. Frankoviz' filing was illegal.

This led to a contest, which has been in progress ever since, and the land office now confirms Mr. Frankoviz' claim to the property.

FIGHT MOSQUITO WITH FISH

Farm School Expert Wants People of State to Co-operate in War on Pest.

St. Paul.—Don't wait to swat the mosquito; annihilate it before it attains swattable proportions.

That is the warning of C. W. Howard of the division of entomology at the university farm, chief of the section of field crop pests and parasite insects.

Prof. Howard intends to conduct a strenuous anti-mosquito campaign this spring, and he wants the public generally to co-operate. The only successful way to combat the mosquito is to fight the insect in its breeding place before it is far enough developed to do damage, says Prof. Howard.

Mosquitos are good for nothing, he declares, except to feed the fishes. Therefore, he says, propagate fish in greater numbers and stock every small stream and pond with them that they may contribute more substantially to the extermination of the winged pests.

State Land Sale at Bemidji.

Bemidji.—At the first sale of state land held here this year by Theodore Nelson of the state auditor's office, 2,025 acres were sold, bids going as high as $11.25 an acre. The total sales amounted to $12,600. The lowest price paid was $5 an acre and the average price was $6.25.

Royal Neighbors Meet.

Mankato.—The Royal Neighbors held their triennial state convention in this city, with a large attendance. They were entertained by members of the local lodge.

State Sells 5,400 Acres.

Grand Rapids.—The first state land sale for Itasca county took place here last week, Theodore Nelson of the state auditor's office being in charge. It was one of the best sales ever conducted in the county, both in point of acreage disposed of and price received. The sale price averaged $8.20 an acre, the 5,400 acres sold bringing a total of about $45,000. The highest price paid was $39.75 an acre for a forty-acre tract in the neighborhood of the new mining town of Fayton.

RICH SECTION IS TAPPED BY ROAD

NORTH MINNESOTA COUNTRY TO HAVE NEW RAILWAY IN SHORT TIME.

LAND IS DECLARED FERTILE

Red Lake Northern Will Connect Lake Itasca With Red Lake and Lake of the Woods, Also.

Bemidji.—Work is to be started soon on the Red Lake Northern railroad, which is to connect Lake Itasca with Red Lake, and Lake of the Woods, giving tourists and vacationists easy access to the beautiful Itasca state forest, and also to Red lake, the largest body of water in Minnesota.

Opens Section Up.

The road will also open for settlement one of the richest sections of northern Minnesota. What the Minnesota & International, the Greenbush branch of the Great Northern, the Duluth, Winnipeg & Pacific and the new line of the Soo have done within the past three and four years in their respective fields, the new line will do for a section of the state now all the way from ten to thirty miles from railway communication. Settlers now must "tote" in their supplies by team and move their crops the same way.

The nucleus for the proposed line is the logging road of the Red River Lumber company from Crooked Lake Junction, near Akeley, northeast to within a mile of Lake Itasca, and an abandoned spur of the same company extending south from Fletcher Junction near Shevlin, almost to the state forest.

Residents Are Promoters.

The promoters of the road who are mainly residents of Beltrami, Clearwater and Hubbard counties, but are not yet in the capitalist class, have interested J. E. Coon of Youngstown, Ohio, in their venture and expect great results. Mr. Coon has gained wealth and fame by building rural lines and placing them on their feet ready to be taken over by some large system. Of late he has devoted himself to suburban lines in Ohio and neighboring states, but he began his railroad work in Nebraska and is familiar with railroad construction in the west.

By building about ten miles of new track connecting the two spurs of the Red River Lumber company, a railroad sixty miles long and making the Itasca park accessible both from the north and the south and opening valuable farming land will be a reality.

The country is settled to some extent and several farmers in that section have prospered even without railroad conveniences.

Route of New Road.

North of Fletcher Junction the new line will enter the pine country south and west of big Red lake with its long sweep from the southwest to the northeast of thirty-five miles. For many miles the road will skirt the western shore of this large body of water and will then mount a ridge or watershed extending due north to Warroad on Lake of the Woods.

This ridge is said by those who made the preliminary survey to be ideal for railroad construction, as there are few if any streams to cross and no engineering difficulties to be solved. From Fletcher Junction to Warroad is ninety-two miles in a direct line, but the railroad will be somewhat longer.

Beyond the Red Lake district the country is gridironed with drainage ditches which are reclaiming what is declared to be the best land in the state that is still on the market. Along each ditch mile for mile there is a good road. This means that settlers, the real home builders, will swarm over the country at the first opportunity. Much of this land belongs to the state, but thousands of acres are subject to homestead entry, so the home-seeker has two ways of becoming a freeholder.

Osseo Town and Country Club.

Osseo.—A Town and Country club was organized here with ninety members. Its object is to co-operate for the best interests of the community; to better conditions socially, financially and educationally. W. A. Schmidt, formerly of the university farm school, was elected president of the club for one year. The Osseo Commercial club entertained with a banquet and smoker after the meeting.

Murder Mystery Indicated.

Winona.—The Mississippi river, in giving up the body of Patrick R. Bennett, thirty-five years old and a resident of Fulton, Ill., ended a four months search and afforded the authorities say, a murder mystery. The body was found floating in the river a few miles north of Winona on the Wisconsin side. Bennet disappeared in November when returning to his work as foreman on track construction for the Burlington road at Cachrane, Wis., after a visit at his home.

EARLY SPRING SALADS.

Before it is warm enough to do any work outside in the garden, a small shallow box well protected by an old window and well filled with good mellow soil may be sown with pepper grass, lettuce seed and radishes, and long before the garden produce is ready you will have tender green things for the table.

This tender pepper grass will soon reach four inches in height, and it may be used as a salad or on bread and butter for a sandwich filling. The slight pepper taste is most appetizing, and when combined with lettuce makes a delicious salad.

Utilize the flower urns and other places which cannot be planted out so early on account of frosts, but may be protected by glass, and raise any number of early things which are so good on the table in the spring.

In the early spring, when the first dandelion shows its green leaf, lay a few boards over a bed of the thickest of them, and see what a delicious salad bed of blanched leaves you can provide for your table for weeks. Dandelion is especially good for the blood, and so should be served often in the spring. The larger leaves, before the blossom comes, may be cut and cooked like spinach or with a little salt pork, then serve with vinegar for a sauce.

Mint is another early arrival, and is most delightful for a sauce with spring lamb. Cut a bunch and bruise the leaves, pour on a little boiling hot vinegar and let it steep for a while, then add a teaspoon or more of powdered sugar, and serve with the lamb.

Mint is also much relished as a mixture with other vegetables for salad. Take a bunch of mint and twice the quantity of lettuce, a few sprays of pepper grass and a few onions sliced. Cut all the greens as fine as possible without crushing, and pour over a French dressing, using three tablespoonfuls of oil and one of vinegar, a half teaspoon of salt and a few dashes of red pepper and a half teaspoon of powdered sugar. Mix well and pour over the salad.

Water cress is another most wholesome spring salad, and when one is fortunate enough to get this snappy little salad green it may be served in any number of ways, with or without other greens in combination.

King Hassan, well beloved, was wont to say,
When anything went wrong, or any labor failed,
Tomorrow, friends, will bring another day,
And in that faith he slept, and so prevailed.
—Saxe.

THINGS WORTH REMEMBERING.

When cooking vegetables, a nice change from the regular methods is to bake them. Baked turnips are really quite an appetizing dish when large and of good juicy variety. When serving, peel back the outer skin from the top and serve as baked potato.

Baked beets are a change from the usual way of boiling them. Wash and prepare them as for boiling, then put into a hot oven and bake until tender. They are so much sweeter and better flavored and may be served then chopped with butter and lemon juice for seasoning, or sliced for pickles.

Celery boiled in milk makes a pleasing variety for the table. Season well with butter, salt and a bit of red pepper or paprika, and add a white sauce or not, just as one desires.

Onions are delicious baked, either stuffed with sausage or bread crumbs and nuts. Baste, while baking, with butter and water or any good flavored soup stock.

Nasturtium seeds make a very nice relish to serve with meats. When the seed pods are young, pick them and put to soak in a strong brine for 24 hours; drain well and cover with a good vinegar. Add a little red pepper or any condiments and spices to taste. A little mace and ginger root is well liked. This makes an excellent relish for boiled mutton or lamb.

When eggs are high or scarce, frost the cakes with fondant. It may be kept for an indefinite period and used at any time by warming over hot water. To make the fondant, boil together two cups of sugar, a half cup of water and a tablespoonful of glucose to the soft ball stage when tried in cold water. Stir, when cold, until creamy, then mold and knead, and place in a dish, well covered with waxed paper, and over that a plate, to keep it from drying out.

Quince honey is a delectable preserve to serve with waffles.

When a piece of beef which was bought to broil or pan broil seems tough, let it lie in olive oil for an hour or two, then broil very quickly, to sear it well, and then cook slower until cooked as one likes it, rare or otherwise. This oil will soften the fiber and the hot fire, when cooking, keeps in the juices, so that a most desirable dish is the result.

Every tomorrow has two handles. We may choose which one we shall grasp, doubt or faith, indecision or decision, success or failure.

SEASONABLE DISHES.

Macaroni and Oysters.—Boil a half a package of macaroni in salted water until tender. Butter a baking dish and put a layer of the cooked macaroni, then a layer of oysters. Sprinkle lightly with salt and a bit of grated cheese; add another light layer of macaroni, cover with cheese and well buttered crumbs, and bake until the crumbs are brown. Add a cup of thin white sauce to the dish before the crumbs are added.

Oatmeal Bread.—Take two cupfuls of oatmeal, half a cup of molasses, two teaspoonfuls of salt, and pour over this a pint of boiling water. Let cool, then add a cake of softened yeast, two cupfuls of flour, and mix well. Put into a warm place to rise; when light form into loaves and when light, bake.

Lemon Raisin Pie.—This is a delicious pie and one which is not too expensive for occasional use. Take a cupful of large raisins, carefully seeded; add a cupful of granulated sugar, one large lemon rind and juice with the seeds removed, a tablespoonful of flour and a cupful of water. bake between two crusts.

Sponge Pudding.—Take one and a half pints of milk, add a pinch of salt add four tablespoonfuls of flour; cook together until thick. Add two table spoonfuls of sugar and, when cool the yolks of three eggs; fold in the beaten whites and bake in a well buttered baking dish until firm.

For the sauce, use a fourth of a cup of butter softened and mixed with a cupful of powdered sugar; flavor with vanilla, and add a half cup of whipped cream. Grated lemon rind may be used instead of vanilla, if so desired.

Age is no drawback. Socrates said: "It is no shame for a man to learn what he knoweth not, whatever his age, but it is a shame for him to continue in ignorance.

SUGGESTIONS AND HELPFUL HINTS.

When using early potatoes, they may be quickly prepared by using a rough piece of sacking to rub off the peel and with much less labor and time than scraping.

A fine milk bottle opener is a large horse shoe nail, placed in a convenient place. It is also a good nutpick, and has the advantage of being cheap and easy to get.

When putting up a lunch in which sauce is used, crumb a few crackers in the cupful of sauce. They will soak up the surplus juice and take the place of pastry.

When baking cookies or drop cakes, a whole recipe may be baked in the oven at one time if a pair of baking sheets are a part of the kitchen utensils. They are sheet iron made to fit the oven, and an edge to handle them by may be turned up and reinforced by a wire.

When there is kindling to carry, a fine help is a piece of strong carpet or tent cloth, 45 by 27 inches, bound, and with strong leather handles.

Water drained from cooked rice makes a fine starch for laces or fine fabrics.

A granite spoon or a granite dish may be a great source of danger. Never use a granite spoon for anything except stirring up chicken feed. The hens thrive on broken bits of glass, but our stomachs do not need such aids to digestion.

When using a granite dish, care should be taken never to strike the edge with a spoon to dislodge the contents while stirring. A wooden spoon is the ideal one for all kinds of cooking, as they are less apt to injure the surface of any enameled dish, and are easy in the hand when doing much stirring.

Impressive Figures.

The following calculation is interesting: Suppose one boy, aged ten years, determines to rise at five o'clock all the year round. Another of the same age, indolent and fond of ease, rises at eight, or an average of eight, every morning. If they both live to be seventy years old the one will have gained over the other, during the intervening period of sixty years, 65,745 hours, which is equal to 2,739 and a fraction days, or just 7½ years.

Suez Canal.

The Suez canal connects the Mediterranean with the Red sea, shortening the route to India from England and America more than 5,000 miles. It was commenced in 1850 and completed in 1869. Length 100 miles; average breadth, 329 feet; depth, 26 feet. Cost in gold, $65,000,000. Distances: English channel to Calcutta, via Cape Good Hope, 13,000 miles; via canal, 8,000. New York to Calcutta, via Cape Good Hope, 11,500 miles; via canal, 9,500.

A FREE BOOK

That Teaches the People How to Avoid Catching Cold.

The thirteenth edition of the "Ills of Life" is now ready for distribution. Beginning on page three of this popular work on medicine, is an article stating in plain language how any one can avoid catching cold.

The article was written by a doctor. It was written by a doctor eighty-four years old, who is a hale and hearty man. It is his boast, founded upon fact, that he does not catch cold. He thinks he knows the reason why. He explains it in detail in this book. Every family ought to have a copy of it. Sent free by the Peruna Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Mrs. Henry Martin, La Motte, Iowa, says: "I have found Peruna to be a great remedy for coughs and colds of children. A dose at bedtime will relieve them all night."—Adv.

Another Proof.

Representative Henry, whose objection to American girls marrying earls and counts is well known, said at a recent dinner in Waco:

"Take the Cinderella story. The prince, you will remember, rejected the two old and ugly sisters, and then the beautiful Cinderella slipped on the glass slipper and the young man made her his bride."

Mr. Henry paused, then he added: "This story is but another proof that the girl who marries a title puts her foot in it."

"BOUND FOR WESTERN CANADA"

A PRAIRIE SCHOONER SLOGAN, THAT STARTED FROM NEBRASKA.

Four horses abreast attached to a red painted prairie schooner, with windows and a protruding stovepipe, with the words, "Bound for Canada," on the schooner's side, was the object of considerable interest as it passed on the way northward from Nebraska a short time ago through the towns in Nebraska, South and North Dakota. After some weeks of strenuous traveling in this way, Mr. J. F. Jensen made the overland trip from Jameson, Nebraska, and with his little family made the regular customs entry at North Portal, in the province of Saskatchewan. Their destination was Willow Bunch, a district that Mr. Jensen had selected as one in which it was possible for him to work out his fortune. He located on a good half section of land, and intended putting on it some cattle that would fatten on the wild prairie grass that grows so luxuriously in that district. In addition to this his purpose was to cultivate a portion of it and raise wheat, oats, barley or flax. In short, a life devoted to mixed farming was what he had in view and it is easy to understand that he will make a success of it, and in a year or so will attach some more land holdings.

Although his beginning may be small, it may safely be said that Mr. Jensen, like thousands of others who have begun life in western Canada on no more and with probably much less, will prosper. He will not be far from a line of railway. Schools will be close at hand and other social conditions so necessary in a new country are available.—Advertisement.

The MARSHAL

by MARY RAYMOND SHIPMAN ANDREWS

ILLUSTRATIONS by ELLSWORTH YOUNG

COPYRIGHT 1912 BY BOBBS MERRILL CO.

SYNOPSIS.

Francois Beaupre, a peasant babe of three years, after an amusing incident in which Marshal New figures, is made a Chevalier of France by the Emperor Napoleon, who prophesied that the boy might one day be a marshal of France under another Bonaparte. At the age of ten Francois visits General Baron Gaspard Gourgaud, who with Alixe, his seven-year-old daughter, lives at the Chateau. A soldier of the Empire under Napoleon he fires the boy's imagination with stories of his campaigns. The general offers Francois a home at the Chateau. The boy refuses to leave his parents, but in the end becomes a copyist for the general and learns of the friendship between the general and Marquis Zappi, who campaigned with the general under Napoleon. Marquis Zappi and his son, Pietro, arrive at the Chateau. The general agrees to care for the Marquis' son while the former goes to America. The Marquis before leaving for America asked Francois to be a friend of his son. The boy solemnly promises. Francois goes to the Chateau to live. Marquis Zappi dies leaving Pietro as a ward of the general. Alixe, Pietro and Francois meet a strange boy who proves to be Prince Louis Napoleon. Francois saves his life. The general discovers Francois loves Alixe, and extracts a promise from him that he will not interfere between the girl and Pietro. Francois goes to Italy as secretary to Pietro. Queen Hortense plans the escape of her son Louis Napoleon by disguising him and Marquis Zappi as her lackeys. Francois takes Marquis Zappi's place, who is ill, in the escape of Hortense and Louis. Dressed as Louis's brother Francois lures the Austrians from the hotel—allowing the prince and his mother to escape. Francois is a prisoner of the Austrians for five years in the castle owned by Pietro in Italy. He discovers in his guard one of Pietro's old family servants, and through him sends word to his friends of his plight. The general, Alixe and Pietro hear from Francois and plan his rescue. Francois as a guest of the Austrian governor of the castle prison inspects the interior of the wine cellar of the Zappis. Francois receives a note from Pietro explaining in detail how to escape from his prison. Alixe awaits him on horseback and leads him to his friends on board the American sailing vessel, the "Lovely Lucy."

CHAPTER XIX.

The Sacrifice.

Young Henry Hampton, thrilled to the core at this drama, bent over him, as Battista laid him on the deck, and looked up anxiously at Pietro.

"Is he living?" he asked.

He was living, though for an hour or two the devoted friends who cared for him doubted if they had not got him back only to lose him. But that last effort of the change to the ship being past, when consciousness came again he grew strong more rapidly.

"I thought—the Austrians—would nab me—as I came aboard," he whispered, smiling gaily as he gasped the words to Alixe. "It was—firm in my mind."

And Alixe laughed at him, and told him that they were far out on the Adriatic now, safe under the American flag, and the Austrians left two hundred miles behind.

"Even if they had—nabbed me," whispered Francois, "those two days with you would have paid."

And Alixe shuddered a little and told him to go to sleep and stop thinking of Austrians, for they were out of his life now forever.

"My seigneur," said Francois next day when the general took his turn at sitting by his bed, "may I ask a question?"

"Any question in the world, Francois, my son," the general growled at him, as if the tender words were a defiance to an enemy.

Francois hesitated. "About Alixe and Pietro."

The general shook his head. "Ah that! That I cannot tell you, Francois. Sometimes I believe that I have been mistaken, that—" the general as he stopped looked oddly at Francois and smiled. "Sometimes I believe that even I, even Gaspard Gourgaud, might make a mistake in trying to play the good God, and arranging lives. That might be—yes. In any case I cannot tell."

Francois, thinking deeply, hazarded another question. "He loves her?"

"I believe so, indeed," said the general. "He cares most to be with us—with her. Ah yes, I have no doubt that he loves her. But why it goes no farther—sapristi! It is beyond me—that! I would knock their foolish heads together, me—but that is not convenient."

"Does she love Pietro?"

"Mon dieu! How can a mere man say that? She is a woman. I do not know—not in the least," the general exploded at him.

"But Pietro loves her?" Francois asked again, his wistful smiling eyes searching the general's face.

"Yes—I am sure of it."

And Francois smiled.

"No one could help it," he said half to himself.

In a day more [illegible] Battista came into Francois' cabin and put clothes on him and wrapped him like a mummy in coats and rugs, and carried him in his arms up on deck, and there laid him in a hammock on the sunny side of the ship. And the salt air blew on his face and he gulped it in, and by and by Alixe brought a chair and sat by him and read to him, and Francois lay quiet and wondered if heaven could be any improvement on this.

So, on that long, bright, calm morning at sea Francois lay in the hammock and watched the million little waves glisten and break for unknown miles over the sunlit water, and listened to the voice he loved best in the world, as it told him of those others whom he loved also, and of the places dear to him; and he wondered that he had indeed come through the long nightmare of prison to this happiness.

"Mr. Hampton has been talking to me about Virginia; it must be a beautiful country," said Alixe. "I should love the free friendly life of those great domains. I believe I could leave France and Vicques for such a country as that, where there are no political volcanoes on top of which one must live. With us it is always plotting and secrecy. Always a war to look back on or to look forward to. I should like to go to Virginia."

"But," said Francois, with his great eyes glowing, "the war one now looks forward to in France will be short and glorious. And after that will be peace, for there will be a Bonaparte ruling, and that means strength—and—good government."

"How you believe in the great captain and in his blood," and Alixe smiled down at the pale face on fire with its lifelong enthusiasm.

"One must," said Francois simply, and paused, and went on. "For me—you know, Alixe, how it is. How the star of the Bonapartes has always seemed to be my star! I believe that. I believe that my life is tied to that house. Nopoleon was more than human to my mind, his touch set me aside for his uses in my cradle."

"And made you a chevalier," Alixe considered. "That was a true accolade, Francois. You would have a right to that title under another Bonaparte."

"I believe so, Alixe."

"And my father believes it. So you must hurry and get well and come back to France and be fit for work when the prince needs you, Chevalier Beaupre. My father has told you that a movement is preparing? He is reckless, my father, and it troubles me. It might be unsafe for him to live in France if his part in these plots were known."

"Then you could come to Virginia—to Carnifax," and Francois smiled.

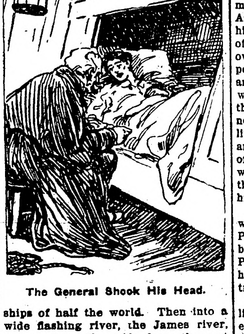
But Alixe flushed. "That is Pietro's estate, not ours," she said quickly; and then she rose and bent over the sick boy. "I must go to my father now," she said, and caught his pitiful hands suddenly in both hers. "But oh! Francois, I wish I could tell you how it changes all the world to have you back again"—and she was gone.

Francois, trembling with a rapture he could not quiet, lay, not stirring, because he feared to break the spell of the touch of her hands; feeling within him a rebel hope that yet he would not let take hold of him. Could it be? Was it true? Did she care for him and not Pietro? Was that the reason that in all these years she and Pietro were still only sister and brother? Yet, he caught and choked the thought. Even then he had no right, he could not, would not tell her what she was to him. He would be Pietro's friend always as he had promised long ago; more, a thousand times more now, when Pietro had given back to him freedom and life and hope.

CHAPTER XX.

A Social Crisis.

On a day the ship sailed into a splendid roadstead, big enough to hold the ships of half the world. Then into a wide flashing river, the James river, four or five miles wide down there at its mouth. And up and up and up the bright river, the narrowing river, between its low green banks, with now and again a glimpse of a large house and of gardens and lawns green with June, as one sailed past.



The General Shook His Head.

Harry Hampton told Francois who lived in them as they went by—Harrisons and Carters and Byrds and Randolphs — strange-sounding, difficult, English names in the ear of the Frenchman. Young Mr. Hampton knew them all, it seemed; many of them were his cousins; Francois listened, surprised, interested, to the word picture which the Virginian unconsciously drew, as he talked of every-day happenings, of a society and a way of living quite different from any the Frenchman had ever heard of.

With that they were in sight of Roanoke house—one might see the roofs of the buildings over the trees—Harry Hampton pointed it out with a touch of excitement in his grave manner. Then, as one slipped along the sparkling water, there was a sharp bend in the stream, and as they turned it the large silvery green slope of the lawn lay before them, with its long wharf and barges lying at the waterside, and a ship unloading its return cargo from England.

"It is the Sea Lady" called young Hampton. "She is in before us—and she sailed so long after."

He made a quick movement forward with his pathetic broken step—for this only son of the Hampton family was a cripple.

There were people gathering on the lawn, negroes drawn up in line; the women in bright-colored turbans, men and women both showing white teeth as they grinned with the pleasure and the excitement of watching the ship come in. Then a white light figure ran down the broad greenness, and a girl stood, golden curls on her shoulders, a straw hat with blue ribbons tying down some of the golden curls, but not all—stood and watched and waved an eager friendly hand.

"It is my cousin Lucy," Harry Hampton said, and Francois, looking at him, saw his eyes fixed on her intently.

In a few minutes more, leaving the ship with his halting careful step, Francois saw him kiss her cousinly—yet it seemed not altogether cousinly—and with that he was saying a word about "My new friend, the Chevalier Beaupre," and the girl's quick handclasp and the warm welcome in her voice of honey, made Francois feel as if a place in her friendship had been waiting for him always.

Then, from back of her, from somewhere, towered suddenly a tall man, with large features, and first seized Harry Hampton's hand and then turned to the stranger with the same air of entire pleasure and hospitality.

"My nephew's friend is welcome at Roanoke house," he said, and Francois, with his few words of English, understood enough to be warmed to the soul at his first contact with southern hospitality.

"It is my uncle, Colonel Hampton," Harry's voice was explaining.

They would not hear of his going to Carnifax—not for days, not for a month; why should he go at all?—Colonel Hampton asked. If he were to be only a year or two in Virginia, why trouble to set up housekeeping alone in that big house, when Roanoke house was here and in order, and only too glad to keep him. So Francois for a week or two stayed. And found himself, shortly, a notability. Harry Hampton, his boyish ambition for adventure and daring denied every personal outlet, because of that accident in babyhood which had started him in life hopelessly lame, was as proud of his salvage from the Austrian bird of prey as if Francois' record had been his own. Much more frankly proud, for he could talk about it, and did. Alixe had told him a great deal, and the episode of the headlong rescue of Prince Louis Napoleon, the capture and imprisonment and final theatrical escape, went like wild-fire about the countryside, and stirred all the romance of the warm-blooded southerners. Every house wanted the hero to break bread, and under young Harry's proud wing Francois went gladly to meet all these friends of his frend. As the general had said years ago his simplicity struck the finest note of sophisticated high breeding; moreover, he had lived with high-bred people in more than one country; the aristocrats of Virginia were delighted with his young nobleman, as they thought him—with his charm of manner and his stirring history, with the lines of suffering still in his thin face and the broad lock of gray—the badge of that suffering—in his dark hair, with the quaint foreign accent too, and the unexpectedness in the turns of his rapidly increasing English.

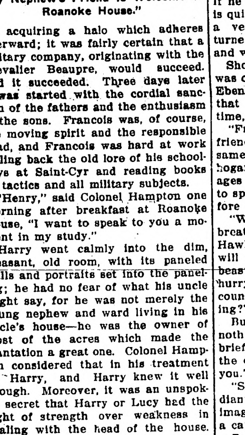
And now he had left Roanoke, and was living in the great old house on Pietro's land, the old house which had been lived in a hundred years before Pietro's father had bought it, the old house in which grandchildren of Pietro live today.

Something in his odd broken English, something in his vivacity and energy, something in the warmth of the heart which the poor souls felt in him—none quicker than negroes to feel a heart—fascinated the slaves who fell to his unaccustomed management. He had met Henry Clay and the proud aristocrats of Virginia as men and women, and given them the best of himself; he met these thick lipped, dim-souled, black people no otherwise, and gave them the same. By the crystal truth in him the first had been vanquished, and it happened not differently with these other human beings. Pietro's mishandled property grew orderly month by month; Francois, in the saddle most of the time riding from end to end of the plantation, found his hands full and his work interesting, and his health and strength coming back—though that was a slower progress.

The people who do most are likely to be the people who can do a thing more. Young Henry Hampton, ruled out of the larger part of his natural pleasures by that stern by-law of nature, which had made him lame, appealed to Francois' sympathy every day more deeply. The one thing which the lad could do was riding. "Henry," Francois spoke, as the two trotted together down a shady lane of the plantation on the way to the far fields where negroes worked in the autumn sunlight, "what would you think of organizing a mounted troop of militia?"

The boy's face flamed with excitement. What would he think of it? He would think it glorious, wonderful, half a dozen big adjectives.

There were many young men in the neighborhood; all of them rode; none of them had enough to do; Francois had a hold on them—a man may not spend five years in a dungeon because of a dashing mad act of bravery without acquiring a halo which adheres afterward; it was fairly certain that a military company, originating with the Chevalier Beaupre, would succeed. And it succeeded. Three days later it was started with the cordial sanction of the fathers and the enthusiasm of the sons. Francois was, of course, the moving spirit and the responsible head, and Francois was hard at work calling back the old lore of his school-days at Saint-Cyr and reading books on tactics and all military subjects.



"My Nephew's Friend Is Welcome to Roanoke House."

"Henry," said Colonel Hampton one morning after breakfast at Roanoke House, "I want to speak to you a moment in my study."

Harry went calmly into the dim, pleasant, old room, with its paneled walls and portraits set into the paneling; he had no fear of what his uncle might say, for he was not merely the young nephew and ward living in his uncle's house—he was the owner of most of the acres which made the plantation a great one. Colonel Hampton considered that in his treatment of Harry, and Harry knew it well enough. Moreover, it was an unspoken secret that Harry or Lucy had the right of strength over weakness in dealing with the head of the house. Obstinacy combined sometimes with weakness, it is true, but yet the two youngsters understood clearly that the colonel was the head only by a graceful fiction. So young Henry Hampton felt no alarm at the quality of his uncle's tone. The colonel sat down in the biggest chair, a chair throne-like in its dignity; he faced the lad and pulled importantly at the end of his mustache.

"This troop of cavalry about organized?" he demanded.

"Well, that's rather a big name for it, Uncle Henry, but it is going like a streak," answered Henry, junior. "We meet again today, and tomorrow I think we shall begin business."

"I approve of it," Colonel Hampton stated.

Harry bowed his head gravely. The colonel went on.

"It is a well-bred and appropriate method of amusement. A gentleman should know something of military affairs. But—ah—the ranking and—ah—arrangements? Such—details are not unlikely with gentlemen of the first families, as you all are—except one—to crystallize into a—later importance. The man who has been the leader of this company of very young men will not unlikely be the man thought of as a leader in—ah—affairs of greater moment to come. May I inquire who is the captain?"

Henry Hampton looked troubled, impatient.

"Why, nobody yet, Uncle Henry. We have not got to that. But, of course, the Chevalier—"

Colonel Hampton interrupted him. "Exactly. I thought so. That is what I wish to avoid. The Chevalier must not be the captain."

The boy caught up the words hotly. "Uncle Henry, he has done it all. We all want him."

"Exactly. But you must not have him. I am surprised at you, Henry! Do you remember that this man is peasant-born? Do you want to be led into battle by a person whose rank is not above that of our own servants?"

"Led into battle!" Young Henry laughed shortly. "Led into a corn field is more like it." And then his glance fired. "Moreover, Uncle Henry, if there were battle in the case, we should all count ourselves lucky to be led by—a hero."

"A hero!" Colonel Hampton sniffed. "A mere French peasant by his own account. Of course, I have—received him, because of your infatuation for him. And—the young man has qualities. He has been a success socially, I will not deny. I am quite surprised by his success. But when it comes to putting him in a position above men of birth, my blood revolts. I request you, Henry, to use your influence against this. I can not endure to have him give you commands. You should be the captain, because your social position has made the enterprise possible. But, yet, if—your misfortune—if some other seems more fit—" A painful color darkened the boy's face and his brows gathered. The colonel went on. "I should make no objection to that. But" again he pulled at the corners of his mustache with solemnity—"I must request you to use your influence absolutely to prevent this parvenu from being placed over you."

Harry Hampton put his hand on the table beside him and lifting himself with that aid stood before his uncle, leaning a little on the table as his lame foot made it necessary, but yet a figure full of decision and dignity.

"And I must refuse absolutely, Uncle Henry, to do anything of the kind. I am not in question. As you say, I have—a misfortune. I shall use what influence I have to see that the Chevalier Beaupre is made captain of the company he has organized and is to educate. This is fitting. I am proud to call him my friend, and I am glad that I am large-minded enough to realize that as large a mind as his is not to be measured by petty standards. If he is a prince or if he is a peasant is quite immaterial, because he is first a very great thing—himself." He turned from the astonished colonel, and with his halting step was gone.

Shortly the young master's horse was ordered and he had left word with Ebenezer, the butler, as he went out, that he would not be home till bedtime, and was off toward Carnifax.

"Francois," he began, finding his friend busy over his papers in that same library, at that same carved mahogany desk, where today lie the packages of old letters—"Francois, I want to speak to you—about something—before our meeting."

"What then? The boy is out of breath. You have been running Black Hawk again, my Henry—that horse will complain of you soon, the strong beast. What is it you are in such a hurry to say that one must race across country so of a good hour of the morning?"

But Henry was too intent to talk nothings. "It is important," he said briefly. "We must have a captain for the company at once, and it must be you."

"Sabre de bois!" smiled Francois radiantly. "The good idea! I can not imagine a fellow more beautiful to be a captain than I. Can you?"

But Henry was altogether serious-minded. "You will consent then?" he threw at him. "I did not think of it till this morning, but I see it should be done at once. We shall all want you, of course, and want nobody else."

Now Henry Hampton, not having thought of the question till this morning, had no right to make this statement in a full round voice of certainty. Yet he knew every man in the company, and he felt in himself the force to answer for them. He answered for them without a hesitation. And with that Francois' laughing face grew grave. He pushed the letters from him and got up and came across to the boy and bent and put his arm around his shoulder as he sat still and stiff. These French ways of his friend pleased Henry immensely, but they also petrified him with embarrassment. Francois was not in the least embarrassed. He patted the broad young shoulder affectionately.

"My good Henry," he said gently. "What a loyal heart—and what a reckless one! How then can you answer for all those messieurs?"

Harry flung up his head and began. "They will—if they do not I shall make them"—but Francois stopped the bold words.

"No," he said quietly yet with a tone of finality which the other recognized. "That will not be necessary. And the messieurs are my good friends; they will treat me with honor; they will be better to me than I deserve. I know that well." There were so few people in the world who did not, to Francois, seem his good friends. "But, my Henry, I will not be the captain. I have thought of that, if you have not. Look here."

He swung to the desk and slipped out a drawer, and had a long folded paper in his hands. He flapped it open before Harry's eyes. It was a formal notice to Mr. Henry Hampton, junior, that the Jefferson troop of Virginia had elected him as its captain.

Harry flushed violently and his mouth quivered with pleasure, with nervousness, with unhappiness. The other watched him eagerly. All this affair of the troop he had done to give pleasure to Harry Hampton, his friend. It was the only way in which the lame boy could be on equal terms with the other boys, and Francois had determined from the first that every joy which could be gleaned out of it he should have. To be the captain ought to be a joy.

"I!" Harry cried and then was silent—and then spoke sorrowfully. "But—it can not be!"

"Can not be?" demanded Francois. "Why not?"

There was a moment's silence, and with a painful effort the words came. "My—misfortune. I am lame."

And Francois cried out, "Henry—all that is nonsense! What of it? It is a thing you do as well as the best—riding. Who has such a seat, such hands as you? Why not then, I demand?" And went on. "It is settled. I have talked to them all—see the signatures. You are the captain, my Henry—and I am your right hand and your left hand—yes and your feet, too, whenever you need me."

"But," said Harry, dazed, "it is really your place; don't you want to be captain?" he shot at the other boyishly.

And with that Francois' arm was about his shoulder again as the two stood together, and Francois was laughing. "But yes," he said. "I should like it. That is a secret." His face was brilliant with laughter. "You only may know, my Henry, that I am vain—ah, very vain," he repeated sadly. "Never tell it. I love titles and honors and importance. I like to be called Chevalier—though indeed that is my right," he added with a quick touch of dignity. "And I should like very much to be captain of this company of fine young men, the flowers—does one say?—of the South. But it is not best." He held up his forefinger and looked enormously worldly-wise. "No. You would not mind; the young messieurs would not mind, perhaps—but the fathers—ah, the fathers!" He threw back his head and gazed at the ceiling with eyes of horror. Then with a start and a hand flung out, "And the mothers! Mon Dieu! But the mothers, Henry! They would make—what you call it—a h—l of a time, is it not?"

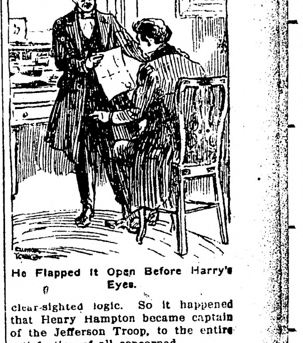
Harry roared with joy at the terrified whisper. "But I have neither father nor mother," he suggested.

"Ah, Henry," argued Francois with deep satisfaction in his tone, "that makes you so suitable."

"Suitable!" inquired Henry.

"But yes, my friend. It kills jealousy. All is grist, one says, that comes to your mill. All is fathers, all is mothers to the poor orphan—and besides that, there is Monsieur the Colonel. One sees that the uncle of the captain will be contented. And whom should I wish to content but my first host, my first benefactor in this land? I believe, indeed, he would be displeased if I should take the place. I believe he is not satisfied of my birth."

And beneath the nonsense of Francois, Henry could but acknowledge the clear-sighted logic. So it happened that Henry Hampton became captain of the Jefferson Troop, to the entire satisfaction of all concerned.



He Flapped It Open Before Harry's Eyes.

My Lady's Mirror.

Exercise is a splendid skin tonic. A brisk walk, no matter if in the rain will freshen the complexion, even as it freshens the flowers, and a simple aperient will do wonders for a muddy skin. It remains for all women to preserve such beauty as they have and to cure the defects which are peculiar to them or that time was wrought. Every skin is different and must be treated accordingly, and it takes a reasoning woman to experiment carefully and find out the proper method of treatment for her skin.

Most women, whether they be fleshy or thin, walk far too little. The woman who tends to be fleshy should walk for at least an hour every day, and do it regularly and systematically. As she gets accustomed to the exercise she should increase the number of miles she walks a day until she is doing five miles.—Exchange.

Farmers' Contests

Silo Contest

I, the undersigned, agree to give anyone doing their trading at Holt, and being the first to build a silo in the summer of 1914, absolutely free, one $25.00 Elgin or Hampton gold watch. As soon as you have made a start report to me at once in order to be first, and as soon as you have your silo finished call and get your premium.

Yours truly,
—C. H. Gunheim.

Potato Contest

The undersigned hereby agree to give a prize to any farmers that do their trading at Holt and follows instructions given below:

You must plant at least two acres of Early Ohio potatoes, dig the same measure them correctly, with a true proof, and whoever raises the biggest amount of side potatoes will receive a $10.00 article from our store. This is done to get the farmers started in potatoe raising and to clean the fields.

—S. S. Kolden & Co.

Alfalfa Contest

To the farmers: We, the undersigned do hereby agree to give three prizes (1st 2nd and 3rd prizes) to any farmers that do their trading at Holt and follow instruction given below:

You must seed at least three acres of ALFALFA, the field to be fall plowing, ploughed over last of April, disced and kept clean to the middle of June, seeded 16 pounds to the acre without nursery crop. Three judges that understand Alfalfa will be appointed by us to look it over in the summer of 1915 that are not interested in any special parties.

The following prizes will be awarded:

1st prizes—One $15.00 suit of clothes,

2nd prize—One $4.50 pair of shoes,

3rd prize—One years subscription to the Holt Weekly News.

All that are taking part in this Contest must notify us before Nov. 1st, 1914.

Corn Contest

The undersigned will give two prizes to farmers who do their trading at Holt. The first prize $10.00 worth of any articles selected from my store; second one year's subscription to our local paper, the Holt Weekly News, but you must follow these instructions:

You must plant at least five acres of corn, Minnesota 13; seed in hills from 10 to 12 kernels in each, so you can cultivate two ways. The corn must be kept clean, cut when right for fodder, stack the same in a round stack like a grain stack, but lowest in the center so that the water runs in, in place of out, and you will have a nice green fodder for your cows.

I will have two disinterested parties, judges to look over your corn, and the prizes will be awarded according to their judging. All that will take part in this contest must notify me before July first, 1914.

—R. Reierson.

The Holt State Bank will make out notices for final homestead proof free of charge. If you intend to prove up on your claim soon, be sure and call on us and have your notices properly made out.

EMPIRE CREAM Separators

REMARKABLE FOR SMOOTH, QUIET EASY RUNNING

Used by Three Generations

It pays to be particular when buying a cream separator. The whole value of the machine depends on quality.

Buyers are looking for quality, too. But they don't look for it by squinting through a magnifying glass, or by feeling the parts to see if they are smooth. They try the crank to see how the machine "feels" and "sounds" when it runs. They want to know how long the machine has been on the market.

Many young farmers are buying EMPIRES today, both because they like EMPIRES and because their fathers and grandfathers used EMPIRES before them.

Come in and see the EMPIRE, or ask to have it sent out to your place.

ASQUITH HIMSELF TAKES WAR OFFICE

PREMIER SUCCEEDS COLONEL SEELY AS BRITISH MILITARY MINISTER.

QUITS HOUSE OF COMMONS

Must Go Before Constituents for Reelection—Generals French and Ewart Make Their Resignations Definite.

London, March 31.—During the coming debate on the home rule bill the liberal leadership may rest entirely with Sir Edward Grey, as Chancellor Lloyd-George is reported ill at Walton-on-Thames, Surrey. The chancellor spent the week-end there playing golf and word has been received that he will not be able to appear to take part in the early debate.

Asquith Takes War Office.

Colonel Seely, secretary for war, has resigned his portfolio in the British cabinet and his resignation was accepted. Premier Asquith himself decided to take the secretaryship of war in place of Colonel Seely.

Sir John French, chief of the imperial staff of the British army, and Sir John Ewart, adjutant general to the forces, have also definitely resigned from the service.

Resignation Is Announced.

The first information received by members of parliament that Colonel Seely had definitely retired from the cabinet was when he entered the house and took a seat on the back benches instead of among his late colleagues.

Cause of Army Crisis.

The paragraph which caused the crisis were contained in a memorandum written to Brigadier General Hubert Gough and contained the following:

> "The government must retain its right to use all the forces of the crown in Ireland or elsewhere to maintain order and support the civil power in the ordinary execution of their duty, but it has no intention whatever of taking advantages of this right in order to crush political opposition to the policy or the principles of the home rule bill."

The later repudiation of these guaranties by the cabinet was taken as a rebuff by Field Marshal Sir John French, virtual commander in chief of the army, and by Sir John Ewart, the adjutant general to the forces. The two generals immediately resigned and all efforts made by the king, the premier and the other minister failed to induce them to change their minds. Their resignations have now been made definite.

Retires From House.

Premier Asquith's further announcement that he himself would take up the portfolio of secretary for war came in the nature of a surprise. Having announced his intention to take up the office he declared he would retire from the house of commons in accordance with the law, "until it pleases my constituents to sanction my return."

Mr. Asquith, having accepted "an office of profit under the crown," must now return to his constituency of East Fife, Scotland for re-election. On the last occasion he received 5,149 votes against the 3,350 of his unionist opponent.

RESERVE LIST ABOUT READY

Regional Bank Cities to Be Named This Week—Board Known Shortly

Washington, March [illegible].—[illegible] Secretary McAdoo and Postmaster General Burleson had a talk at the White House about the location of federal reserve banks.

Mr. Burleson is said to be interested in the selection of a southern city for a reserve bank. The list of reserve districts and cities in which banks are to be located probably will be announced during the present week by the organization committee.

The president is expected to name the federal reserve board soon after the organization committee makes its announcement. Several of the members already have been selected, it is said.

170,000 Miners Strike.

[illegible], Eng., March 31.—Th[illegible] thousand coal miners in the Yorkshire pits have laid down their tools demanding the introduction of a minimum rate of wages. Notices have been handed in by a further 35,000 men who will quit work Thursday. The Miners' Federation of Great Britain has given its support to the strike and a long struggle is expected. Later it was announced that another 100,000 miners had been given notice to quit work, bringing the total to 170,000.

Deadly Spotted Fever Reappears.

Butte, Mont.—Two cases of the mysterious spotted fever in the Bitter Root valley in western Montana have been reported to the state board of health. The early appearance of the disease is believed to be in consequence of the advanced warm weather. Last year there were eight cases of spotted fever, seven of which proved fatal. The disease has thus far baffled all attempts to find a remedy. The bite of a certain kind of woodtick is believed to cause the disease.

VILLA SHOT; 3,000 DEAD AT TORREON

SOLDIER FROM FRONT TELLS OF WOUNDING OF REBEL GENERAL.

CITY IS ALMOST CAPTURED

Three Barracks Remain to Be Taken By Constitutionalist Forces—Story of Deadly Fight.

Chihuahua, March 31.—General Francisco Villa has been wounded in the fighting at Torreon, according to a report received from the front. The news was brought by a soldier, one of the wounded sent here for treatment.

Rebels Near Victory.

Two thousand federals and nearly as many rebels have fallen in the desperate encounters of the last six days, according to an official message from the front. The main barracks and two smaller cuartels alone hold out against the rebels, according to the dispatches.

Since Saturday night Villa has taken Cerro de la Cruz and the Torreon foundry, the reports assert, and he is now flinging the entire strength of his force against the three points which still hold out. General Thomas Urbina is among the Rebels wounded.

Deadliest Fight Yet.

The fighting of the last six days has been as deadly as anything on record since Madero first raised the standard of revolt against Porfirio Diaz. The report of rebel losses (900 dead and wounded) is thought to have been minimized; 588 wounded have already been brought here from the front, while several hundred others have been sent to Jiminez, Parrel and Santa Rosalia.

The report that General Villa had been wounded is not confirmed in the official dispatches, but the soldier who brought the news says that he himself saw the Rebel chieftain struck by a bullet and forced to retire from the front.

Villa's Condition Withheld.

The fact was withheld from the rank of the Rebel army for moral effect, the soldier said.

A German military observer, who arrived from the front, said:

"The Federal army lured us right into Gomez Palacio, a suburb to the north of Torreon, before they opened fire. Then they let lose such a hail of rifle and machine gun shots as would have completely demoralized an ordinary Mexican army. The men fell by the score.

"One cotton bale platform by the railroad tracks was so covered with dead rebels that a person could not walk across it without stepping on a body. General Villa had such a large army that he felt he could afford to sacrifice many men to get a foothold. Almost the whole Zaragoza brigade under General Aguirre Benavides was thus wiped out, although I think General Benavides escaped.

Shock of Surprise.

"The shock and surprise to the Rebel troops, who had expected to scare the Federals and walk into Torreon with little fighting, resulted in a temporary withdrawal. Three or four days of fighting up to the time I left failed to bring about any results."

General Villa's delay in taking Torreon has revived the belief that should the Huerta forces drive him north something in the nature of a northern republic, embracing the states bordering on the United States, will be established.

Unless decisive results are achieved soon the financial affairs of the Rebel territory will reach a crisis, according to men in authority. Six million pesos in fiat money are in circulation in the states of Chihuahua, Durango and part of Zarcatecas, and this money is steadily decreasing in purchasing power, with no prospective reserve backing while more money is being issued.

15,000 to 18,000 Men Defend Torreon.

Mexico City.—President Huerta is showing concern over the situation at Torreon, but General Velasco has sent only the most meagre reports of the operations.

The attitude of the Mexican public here is wholly apathetic. The usual crowds are attending the theaters and other places of amusements.

The government asserts that General Valasco had under his command from 12,000 to 15,000 men, and, with the reinforcements under General Javier Moure and minor forces reported en route, there should be facing Villa before he can claim Torreon, from 15,000 to 18,000 Federals.

Fortune Awaits Young Man.

[illegible]ane, Penn., March 31.—A fortune of $65,000 awaits Keith Dalrymple, aged 23, of Port Alle, who disappeared from home seven years ago.

Carranza Arrives at Juarez.

Juarez, Mex., March 31.—General Venustiano Carranza, first chief of the revolution, was welcomed to Juarez Sunday. In the last few weeks the general has ridden horseback for 500 miles, and in the last two months he has traveled 2,000 miles in the same way. Carranza said that he had no occasion to modify his decree of several months ago, wherein he stated that no act or contract of the Huerta government would be recognized should the revolution succeed in capturing Mexico City.

SENSATIONAL TRAGEDY IN PARIS

The murder of Gaston Calmette (right), editor of Figaro, by Mme. Henriette Caillaux, wife of Joseph Caillaux (left), French minister of finance, has aroused Paris as it has not been aroused in years. Crowds paraded the streets crying "Down with the assassin!" The tragedy was the outcome of a bitter campaign which the editor had been waging against the minister.

ASQUITH WORKING TO SETTLE TANGLE

BRITISH PREMIER STRUGGLING HARD TO AVERT CRISIS.

RESIGNATIONS STILL TROUBLE

Strong Pressure Fails to Make Army Men Reconsider Stand—Much Depends on the Action of General Gough.

London, March 30.—Still facing the crisis which may result in disruption of the cabinet, the early calling of a general election or wholesale resignation in the army, Premier Asquith is busy with the struggle to straighten out the tangled affairs growing out of the movement against Ulster.

Resignations Not Withdrawn.

Field Marshal Sir John French and General John Spencer Ewart have re-despite tremendous pressure and much now depends on the action of General Gough, who is said to have been summoned to London from the Gurragh. General Gough, it is reported, has been asked to surrender the written guarantee signed by War Secretary Seely, French and Ewart, that his troops will not be forced to fight Ulster.

If Gough complies with this request, General French and General Ewart, it is said, will withdraw their resignations. If he refuses, then the commanding general will remain firm in their determination to retire.

Steps to Secure Document.

It will be pointed out to General Gough that the "treaty" is now void, having been repudiated by the government, and should he refuse to acknowledge its cancellation he might be ordered to surrender the document or be dismissed. Such action as this on the part of the government would certainly be followed, however, by wholesale resignations from the service, it is declared, and the calling of an early election would be certain.

Premier Asquith's determination to retain War Minister Seely in the cabinet is believed to have brought about the complications in the situation.

Gen. Paget Not Entangled.

General Paget, commanding the troops in Ireland, has so far avoided becoming entangled, but should General Gough be dismissed and other officers resign it is believed he might come into the open, possibly with a resignation and the announcement of his dealing with Colonel Seely. General Paget's treating with officers as to their willingness to serve in Ulster is plainly rebuked in the new orders issued by the war council though the entire affair which started the trouble is declared to have been due to a "misunderstanding of orders."

Earth's Core Not Molten.

Chicago, March 30.—Ancient and popular beliefs that the core of the earth is a molten mass have been investigated by scientists of the University of Chicago, who announce to the world that the planet is more rigid than steel, that it could not explode or be destroyed by a fire within itself. The results of their experiments will be published in the Astrophysical Journal and the Journal of Geology. The experiments were designed by Professor Albert A. Michelson.

Municipal Store Called F[illegible]

Chicago, March 28.—Chicago's municipal store, where the needy were to purchase supplies at cost, has done a daily average business of $9.11 since it opened, on Feb. 19, according to a statement by the city Comptroller's office. Advocates of the enterprise admit it has failed to fill any long felt want. The store does not make deliveries and a rigid investigation is made of each prospective customer. These are the reasons advanced for the lack of patronage.

JUROR AND FAMILY HUNGRY

STARVING WHILE TRIAL OF A CASE GOES ON.

Man Finally Totters Into Court, Confessing He and Family Have Not Eaten.

New York, March 30.—Just before the opening of the Hudson county court in Jersey City Leopold Wauters, a juror, tottered in and asked a court officer that he be relieved from service on the jury. As tears ran down his cheeks, Wauters said:

"I am suffering from hunger. I cannot pay attention to what is going on. There was only a little bread in the house this morning, and I left it for the children."

Judge Campbell was informed and court was delayed while Wauters enjoyed his first meal in days. The $12 due for jury services was advanced and a constable was sent with it to the home of Wauters. He found the entire family huddled in one cold room. The constable bought some food and fuel and gave the rest of the money to Mrs. Wauters. The juror resumed his place in the box.

Wauters was one of the panel of petit jurors drawn for the term and gladly welcomed his apparent good fortune, for it meant $2 a day when the courts are in session, and he was out of work and without money and had a wife and family of five children to support. He was drawn as one of the jurors who are trying an action on contract that had been going on since last Monday.

NEED VOTE FOR PROTECTION

Politics Is Woman's Only Weapon to Safeguard Her Home and Family, Says Kate O'Hare

St. Louis, March 30.—Politics is the only instrument with which a woman can protect her home, according to Mrs. Kate O'Hare, Socialist and suffragist, who was the chief speaker at the largest of six meetings held simultaneously in the libraries of the city by the Equal Suffrage league.

In writing politics for a Kansas City newspaper and working for the uplift of the factory women of New York, Mrs. O'Hare said she had seen enough of politics "to sicken her for a lifetime" were it not for her realization of its usefulness as a woman's weapon.

"If St. Louis women had the power," she said, "they would stop paying 20 cents per capita for health and 30 cents per capita for police protection, and would reverse the rates of these tax assessments.

"Women are held responsible for the food they put on their tables, for the clothes their families wear and for the condition of sanitation in their home, yet women have no power to control the production of food, the manufacture of clothing, nor have they anything to say about plumbing and building rules."

Shoplifters Are Sentenced.

Kansas City, Mo., March 30.—[illegible] Duke, 20 years old, and Mrs. Violet Geffene, 27 years old, pleaded guilty to shoplifting following a raid on Mrs. Geffene's apartments, where the police found hats, gowns and lingerie valued at $4,000, that had been stolen from Kansas City department stores. Miss Duke was sentenced to three and one-half years in the penitentiary, while Mrs. Geffene received a sentence of four years.

N. J. Election Officers [illegible]

Jersey City, N. J., March 26.—[illegible] of the charge of making false election returns while serving on the Hoboken election boards in the primary election of September, 1913, 13 election officers, eight Democrats and five Republican, were sentenced by Common Pleas Judge Mark A. Sullivan and George J. Tennant to serve not less than 18 months nor more than three years in state prison. The cases against two others were dismissed because of accidental errors.

TOLLS QUESTION IS NEAR FINAL VOTE

BILL SEEMS SURE OF VICTORY IN HOUSE WITH NICE MAJORITY.

CLARK WILL MAKE SPEECH

Speaker Will Close Debate Before Packed Galleries—Senate Will Be Real Snag for Big Question.

Washington, March 31.—The Sims bill, repealing Panama canal tolls exemption for American coastwise ships, will come to a vote in the house within a few hours, and is thought sure to pass. The majority is estimated at from 35 to 75.

Real Snags in Senate.

But while it is conceded that the real fight will come in the senate, where the measure is sure to strike many snags, exciting times are expected during the final debate and roll call on the bill in the lower house. Speaker Clark's speech, which will close the debate for the opponents of the repeal, will have the crowds fighting for seats in the galleries.

The speaker has maintained silence since his defeat on the cloture rule, when only 55 Democratic members of the house followed their recognized leaders, while some 200 of them stood by the administration, but he will break silence on the main issue of the controversy in closing the debate on behalf of opponents of toll exemption repeal.

Speech Is Guarded.

The speech has been guarded with the utmost care. Close friends of the speaker assert that there will be no bitterness, no harking back to political imbroglios, and no reflections on the opinions of others.

They predict that he proposes to discuss the merits of the issue.

On the other hand, some Democrats who have had their ears closely to the ground in the last few days hint that the speaker may surprise his friends and arouse his adversaries.

As to the party strife that has been precipitated, President Wilson has made no comment and so far as known contemplates making none. He made his plea to the congress and awaits results. Close advisers of the president insist that he bears no personal nor political ill will toward the leaders of the party who have differed with him in this crisis; and that any idea, such as has been intimated from many sources in the last few days, that he would attempt to have politically punished the party leaders who oppose him, is farthest from his thoughts.

Senate Discussion.

Meantime, in the senate, discussion will revolve around Senator James Hamilton Lewis' resolution and bill, which are intended as a sort of balm to the wounds of his party members who have thus far opposed the president in his plan for upholding the honor of the nation.

Senator Lewis' measure would give the president authority to suspend tolls whenever he should deem it in the public interest to do so. The Illinois senator will cite a long series of precedents upon which he bases the right of congress to extend such authority to the chief executive without offending any foreign nation or violating any treaty agreement.

As against the proposal of Senator Lewis, the minority leader, Senator Gallinger, will urge a resolution he introduced last week which would express it as the sense of Americans that congress has the right to do as it pleases with respect to American shipping through the Panama canal.

In the senate no cloture can be ordered and it may be weeks before the question is disposed of.

Officer Wrestles With Burglar.

Minneapolis.—A man giving the name as Harry Blenkarn was arrested by Patrolman O'Malley, after a desperate fight on roof of a rooming house. The patrolman, answering a burglar call, found Blenkarn on the roof, tampering with the skylight. Blenkarn drew a knife and there was a struggle. Finally the patrolman knocked the knife out of the man's hand and pushed him toward the stairs. A wrestling match at the head of the stairs resulted in both tumbling down the two flights, O'Malley landed on top.

'Quake Lasts Over Hour.

St. Louis, March 30.—A [illegible] earthquake, lasting one hour and 20 minutes, was recorded on the seismograph of St. Louis university here. It is the belief of officials at the university that the earthquake occurred in the southern part of Mexico or in Central America.

Boilers Delay [illegible]

New York, March 30.—The [illegible] came into port [illegible] more than four days late. Trouble with her boilers had caused the delay. A force of repair men was constantly employed during the voyage to keep enough boilers in condition to supply steam. The vessel's tardiness had caused uneasiness until Captain [illegible] reported by wireless that he had encountered heavy seas and was proceeding slowly with slightly deranged machinery.

DUAL LIFE OF WEALTHY MAN

MILLIONAIRE ALLEGED TO HAVE HAD COMMON-LAW WIFE.

Late Iron-Master, Philip Ewald, Apparently Had Mania for Secrecy—Had Adopted Children.

Louisville, Ky., March 28.—Intimate details of the life of Louis Philip Ewald, late iron master of St. Louis and Louisville, which he devoted painstaking efforts and a small fortune to keep secret, were revealed almost five years after his death, during trial of the suit brought by Ellen J. Golden, or Ewald, by which she seeks to establish dower rights in Ewalds estate, alleging she was his common-law wife.

Ewald's estate was estimated to be worth $4,000,000. He willed $15,000 each to nine brothers and sisters, most of whom live in St. Louis, and the remainder to Ellen Golden's three children, whom Ewald adopted. The woman is suing for a judgment for half the property and a widow's interest in the realty, aggregating $2,000,000.

The plaintiff on the witness stand testified that the alleged common-law marriage between herself and Ewald took place in St. Louis in March, 1890. Prior to leaving St. Louis to take her residence in an elaborate home bought for her by Ewald, in an exclusive residence section of this city, she lived in Williamsport, Pa., Pittsburgh, Washington, Chicago and Denver.

More than a hundred telegrams containing expressions of affection, purporting to have been from Ewald and addressed to the plaintiff under the name of "Mrs. E. J. Seaman," at a Detroit hotel, were read to the jury. The plaintiff admitted she was never generally known as Mrs. Ewald.

Testimony at the trial, which began Monday, has disclosed the double life led by the eccentric millionaire iron master, who apparently had a mania for secrecy.

VAUDEVILLE INTERESTS SOLD

Sullivan-Considine Circuit Changes Hands—With Properties for Over $6,000,000.

Kansas City, Mo., March 28.—Marcus Loew of New York city, representing interests of which he is the principal stockholder, signed a contract to purchase the Sullivan-Considine vaudeville circuit and properties for an amount that will exceed $6,000,000. Mr. Loew will take over the properties Aug. 1, next.

The properties, which are scattered throughout the country are owned jointly by John W. Considine and the estate of Timothy D. Sullivan of New York city. Thirty-seven theaters owned outright by the Sullivan-Considine interests, and 100 theaters which the circuit books and has interests in, were involved in the deal.

Mr. Loew announced he would combine the theaters involved in the deal with the houses he now owns. This will bring the number of theaters now controlled by him up to 200.

BEACHEY TO ENTER CONTEST

Intrepid Aviator and Fowler Decided to Take Part in Round the World Race.

New York, March 27.—Two American aviators, Lincoln Beachy and "Bob" Fowler, have announced their intention of entering the round the world race, to start from the Panama-Pacific exposition grounds in San Francisco next year, it was stated here by Arnold Kruckman, manager of the contest.

Besides these two Americans the manufacturers of three leading types of aeroplanes in Europe have informed Mr. Kruckman that they will enter aviators and machines.

AMERICAN BOAT GOES DOWN

Relayed Wireless Message Tells of Disaster Which Cost the Lives of Six.

[illegible], March 28.—[illegible] the American schooner Hattie P. Simpson of Boston with Captain Strong and nine members of the crew was reported to the navy department in a relayed wireless message from the steamship Caracas which has on board five survivors of the schooner.

For Suffrage Referendum.

Boston, March 28.—By action of the house the legislature has voted for the first time in its history in favor of referring to the people the granting of suffrage to women. The vote in the house was 168 to 35 on a resolution which had already been favorably acted upon by the senate providing an amendment to the constitution striking the word "male" from the qualifications for voters. The measure must receive favorable action in the legislature next year before it goes before the people.

Polling Begins in Sweden.

Stockholm, March 28.—After the most bitter political campaign in the history of Sweden polling has been begun for members of the new lower house of the riksdag to replace that dissolved on March 5 as the result of the alleged invasion of the rights of the people by King Gustav V. The Stockholm district is the first to vote and the polling will continue elsewhere throughout the kingdom until April [illegible]. Owing to the intense interest 90 per cent of the vote is expected to be brought out.

MRS. WILLIAMS' LONG SICKNESS

Yields To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Elkhart, Ind.:—"I suffered for fourteen years from organic inflammation, female weakness, pain and irregularities. The pains in my sides were increased by walking or standing on my feet and I had such awful bearing down feelings, was depressed in spirits and became thin and pale with dull, heavy eyes. I had six doctors from whom I received only temporary relief. I decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial and also the Sanative Wash. I have now used the remedies for four months and cannot express my thanks for what they have done for me.

"If these lines will be of any benefit you have my permission to publish them."—Mrs. SADIE WILLIAMS, 455 James Street, Elkhart, Indiana.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

CORN CAN BE GROWN ON CANADIAN PRAIRIES

Manitoba is now commencing to produce considerable corn, chiefly for feeding purposes. In some cases where the crop can be matured into the dough stage, silos could be used and would be a profitable investment. According to the Farm and Ranch Review, a correspondent visited a field of corn in southern Manitoba on September 28. The corn then was untouched by frost and it stood on an average eight and nine feet in height. The corn had developed into the dough stage, and the crop would easily exceed 20 tons to the acre. At many experimental farms, the same favorable showing of the corn crop has manifested itself. At the Brandon experimental farm this year several varieties, all very good yielders, matured into good silo corn.

Considering the success with which corn can be produced, and the advantages to be gained by so producing it, should not it receive the serious attention of the western agriculturist?

Corn is successfully grown in the northern part of Minnesota in similar soil and under the same climatic condition, and there does not appear to be any reason why like results should not be secured in western Canada. It is the opinion of many American farmers of experience that the corn belt is extending northward. The prairie provinces must gradually take up with mixed farming. More stock on the farms must be raised, and in consequence farming must to some extent be diverted from grain growing to other necessary crops. If crops suitable for wintering cattle and especially dairy stock are to be grown, why should not corn be one of these crops? In Ontario and in the United States we find it forms the main bulky food for wintering beef and dairy cattle. They would not be without this profitable plant. In fact, since its introduction almost twice as much stock can be retained on the same amount of land, besides considering its great value for keeping the land clean. Some may say that many crops that can be grown in Ontario and the States cannot be grown here, but not so with corn, even now we find scattered fields of corn in Alberta and Saskatchewan.—Advertisement.

HEAD BEGAN TO FESTER

P. O. Box 55, Greenville, Cal.—"Last fall my baby boy, two and a half years old, fell and hit the back of his head on the door-casing, cutting quite a gash. I thought it would heal right away, so when I picked him up and washed his head I put some ——— on it and he soon was playing again. The next morning there was a scab over it, but after a few days it began to fester and other sores came near it. They commenced at his neck and gradually spread to the top of his head. The eruption was like ulcerated pimples and itched and irritated him awfully, especially at night, when he would scratch and dig his head. I had hard work to keep him from scratching them. His hair fell out where the sores were thickest.

"The sores looked red and mattered. I had all his hair cut close to his head so I could get the Cuticura Ointment on well night and morning and I washed his head well with the Cuticura Soap. After a few applications night and morning the itching stopped and no more new sores came. In two weeks it was healed nicely and in three weeks he was cured and there is not even a scar on his head." (Signed) Mrs. A. B. Welters, Dec. 17, 1912.

SOME BIRDS USEFUL

Character of Food They Eat Decides Economic Status.

When It Consists of Insects or Mammals Injurious to Crops or Forest Trees, That Bird Is of Service to Man and Beneficial.

Washington.—The character of the food eaten by birds, insects or animals decides their economic status. When the food of a bird consists of insects or mammals injurious to crops, forest trees, or to other property, that bird is of service to man and, therefore, beneficial. A bird, animal or insect is beneficial or injurious to the degree that harmful or useful forms are eaten or destroyed by it.

Their mode of locomotion, together with their structural fitness for their natural functions, make birds a very important economic factor in the animal kingdom, especially from the standpoint of their usefulness to man. Endowed with the power of flight, they speedily cover great distances, thus controlling plagues of insects or rodents in widely separated sections of country.

Aside from their destruction of noxious insects and animals, birds are useful as weed-seed destroyers, also as scavengers, and again are instrumental in the dissemination of the seeds of trees and other plants. The place of birds in nature is entirely unique. Each species performs a service which no other can so well accomplish. Each is structurally modified for the particular work nature demands of it. These modifications, in such species as the crossbill, spoon-bill, and others are very marked, giving them an unnautral and grotesque appearance, even to the point of deformity. In other species, various structural modifications in feet, legs, wings, necks or other parts are found.

So complex are the food habits of birds, that they are little understood, and probably never will be fully known. A species may be useful part of the year, and harmful at certain times. An active destroyer of insects within the breeding range may become a pillager of grain during migrations. Certain species, highly beneficial in normal numbers, become destructive when their numbers are greatly increased. The whole economic problem hinges on the balance that can be preserved in nature. An increased food supply would tend to increase the number of birds feeding thereon. When the supply is materially decreased the birds must look elsewhere for food, and this may result in their becoming destructive.

Birds are not always the cheery, light-hearted creatures of summer. Sometimes conditions are most adverse and for days at a time food is unobtainable. At such times, many a bird that otherwise might starve or freeze to death may be saved by feeding. The time and expense required to maintain a food shelf for the birds is trivial, but the good resulting is very great. The food shelf (there should be one or more, however, [illegible]) should be placed, if possible, in a sheltered situation with a southern side exposed, and well out of the reach of cats. A south window is a good place and permits of observation from within. Suet, cracked nuts, seeds, grains and crumbs should be furnished in goodly quantity. A suet ball (made by winding a piece of suet with cord to keep it from falling to pieces and suspended by a strong (wire) may be hung underneath the porch or suspended from a branch of a tree. English sparrows seldom, if ever, bother a piece of suet, but more or less trouble will be caused by the sparrows driving other birds from the food shelf [illegible]

Uric Acid is Slow Poison

Unseen in its approach, hard to detect in its early stages, and cruelly painful in its later forms, uric acid poisoning is a disease too often fatal.

Bright's disease is one of the final stages of uric acid poisoning. It kills in our country every year more men and women than any other ailment except two—consumption and pneumonia. Bright's disease and uric acid poisoning usually start in some kidney weakness that would not be hard to cure, if discovered early, so it is well to know the early signs of kidney disease and uric poisoning.

When uric acid is formed too fast and the kidneys are weakened by a cold, or fever, by overwork, or by overindulgences, the acid collects, the blood gets impure and heavy, there is headache, dizziness, heart palpitation, and a dull, heavy-headed, drowsy feeling with disturbances of the urine.

Real torture begins when the uric acid forms into gravel or stone in the kidney, or crystallizes into jagged bits in the muscles, joints or on the nerve tubings. Then follow the awful pains of neuralgia, rheumatism, gout, sciatica, neuritis, lumbago or kidney colic.

"Every Picture Tells a Story"

"I don't know what ails me."

It is but a further step to dropsy or Bright's disease.

Be warned by backache, by sediment in the kidney secretions, by painful, scant or too frequent passages. Cure the weakened kidneys. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—a medicine made just for weak kidneys, that has been proved good in years of use, in thousands of cases—the remedy that is recommended by grateful users from coast to coast.

SCREAMED ALOUD

In Agony With Awful Kidney Ailments

Mrs. Clara Brasch, 200 N. 16th St., Lexington, Mo., says: "My whole system was filled with uric acid poison. I had terrible, sharp, shooting pains in my head and sometimes I was so dizzy, I staggered and nearly fell. The poisoning affected my whole body and my hands, arms, limbs and ankles were swollen and sore. The pains got so bad I screamed and I thought I would die. I was nervous and languid and at times I had blinding spells. Remedies and physicians' prescriptions did me no good. In 1911 I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and had some procured for me. After I had taken them a few days, the soreness and pain began to ease up and I felt a little stronger. In almost no time, I was up and around, in good health. Doan's Kidney Pills purified my whole system and there is no doubt that they saved my life. Since I was cured, I have had no further trouble."

JOKE OF ANCIENT VINTAGE

Credited Just Now to the Chinese, But It Has Been Accorded to Many Nationalities.

A joke knows no birthplace and no date of birth. Jests that are supposed to be of modern Irish, or French or German origin can be found in the writings of the ancient Greeks, who, perhaps had them from still earlier jesters. In the Chinese "Hsiao-Lin-Kuang-Chi," or Laughing Book, are jokes that even in their oriental garb are much like jokes we have heard in western tongues. The New York Tribune prints one of them:

Two men, Chung and Kung, were warming themselves before an open stove. Chung, who was remarkable for his coolness and loquacity, said to Kung, who was exceedingly quick-tempered:

"My dear Kung, there is something that I should very much like to say to you. It relates to a circumstance I have observed for a little time past. But, bearing in mind your somewhat fiery and quarrelsome disposition, I have hesitated to mention it to you. However, I have at last decided that, if I do not mention the matter to you, I shall do wrong, and I have consequently determined to ask your permission to speak to you about it."

"Well, what is it?"

"Your coat, my dear Kung," said Chung, quietly, "is on fire."

"For pity's sake!" exclaimed Kung, angrily, jumping up and finding his coat nearly burned off. "Why in the world didn't you tell me before?"

"There it goes! What a frightful temper!" Chung murmured, as he moved away. "No wonder you are called hot-headed!"—Youth's Companion.

CLEVER WIFE

Knew How to Keep Peace in Family.

It is quite significant the number of persons who get well of alarming heart trouble when they let up on coffee and use Postum as the beverage at meals.

There is nothing surprising about it, however, because the harmful alkaloid, caffeine, in coffee is not present in Postum, which is made of clean, hard wheat.

"Two years ago I was having so much trouble with my heart," writes a lady in Washington, "that at times I felt quite alarmed. My husband took me to a specialist to have my heart examined.

The Fortunate Mr. V.

There is a theatrical magnate in New York who is up on the needs of the tired business man, but a little bit shy on general education. In his office they were discussing the prevalent hard times—theatrical and otherwise.

"Well," he said, "there's one guy in this town that I envy. He's busy all the time. Everywhere I go I see people using his machines."

"Who's that?" inquired one of the company.

"Why, this guy, Vacuum, that makes all them patent cleaners!"

1913 RECORD Magnificent Crops in all Western Canada

All parts of the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, have produced wonderful yields of Wheat, Oats, Barley and Flax. Wheat graded from Contract to No. 1 Hard, weighed heavy and yielded from 20 to 45 bushels per acre; 22 bushels was about the total average. Mixed Farming may be considered fully as profitable an industry as grain raising. The excellent grasses full of nutrition, are the only food required either for beef or dairy purposes. In 1912, and again in 1913, at Chicago, Manitoba carried off the Championship for beef steer. Good schools, markets convenient, climate excellent. For the homesteader, the man who wishes to farm extensively, or the investor, Canada offers the biggest opportunity of any place on the continent.

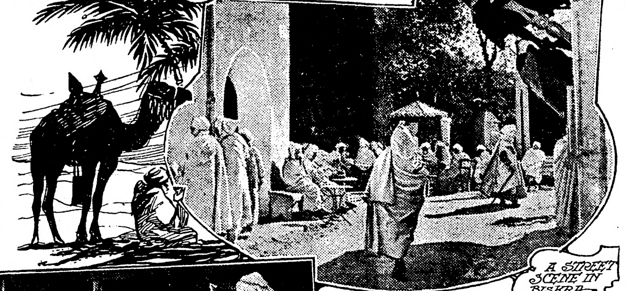
The CHARM of BISKRA

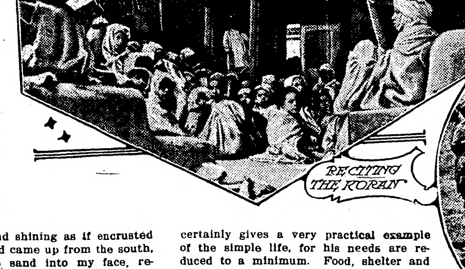
by ISABEL CLARK

IT was by way of Philippeville, one of the brightest of the smaller Algerian ports, that I journeyed to Biskra, and passed through, for the first time, the beautiful landscape of the North African Tell. It was in December, but there was little to suggest winter in the scene that met my eyes. The tracts of forest, filled with cork, ilex and olive trees and thick bushes of arbutus, were colored tenderly in shades of softest green and gray, and the endless orchards of orange and citron trees were hung with bright fruits. Great blue stars of convolvulus decorated the hedgerows and twined over the porches of the little French homesteads. Overhead, the sky was of cloudless sapphire and the mountains were sharply etched against it. It was only when I passed the wide vineyards, empty except for the stunted brown stems, that I could realize it was December. Beyond Constantine, upon the high plateaus that make a well-defined ridge between the green and fertile strip of the plains and the endless waste of desert to the south, an arid, rocky land presents itself. Scant and grudging is the pasturage offered to the flocks that move ceaselessly across the hills. Thin and meager are the crops grown upon that land so patiently plowed. Here and there a chott, or salt lake, clear as crystal, gleamed like a shield of polished steel, reflecting every detail of the mountains with faithful exactitude. Here, too, may be seen the green, scrublike growth of the alfa grass, so much exported to England, where it is used in the production of highly glazed paper. So far it has resisted all the efforts that have been made to cultivate it. Early in the afternoon the train dipped down suddenly into the oasis of El Kantara, known to the Arabs as Foum-el-Sahara—the Mouth of the Sahara. It is a place of palm trees and orange groves, watered by sweet springs, and possessing strange old Roman tombs and delicate fragments of Roman architecture. But the great marvel of El Kantara lies in that deep and narrow gorge where the huge violet sides of Djebl Metlili, riven asunder as if by the mighty stroke of an ax, disclose that abrupt and wonderful entrance into the Sahara. At its narrowest the rent is about 40 yards wide and the length is 300 yards. From the verdant and palm-clad beauty of the oasis the traveler gazes through that rent torn in the high rocks, and sees before him the illimitable white expanse of desert, silver pale and shining as if encrusted with gems. A little wind came up from the south, blowing the fine white sand into my face, reminding me of the desolate solitudes that lay beyond, the endless empty sands dipping far southward. Groves of date palms grew close to the river bank, and hedges of wild oleander still showed a few belated blossoms of fragile pink. It is thus almost dramatically that one enters the desert from the stony alfa-strewn ways of the high plateaus. No longer needed now were the fur coats and foot-warmers that had been so necessary at the hour of our early departure from Constantine. We seemed to have passed suddenly into a sub-tropical land quivering in the burning sunlight.

PREPARING COUS-COUS



A STREET SCENE IN BISKRA



RECITING THE KORAN

PITCHING THE TENT

It is the fashion to say of Biskra that she has been spoilt since "The Garden of Allah" awakened the world to her hidden beauty, made her popular to the hordes of Cook's tourists and gave a fresh impetus to the loafing profession of guide, which the Arab is always only too ready to adopt. He is, indeed, somewhat more of a pest than he used to be; he knows that he has been written about and perhaps presented in too flattering an aspect, and it has made him conceited and self-conscious. But he is really no worse at Biskra than he is in Tunis. Immense and luxurious hotels have sprung up to supersede the simpler caravanserais of former days, when the little town was a favorite but quite unfashionable resort of French people in search of simplicity and sunshine. But I am inclined to think that Biskra is unspoilable. "The Heart of the Desert," as the Arabs affectionately call her, she was the Ad Piscinam of the Romans, and the famous Third Legion sojourned in that wonderful and fertile oasis which can now be reached on the fifth day after leaving London. "Two things are necessary," says Stevenson, "in any neighborhood where we propose to spend a life—a desert and running water." Biskra possesses these essentials in abundance, and she has the additional advantage of constant, almost perpetual, sunshine. Her palm and olive and orange groves are watered by springs that have never failed. Close to her—so close, indeed, that she almost seems to mock at its parched infertility—lies the white splendor of the desert with its pallor as of a calm sea faintly touched with blue haze. The moonlight-colored city with its blanched streets lies surrounded by a fringe of perpetual verdure. Watch the dawn waking iris-hued in the eastern sky, painting the Aures mountains to a deeper rose and drawing a filmy amber veil across the sands, and I think you will agree with me that Biskra is unspoilable.

There are many simple sights that cannot fail to interest the unaccustomed visitor from the North, on account of their novelty. The Arab school, with the bright eyed, inattentive little turbaned or befezzed scholars, listlessly reciting verses from the Koran, under the aegis of the tolba, or schoolmaster; the market-place, teeming with native vendors, story-tellers and sand diviners; the groups of picturesque Arabs wrapped in their white burnouses or shabby gray haicks; the caravans arriving almost daily from the south with their loads of dates; the swaying palanquins within which the women travel on the camels' backs, hidden and mysterious; the fine garden of Count Landon, with its lovely tropical trees and flowers; the village of Old Biskra, with its clay-built huts swarming with dark-eyed children—these are but a few of the picturesque, quaint or beautiful things that Biskra offers to the visitor. The nomad camps, too, are a source of interest with their tents of camel-hair cloth, guarded often by a white Kabyle dog. The nomad certainly gives a very practical example of the simple life, for his needs are reduced to a minimum. Food, shelter and clothing of the rudest kind are all that he requires as he wanders from desert to tell with his flocks. Like the bishop of Browning's poem, he seems only to ask that but he is nevertheless said to suffer greatly from rheumatism caused by incessant exposure to all weathers, and also from ophthalmia, which is a real scourge among the natives of Algeria, and results all too frequently in complete blindness.

"That hutch should rustle with sufficient straw,"

About a week or ten days before Christmas the "courses indigenes," or native race meeting, takes place at Biskra. This meeting is, of course, much less popular than the fashionable one which is held in the spring, but a good number of French people always attend it. There is a superstition in Biskra that this particular week is always the windiest in the year, and certainly, on the solitary occasion of which I have had experience, the reputation was justified. Even in the shelter of the stand we were thickly powdered with fine white sand that was blown in upon us by the high, strong wind. We drove out to the course in one of the shaky little carriages drawn by two swift ponies, which can be hired so cheaply in the town.

The Hippodrome d'El Alia was thronged with people, French for the most part, with a sprinkling of English and Germans, and some native Kaids gorgeously appareled. The first part, "Courses du Ministere de la guerre," consisted only of two events, the distance in each case being 1,500 meters. In the second part, "Courses de la Commune Indigene," there were three events, and the longest distance run was 2,400 meters, this race being open to horses of all ages. The horses bore such names as Boucoucha, Lamari, Salah and Mabrouk, while the jockeys figure on the program under such nomenclature as Messaoud-den-Chebha, Belgacem-ben-Mohamed and so forth. The course is of hard, white sand, upon which the flying hoofs beat with a noise like thunder.

The streaming burnouses of the Arab jockeys—red and white and blue of all shades—made patches of brilliant color. There were no rows of raucous-voiced bookmakers shouting the odds; but as the Arabs are inveterate gamblers, no doubt a good deal of quiet betting went on. Among the spectators were many French officers, wearing the pale blue tunic of the famous Chasseurs d'Afrique. Most of them were combining business with pleasure, for the Arabs from all parts of the desert bring their best horses to compete in the races, and these are frequently bought for the remount department of the African cavalry. Every effort is being made by the French government to encourage horse-breeding among the Arabs.

Close to the grand stand some of the harem carriages, with their shuttered windows, could be seen wherein the Arab ladies of quality were sitting, concealed, catching imperfect glimpses of the races and also of what probably interested them far more—the toilettes of the French women. A group of Spahis, in their bright red burnouses and high red boots, added to the picturesqueness of the gay scene. When the races were over we were invited to mount up into the judge's box to witness the fantasia. This was a thrilling and rather dramatic finale to the day's proceedings.

The men of each gourn or tribe rode past, headed by their kaid, or chief, galloping in rapid succession down that hard, white course, waving their swords and firing their guns as they went. The very smell of powder never fails to fill the Arab with maddest excitement, and the fantasia had all the appearance of a fierce cavalry charge. I retained an impression, vivid if fugitive, of kaleidoscopic colors passing swiftly by, blurred by the blue mist of the smoke mingling with the thick, white desert dust. The noise of the firing, of the beating hoofs and of the wild cheering of the multitude of spectators, the sight of the many-colored burnouses and the bronze faces under their white turbans, left a confused sense upon my mind as of something strange and fantastic, almost unreal.

Driving home, we saw the sun setting behind the groves of palms in a sky that was colored like a pomegranate blossom, with a glow that turned the very sands to flame. Djebl Ahmar-Kraddou, tallest peak of the Aures mountains, caught the reflection of it and shone as with rose-colored fire. The palm fronds were softly stenciled against the sky. Then the swift, sudden twilight of the South drew its delicate purple veil over the scene. Strange music stole out of the silences, the faint flute notes, liquid and tender, of the gazbah, the dull throbbing of tom-tom and derbouka. The moon rose over the white city of the desert and, touched by its matchless radiance, the streets looked as if they had been wrought of gleaming marble; the cold indigo shadows flung by the houses were sharply defined. And surely nowhere in the world can one see a wider expanse of sky, filled from end to end with clusters of golden stars, than that which hangs its canopy, velvet-soft, above the Heart of the Desert.

LET NOTHING STAND IN WAY

Recent Incident in the Blue Hills of Massachusetts an Example—Colored Scenes to Be Used in the Near Future—Millions Invested.

Along one of the thickly wooded roads through the Blue Hills the other afternoon an automobile scudded at top speed, relates the Boston Herald. In the tonneau, lying apparently lifeless on one of the seats, was a young girl, dressed, oddly enough, in a suit of rough and manly tweeds. To add to the incongruity her long hair had broken from bounds and fell in a tumble about her shoulders. Her face was white and drawn. It was evident that she had fainted.

About a hundred yards behind rushed another machine crowded with uniformed men. Every now and then there was a flash of steel and the staccato barking of a half-dozen revolvers. On and on the cars dashed through the thin sunlight of the afternoon, the second gaining visibly on the first.

To the casual observer there seemed to be little doubt that one of the most thrilling bandit chases ever seen in eastern Massachusetts was in progress. A second glance, however, revealed an intensely active individual perched perilously on the hood of the first machine. It looked as though he were manipulating a miniature gatling gun and one expected the annihilation of the little band of doughty policemen.

Nothing happened. The supposed gun clicked harmlessly with an incessant whirr and without a sign of a bullet or a wound. The race went on merrily and then the man behind the gun raised his hand. Both cars slowed down and stopped. The fainting girl revived, and pursued and pursuers stepped out and stood at the side of the road chatting amiably.

It doesn't take any very shrewd guessing to understand that the excitement was all feigned, that the fleeing and the following was all a put-up job, that the cartridges were all blanks. Anyone might hazard a wager that the whole affair was done for the sake of the "movies." And as a matter of fact, it was.

Made Pictures in Fierce Storm.

The storm which recently passed over California brought gloom to many motion picture studios, but one director at least gave thanks for the stormy aid of the elements. He had taken a large company of artists up into the high Sierras to produce a number of multiple reel features amid snow settings. The director and his cohorts arrived in Truckee, Cal., shortly before the record snowfall set in, and they soon found themselves with seven feet of snow on the level to work in. All hands immediately got busy, and some fine snowstorm scenes were secured. One morning the company awoke to find themselves literally snowed under and had to dig themselves out with shovels. After gaining their own freedom they went to the aid of the village folk, whose habitations in many instances had collapsed under the snow.

Millions Invested in Films

Talk about baseball being the national game, there are some 7,200,000 fans in the United States who daily attend the movies. It takes more than 18,000 moving picture houses to take care of these fans, and in the course of a year the American public pays something like $275,000,000 for the privilege of seeing the latest things in films.

Films for Policemen

The films which are to be shown to the Paris constables represent almost every possible incident of a policeman's duty, and have been carefully acted in the most realistic way. The young "agent de ville" will be shown how to take charge of a lost child, how to intervene in a dangerous quarrel, how to handle a drunken man. All the games of chance which are forbidden by French law will be acted on the screen; the different types of wrongdoers, with their characteristic impliments, weapons and dress will be shown. There will be a film entitled "The Story of a Crime," depicting all the processes of justice from an arrest up to the final scene in court, says the Paris Daily Mail. Finally, to inspire the young officer with emulation, he will be shown the pictures of policemen who have met death in the execution of their duty, and of those who have won the Cross of the Legion of Honor for bravery.

Colored Motion Pictures.

There are colored motion pictures that are made so by hand, each little picture being painted separately, Charles M. Seay writes in the American Boy. In making pictures "in natural colors" the film is the same as that of the ordinary motion picture. But in making it the speed is twice as fast, 32 pictures to the second. "Colored" pictures are photographed through mats or screens of colored glass. Two primary colors are used, red and green, with a sympathetic touch of blue. When the machine that makes the photograph is started, a device causes the red screen to pass before the lens as the first photograph is taken, and the green screen passes the same way as the following picture is made. They continue to do so alternately as the film continues to be exposed. The negative is developed and a positive printed, and when run through the projecting machine the color screens are used in the same way as when the negative was made, red and green pictures being flashed on the screen alternately. Those colors that are in sympathy with the red are brought out, and those that are in sympathy with the green are shown in the same way, and through the persistence of vision we do not notice the changes. Instead, they blend harmoniously to our delight.

Star Feels Lure of "Movies."

James K. Hackett, the actor, awoke in his Washington hotel a few days ago to find himself principal heir to a fortune of $2,500,000 left by his niece, Mrs. Minnie Hackett Trowbridge of New York. Mr. Hackett will quit the legitimate stage and appear in the movies.

Stuck in the Mud.

A certain film company were rehearsing a scene on a river bank, the black-hearted villain struggling with the heroine in a mad effort to kill her. Across the water swims the hero and, seizing the scoundrel's knife, he knocks him to earth with a sickening thud. Anyway, that is what was due to happen.

But during the actual filming of the event the hero discovered that the river was very shallow, and to his genuine horror he stuck fast in the mud. Frantically he tried to move forward; desperately the encounter on the bank was prolonged. All to no purpose! Producer, camera-men, and villain were finally forced to wade into the stream and release the captive hero, and even then his boots remained behind.

Worrying the Artists.

Falling over cliffs and jumping into rivers are part of a picture-actor's work, and for his salary's sake he mustn't complain. But there are inconveniences attaching to his profession about which he is entitled to murmur, and the latest of these is the too-ardent admirer. Every important picture studio is invaded nowadays by enthusiasts who want to see their favorites in the flesh and shake hands with them, under the delusion that a studio is a home of gaiety instead of a busy factory. Admirers who stay at a distance and pour forth their worship in amorous letters are welcomed by the "star," but he (and she) objects to their presence when an important scene is being photographed.

Critic Likes "Movies."

I had an awfully good time. It seemed like a new experience, with a certain piquancy to it. Nothing to do but look! Plays were there, without voices, and the very silence was enjoyable. Then one's imagination was allowed to work so agreeably. I prefer my own imagination to the "words" that are cast on the screen. Sometimes these words, banal and trite, spoil the illusion. In pictures one can imagine such a lot! I love them when they don't dot the i's and cross the t's.—Alan Dale.

To Sacrifice Her Hair.

A noted cinematograph actress, whose red tresses are five feet long, has arranged to sell three feet of her hair to a Paris dealer for £1,000. The hair is to be delivered in May. A large party of friends will be invited to witness the cutting of the locks, which will be done with a pair of golden scissors. The scissors will be presented as a souvenir of the occasion to the actress.

Cheap Movie Camera.

Kasimir de Proszynski, who has been called "the Polish Edison," is exhibiting in London a moving picture camera that takes and projects pictures with the same apparatus. Instead of an ordinary tapelike film, Mr. Proszynski has devised a wide moving band of celluloid that takes the pictures in series like the lines on a printed page. Mr. Proszynski estimates that his invention will reduce the cost of a 15 minutes' picture from $15 to 75 cents, thus bringing the cinema within the reach of every amateur.

Dead Woman's Feat.

Chatting about how critical the picture public are becoming, a well-known picture-actress recently said: "I remember a scene in which one of the characters had died and was stretched out on a couch, while I, as her grieving daughter, wept bitterly over her body. I was scheduled to cross her arms, and had got the left one in place all right, when the corpse, becoming rather restless and thinking I was slow about it, lifted the other one into place herself. We thought it would pass unnoticed on the screen. I was in a theater during the showing of the film, and when the dead body accommodatingly moved its own arm the audience broke into a roar of laughter. The public are quick to notice little things these days."

In a Small Republic.

"If you are a good boy you may become president."

"That idea doesn't go in this little republic. What you want to be is a good marksman."

The Man, the Mission and the Maid

By George Randolph Chester

(Copyright by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

When Hal Gilman got home from college he had left all such things as youth and folly behind him. He was more conscious of this than when, after the welcome home had quieted down a bit, he strolled out and glanced at the Blanchard porch. A dazzling young lady over there was arranging her fluffy summer gown picturesquely as she sat down in one of the big rocking chairs. She was supplied with a pink book, the color of which matched her gown and her cheeks perfectly, but before she opened the book she gave the neighborhood a satisfied inspection and so saw the young man looking out upon his boyhood surroundings with the new eyes of extreme serious maturity.

"Welcome to our beautiful city!" called the girl gaily, rising from her chair.

It was Miss Blanchard after all. He had been in some doubt about it. "Pickles" he had used to call her. He shuddered at the memory of the dreadful word. A year ago, too, he would have vaulted over the picket fence that separated the two lawns, and in an instant more would have been sprawling upon the Blanchard steps. He remembered this also with a pang as he lifted his hat and made a dignified bow to her; then he walked sedately down the Gilman path and out at the Gilman gate; he walked sedately over to the Blanchard gate and opened it; he walked sedately up the Blanchard path and upon the Blanchard porch, where he deposited himself and his rigid Prince Albert carefully upon a chair, after having shaken hands most politely with the Blanchard young lady. "How you have blossomed!" he observed with a fatherly gravity that forbade any suspicion of gallantry. "I should scarcely have known you."

"We all change," she solemnly replied through lips that were full and red and most deliciously curved. "We bud, we blossom, we ripen and decay. Life—ah, life is merciless!"

"Yes," he admitted pensively, "we are always growing older."

He was twenty-two and feeling for a mustache; so the weight of advancing years lay heavily upon him. Alice Blanchard reached over to lay her pink book upon the tabourette at her right hand, and the book-mark fell out. It was a large, square, cream-tinted envelope and very fat. The address was in a man's bold chirography, and Mr. Gilman frowned as he noted it. This sort of thing was a part of the folly he had left behind him forever. Miss Alice picked up the letter, but she did not do it hastily, nor blush. She put it carefully back in the book; it was too sacred a thing to be treated flippantly. Already Alice Blanchard had met her Fate. She was a woman, now, with all the responsibilities and cares that come to a mature woman of nineteen.

Silence ensued. They looked out upon the pretty suburban street with thoughtful eyes.

"It must be fine to be a man," presently sighed Miss Blanchard; "to be able to go out in the world and fight for fame and fortune."

He turned reproachful eyes upon her.

"Fame!" he expostulated. "Fortune! There are too many of the world's greedy host after those empty honors."

Miss Blanchard was startled, but gave him instant comprehension. She, too, was just back from college.

"True," she sighed. "How true."

"As for myself," he went on, "my die is cast. I have already engaged to devote myself, after a short period of repose with the good grandparents who raised me, to the uplifting of humanity. Settlement work is to occupy my time henceforth."

His eye was calm but stern. He did not glow with enthusiasm. The cause was not one for mere boyish fervor. It was a man's serious, sober, solemn mission that he was undertaking.

"How noble!" breathed the girl.

"No!" he protested. "It is merely a debt that our family owes to humanity. Oh, you do not know, Miss Blanchard, you cannot conceive of the misery that abounds in this world!"

Miss Blanchard turned upon him large wide eyes that were deep and somber with sudden sorrow.

"Perhaps I do, though," she replied softly. "Our own burdens teach us sympathy and understanding."

Her eyes turned from him, in explanation, to the fat envelope where its edge peeped out from the book. The envelope did not interest him much and he returned to the eyes. They were remarkably pretty eyes, very blue, indeed, and full of expression. The lashes above them were long and curved. The hair clustering about her white brow was of the exact golden shade that had led him stretch a point to call it red when he was a boy. Below its shining waves the tip of a pink ear was revealed. Her cheeks were rounded and creamy. Her neck was a firm white, beautifully modeled column that supported her small head most gracefully. Pickles! To think that he had ever called her Pickles!

Grandfather and Grandmother Gilman were looking out of the side window at them.

"Look at that, now!" said Grandfather Gilman. "Honestly, I feel like I wanted to paddle that boy! There he sits, as stiff as a poker, talking to the prettiest girl in Oakdale with no more life in him than if she was a sack of potatoes. Did I, at his age, ever sit like a tailor's dummy on any girl's front porch?"

"Adam," retorted Grandma Gilman, "my distinct recollection is that at twenty-two you were the biggest fool in the county."

The mail-man came up the street. Miss Blanchard ran down to the gate and he handed her a large, fat, square, cream-tinged envelope. Mr. Gilman had followed her.

"Have you anything for me?" he asked the mail-man. "Mr. Halfred Joyce Gilman?"

The mail-man looked up with a start.

"Why, hello, Harry!" he cried heartily and held out his hand. "I didn't recognize you. How you have grown."

Mr. Halfred Joyce Gilman was too dignified to wince.

"There's scarcely any change in you, Mr. Powell," he said with lofty graciousness. "The years treat you very kindly, indeed."

"Getting gray—gray at a rat." And the mail-man jerked off his hat a moment. "Let me see. You asked about a letter. I got one here, but I hadn't any idea that Halfred Joyce Gilman could be you."

The letter he hunted out was a long, legal envelope. It bore, printed in one corner, the address of the Tenement House Sunshine league. Mr. Gilman took it with reverence, while the deep frown of concentration creased his brow.

"I shall have to ask you to excuse me," he said briskly to Miss Blanchard. "I have been waiting with some anxiety for this delayed communication. It is—well—the call of duty." He glanced at the fat envelope. "You, too, will be naturally anxious to see what Uncle Sam has brought you."

"I know beforehand," she said. "These envelopes bring me no surprises. They are my only rays of sunshine."

He smiled sadly and shook his head. He intended to devote himself solely and undividedly to humanity, and if he ever married at all it would be to some good woman who could aid him in his settlement work; even then only if he was convinced that they could do more together than they could separately.

"You must come over often," invited Miss Blanchard. "I am interested in your work."

"I should be glad indeed if I could interest you seriously in it," he assured her. "I shall consider it my duty to do so if I can."

In the pursuit of this duty he came over nearly every day and most of the evenings. Miss Blanchard did not go out much. The fat, square, cream-tinted envelopes kept her at home; made her refuse many invitations that she might have been glad to accept had she been the unsettled, frivolous girl she used to be when she was young—say, seventeen or eighteen.

It was not long until Mr. Halfred Joyce Gilman knew all about the envelopes. She told him one evening when the family had gone out and they were alone on the Blanchard porch in the moonlight.

"Mr. Gilman," she observed tremulously. "I may trust you. We have known each other all our lives, and I never knew you to betray a confidence, even when we had our worst spats. Mr. Gilman—"

"You may call me Halfred," he interrupted with quite elderly gentleness, laying his hand protectingly upon hers, where it rested upon the arm of her chair. "You have no brother. You need one."

"Thank you, Halfred," she gratefully replied. "I am going to confide in you. Halfred, my parents are bent on ruining my life. I have an attachment, a deep and lasting attachment, and they frown upon it. I have never met him but twice, but we have corresponded ever since. At first it was only the ordinary boy and girl correspondence, of course; but as it grew it deepened and ripened into something far too precious for them to understand. You, however, are a man of the world. You can, perhaps, appreciate how vital an attachment like this becomes." And she quoted four verses from the "Rubaiyat" of Omar Khayyam to prove it.

"Yes, I know, I know," replied Halfred, with dreamy emphasis. "I had also, when I was younger, an attachment that might have altered the course of my entire life, but it was nipped in the bud. She—" he choked up a little bit very successfully, "she proved faithless."

"I am sorry, brother," she said, turning her hand palm upward to clasp his strong and supple fingers with a grip of understanding. "I would not have re-opened your wound for worlds."

"It is nothing," he replied in a low voice, leaving his hand in hers. "Nothing whatever. The same devotion I would have poured out for her I now intend to pour out for the weak and the fallen."

"I am so proud, so proud, of my brother," she murmured.

After that they were no longer Mr. Gilman and Miss Blanchard; they were Halfred and Alice, and they were more together than ever, if possible. They were an ideal couple for mere brother and sister. They found so much to talk about that they scarcely needed other companionship, and even when they were with gay parties they could always be found by themselves some place, discussing the glory of self-abnegation as evidenced in settlement work, or the callousness of parents who frowned upon providentially ordained attachments.

Meanwhile, there was peace on Oak street. Grandfather Gilman became almost reconciled to Hal's stiffness, and the Blanchards began to rest somewhat easier about the cream-tinted envelopes. One evening at dinner, however, Mr. Blanchard ventured to banter his daughter about Hal.

"Father," the fair young girl sternly reproved him, "how blind you are; how utterly mistaken! Mr. Gilman—Hal—and I are brother and sister, as we have always been. You must have but little respect for your daughter if you think she can be so fickle as your remarks would seem to indicate. Only one heart, father, is attuned to each other in this world. There is but one such harmony for me."

"I didn't like his looks," replied Mr. Blanchard in a weak attempt at self-defense.

"Exactly! And you do not like him now!"

From her corsage peeped the corner of the latest fat, cream-tinted letter, and Mr. Blanchard eyed it with extreme disfavor.

"No," he admitted. "I do not like him; but I think that if I were a young man and knew this I would make it a point to come around and display my better side often enough to win confidence."

"And be insulted again," was the retort. "No, father, he will not come. I shall not permit him to do so."

And that night the sad, fair young girl wrote him that he must not come to Oakdale. Her father did not wish him to do so. In this she was not prevaricating; she merely wished to be oppressed. It was so sorrowfully and sobfully grand.

Strange enough, she did not confide this latest oppression to Brother Halfred. Of late they had referred less and less often to the cream-tinted envelopes, talking more about settlement work in place of it. It was very pleasant to discuss the hardships and distasteful features of living in slums while walking with a dear brother in the moonlight on balmy summer evenings. It was very pleasant to tuck this dainty blood-relative protectingly under an arm and take her, radiant in her beauty, to receptions and dinners and theaters.

They were very, very proud, indeed, of each other, almost more so than if they had been actual brother and sister; but, nevertheless, in the fall, just before Hal was to go away, a change came over Sister Alice. She grew abstracted, and sometimes when the square envelopes came she seemed to hesitate about opening them. Sometimes she put them away for a full half-day before she read them, and her answers to them were always delayed and always most painstakingly and laboriously written.

The result of this, at the other end of the correspondence, was but natural and logical. One day came a letter that threw her into a flutter of excitement. It made her gasp and hold her breath and turn pale and pink by turns. This thrilling letter—why it was the very apotheosis of her carefully built-up romance! The stern demand it laid upon her was a call to heroism.

They were going to Hal's last function that night, an anniversary dinner at the Wheatherlys, and her brother was her escort. About nine o'clock Grandfather Gilman and Mr. Blanchard who were chatting together, noticed Miss Alice put on her wraps and slip out of the front door. Five minutes later Hal came to bid them good-by, and Mrs. Weatherly went to the door with Hal and his grandmother. Grandfather Gilman looked at Mr. Blanchard. Mr. Blanchard looked at Grandfather Gilman. Half an hour later Alice had not come back. Grandfather Gilman and Mr. Blanchard were still talking.

"By George!" said Mr. Blanchard. "I wonder where Alice has gone!"

"Possibly to the depot with Hal," replied Grandfather Gilman with a curious hesitation. "He has gone to New York to arrange for his fool settlement work; he will be back in about ten days, he says."

"Hum," said Mr. Blanchard, and he fidgeted for just a few minutes longer. "Say, Adam, there is a train due to leave within five minutes. Suppose we hurry down to the depot. I—I scarcely like to have her come home alone."

In the meantime Mr. Halfred Joyce Gilman had telephoned for a cab to be at his door and had hurried over home to get his suit-case. He threw it in the cab and was just about to follow in when a figure flew down the Blanchard path and a voice called out to him to wait. It was Alice. He gripped her hand tensely when she came running up to him.

"You didn't come over here to say goodby again?" he asked.

"No, I am going along," she half-laughed and half-sobbed. "I'll tell you in the cab."

He noticed for the first time that she carried a suit-case. Time, however, was pressing. He handed her in and sat beside her.

"Now, tell me about it," he said, bewildered, but she had changed her mind. She could not tell him now. She only clung to his arm, herself gasping at the audacity of what she was doing. At the depot he tried to persuade her to go back home, knowing that something was wrong. She immediately became the sad, fair young friendless girl.

"You are my only friend and you must do as I say. This is the crisis of my life, Brother Hal, and I must meet it like a brave woman."

He shook his head, but she had already picked up her suit-case briskly, and was walking on with a determined step. All he could do was to take her suit-case from her and carry both.

The train was just pulling out when Grandfather Gilman and Mr. Blanchard arrived at the depot. They had no difficulty in finding out that Hal, who was known, and Alice, whom they could easily describe, had purchased tickets for New York. Grandfather Gilman and Mr. Blanchard turned as by one impulse and shook hands until their eyes watered. Nothing could have pleased them better.

"Let's go telegraph them," said Grandfather Gilman. "I know Hal's hotel. The young rascal!"

In the meantime Mr. Halfred Joyce Gilman was compelling his sister to tell him things, insisting on a brother's right in the matter.

She was eloping!

Mr. Halfred Joyce Gilman [illegible] his lips. He had a peculiar grip at his throat, and he felt very lonesome all at once. A profound distaste for settlement work, even, settled upon him. Nevertheless, he stiffened himself. If his Sister Alice was so deeply and irrevocably attached as this it was his duty to see that she attained happiness and he would do it like a man. He told her so.

They chatted very practically now. They discussed the deep and solemn sacrifice that a woman must make when she gave up her girlhood home to make a new home for a noble man. His nearness was such a support to her. She would never have had the courage to take the step if he had not been coming on this train. Never! She snuggled closer to him and wanted to cry. She didn't know why.

It was only about a three hours' ride to the city, and she grew more and more nervous as they approached it. When they had alighted from the train a young man, though considerably older than Hal, came toward them. He was not a very prepossessing young man. There were pouches beneath his eyes and his lips were thick and wide. He wore a loud tie, and a suit and overcoat of wondrously checked pattern. Alice saw him first, and she gripped Hal's arm more tightly. She did not experience the bounding joy to which she had so long looked forward when she should greet this Prince of the World. She had it upon the tip of her tongue to cry out to Hal that she did not want to elope, that she wanted to go back home, but the pride which had made her keep up the romance she had builded, even after it had lost its interest to her, and which had made her plunge into this daring escapade in spite of both her judgment and her inclination, now held her silent to meet her devouring fate.

She glanced half in terror from the approaching young man to Hal. She was startled at the change in her quasi-brother. He had stiffened himself to his full five-foot-seven of athletic height. His nostrils were dilated and his eyes were glaring, but he smiled, actually smiled, as if in the glee of coming battle. The approaching young man suddenly caught sight of young Gilman and stopped short, as if startled. Then he came on slowly, hesitatingly, looking from one to the other.

"Why didn't you tell me this fellow's name? Why didn't I ask?" demanded Hal; but he really was pleased.

There was no time for reply. The young man had come up to them. Hal turned on him savagely.

"Well, Peyson?" he inquired.

"How do, Gilman?" said Mr. Peyson with a jerky nod, and then held out his hands to Alice, with an evident intention to ignore her escort from that moment on.

Hal stepped between them.

"Peyson, I'll give you just two minutes to get out of sight," he pleasantly observed. "If you'll remember, we gave you 24 hours at college. You had things to pack up there. You haven't here!"

Mr. Peyson looked at him curiously for an instant and moistened his lips, then he suddenly wheeled, and a moment later they saw him worming his way through the crowd.

"I'm sorry, Alice, that I can't tell you the details about him," Hal said.

She was standing very stiff and straight herself.

"I don't care to hear. I know enough. I am just praying my gratitude that I am not to be linked for life to any man whom another man could make run without an explaantion."

Hal scarcely heard her. Already he was consulting a time-table. It had taken them three hours to make the trip. They had started at 9:30, and it was now 12:30. There was not another train back until three o'clock in the morning, and it would not land her in Oakdale until daylight. She had not comprehended to the full phase of it as yet. But Hal swiftly decided that whatever they did and wherever they went they could not stand there, and he bundled her into a cab.

It was not until they were rolling away from the depot that she thought with a gasp of the possible consequences of her act, and cried, "What are we to do?"

"I pass," replied the young man suddenly and briskly losing all the dignity that had weighted him down when he got his sheepskin, and reverting once more to the slang of early college days. "It looks to me as if we were in a jam. Never you mind, though. Rely on your Uncle Dudley. He'll put rouge and cold cream and violet talcum on the face of this thing, and don't forget it. Do you know anybody here that you could visit?"

"Not a soul," she wailed. "I only know one family and they are abroad."

"Never mind," he said, patting her hand where it lay trembling on his arm. "You just keep your eye on Little Willie. First of all we are driving over to my hotel, where I shall leave my suit case and send a couple of telegrams. Then we'll do a real quick-thinking stunt. Did you ever see me think? It will be a positive joy to you."

She nestled confidently up to him. His voice sounded so good and strong and she liked him so much better since he had dropped his age. She was glad, oh! so glad, that he had happened to come with her!

At the hotel Hal jumped out with his suit case. He left her in the cab, but presently he came out chuckling. He had two telegrams in his hand. One of them he had not opened, but the other he read and reread with evident appreciation.

"You'd better open this one before I show you mine," he said, handing the unopened telegram to her.

She looked at the inscription. It was addressed to Mrs. Halfred Joyce Gilman. She handed it back demurely.

"It certainly isn't for me," she said with a laugh that had a suspicion of a tear or two in it.

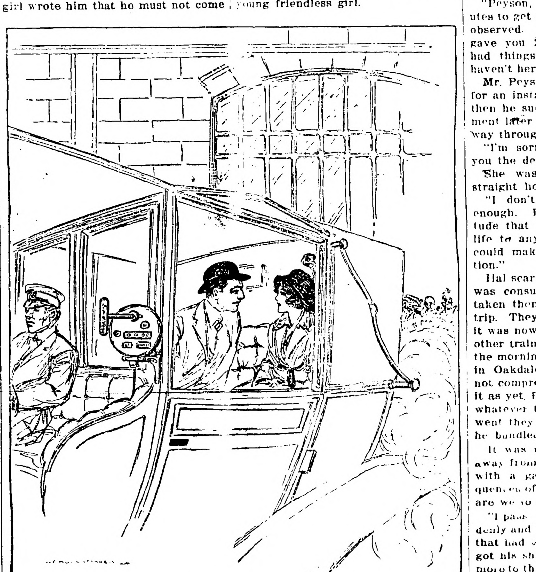
"It doesn't seem to be for anybody," he retorted, laughing a bit nervously himself, and tore it open. It was from her father.

"My dear girl," it read, "you are a very, very foolish child, but it is no trouble at all to forgive you. Come back home as soon as you can."

He handed them both to her.

"You precious young rascal," read Grandfather Gilman's message, "if you are already married when you get this, remember there's got to be another ceremony in Oakdale."

"It looks to me as if we had to make good, Pickles," laughed Hal. "I know where there is a preacher that works overtime." And giving a crisp direction, he jumped into the cab with her. Somehow or other her head happened on his shoulder. Funny that women should cry when they are happy.



"I Pass," Replied the Young Man Suddenly and Briskly Losing all the Dignity That Had Weighted Him Down

A London Ghost Story

A wonderful ghost story is agitating high society, according to the London Express. The principals are people of the highest social position.

The vicar of a Kensington church was leaving the church after his choir practice, when a lady stepped out of the aisle and asked him in agitated tones to come with her at once to an address near by.

"A gentleman is dying there," she said. "He is extremely concerned about the state of his soul, and anxious to see you before he dies."

The clergyman followed her to a waiting taxicab, and a short drive round the corner brought them to a mansion. The lady, who seemed to be extremely agitated, urged the vicar to hurry. He sprang out of the cab, rang the bell, and a butler appeared.

"Does Mr. —— live here?"

"Yes, sir."

"I hear he is seriously ill, and has sent for me."

The butler expostulated that his master was not ill, that as a matter of fact he was in the best of health.

"But this lady"—exclaimed the vicar, as he turned round, and then an expression of blank astonishment came over him.

The taxicab and the lady had completely disappeared.

The butler looked on the clergyman as either a madman or a practical joker, and was about to slam the door when his master came along the passage and inquired what it was all about.

"Are you Mr. ——?" asked the clergyman. "I heard that you were seriously ill, that you were concerned about your soul, and that you had sent for me."

He described the lady who had brought him, and the "dying" man said he could not identify her; that he had no such friend or acquaintance. They discussed this matter on the doorstep for a few moments, and then the clergyman was invited to come inside.

"It is very strange," said Mr. ——, "that you should have been sent on such an errand, in such a mysterious way. As a matter of fact, though I am perfectly well, I have been troubled lately about the state of my soul, and I have been seriously contemplating calling upon you to discuss the matter with you.

"Now that you are here let us brush aside this strange incident, and if you will give me the time we will discuss what has been on my conscience."

The clergyman stayed for an hour or so, and it was then arranged that his new acquaintance should come to the church the next morning and they would continue their discussion after service.

He did not appear at the church, and the vicar, very much interested, called to see what was the matter. He was met at the door by the butler, who told him that his master had died 10 minutes after he left the house on the previous evening.

They went upstairs to the bedroom where the dead man lay, and on a table in the middle of the room stood a portrait of the lady who had brought the clergyman in the cab from the church.

"Who is that?" asked the astonished clergyman.

"That, sir," replied the butler, "is my master's wife, who died 15 years ago."

First Aerial Spy

[illegible] Michowski, a German [illegible] attached to a Leipsic firm of aeroplane manufacturers, is now languishing in a Russian prison and is likely to become famous as the world's first flying spy. He was arrested early in February in the neighborhood of Warsaw, having, as he alleged, lost his way in a fog and been compelled to effect an emergency landing. The Russian military authorities were persuaded that his presence near important fortifications concerned espionage and he is now formally indicted on that charge. The German government has so far tried in vain to secure his release on representation that Michowski at the time of his flight over Russian territory, was engaged in an attempt to win one of the long distance prizes offered by the German national flying endowment.

Life's Hardships.

A [illegible] case occurred recently in a court of law at Amberg, Germany. A young girl who was called as a witness begged to be spared the ordeal of having to answer the usual questions with regard to her past. She had, she said, a position as cashier and had just become engaged, and she feared that she would be utterly disgraced if she was obliged to state publicly the fact that she had when very young been punished for a small theft. The court nevertheless insisted on her answering the question, and the girl thereupon opened a vein in court. She now lies in danger of death.

Minnesota Forestry Association Speakers Discuss Vast Possibilities of Plan and Assert State Is Losing Millions of Dollars.

St. Paul.—A movement to set aside non-agricultural state lands for forestry purposes was started at the annual meeting of the Minnesota State Forestry association held here. A campaign for the passage of the constitutional forestry amendment which will make this possible was started. The executive secretary of the association was empowered to devote his time to the furtherance of this campaign.

The state association elected the following officers at the close of its two-day session: President, Dietrich Lange, St. Paul; vice president, E. A. Cheyney; treasurer, Phil Hanson; secretary, E. O. Buhler.

Entire Situation Discussed.

The entire situation with regard to the non-agricultural lands in Minnesota was discussed. It was pointed out that the state could make no better move than to raise trees on such lands.

The development of Minnesota's summer resort regions and the protection of the game and fish—these two topics also occupied the time of the association.

The speakers included Clyde Leavitt, forester, Canadian commission on conservation; W. T. Cox, state forester; E. G. Cheyney, director of the college of forestry at the university; J. E. Rhodes, secretary of the National Lumberman's association; Dean Woods, of the College of Agriculture; Mrs. C. L. Atwood, president Minnesota federation of women's clubs; D. Lange, superintendent of schools, St. Paul; Charles E. Johnson, of the university; J. Peters, of the department of forestry, Washington, D. C., and others.

Resolutions Adopted.

The resolutions favored soil classification; management by the state of state owned forest lands; acquirement of additional lands suitable for forest crops; the reversion to the state of lands, non-agricultural, on which taxes have not been paid; the constitutional amendment for revolving fund of $250,000 for construction of roads on state lands, establishment of factories for production of finished products from the raw materials; classification of forest lands and taxation accordingly.

"Minnesota and most of the other states have something to learn from Canada," said Clyde Leavitt, forester of the Canadian commission of conservation, in his address. "Canada has recognized the fact that forestry is essentially a government rather than a private concern, and has, with only minor exceptions, retained in government ownership the non-agricultural lands of the country."

Boosts Fishing Industry.

D. Lange, in speaking on "The [illegible] of the Woods," discussed at length the necessity of developing the fishing industry in Minnesota.

"I believe the time has come," he said, "when a careful study should be made of the fishery resources in Minnesota, in international as well as in state waters. I believe that with scientific management the production of one of the most wholesome food supplies could easily be increased ten to one hundred fold in this state."

Mr. Lange also dwelt on the possibilities of attracting tourists to Minnesota. He said that the north woods ought to be the mecca for thousands of summer vacationists from the Mississippi valley.

Mrs. C. L. [illegible] part the women of the state [illegible] to play in the setting aside of state forests, the protection of the wild [illegible] etc. She made a particular plea for the conservation of bird life.

E. G. Cheyney, of the [illegible] forestry at the university, presented figures to show that the school funds from the state would gain millions of dollars annually by devoting non-agricultural lands to forestry purposes. He urged active work on the part of everyone interested in forestry in behalf of the forestry amendment to come before the people next fall. State Forester W. T. Cox, J. E. Rhodes and many others spoke along the lines of the state forests idea.

Use Suitable Land.

"It is a crime to [illegible] settlers out onto land that [illegible] nothing but the raising of [illegible] totally unfit for agriculture," said J. E. Rhodes. "Where the land is best suited for agriculture and there are millions of acres of such lands there we should direct the settlers who come to Minnesota. But to send them to the non-agricultural spots does more harm than good. The abandoned farms in some parts of Minnesota are a glaring warning."

CLAY COUNTY LAND MEETING

Organize in Order to Aid Red River Development Association—Plans Laid.

Moorhead.—Land men of this city have held the first meeting for a permanent organization of all real estate dealers in Clay county for the purpose of backing up the recently formed Minnesota Red River Valley Development association and particularly to assist Leslie Welter, the president of the association, in perfecting arrangements needed for the entertainment of the association at the time of the annual meeting in June. It is the ambition to make the meeting the peer of any ever held in the valley.

The land men appointed a committee on by-laws and plan of organization, the committee to report at an adjourned meeting to be held on Friday. In the meantime the temporary secretary, C. A. Draeger, will send letters to all land men in the county urging them to attend the meeting and help to perfect a permanent organization.

It is the plan to co-operate with a similar organization at Crookston and with those to be formed in each of the counties affiliated with the development association.

EBERHART OUT "ON RECORD"

Governor Announces He Will Be Candidate for the Republican Nomination for Re-election.

St. Paul. — Governor Adolph O. Eberhart has announced his candidacy for renomination on the Republican ticket at the primaries June 16 and appointed George F. Authier, his secretary, as chairman of his personal campaign committee. No political headquarters will be established.

In his announcement, the governor outlines his record, says it is up to the people to determine whether they will indorse "a campaign of constructive policy" and not one "bounded by personal abuse, slander and villification of the state itself" and adds: "This constitutes the challenge submitted by the opposition, which I now accept."

Governor Eberhart's platform is brief.

"I shall seek," he says, "an indorsement upon the record of my administration, during which Minnesota has won recognition by all other states as leading all lines of true progress and achievement."

Patient Returned to Asylum.

Winona.—Charles Lowry, who has in time past terrorized the villages of Dakota and Dresbach and other places down river, and who was arrested on Saturday in Winona for an alleged burglary committed last August at the E. L. King summer home below Homer, has been taken back to the insane asylum at Whitehall, Wis., where he escaped a few days before his visit to the King home last summer. He was subsequently arrested in northern Minnesota and was then started for the Whitehall asylum, but gave the officers in charge the slip by jumping through the window of a car on which he was traveling.

Refused to Marry; $15,000 Asked.

Minneapolis.—Suit for $15,000 for alleged breach of promise to marry has been filed in district court by Mrs. Mary Pattison, 47 years old, a widow, against John Hegland, 68 years old, a widower and retired farmer, who she asserts has property valued at $25,000. In her complaint she avers that the promise of marriage was made to her last August and that she accepted after Mr. Hegland bought the wedding ring. She declares he attempted to repudiate the engagement later and for this she demands $15,000.

[illegible] Son Saves Parents.

[illegible]eapolis.—Their stairway [illegible] by flames believed to have been of incendiary origin, Addington C. Wharton and invalid wife escaped through the second story of their home only when their 18-year-old son Harold, who also was ill, climbed hand over hand down a rope of blankets and got a ladder. Several hours after the fire apparently had been extinguished and while the family was staying with neighbors, a second blaze was discovered in a front upstairs room.

[illegible] Goes to F[illegible]

[illegible]eapolis.—William [illegible], author of "The Ancient History of [illegible] Charlemagne", "Modern History", "The Ancient World" and "The History of the University of Minnesota," and whose name appears in the select catalog of notables, "Who's Who," has renounced the classroom where he has held forth for nearly two score years and become a tiller of the soil about Lake Pokegama near Grand Rapids.

[illegible] R. N. Adams [illegible]

[illegible]neapolis.—Brigadier G[illegible] Adams, for the past thirty [illegible] in charge of home missionary work for the Northwest for the Presbyterian church, is dead of apoplexy at his home in Merriam Park. General Adams was born in Greenfield, Ohio, [illegible] ago. He received his education [illegible] university. A member of the graduating class when the Civil [illegible] broke out, he left the university and as commander of the college company led his classmates in battle. He was soon promoted.

IMMIGRATION TO NORTH IS HEAVY

SETTLERS FLOCKING INTO RED RIVER VALLEY COUNTIES BY SCORES.

CLASS OF NEWCOMERS GOOD

Significant That Farmers Coming to State Are Type That Will Improve Agricultural Conditions —Alfalfa Acreage Grows.

Crookston.—To date more cars of immigrants have arrived than were recorded up to June 1 for 1913. The immigrants have not all been for Polk county by any means, but have scattered through Kittson, Roseau, Marshall, Red Lake and Pennington counties. Ada, in Norman county, reports the heaviest immigration experienced in ten years, and Mahnomen, Clay and Becker counties are not being overlooked.

Class of Immigrants.

But it is the class of newcomers even more than the number, that is significant. Morford, a farmer from Alexis, Ill., arrived recently with twenty-five shorthorns, eighteen brood pigs and a fine bunch of brood mares for the Rolsch farm, which he purchased last year. He is not an exception to the quality, but the rule.

Among the first inquiries of the newcomers is for good seed corn that is acclimated. Fortunately the corn raisers here last year anticipated the demand, and there is a large amount of good seed available.

As an indication of conditions financially, at an annual stock sale at McIntosh last week, out of a total of $5,000 worth of stock sold, all was for spot cash except $171. At a stock sale here Tuesday, grade cows sold for from $85 to $100, and spring calves brought $25 to $45. Everything was sold for cash. Grade and thoroughbred stock has been shipped in from Iowa and Illinois this spring, showing a long step forward in increasing and conserving the stock in the valley.

Alfalfa Acreage Increased.

G. J. Johnson, the Donaldson, Kittson county, banker, reports that the acreage of alfalfa on the Walter Hill farm is to be increased this spring by 1,000 acres. The farm already has several hundred acres which have produced big crops for several years.

Over 100 farmers about Donaldson are seeding from two to 100 acres of alfalfa, and the corn acreage will be greatly increased, more than doubled, says Mr. Johnson. A. E. Pfiffner, the Argyle banker, says the same is true of Marshall county. It is believed the corn acreage will be doubled throughout this entire territory, while the alfalfa acreage will be increased more than ten-fold.

Another encouraging sign is the diligence farmers generally are showing in securing the best seed grain. This is shown by the wholesale inquiries received by A. D. Van Sickle, the Marshall county world's champion oat raiser, who has won scores of prizes at farm crops shows and fairs. Hundreds of farmers have had their seed grain tested at the northwest experiment station here, and practically all are having their grain tested somewhere or testing it themselves. This shows an advanced step, the result of crop shows, fairs, school agricultural work and the general progressive tendency.

TEMPERANCE MEN ORGANIZE

Plan Campaign for Goodhue County to Promote State Prohibitory Statute.

[illegible] Temperance [illegible] here to take charge [illegible] a good campaign for the election of legislators committed to the enactment of a state wide prohibitory statute and the submission of an amendment to the constitution to make the measure irrevocable except by the voice of the people. There was not a discordant syllable and the harmony was enthusiastic.

Professor O. O. [illegible] was made permanent chairman. A get-together committee was elected, representing all organizations and all parts of the county and presented resolutions committing the gathering to a vigorous fight for candidates for legislature who are for the measure and a law enforcement county ticket.

Local questions and candidates were discussed and the session adjourned until evening when a public rally was held.

[illegible] Discuss M[illegible]

[illegible] Atwood, [illegible] was brought [illegible] here with a banquet at which 400 men were present. E. W. Peck, state secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and Rev. J. W. Wilson were the speakers. State Secretary Peck addressed a [illegible] meeting Sunday night on the [illegible] around the world tour in the interests of the Men and Religion Forward Movement. A service was held for the women's missionary societies of the city.

TOM LYNCH IS HAPPY AND CONTENTED

Former President Lynch of National League.

(By FRANK G. MENKE.)

In New Britain, Conn., far removed from the turmoil and strife of baseball, there's a man with a dark mustache, with soft brown eyes and hair that is graying at the ends, who smiles all day the smile that one smiles when one is happy and contented and at peace with all the world.

The man who smiles is Tom Lynch, once prexy of the National league, now proprietor of a prosperous theater in the little Connecticut town.

Tom, as many will recall, was booted out of the National league last December, after serving it for four years, because the pugnacious moguls decided they wanted "an able man to ably handle the affairs of the league."

It hurt Tom's pride a bit when he was shoved out into the cold, cruel world with nothing to warm him but his feeling of indignation toward his former bosses, but Tom hasn't minded the cold much lately. In fact, he's quite glad now that he was shoved, and thereby saved the hours of agony that Gov. John K. Tener, his successor, has endured during the past four months.

Gov. John Tener, Who Has Succeeded Lynch.

"What do you think of the present state of affairs in the National league?" Lynch was asked.

"I have no opinion to express," was the reply. "I am out of the league, and I feel, therefore, that I have no right to express my sentiments concerning what has happened since I was supplanted by Governor Tener."

"The ousting of Murphy was a good thing for the league and for baseball in general, wasn't it?"

"You'll have to excuse me," returned Lynch. "I have no statement to make. My attitude toward the National league was expressed to the magnates on the day that I was let out and Governor Tener elected in my place. At that time I told the magnates that I hoped they would conduct themselves with as much dignity as they expected from this new leader. And I also told them that I hoped they would be a help, not a hindrance, to him.

"In closing, I said that I wished the National league every success. I meant it then and I still mean it. I was in the service of the National league for many years. I owe much to the National league. That they should depose me as president and put someone else in my place is their right. Why should I feel hard toward them because they exercised that right?

"I was in baseball nearly all my life and baseball became part of my life. To be out of it is a bit hard, but I am happier now than I was for the past few years. I have no trouble or worries. I am my own boss. I do not have to take dictation from anyone, nor do I have to hear the brunt of criticism."

The National league magnates have come to the conclusion that the $25,000 annual salary they agreed to pay Governor Tener has been a wise investment. Tener is signed up for four years, but will not draw any salary for 1914, as he will be on the payroll of the state of Pennsylvania until the end of the year.

Serving the first year without pay and getting $25,000 for each of the three following years means that Tener's yearly salary for four years will average only $18,750. And the magnates feel right now that Tener's little stunt of placing the skids under Mr. Murphy and then shoving Mr. Murphy into the discard is well worth the total money they will pay Tener for the four years of his service.

Lynch's salary was $8,000 and when William Baker, president of the Phillies, proposed Tener as Lynch's successor, some of the magnates were against the idea because they figured that $25,000 was too much muchness in the way of salary. Baker, however, pleaded Tener's case, pointing out that Tener would prove to be a second Moses and would lead the league out of chaos into the promised land.

"No one will regret paying Tener the $25,000 salary," Baker argued. And now those who once opposed Baker's advocacy of Tener fully agree with him in what he said.

Evers Nearly a Fed

Speaking of the Federal [illegible], Johnny Evers said in Chicago the other day that just five minutes separated him from the new organization. "I do not care to say how much I was offered, but I will say that had not a certain proposition been accepted within five minutes of the time it was made I would have been a Federal league manager, getting more money than I am now, but it was my desire to remain in organized baseball."

Job for Monahan

[illegible] Monahan of Cam[illegible], catcher formerly with the Boston Nationals, has been appointed coach of the Boston college varsity nine. Monahan at present is a student at Boston university. Five years ago he captained the Cambridge high and Latin team. After graduation he played with Lynn and caught for the Lowell team for one year and was also captain. Last year he played behind the bat for Bridgeport.

Oregon University Plans Big Field

The University of Oregon's new athletic field at Eugene, Ore., will consist of two football fields, one of which will be used for soccer, three baseball diamonds, tennis courts and a quarter mile running track with a 220 yard straightaway on one side. It is planned to equip the field so that all the students in the university, both men and women, will use it.

HARD TO CINCH JOBS

BUSHERS HAVE TROUBLE TRYING TO LAND IN MINORS.

Ogden Player Tosses Away Glove In Disgust After His Debut—Texan Got Two Home Runs and Then Fanned 7 Times.

Recruits trying to burst into the major leagues have fairly hard times in their tryouts. But they can't compare with the initiation of a busher trying to get a job for the first time with a minor league club.

This one was told at Salt Lake City of a youngster who had an idea he would like to play with the Ogden team. His name was Lathers and his only experience prior to his tryout was with sandlot teams at Salem, Ore. The Ogden manager told him to play left field during one of the spring games and Lathers took his place.

Somebody knocked a high easy fly which Lathers got in his hands, but let drop to the ground. Two scores came in. A couple of innings later he muffed a liner in murderous fashion and the climax came in the eighth when a tall fly bounced off his head and lost the game for Ogden.

All this time he had been panned to the limit by the fans and he was getting so nervous he could scarcely walk without tripping. It was his turn to bat in the final round and he whiffed miserably. A gang of man and boys followed him from the park, jeering and laughing. Finally, in desperation, Lathers turned on them and said:

"If any of youse guys want to play left field there's my glove," and he threw a $2.50 mitt in the road. He was never heard of again in the Utah regions.

Another case was noted at San Antonio last spring while the second team of the White Sox was playing a series of exhibition games there. The Athletics had been training there and the enthusiasm of the Broncho adherents had been stirred up because of the numerous victories of their team over the world champs.

All that the Broncho manager wanted to make his team strong, according to his own notions, was a right fielder. He had been trying out his star catcher, Betts, at the place, but didn't want to weaken his backstopping department by the switch. So he welcomed a youth named Bogus, who strolled into his office the day the Sox arrived, and applied for a job.

Bogus had played in one of the smaller leagues in the great Southwest, and claimed to be a right fielder. He was tried out in the first game.

Joe Benz the butcher boy pitcher of the Sox was in the box and Bogus was the first man to face him in the second inning. He lifted a terrific homer over the short right field fence and the small crowd of fans went wild with glee. At San Antonio all home batters are trained to aim for that short fence, and Bogus seemed to have the range right off the reel.

"He's a wonder and a comer," the Broncho players exulted. And they could scarce contain their joy when Bogus hit another homer over the same fence in the fourth round, bringing Metz, the big first baseman, in home ahead of him. This made the score 3 to 2 in favor of San Antonio. Bogus certainly looked like a find and Acting Manager Doc White of the Sox looked him over carefully with a view of recommending him to Comiskey and Manager Callahan.

In the fifth, seventh and ninth innings Bogus struck out, missing the ball by a mile. But this didn't dampen the jubilation of San Antonio players or fans. "Wait till tomorrow," they said. "The kid'll show 'em again." For the Bronchos had won that initial combat, 10 to 6, and felt great.

Tomorrow came and Doc White decided to do a little pitching himself. He desired to see how Bogus would hit against a southpaw who had a change of pace. It might be mentioned Bogus was a left-handed hitter. Bogus struck out as a starter, not coming within a foot of White's tantilizing slow ball. The same thing happened in the fourth.

SYNOPSIS.

Francois Beaupre, a peasant babe of three years, after an amusing incident in which Marshal Ney figures, is made a Chevalier of France by the Emperor Napoleon, who prophesied that the boy might one day be a marshal of France under another Bonaparte. At the age of ten Francois visits General Baron Gaspard Gourgaud, who with Alixe, his seven-year-old daughter, lives at the Chateau. A soldier of the Empire under Napoleon he fires the boy's imagination with stories of his campaigns. The general offers Francois a home at the Chateau. The boy refuses to leave his parents, but in the end becomes a copyist for the general and learns of the friendship between the general and Marquis Zappi, who campaigned with the general under Napoleon. Marquis Zappi and his son, Pietro, arrive at the Chateau. The general agrees to care for the Marquis' son while the former goes to America. The Marquis before leaving for America asked Francois to be a friend of his son. The boy solemnly promises. Francois goes to the Chateau to live. Marquis Zappi dies leaving Pietro as a ward of the general. Alixe, Pietro and Francois meet a strange boy who proves to be Prince Louis Napoleon. Francois saves his life. The general discovers Francois loves Alixe, and extracts a promise from him that he will not interfere between the girl and Pietro. Francois goes to Italy as secretary to Pietro. Queen Hortense plans the escape of her son Louis Napoleon by disguising him and Marquis Zappi as her lackeys. Francois takes Marquis Zappi's place, who is ill, in the escape of Hortense and Louis. Dressed as Louis's brother Francois lures the Austrians from the hotel allowing the prince and his mother to escape. Francois is a prisoner of the Austrians for five years in the castle owned by Pietro in Italy. He discovers in his guard one of Pietro's old family servants, and through him sends word to his friends of his plight. The general, Alixe and Pietro hear from Francois and plan his rescue. Francois as a guest of the Austrian governor of the castle prison inspects the interior of the wine cellar of the Zappis. Francois receives a note from Pietro explaining in detail how to escape from his prison. Alixe awaits him on horseback and leads him to his friends on board the American sailing vessel, the "Lovely Lucy." Francois, as a guest of Harry Hampton, on the "Lovely Lucy," goes to America to manage Pietro's estate in Virginia. Francois wins the respect and admiration of the aristocratic southerners.

CHAPTER XXI.

Hero Worship.

It had come about that Lucy Hampton was a scholar of Francois. The colonel, lamenting on a day that there were no capable teachers of French in the neighborhood, that Lucy's school-girl command of the language was fast disappearing, and an accomplishment so vital to a lady was likely soon to be lost—this saga of regret being sung by the colonel at the dinner-table. Francois had offered to teach mademoiselle his mother tongue. And the colonel had accepted the offer.

"If you are not too busy, Chevalier. And I suppose your—ah—accent—is entirely good? One can not be too careful, you know. At least we shall not quarrel about the terms, for whatever money you think right to ask I shall be ready to pay," and the colonel felt himself a man of the world and extremely generous.

"Father!" Lucy cried quickly.

Francois' eyes were on his plate but they swept up with their wide brown gaze full on the colonel's face. "I am not too busy, Monsieur the Colonel. As for my accent, I am a peasant, as Monsieur knows, but yet I am instructed. I was for years at Saint Cyr, the great military school of France. I believe my accent is right. As for money"—a quick motion, all French, spoke a whole sentence. "If Monsieur insists on that, that must finish it. To me it would be impossible to take money for the pleasure of teaching mademoiselle." He flashed at Lucy a smile all gentleness, and Lucy's eyes, waiting for that smile, met his shyly.

The colonel blustered a bit, but the lessons were arranged as Francois wished, twice a week throughout the winter he rode over from Carnifax to give them. And little by little he came to know the small mistress of the manor as few had known her. People thought Lucy Hampton too serious and staid for a young girl; no one realized that, her mother being dead and her father such as he was, the clear-headed little person had begun at ten or twelve years old to know that she must make her own decisions, and many of her father's also. At fourteen she had taken the keys and the responsibilities of the house and now, at sixteen, she was in reality the head of the whole great plantation. The colonel, who would have been most indignant to be told so, leaned on her in every detail, and it was she who planned and decided and often executed the government of the little kingdom.

All this lay on the [illegible] shoulders of Lucy Hampton, and besides all this she had begun in very childhood to hold up the hands and do the thinking of an incompetent father. It was not wonderful that she was graver and slower to frolic than other girls of sixteen. Her conscientious young brain was full of care and light-heartedness of youth had never had a chance to grow in that crowded place. Her cousin had come to live with them only the year before, when his mother had died, his father being dead long ago, and Lucy knew quite well that her father had planned that the two should marry and unite the broad acres of the Hamptons.

But the young longing [illegible] which was in her in spite of [illegible] [illegible]ing sober business of her life [illegible] [illegible]lled at this. She would not give herself as well as all her thought and effort for Roanoke. She wanted to love somebody, and be loved for herself as other girls were; she would not marry Harry because he and her father considered it a good arrangement. So strongly had this determination seized her that, looking entirely down that way of thought, she failed to see that Harry might not be classed with the colonel in his view of the plan. She failed to see that if she had not been heiress to Roanoke House, or to anything at all, Harry Hampton would still have been in love with his cousin Lucy. For Harry saw how the young life had been pressed into a service too hard for it almost from babyhood; Harry saw how unselfish she was and trustworthy; how broad-minded and warm-hearted; how she would like to be care free and irresponsible like other girls of her age, only that the colonel and the estate were always there, always demanding her time and her attention. He could do little to help her as yet, but he longed to lift the weight and carry it with her, not away from her, for the fairy of a person was not the sort to lean on others or to be happy without her share of the burden. Yet, Harry thought, "If I might only help her, and make it all a delight instead of a labor!"

But Lucy, going about her busy days, never guessed this. She thought of Harry as the boy whom she had grown up with, to be cared for tenderly always because of his misfortune, to be helped and planned for and loved indeed, because he was lame and her cousin, and because he was a dear boy and her best friend. But as the hero of her own romance to come, she refused to think of him at all. More firmly she refused such an idea, of course, because her father had hinted that it would complete both Harry's and his happiness.

Francois, with quick insight, saw as much as this, and was anxious for the boy who had been his warm and steady friend. What he did not see was that Luck was fitting his own personality into that empty notch of her imagination where an altar stood and a candle burned, ready for the image that was to come above them. That never entered his mind, for in his mind Alixe was the only woman living to be considered in such a relation. And, in spite of the seigneur, in spite of Pietro, in spite of his whole-hearted giving up of her, there was a happy obstinate corner in the depths of his soul which yet whispered against all reason that it might be that Alixe loved him, that it might be, for unheard of things happened every day, it might be yet that—with all honor, with all happiness to those others whom he loved—he might some day be free to love her. So that as he grew to care for and understand Lucy Hampton more and more, no faintest dream of caring for her as he did for Alixe came ever into his mind.

On an evening when winter was wearing away to cold spring, Francois waited in the dining room of Roanoke House for his scholar. The room had a sweet and stately beauty, a graceful stiffness like the manners of the women who first lived in it, a hundred years before. The [illegible] white woodwork over the doors was yellowed to ivory; the mantelpiece, brought from France in 1732, framed in its fluted pillars, its garlands and chiseled nymphs and shepherds as if under protest, the rollicking orange of the fire. Over a mahogany sofa covered with slippery horsehair hung a portrait of the first lady of the manor, and Francois, sitting soldierly erect in a straight chair, smiled as his gaze fell on it. It was so like, yet so unlike, a face which he knew. There was the [illegible] oval chin and straight nose and fair loose hair. But the portrait was staid and serious while Lucy's face, as this man had seen it, had kindly eyes and a mouth smiling always. He shook his head in gentle amusement at the grave dignity of the picture.

"But [illegible] you are [illegible] charming [illegible] your granddaughter," he said, addressing it aloud.

Lucy Stood [illegible] Doorway.

And then he stepped across the [illegible] to the fire, and held his hands to it and stared into it. The clock ticked firmly, the logs fell apart with soft sliding sounds, and he stared down at them—his thoughts far away—a look came into his eyes as if they concentrated on something beyond the range of sight, the characteristic look of Francois, the old look of a dreamer, of a seer of visions.

Then Lucy stood in the doorway, gentle, charming from the slippered feet, locked over the instep to the shadowy locks of light hair on her forehead.

"Good evening, Monsieur. I am sorry I kept you waiting. Hannibal hurt his foot and I must find plaster and bandage for him. But you will have enough of my talking even now. Father says I talk a great deal. Do I, Monsieur?"

Francois stood regarding her, with frank admiration in every muscle of his face. He smiled, the same gentle amused smile with which he had addressed the portrait. "You never talk too much for me, Mademoiselle. It is a pleasure to me always to hear your voice," he answered in the deep tone of a Frenchman, the tone that has ever a half note of tragedy, as of some race-memory which centuries do not wipe out. "Only," he went on speaking in French, "one must not talk English. That is breaking the law, you remember, Mademoiselle."

She answered very prettily in his own tongue, in words that halted a little. "Very well, Monsieur. I will do my best." He still gazed at her smiling, without speaking. One could understand that, to a girl of more self-contained people, this open homage of manner, this affectionate gentleness, might seem to mean more than a brotherly loyalty. The girl's pulse was beating fast as she made an effort for conversation. "What were you thinking of as you looked at the fire when I came in, Monsieur? It had an air of being something pleasant. Did I not say all that beautifully?" she finished in English.

He corrected a lame verb with serious accuracy and she repeated the word, and laughed happily.

"But you haven't said yet what you were thinking about."

The large brown eyes turned on hers. "It was of my old home in ~~France~~, Mademoiselle, when I was very little," he said simply. "A large fire of logs makes me think of that."

"Tell me about it," she begged with quick interest. "Will you? Was there always a fire at your house?"

"But no, Mademoiselle—not, of course, in the summer. It was of the winter time I thought, when the neighbors came, in the evening, and we sat about the hearth, sometimes twenty people, each at his different duty, and my brothers and sisters were there and the dear grandmere, was there and—" he stopped. "Does Mademoiselle really wish to hear how it was in that old farm-house of ours in the shadow of the Jura Mountains?"

"Indeed Mademoiselle wishes it," she assured him. "It will be a trip to Europe. I am sure I shall speak better French for going to France for ten minutes and being among the French people, your friends. Wait now, till I am comfortable." She turned a deep chair so that it faced him, and dropped into it. "Put a foot stool for me," she ordered, as southern women order the men they care for and the men they do not. And she settled back with her little feet on it and smiled at him. For a moment the man's brilliant gaze rested on her, and the girl saw it and thrilled to it. "Now, Monsieur, racontez moi une histoire," she spoke softly.

Francois Beaupre's look turned from her to the fire and the air of gazing at something far away came again. "It is a picture I see as I think of that time of my childhood," he began as if speaking to himself. "A picture many times painted in homelike colors on my brain. Many a night in the winter I have sat, a little boy, by the side of my grandmother at that great hearth and have looked and have seen all the faces, have heard all the voices and the fire crackling and the spinning wheel whirring even as I see them and hear them tonight.

"And from time to time one of the men, as he talked, rose up and strode across the room to the great oak table where lay always on a wooden platter a long loaf of black bread with a knife and always a glass and a bottle of eau de vie brandy. And I remember how manly it looked to me watching when I saw him take the loaf under his arm and hold it, and slice off boldly a great piece of the fresh rye bread and pour out a glass of brandy and toss it off as he ate the bread. The stories seemed to grow better after the eater had done that.

"And always I waited, even though the tale of the ghost and the fire-breathing hound, till the talk should swing round as it did ever toward the end to the stories of Napoleon that were fresh in men's minds in those days. It was as if I sat on needles before my bedtime came [illegible] I did not dare to be restless and move about for fear that my mother might send me suddenly to bed. But I always gave a sigh of content and always the grandmere patted my head softly to hear it, when my father cleared his throat and began:

"'There is a small thing that happened when the Emperor was marching'—and then he was launched on his tale."

A great hickory log fell, rolled out toward the hearth. The carved nymphs and shepherds seemed to frown in disapproval at this irregularity, and the girl in the deep chair smiled, but the man sprang up and put the log back in place with quick efficiency. He stood silent by the tall mantelpiece, deep yet in his reverie, as the flames caught the wood again and sparkled and spluttered.

"Did any of them ever see Napoleon—those men who talked about him?" the girl asked.

The Frenchman turned a queer look on her, and did not answer.

"Did any of your family ever see him, Monsieur?" she asked again.

The alert figure stepped backward, sat down again on the gilded chair and leaned forward consideringly. Francois nodded as if to the fire. "But yes, Mademoiselle," he said, in a whisper.

"Oh, tell me!" the girl cried, all interest. "Who was it? How was it? It couldn't be"—she hesitated—"yourself! If you, whom I know so well, should have seen the Emperor!" She caught a deep breath of excitement. This was another Lucy Hampton from the serious young mistress of Roanoke House whom the country people knew. "Quickly, Monsieur, tell me if it was yourself!"

Francois turned his eyes on her. "Yes, Madamoiselle," he answered.

"You have seen Napoleon!" she said, and then, impetuously, "Tell me about it!" But, though he smiled at her with that affectionate amusement which she seemed, of all sentiments, oftenest to inspire in him, he did not answer.

"Monsieur! you will not refuse to tell me when I want to know so much!" she pleaded, and went on. "How old were you? Did he speak to you? What did he say to you?"

And the Frenchman laughed as if at a dear child who was absurd. "Mademoiselle asks many questions—which shall I answer?" he demanded, and the tone to her ear was the tone of love, and she trembled to hear it.

"Answer"—she began, and stammered and flushed, and stopped.

Francois went on, little thinking what damage he was doing with that unconscious charm of voice and look.

"It is as Mademoiselle wishes, most certainly. I will even answer Mademoiselle's two questions at once to please her. It was when I was not quite three years old, Mademoiselle, at home in the farm-house in the valley of the Jura."

"And he spoke to you—to your own self? Are you sure?"

"But yes, he spoke to me, Mademoiselle."

"What did he say?" The smile on Francois' face went out and into its place swept an intensity of feeling. He answered solemnly. "There were but few words, Mademoiselle, but they have been much to my life. They shall lead my life if God pleases—those words shall lead it to the fate which they foretold."

"What were the words?" whispered the girl, impressed with awe.

Francois suddenly stood erect and stretched out his arm as if to hold a sword. "'Rise, Chevalier Francois Beaupre, one day a Marshal of France under another Napoleon!'" he repeated dramatically. "Those were the words the Emperor said."

CHAPTER XXII.

The Story Again.

[illegible] I [illegible] fac[illegible] [illegible] Lucy bewildered. "I don't understand."

The [illegible] "I have never told [illegible] thing," he said in a low tone.

"Ah, but it's only me," begged the girl.

"Only you, Mademoiselle." His [illegible] went on as if reflecting aloud. "[illegible] is the guiding star of my life, that story, yet I may tell it," he paused, "to only you."

Again the girl got [illegible] feeling the intensity, mistaking its meaning. "I should be glad if you would tell [illegible]," she spoke almost in a whisper, but Francois, floating backward [illegible] a strong tide to those old beloved days, did not notice.

"It may seem a [illegible], Mademoiselle, [illegible] not tell [illegible]. It has affected my life. The day [illegible] was this: Napoleon marched to Germany in the year 1813 and passed with his staff through our village. The house of my father was the largest in the village, and it was chosen to be for a [illegible] the Emperor's headquarters, and the Emperor held a council of war, he and his generals, there. I, a child of three, was sleeping in a room which opened from the great room, and I wakened with the sound of voices and ran in unnoticed. [illegible] were all bent over the table looking at the maps and lists of the mayor—and I pulled at the sword of Marshal Ney. And the marshal, turning quickly, knocked me over. I cried out, and my grandmother ran to me, and I have often heard her tell how she peeped from the door under the shoulder of the big sentry who would not let her pass, and how she saw a young general pick me up and set me on my feet, and how all the great officers laughed when he said that the sword was in contest between Marshal Ney and me. And how, then, the young general suggested that, to settle the point amicably, the marshal should draw his sword and give me the accolade—the blow of knighting. And so, Mademoiselle, to shorten the tale, it was not the marshal, but the Emperor himself who chose to do it. He made me kneel before him, I—a baby—and he struck my shoulder the blow of the accolade, and said the words which I have told you."

Francois sprang to his feet and stood as he repeated once more the Emperor's words. His voice shook.

"'Rise Chevalier Francois Beaupre, one day a Marshal of France under another Bonaparte,'" he cried, thrilled through with the words which he repeated.

The girl leaning forward watched him; with a gasp she spoke. "Then that is why you are really Chevalier Beaupre? Did the Emperor have the right to—to knight you?"

"But yes, Mademoiselle," Francois answered with decision. "I have studied the question, and I believe that the accolade—the knighting—was always a right of the monarchs of France, disused, perhaps at times, but yet held in abeyance, a right."

The glance of the brilliant eyes met hers with a frank calmness which showed that he claimed nothing which he did not feel; that this haphazard nobility had lived in his soul and grown with his growth, and come to be part of him. With a gentle humility, very winning as it sprang from his gentle pride, he went on.

"I know, Mademoiselle, that I am a peasant and that I must be content with a small place in life at the present. I know this. And even that position which I have is more than my brothers. For you must know, Mademoiselle, that the others grew up to be farmers or tradesmen." He hesitated, and then in a few words told her of General Gourgaud, the seigneur of Vicques, and how he had given the peasant boy all the opportunities which his own son could have had. And as he talked he remembered how, after his father's ruin, he had stood inside the bare, little, new cottage and watched through the window his mother standing at the gate and talking to the seigneur, who held Lisette's bridle. It seemed to him he could see the dark braided hair of La Claire, coiled around her head, and the deep point of her white neck-handkerchief as she stood with her back to him, and the big bow of the apron tied about her waist. The picture came vividly. And it opened his heart so that he talked on, and told this stranger in a strange land many things that had lain close and silent in his heart. He told her about the general's gruffness, which could not hide his good ness, and how he had come to be the child of the castle as well as of the cottage, something of Pietro also he told her, but he did not mention Alixe.

"You spoke of three children, Monsieur, who was the third?" asked Lucy.

Francois went on as if he had not heard the question. "It was a happy life, Mademoiselle," he said. "And it has been so ever since—even for the most part in prison. I have wondered at times if the world is all filled with such kind people as I have met—or if it is just my good luck."

Lucy Hampton had been [illegible] aloud to her sick black mammy that day, and some of the words of the book she had read came to her and seemed to fit. "The kingdom of God

Stretched Out His Arm as if to Hold a Sword.

[illegible] she [illegible] Francois. Then she co[illegible] [illegible] him.

"Monsieur, [illegible] may I ask you a personal question?"

"I think not [illegible]," he said [illegible] at her.

She [illegible] faith [illegible] Louis Bonaparte [illegible] years ago with the [illegible] I wonder if it by chance [illegible] had fought [illegible]."

He shook his head [illegible] happiness, Mademoiselle."

"The heir of the B[illegible] is that Prince Louis Napoleon [illegible]. Is it not?" she questioned.

"Yes, Mademoiselle."

And he made an [illegible] [illegible] of Strasburg [illegible] and was tried for it—and all that—father talked about it so much I could not help knowing a little about it, but I don't remember distinctly."

"But certainly, Mademoiselle. It was the prince."

"Then, haven't they just done something to him? Isn't there something people are interested in just now about that Prince Louis?"

The grave bright smile flashed out at her. "In truth, Mademoiselle, there is. The prince was shipped by his jailers on the frigate Andromede more than four months ago, for what port is unknown. One has not heard of him lately, and there are fears that he may have suffered shipwreck. But I do not fear. It is the hope of France, it is France's destiny which the Andromede carries. It will carry that great cargo safely. The young prince will yet come to his own, and I—and perhaps you, Mademoiselle—who knows?—will cry for him 'Vive l'Empereur!'"

The tone full of feeling thrilled through the girl. She flashed and stammered as she went on but Francois, carried away by his enthusiasm, did not think of it. "If you will let me ask just one question more, Monsieur, I will promise not to ask any after."

The flicker of amusement lighted his face. "Ask me a thousand, Mademoiselle."

"No, only one. Did that seigneur—General Gourgaud—did he have any—any daughter?"

The Frenchman rose in a business-like way, the way of a teacher of language at the end of a lesson.

"One," he answered briefly in a matter-of-fact tone. And then, "Mademoiselle has talked enchantingly well this evening, but I have perhaps talked too much. I may have tired Mademoiselle. I have the honor to wish you a good evening."

His heels together, he stood in the doorway and made his bow. "Au plaisir de vous revoir," he said and was gone.

CHAPTER XXIII.

The Prince Comes.

The glittering morning sunlight of late March flooded the eastern dining-room of Roanoke house. A fire blazed on the hearth; hot dishes steamed on the table; the girl's face, the crackling fire, the polished silver reflected from polished mahogany; the soft shod, solicitous service of a white-aproned negro; all this made the room fragrant with homeliness in spite of the fact that one could see one's breath in the air. But they were used to it—the hardy Virginians of those days of open fires and no furnaces, of many luxuries and few comforts, and in happy ignorance of world progress, they suffered cheerfully and were strong.

Colonel Henry Hampton faced a portrait of the first Hampton of Roanoke, stately with brass buttons and silver lace, set in the panels seventy-five years before. ~~Lucy had~~ concluded her broiled chicken and bacon and hot bread, and now as he, late for breakfast always, followed in her wake, he read the Norfolk and Portsmouth Herald with which a colored boy had that morning ridden out from Norfolk, eight miles away. It was before the time of daily papers except in a large city or two, and this of once a week was an event; a boy was sent to Norfolk the day before its publication that the colonel might have it at the earliest moment.

"How would you [illegible] prince, Lucy?" he inquired. "The [illegible] states that we have [illegible] not ten miles from Roanoke. [illegible] Louis Napoleon was landed [illegible] Andromede in Norfolk only [illegible]day. Poor young man, he [illegible] accordingly [illegible] I understand [illegible] he is [illegible] in a strange country with his fortune to make and no assets but a little [illegible] that will help him in the [illegible]."

[illegible] If she [illegible] he [illegible] was enchanted with her expression. She had dropped knife and fork [illegible] with her blue eyes stretched wide, her white teeth showing, [illegible] drinking in his anecdote.

"Father! Is Prince Louis in Norfolk? [illegible] Beaupre was talking to [illegible] him last night. [illegible] coming here. Surely he would have known if the prince [illegible] expected."

Colonel Hampton smiled [illegible]. "You will find that your father occasionally knows more than even Monsieur Beaupre and even on French questions. I [illegible]," he announced from a [illegible]. "But [illegible] my dear, the prince was not expected by [illegible], not even by the great Chevalier Beaupre. [illegible] was exiled from France [illegible] know some [illegible] ago [illegible] Strasburg, and was sent out on the Andromede [illegible] no one knew [illegible] until he landed on the twenty-[illegible] at Norfolk." Then the colonel got up and walked to the fireplace and stood with his back to the blaze and his legs far apart [illegible]. "I have given you [illegible] story for a [illegible]. [illegible] you going to [illegible]?"

[illegible]

"[illegible] never would [illegible] the [illegible] could [illegible] league [illegible] playing [illegible] bad children [illegible]?" "I'm," replied the little boy. "Teddy Bacon and I have been playing with a parrot his uncle sent him from Chicago."

To Our Readers:

The Thief River Falls Times published an article last week stating that several of the machine politicians who figure on running for office this fall have combined their wads and are contemplating the purchase of this paper and moving the plant to that city. We wish to state that we are unaware of any such scheme, nor would we for a second entertain same, and furthermore will say that as long as we are owners of this paper it will be managed and published to serve the best interest of Holt and vicinity and it shall be our endeavor to have it continue along these lines in the future.

Additional Locals

Lillian Peterson returned from Thief River Falls last Friday to visit her parents and attend the funeral of her uncle Frank Carlson. Lillian is working in that city.

Mr. John and Albert Carlson, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Carlson, Mrs. Oscar Carlson and Mrs. John Branden from Thief River Falls were here between trains last Friday to attend the funeral of Mr. Carlson.

A business meeting of the Free Mission Church will be held at the Woomen hall in Holt on Sat. April 18th ,for the purpose of incorporating the same. All that is interest will be required to attend.

M. T. Strom.

The Excel Telephone Company held their annual meeting on Saturday evening March 28th, and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year. M. O. Matson, President. W. A. Silbough, Secretary. Christ Saastad, Treasurer. Martin Kische, Director.

Severt K. Johnson loaded up his car and left last Tuesday for the Southern part of the state. Mr. Johnson had rented Even Johnson's farm, which now belongs to Henry Johnson. We are very sorry to see him leave, but we all wish him success in his new place.

Ed. Siltough, Albert Huseth, Clarence Kolden, John Sormo, Bert Terwillinger, Pete Anderson, Ole John and Leonard Jenson, Reinard and Selmer Reierson and Henry Oien went to Thief River Falls to witness the wrestling match between Ludvig Monson, and Otto Suter which occurred Tuesday night.

Albert Knutson left last Monday for Devils Lake, North Dakota to work. Albert says he has to go out and load up. That is right, get a lot of money and come back to Holt.

Mr. and Mrs. Groner of Golden Valley left last Monday for Iowa. Mr. Groner has proved up a homestead in the town of Mud Lake, but now has sold out his stock and machinery, and there may be some time before long we will see him back again. We are sorry to loose them as we need all good farmers, and we look for more.

A stranger made a remark last Monday that he counted thirty-five teams, on the street, just the length of one block. He thought it was something unusual for a town the size of Holt, but that is nothing, we have often seen seventy-five teams and more. "Well", he said "That's no wonder that all the traveling people call Holt the little busy town."

HOPE FOR 173 MEN ABOUT ABANDONED

SEALING STEAMER SOUTHERN CROSS IS TO BE POSTED AS LOST.

STORY OF OTHER TRAGEDY

Survivors of Newfoundland Tell of Death of Comrades—Identification Scenes Are Pitiful.

St. Johns, N. F., April 7.—Hope for the safety of the sealing steamer Southern Cross, missing since last Tuesday's storm, has been practically abandoned, and the vessel is to be officially posted as lost with her crew of 173 men.

Newfoundland Survivors Talk.

The handful of survivors of the Newfoundland have just told their stories of the disaster which cost the lives of 77 of their comrades, and they hold out no hope that the Southern Cross might have weathered the gale.

The colony, plunged into mourning by the greatest tragedy in its history, has waited in vain, hoping against hope that the wireless search of the sea might bring some word from the missing vessel whose loss would deprive whole settlements of their bread winners and render more than 1,000 women and children dependent upon charity.

First Hopes Fade.

First hopes, based on the stoutness of the ship, faded when survivors of the Newfoundland told of the two days' blizzard and the condition in which it caught the Southern Cross.

Captain Martin said he parted company from her a week ago Thursday, when the Southern Cross turned homeward with 17,000 seals. She was so deeply laden that all her provisions and part of her bunker coal were stored on deck so that every available space below could be filled with her catch.

Captain Bartlett of the Terra Nova said the last he saw of the Southern Cross was a week ago Friday, when she was wallowing slowly down the coast. Other ships of the fleet sighted the steamer driving before the gale last Tuesday morning. She has not been reported since and the skippers of the fleet that came through that gale and the storm of equal severity later in the week, say every chance was against a vessel so deeply laden.

Churches Remember Dead.

In every church Sunday the disaster which overtook the Newfoundland's men on the ice was the theme of the sermon.

Messages of sympathy from the king and from the Canadian premier were read and were gratefully received.

By noon all but five of the 69 bodies of the Newfoundland's hunters, brought in Saturday by the Bellaventure, had been identified. These were shipped on a special train for Bona Vista, where most of the victims lived.

Attendants at the Greenfell institute, which was turned into morgue, said that the scene accompanying the identification of the bodies were almost beyond endurance.

One woman found two bodies clasped so tightly in death they could not be separated. They were her husband and son. The lad was wrapped in his father's arms, as if the man had been trying to shield him from the pitiless cold.

Pitiful Scenes Enacted.

The hand of another dead man was missing. One of the survivors who had lain helpless near the body for nearly 48 hours, said that his comrade, unable to stand the agony of frost bite, had sliced off the hand with his seaman's knife.

A gray haired mother supported by her two daughters, passed down the long row, looking for her sons. Attention was suddenly drawn to them when the woman fell to the floor in a faint. They had found not only the four sons and brothers but two cousins, among the dead.

Of the 35 survivors in the hospital none is expected to die but the majority will never be fit for active service again. Three lost both hands and both feet. Five lost both feet. Eight others lost a foot and 11 will lose a hand or fingers. The others will bear scars for life.

3 Dead, 35 Hurt in Wreck.

Attica, Ind., April 7.—Three persons were killed and about 35 others injured when the Wabash passenger train No. 4, known as the Continental Limited, was wrecked when the bridge over the Wabash river just west of here gave way. The engine, a baggage car and the day coach dropped into the water. When the cars left the bridge the day coach which was crowded, fell with the rear end out of the water and though the majority of the injured were in this car, none was killed.

CHIHUAHUA TRAGEDY IS BEING REPEATED

VILLA ORDERS DEPORTATION OF SIX HUNDRED TORREON SPANIARDS.

AIDED FEDERALS, IS CHARGE

Property Will Be Confiscated Unless Innocence Is Proved—Trains Are Ordered to Carry Them to the Border.

Torreon, April 7. — Six hundred Spaniards of Torreon have been ordered deported by General Francisco Villa, and their property will be confiscated, temporarily, at least, on charges that they rendered aid to the Huerta arms during the siege of the city.

Trains Given Orders.

Trains were ordered by General Villa to carry to the bord at El Paso the men affected by the order. The exodus began today.

It is the tragedy of Chihuahua repeated, and expresses the deep rooted suspicion and even hatred with which the native Mexican and particularly the peon, looks upon the Spaniard.

Villa expelled the dons from Chihuahua four months ago, and since then has repeatedly stated that other Spaniards had better get out of Mexico before he catches them. His abiding conviction that they have been working as one man against the revolution found frequent expression while he was in Juarez.

Spain Was Aroused.

The Spanish government was aroused and Washington descended on the constitutionalist chiefs with words of warning and admonition.

The expulsion is taken that all are to be held guilty until innocence is proved. Villa promised that he would investigate closely the conduct of each Spaniard and that in due course those found to have lent no aid to the enemy would be allowed to return.

To establish their innocence, while not represented before the investigators with their cases in the hands of a hostile court and themselves in a foreign land, it is said, will be an almost hopeless task, and it is believed certain that few will ever be allowed to return to their homes.

Pleading and Lament.

The order was received in a [illegible] silence, followed by passionate outbursts of pleading and lament. All asserted that they had remained neutral so far as they could, but with the military government in the hands of the Federals they were compelled at times to render such aid as was demanded, the use of houses and corrals, for instance and the forced contribution of money and food.

Mexican hatred of the Spaniard is a tradition handed down from the days of the conquest. It is still expressed in the crude ballads chanted by the peons, and in the narrative songs of the Indians. It has been a part of their lives for three centuries. Modern instances have intensified it.

Juarez, General Carranza was not consulted by Villa in ordering the deportation of the Spanish residents at Torreon, it is stated here.

Christiania, Norway, April 7.—Susanna Ibsen, widow of Henrik Ibsen, the Norwegian dramatic poet, is dead here.

King Gustave's Health Poor.

Stockholm, Sweden, April 7.—The condition of health of King Gustave continues to cause general anxiety. A bulletin issued by the court physicians says: "Although the health of the king has improved during the past week and although there is no ground for uneasiness the royal physicians have recommended his majesty to consult Prof. Wilhelm Fleiner, the specialist for internal diseases of Heidelberg, Germany, as there are indications of a return of his stomach trouble."

BURNS SAYS HE KNOWS ALL

CLAIMS HE HAS FOUND SLAYER OF MARY PHAGAN.

Declares Story of Atlanta Crime Will All Clear Soon—Intimates Frank Is Not Guilty.

Chicago, April 6.—William J. Burns, detective, declared here that he knew who murdered Mary Phagan, the girl for whose death Leo M. Frank is under sentence of death. Whether the murderer was Frank or someone else, in his opinion, Burns would not say, but he intimated that from his investigations, and comparing their results with the conclusions of the coroner's jury, he believed Frank is not the sort of man capable of making the attack on the girl alleged to have preceded her murder.

Burns related upon his arrival here from Kansas City the story of his investigation. He said his attention had first been called to it by a young man from Atlanta, who was a passenger on a steamer on which Burns was returning from Europe. The young man expressed his regret that Burns had not become interested in the case before the arrest and conviction of Frank.

Burns read of the trial in the newspapers and concluded, from the accounts he saw, that Frank was guilty. Later, while he was in Key West, three citizens of Atlanta, including two personal friends of Frank, saw the detective and asked him to undertake an investigation of the case.

At first, Burns said, he refused, on the ground that, if guilty, his final conclusion to that effect could only hurt Frank, while if the investigation tended to throw doubt of guilt upon him it might serve to thwart justice. Frank's friends here said they believed he was innocent of the crime, but if guilty, they wanted indisputable evidence of his guilt.

Burns then took the case. His investigation showed, he said, first that public clamor, following a "crime wave," had resulted in the police making extraordinary efforts to adduce "evidence" tending to convict Frank, and, second, that a report making out Frank a man of abnormal characteristics, was commonly circulated through the city, putting public opinion strongly against him.

His inquiries then convinced Burns that Frank was a perfectly normal man. On the other hand, the testimony of physicians was to the effect that the murderer of Mary Phagan was abnormal. Then Burns interviewed many of the witnesses who testified in the case. At the conclusion of this phase of his investigation he said he was convinced that he knew the murderer.

"There was no mystery about the murder of Mary Phagan," Burns said. "The tracks of the murderer were clear and there is no doubt as to his identity. The story will all clear up in a few days. I have made a complete report to Frank's attorneys in Atlanta, and in a few days it will be given out."

Common Law Wife Wins.

Louisville, Ky., April 6.—Compromise by which Mrs. Ellen J. Gillen, or Ewald, will receive $300,000 cash and $10,000 a year from the $4,000,000 estate of the late Louisville and Nashville railway ironmaster, L. P. Ewald, was agreed upon by opposing counsel and is expected to end the suit for $1,700,000, in which the former St. Louis woman has attempted to prove herself the common law wife of the late eccentric millionaire.

Prohibition for U. S. Navy.

Washington, April 6.—Absolute prohibition will prevail in the United States navy after July 1 next. Secretary Daniels last night made public a sweeping order which not only will abolish the traditional "wine mess" of the officers, but will bar all alcoholic liquors from every ship and shore station of the navy. Secretary Daniels said: "There should not be on shipboard, with reference to intoxicants, one rule for officers and another and a different rule for the enlisted personnel."

F. WEYERHAEUSER, LUMBERMAN, DIES AT WINTER HOME

END COMES AFTER MILLIONAIRE WAS THOUGHT TO BE OUT OF DANGER—PNEUMONIA WAS AILMENT.

MADE VAST FORTUNE BY BUYING TIMBER LANDS

Started Life As Poor Lad But Early Demonstrated His Shrewd Ability At Recognizing Money-Making Possibilities of Milling Business.

St. Paul, April 6.—Frederick Weyerhaeuser, St. Paul lumberman, one of the wealthiest men in the world, died at his winter home in Pasadena, Cal., after a brief illness from pneumonia. He was 79 years old.

Began As Poor Lad.

Beginning as a poor German immigrant boy to pile slabs in a Rock Island, Ill., sawmill at $1 a day, by industry and wonderful business foresight, Frederick Weyerhaeuser rose to be the dominating figure in the lumber world of the west, and leaves a deep impress on the business life of the Mississippi valley and the Pacific coast.

Dominated Everywhere.

Dominating everywhere, but in every field associating himself with men of capital and brains, Mr. Weyerhaeuser's interests were scattered through a score of states. The various Weyerhaeuser corporations are credited with controlling 30,000,000 acres of timber lands, valued at about $1,500,000,000, but no definite estimate of the Weyerhaeuser fortune has ever been made. Secrecy was a business rule with him, and the extent of his holdings can only be estimated.

Mr. Weyerhaeuser died just as he was thought to be on the road to recovery. Sunday noon Mr. Weyerhaeuser's body was sent aboard a limited train bound for Rock Island, Ill., the old home, for interment beside the body of Mrs. Weyerhaeuser, who died in November, 1911.

Result of Cold.

Mr. Weyerhaeuser caught cold Sunday, March 22, while attending church. On the following Wednesday his condition become so alarming that his children were sent for. Three physicians were called and remained in attendance day and night. They managed to overcome recurrent sinking spells.

His sons, John P., Frederick E., Rudolph M. and Charles A., and his daughters, Mrs. Margaret Jewett, of Chicago; Mrs. W. B. Hill, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and Mrs. S. S. Davis, of Rock Island, were at the bedside at the time.

Up to the day that he was taken ill, Mr. Weyerhaeuser had been giving active attention to more important questions connected with his business, but he had relinquished control of the business more and more to his sons and other business associates of late years, and had been spending nearly all his time in Pasadena since the death of Mrs. Weyerhaeuser.

Sons Active in Affairs.

Mr. Weyerhaeuser's four sons are actively engaged in the business in Minnesota. John P. Weyerhaeuser and Frederick E. Weyerhaeuser, of St. Paul, Charles A. Weyerhaeuser, of Little Falls, and Rudolph M. Weyerhaeuser, of Cloquet, all are interested in the various companies. The headquarters of the syndicate are in St. Paul, but Weyerhaeuser & Co., the corporation under which the offices are maintained in St. Paul, is not a holding company and has no relation directly with any of the numerous manufacturing and timber owning concerns. It is a retail lumber company owning nine yards in as many southern Minnesota towns.

The secret of the Weyerhaeuser fortune, lumbermen say, was in his far seeing faith in the possibilities of timber lands as an investment. He never paid high prices for timber lands but bought where there were no logging operations at the time and where the timber could be had for almost nominal prices, holding it patiently until the country developed and a demand arose for it. Then he would as a rule, build mills and market the lumber. From his earliest operations he bought timber as fast as he could raise the capital for it.

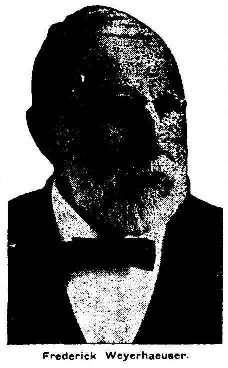
How He Lost Money.

Associates say he once was asked the question: "What do you think of timber lands as an investment?"

"Well," he replied, "I have lost a lot of money on timber lands, lots of it, but all the lands I lost money on were lands I didn't buy."

Mr. Weyerhaeuser was [illegible]

WORLD'S RICHEST MAN DIES



Frederick Weyerhaeuser.

"richer than Rockefeller" by Charles P. Norcross, a magazine writer, back in 1906 in an article. This article was declared a gross exaggeration, but the size and value of the Weyerhaeuser holdings never has been made public in any way. The Norcross article also contained an appraisal of Weyerhaeuser, the man.

Appraisal of Man.

"As silently and as patiently as one of the giant trees on his land grew to its majestic maturity, Weyerhaeuser has grown," said Mr. Norcross. "He is master of vast reaches and wonderful forests extending from the cluttered drives of Wisconsin lakes and rivers to the Pacific coast. He has behind him fifty years of unremitting toil along lines of telling organization. Patient, shrewd and far-seeing, he has given his life to bringing underneath his dominion the great forest tracts of the northwtst.

"It seems astounding that such an enormous accumulation could be effected without the whole world knowing it; but Weyerhaeuser is a man of mytesry."

In Many Corporations.

Mr. Weyerhaeuser was a heavy owner in the following corporations and, at some time or other, president of nearly all: Mississippi River Boom & Logging Company, Potlatch Lumber Company, Weyerhaeuser Timber Company, Weyerhaeuser Syndicate, Chippewa Lumber & Boom Company, Cloquet Lumber Company, Tacoma Lumber Company, Little Falls Lumber Company, Mississippi River Logging Company, Northland Pine Company, Pine Tree Lumber Company, Musser Sauntry Company, St. Croix Lumber Company, Shell Lake Lumber Company, Northern Wisconsin Lumber Company, Chippewa Valley Lumber Company, Bonners Ferry Lumber Company, Superior Timber Company, Weyerhaeuser & Denckmann, Weyerhaeuser & Rutledge Lumber Company, Duluth & Northeast Railway, Mesabe Southern Railway, Atwood Lumber Company, Rutledge Lumber Company, Nebagamon Lumber Company.

A Native of Germany.

Frederick Weyerhaeuser was born at Nieder-Saulheim, on the German Rhine, Nov. 21, 1834. His father was a thrifty German farmer, owning 15 acres of land. There were 11 children, but only Frederick and four sisters lived to maturity.

He was a member of the Presbyterian church.

Surviving Convict Explains.

Sacramento, Cal., April 7.—Fred Barnes, the only survivor of the five convicts who battered their way from their cells into Folsom prison Saturday, only to fall before a rain of bullets from the guards, declares that he and his comrades were not trying to escape. Barnes declares that the only object of the 12 "incorrigibles" in the plot was to create a disturbance that would result in their being taken back to the dungeon. Barnes is expected to recover.

TOLLS VOTE IN THREE WEEKS

Exemption Repeal Bill Cannot Be Disposed of in Shorter Period of Time.

Washington, April 7.—With the scene of activity on the issue of Panama toll exemption repeal shifted to the senate after the triumph of the administration in the house last week, plans still remain in the formative stage for the final struggle in the great controversy.

Leaders in the fight do not expect speeches to change any votes, but that there will be a flood of oratorical effort which will far exceed in length and intensity the 20 hour debate on the bill in the house.

No one in close touch with the situation will predict how long the controversy in the senate will continue, but the most optimistic proponents of repeal do not look for a vote for three weeks. The repeal bill and attendant measures will be in committee at least a week and general debate cannot begin until some sort of a report is made or a motion is offered to discharge the committee from further consideration of the bill.

Wilson-McAdoo Wedding Soon.

Washington, April 7.—The wedding of Miss Eleanor Wilson and Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo will take place in April, according to friends of Miss Wilson although the White House still declines to indicate any date.

Dynamiters Are to Petition.

Chicago, April 7.—A movement seeking a pardon for the members of the structural bridge and iron workers, convicted at Indianapolis of illegally transporting dynamite in interstate commerce, has been begun here. Petitions to President Wilson, charging that the men were rushed through their trials, were circulated at the meeting of the Chicago Federation of Labor. The petitions will be submitted by the delegates to their local unions for signatures.

SPRING FEVER IS HEALTHY

It Indicates Fresh Hopes and Renewed Buoyancy of Spirit.

How wonderfully tight the spring wander-lust for the countryside grips one!

Spring fever, with all of its healthfulness, is the harbinger of fresh hopes and a buoyancy of spirit.

I noticed a passenger on a Detroit-Chicago train the other day who had started out on his trip with the evident intention of becoming deeply taken with one of the best sellers, that he might shorten the trip between the two cities. You have done the same thing yourself.

But his book had been cast aside. He had read only a few pages. His interest in it had lagged.

From the car windows he was counting the fields now bared of snow. The ditches were carrying away the water and the still less sluggish creeks were now streams bearing the overflow to the rivers. The farmer, in his shirt sleeves, was repairing the fences after the winter drifts; the cattle showing proof of a winter's stabling and now heading here and there toward the meadows, seeking the new-green patches of grass; the farm help, in field and stubble, was putting into repair this and that necessary feature, here looking after his plow and there his harrow, and on all sides were scenes which reminded the traveler that spring was here, at last!

As the train sped onward and glimpses of the painter as he worked on the weather-beaten buildings were revealed, the interest of the tourist was aroused and, when I asked him the reason, he answered: "Spring is here and I feel its blood flowing!"

The truth was, that like many others, he was planning the work he was to do the coming summer. He was going out to the farm—his farm in Western Canada. He had his wells to dig, his horses to get into shape, his grain implements to fix up, his seed grain to prepare, and other details for the land that was ready to receive it. His was what might be termed an "unrest"—to get to the farm!

Thousands in Western Canada today are making the preparations that this interested man contemplated. Their summer fallows are ready for the wheat, their spring plowing is being attended to, fences are being rebuilt or being put into repair; indeed, the entire country is one great hive of industry.

Railroads are in readiness to take care of a great rush of settlers, those charged with the reception of whom are prepared to extend every courtesy and thus meet the rush with judgment and without the least friction. Thus, the enjoyment of the opening of spring is fully met.

At many of the stations throughout many of the middle western states, trains of settlers' effects are in readiness to move to Western Canada. Not only in these states are scenes of this kind to be witnessed, but also, on either coast and throughout the eastern states there is the same activity among those going to Western Canada this spring. The crops have been heavy and all reports are that the winter was enjoyable; also, that the prospects for a satisfactory year were never better. There is plenty of land yet to be had by homesteading or otherwise. Adapted, as Western Canada is, to small grain farming, it is especially adapted to cattle raising and many of the farmers are placing small and large herds, as their individual means will permit.

The illustrated literature sent out by the Canadian government agents tells the truth clearly and the inquirer should send for a copy and if you be one of those who has an ambitious interest you may be the gainer by a perusal of such information—straight, cold facts in themselves.—Advertisement.

ECZEMA ITCHED AND BURNED

Dryden, Ore.—"My eczema began by forming small blotches over my neck and shoulders also on my face and later became rough and scaly. First it appeared in blotches, then it came in pimples and lastly it appeared in a sort of a rash. It itched and burned so terribly that I scratched it and made sores. My clothing irritated my body. The eczema disfigured my face very much and itched so that I lost much sleep and couldn't work while it lasted.

"I used many medicines but none of them took any effect. The disease lasted nearly two months before I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I first washed with the Cuticura Soap, then applied the Cuticura Ointment to the parts affected. The Cuticura Soap and Ointment gave me much relief within two weeks and they proved a perfect cure in a month." (Signed) J. C. Corlett, Nov. 19, 1912.

Thirsty Tourists Inclined to Be Finicky Should Visit Ireland During the Winter Months.

Two New York men were touring Ireland last summer by automobile. On a hot July afternoon they came to an inn. Stopping, they went into the bar. A red-cheeked peasant girl was the barmaid. The travelers ordered Irish and soda. The girl served them and went on with her interrupted work of wiping the bar. One of the men tasted his drink and found it tepid.

"I say, my girl," he said, "won't you please put some ice in these drinks?"

Her mouth went wide open and the mopping cloth was poised in mid-air. Amaze held her silent for a moment. Then she found tongue in a hurry.

"Ice, is it? And who the — ever heard of ice in July?"

Whereupon she fell to polishing again.

TWENTY NATIONS PLAN TO EXHIBIT

TO DATE 'FRISCO FAIR MANAGEMENT HAS ASSURANCES FROM THAT NUMBER.

TWO NOTABLE ABSENTEES

England and Germany Refuse to Participate But Many Individual Firms of These Nations Will Enter Great Exposition.

Washington, April 7.—To date twenty foreign governments have signified their intention of participating in the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco next year. Notable absentees are two countries which heretofore have been most liberal exhibitors at all American expositions, namely Great Britain and Germany, but there is every assurance that even if the governments of these two countries do not relent at the last moment and recall their declinations, there will be thousands of British and German exhibits contributed by individuals.

Countries Already Entered.

The countries which have so far notified the state department of their intention officially to recognize the fair, together with amounts of money where the appropriation for the exhibits is known are as follows:

The Argentine Republic, $95,000; Bolivia, $40,000; Brazil, $800,000; Canada; Chile, $180,000; China; Cuba (proposed), $250,000; Denmark; Dominican republic; Ecuador; France; Guatemala; Haiti; Honduras; Italy, $400,000; Japan; Liberia; Mexico (accepted invitation in 1912); Netherlands, $150,000; Panama, $50,000; Persia; Peru; Portugal; Siam; Sweden, $160,000; Turkey, Uruguay, Venezuela, $10,000.

Norway Is Doubtful.

The Norwegian government had accepted the invitation but the legislative body of that country refuses to appropriate the $50,000 estimated by the government as necessary for an exhibit.

Nine governments, including most of the great powers, have signified their intention to send naval contingents to participate in the naval parade from Hampton Roads to the Golden Gate via the Panama canal, which is expected to signalize the opening of the exposition next February.

NINE KILLED IN GAS PIT

Bridge Workers Trapped by Flames in Caisson At Memphis.

Memphis, Tenn., April 7.—Trapped in a fiery pit of blazing gas, nine caisson workers were literally cooked to death when their lamps touched off a pocket of gas in a caisson in which they were laying the foundation for a new Harahan Mississippi river bridge.

The laborers were lowered into the caisson to begin work early Monday. They had scarcely begun burrowing into the river bottom when there was a terrific explosion. Flames and natural gas filled the caisson, choking and suffocating the workmen. The flames are still burning, making the work of rescue doubly difficult.

Dynamiters Are to Petition.

Chicago, April 7.—A movement seeking a pardon for the members of the structural bridge and iron workers, convicted at Indianapolis of illegally transporting dynamite in interstate commerce, has been begun here. Petitions to President Wilson, charging that the men were rushed through their trials, were circulated at the meeting of the Chicago Federation of Labor. The petitions will be submitted by the delegates to their local unions for signatures.

American Chemists Meet.

Cincinnati, O., April 7.—The forty-ninth annual meeting of the American Chemical society opened this morning with a general session of all divisions at the University of Cincinnati where the members were welcomed by Mayor Spiegel and President Dabney of the university. President T. W. Richards of the society responded, and several papers were read. For four days the chemists will mingle business and pleasure and many industrial plants will be inspected.

Airship Death Toll.

Washington, April 7.—Death records tell of 38 lives among the aviators of the world for the first three months of this year, according to records kept here from Jan. 1 and April 1. Since Lieutenant Thomas E. Selfridge, U. S. A., was killed at Fort Myer Sept. 17, 1908, the first man whose death is recorded as due to experiments with heavier than air flying craft, 462 aviators in all parts of the world have died for the cause of [illegible].

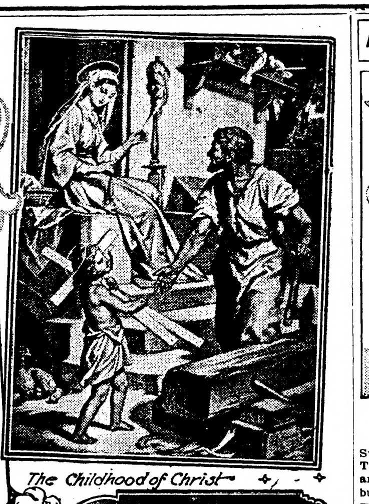
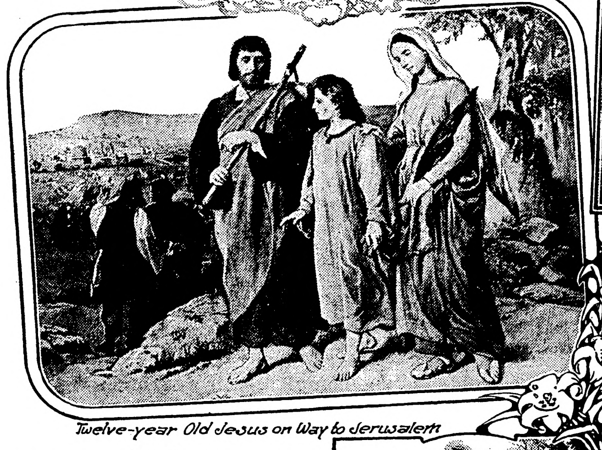
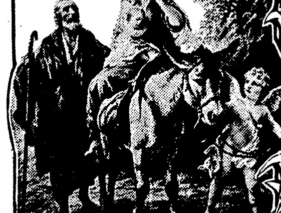
INCIDENTS IN THE LIFE OF CHRIST



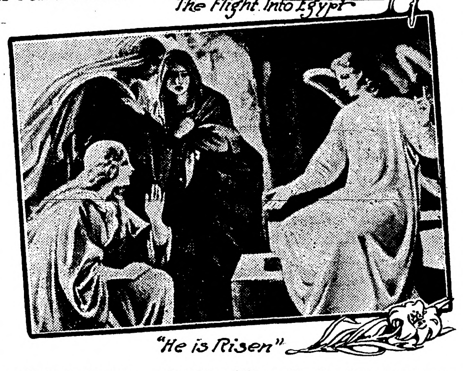
The Childhood of Christ



Twelve-year Old Jesus on Way to Jerusalem



The Flight Into Egypt



"He is Risen"

ONE day an angel came to Mary and said: "Fear not, Mary, for thou hast found favor with God. Behold thou shalt conceive in thy womb and bring forth a son and shalt call his name Jesus. He shall be great and shall be called the Son of the Highest, and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David. He shall reign over the house of Jacob foreverer." Mary and Joseph went away into a city of Judea, into the city called Bethlehem, because they belonged to the house of David. When the child was born there were many shepherds watching their flocks. When they heard of Christ's nativity many were afraid, and the angel said unto them: "Fear not, for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord!" When the shepherds came to the manger they found the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes. There were angels and a multitude of the heavenly host praising God and saying: "Glory be to God in the highest, and on earth peace and good will toward men." The shepherds fell down before Christ and worshiped him. They then made known abroad what they had heard. Then came wise men from the East, guided by a star which stood over the young child. They opened their treasures and presented him gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh. Forty days after Jesus' birth his parents carried him to the temple at Jerusalem. There was one Simeon, who had long been expecting the coming of a Savior to the Jews. He took the child up in his arms and exclaimed: "Lord, now lettest thou they servant depart in peace according to thy words: For mine eyes have seen thy salvation."

Joseph and Mary remained but a short time with their child in Egypt. The death of Herod later recalled them to Palestine, and they returned to their old place of abode, the little town of Nazareth in Galilee. They did this because the angel of the Lord appeared to Joseph in a dream and said: "Take the young child and his mother and flee into Egypt and be thou there until I bring thee word, for Herod will seek the young child to destroy him." He grew strong in both body and spirit. Tradition says he wore a garment without seams, made of a kind of woven hair of a purplish brown color.

The Gospels tell us nothing of his occupation as a young man. Tradition relates, and it appears truly, that he spent the whole thirty years before he began his ministry in retirement. John was the first to announce the great work Jesus intended doing. He abandoned the solitude of the desert for the banks of the Jordan. He gathered the people together in hosts. He announced that they were to be delivered from sin and bondage, and to prepare for the Messiah's coming.

It was at Bethabara that John the Baptist saw Jesus for the first time, and looking upon him said: "Behold the lamb of God." It was here that the 12 stones were set up, marking the spot where the children of Israel had crossed the Jordan dry shod to enter the promised land. Jesus had come to be baptized, but John refused until he heard Jesus say: "Suffer it to be so now, for thus it becomes us to fulfil all righteousness." After Jesus had spoken to the people he was led into the wilderness by the spirit. Here he was tempted for 40 days by the devil. He was an hungered and the devil said unto him: "If thou be the Son of God command that this stone be made bread," and Jesus answered him, saying, "It is written that man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." He next brought him to Jerusalem and sat him on a pinnacle of the temple and said unto him: "If thou be the Son of God cast thyself down from hence." Jesus answered, "It is said thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God." Then the devil tempted him a third time, offering Christ the kingdom of this world if he would worship him. The answer came, "Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God and him only shalt thou serve."

The temptation is the expression of the period that intervened between Christ's private life and his public ministry. One day Jesus was walking by the sea and he saw two men—Simon, called Peter, and Andrew, his brother, casting a net in the sea. And he said unto them: "Follow me and I will make you fishers of men." They straightway left their nets and followed him. He walked on farther, when he came upon James, the son of Zebedee, and John, his brother, who were also in the ship mending their nets. He straightway called them and they left their father in the ship and followed him. Nathaniel was more doubtful about Christ's spiritual power until one day Jesus saith unto him: "Verily, verily I say unto you, hereafter ye shall see heaven open and the angels of God ascending and descending upon the Son of Man." And Christ went from place to place until he had found his 12 apostles. He was unwilling to rest then. He began to give food to the hungry, sight to the blind, health to the sick and comfort to aching hearts. Among the most illustrious of his miracles was when he constrained his disciples to go on board the boat and row across the lake to Capernaum. Then he sent away the great crowd of people who were still eager that he should be their king. When they were all gone and he was left alone he went up into the mountain to pray. While he was praying in the night a great storm came up on the lake. When the storm was at its height Jesus went to his disciples walking on the water as though the sea were dry land. Then the men in the boat saw a strange figure coming near them and Jesus called out to them: "Be of good cheer; it is I; be not afraid." After Jesus had performed many miracles the people asked him to do these things to satisfy their curiosity. When he refused them they became angry and left him. Finally, Jesus turned to his 12 apostles and asked, "Will ye also go away and leave me?" But Simon Peter answered him: "Lord, to whom shall we go? For thou only hast the words of everlasting life." One day, on entering the temple, he saw that the merchants and brokers were making everything subservient to their avarice. His anger rose at his seeing these unholy doings in the temple. He did not hesitate as to what should be done. He threatened the traders with a scourge of small cords, drove them out and said to them: "Take these things hence, make not my Father's house an house of merchandise." After he left Jerusalem he went directly to Aenon, near Salem, which was the field of John the Baptist's labors. Here he spent most of his time from the Passover to the late harvest. He wished to instruct his disciples more thoroughly in his teaching.

He did not go back to Jerusalem until the feast of the Passover. It was then he healed a man who had been lame for 38 years. It was then that he told them that the bread which he was about to give them was to be the self-sacrifice of the bodily life for the salvation of mankind. Soon after Jesus left Bethabara with his disciples and came to Bethany. There he found a man named Lazarus that had been dead for four days. Martha and Mary could not be comforted concerning the death of their brother. Jesus, weeping, said: "Take ye away the stone," and cried in a loud voice, "Lazarus, come forth," and he that was dead came forth.

Then he went to the Mount of Olives, where his disciples followed him. When he came down he rode into Jerusalem, followed by a crowd of many men, women and children bearing palms. As he rode into the city all the throng was curious and asked, "Who is this?" And the multitude answered: "This is Jesus, the prophet of Nazareth." He then went to the temple time and again teaching many things and performing miracles.

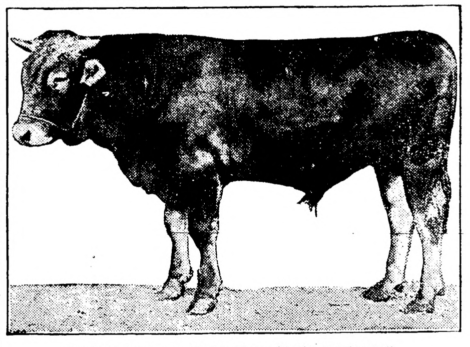
It was at this time that Jesus and his disciples partook of the last supper. While they were eating he took the bread and blessed it. Then he broke it and passed it to each one of his disciples. At the same time he said: "This is my body which is broken for you; this do in remembrance of me." Afterwards he took the cup of wine and passed it to each of his disciples with the words: "This cup is the new testament in my blood, which is shed for you."

When the feast was going on he washed the feet of all his disciples. This means that all who follow him should serve each other. While he was talking he grew sad and said: "Verily, verily I say to you that one of you that is eating with me shall betray me and give me up to those that will kill me." Then Jesus dipped a piece of bread and gave it to Judas, saying: "Do quickly what you are going to do." After he had waited a few minutes he added: "Before morning comes every one will leave me alone; yet I will not be alone, for my Father will be with me." He wanted to be alone for he knew that in a little time Judas would be there with a band of men who would seize him.

Suddenly the disciples heard the noise of a crowd. When they saw the swords flashing they knew that Judas had betrayed Christ.

Before he was seized he made a speech to his disciples and the crowd. He was then led away to Caiaphas, the high priest, and when morning was come they delivered him to Pontius Pilate and he was tried before this Roman governor, who was an enemy of Jesus, and was therefore glad of an opportunity to vex him. After Judas saw that Christ was condemned he felt remorse. In honor of the coming Passover one criminal was to be pardoned and he wished that it should be Christ. It was now too late. With two condemned criminals, Jesus himself carried the instrument of death to the place of execution. Stripped of nearly all his clothing, he was lifted up to the cross and nailed by his hands and feet. After many hours Joseph and his friends took down the body, wrapped it in fine linen, and laid it in the tomb. The body lay there from one evening of Friday, when he died on the cross, to the dawn of Sunday, which is Easter. When the women came to the sepulchre they saw that the seal was broken and the stone was rolled away. It was empty and an angel appeared and said: "Fear ye not, for I know ye seek Jesus, which was crucified. He is not here, for he is risen as he said." And afterward Jesus appeared to his disciples and they gave him food and he ate. They talked with him and he rejoiced, saying: "Peace be unto you. Receive ye the Holy Ghost." This was the fifth time Jesus had showed himself to his friends. Finally, leading his disciples out as far as Bethany, "he lifted up his hands and blessed them whilst he blessed them he was parted from them and was carried up into heaven."

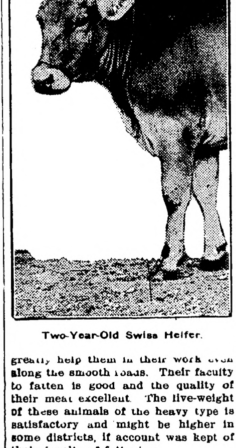
ADVANTAGES OF SWISS BREED OF CATTLE



Excellent Specimen of Swiss Type—16 Months' Old Bull.

There are many ends for which the Swiss cattle are bred in Switzerland. The first objects in all cattle breeding are the products of milk and of meat, but the animals can also be used for work. In general that which is most wanted is to obtain an average live-weight, this weight being a little higher and subject to variation in the Simental breed than that of Schwyz. The heights and inclinations of more or less importance, the diversity in the composition and the fertility of the soil, and in the management and care given to the cattle, influence a great deal the live-weight and size of the cattle coming from different regions and establishments. Thus in some districts they prefer raising cattle of an average weight or of great weight, while in other regions only cattle of lighter weight are bred. In the regions where the Schwyz cattle are bred, there is a greater difference on account of the great number of different methods in the way of raising and managing the cattle. Yet the ends aimed at are the same in the two breeds with one difference only; that those animals which are of lighter weight and less well managed have much less meat and precocity. In every case, what is striven after, is to obtain healthy and strong cattle. In summer the greater part of the cattle breeders of the Mittelland send their cattle up to the Alpine pasturages, and moreover there is a great deal of exchanging between the cattle breeders of the Alps and those of the plains.

With regard to the animal's faculty to work, it must be said that since the culture of wheat has, these last twenty-five or thirty years, greatly diminished, in the plains as well as in the alpine regions, very few oxen of the Schwyz breed are seen. Instead of these they use cows and heifers for agricultural work. On the confines of the two regions where these cattle are reared, we sometimes meet with oxen of the Simental breed, which are very precocious and which become very heavy. This does not hinder the Schwyz breed furnishing animals apt to labor. Their black, strong and hard hoofs, their quick temperament, greatly help them in their work even along the smooth roads. Their faculty to fatten is good and the quality of their meat excellent. The live-weight of these animals of the heavy type is satisfactory and might be higher in some districts, if account was kept of their faculty of fattening.



Two-Year-Old Swiss Heifer.

In former times, the descriptions of the cattle, show that then white spots in the hair were rather frequently met with. Till about the middle of the last century the animals with a spot in the middle of the forehead were not excluded from cattle shows, but since then they are getting undervalued and at the present time they are not admitted at the competitions, as no animal obtains a prize with spots, unless they are found on the inferior part of the belly. Those cows that have a spot higher up than the belly or on any other part of the body, are excluded. Cattle having reddish colored hair are not readily received. Yet it must be remarked that the animals which are exposed to bad weather in the alpine districts get a dirty reddish color, but which disappears on changing the animal's way of living. With regard to the form of the body of those animals which are reared and cared for rationally, they show an elegance and purity of form which gives at the same time a high opinion of health and strength of resistance and of the animal's faculties. The head is nearly always small and refined. Long noses are often met with; broad foreheads, small turned-up horns and a large mouth are the general signs. The neck is of an average length, well covered with hair and having small rumples. You sometimes meet with animals having very narrow chests which is a consequence of bad management, but generally that part of the body is well built. The back is long and rather broad and well developed, the whole trunk in all its development in length shows the good qualities of a milk-cow. The limbs are generally well made and strong, seldom coarse. Most of these animals have strong thighs with good muscles, having short shins, the knees, pasterns and hoofs are very strong. The bodies of the cows reared on the declivities of the mountains have sometimes a tendency to throw their bodies backwards, but this tendency is remedied with age.

Swiss Yearling.

GOOD PASTURES FOR THE SHEEP

Ewes Should Be Treated Well After Weaning to Reach Normal Condition.

If one will use common sense in giving his sheep good pasture and will raise plenty of pasture, the cost of pasturing sheep will be very low. The late summer and fall is very trying on the breeding ewes, and unless the sheep owner maintains the flock in a vigorous condition the profits are sure to be cut down to a great extent.

It is very good to have an abundance of green pasture and forage crops for the ewes to maintain and regain their strength and flesh which they have lost during the suckling of their lambs. They should be treated well after weaning, so that they will reach their normal condition by mating time. Anyone will find it a serious thing to have their ewes run down and in poor condition at the time of mating.

Take note that the ewes that produce the best lambs at weaning time are usually the best breeders, and should be treated with the best care and management. When a ewe shows a large, heavy lamb at weaning time she is usually very thin and run down. Some owners would dispose of her and think that she was too weak for a breeding ewe because she was so thin at weaning time. Right there they make a very bad mistake. After weaning the ewes can be kept in a vigorous, flesh-forming condition if put on good pastures and a small amount of grain is fed.

Cause of Rickets.

Worms, malnutrition, inadequate feeding and lack of lime salts in the feed are common causes of rickets in pigs. Stop feeding corn and substitute slop of middlings, ground screened oats, flaxseed meal and milk and add one ounce of lime water to the quart of slop or give a dram of precipitated phosphate of lime in feed twice daily.

If worms are seen in the droppings give sulphate of iron in the slop for five mornings in succession at the rate of one dram for each 100 pounds of pigs and if necessary repeat the treatment in a couple of weeks.

Weak Germs Won't Hatch.

Simply because an egg is fertile is no guaranty that it will hatch out a chick. Weak germs cannot hatch, and this weakness due to the hen's poor condition, may cause the chick to die in the shell. A hen may be in good condition today and in a bad state tomorrow.

Back to Broadway

By George Randolph Chester

(Copyright by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The mere fact that he was a many times millionaire and owned or controlled enough railroads to string almost twice across the continent did not help the far-famed E. H. Cash one bit in the present juncture. Indeed, his illustrious name was much more likely, if he ventured to use it, to get him into trouble than to aid him.

Impossible as it may seem, the illustrious ringmaster of the financial circus was without a cent, in a strange city, a distressingly immense distance from New York, and with absolutely no prospect of getting money unless he should earn it by manual labor, like any other homeless and penniless wanderer. Such an absurd condition was his own fault entirely, and due to two causes: his tremendous business energy and his equally notable personal carelessness.

Mr. Cash was supposed to have started upon a summer cruise in northern waters, and had ostensibly cut the cables from all his business affairs. At Quebec, however, some newspapers had been brought aboard, and in one of them he found an obscure four-line item which made him change his plans in a hurry.

"I am afraid I'll have to apply for a week's shore leave," he explained to his guests, a "stag" crowd. "You fellows don't need any help in entertaining yourselves, for you never get away from the poker table anyhow except to eat and sleep. You own the Petrel till I get back. Just lazy around wherever you like, and pick me up here a week from Monday morning, if you will."

As he hastily threw some necessities into a traveling bag, he noted that he needed a shave, but there was no time for it now. He had almost literally "jumped" into a plain traveling suit, and did not even stop to put on his watch. He found that he had enough cash on hand to pay for his transportation, berth and meals en route, and beyond that he had no worry, for his checkbook and papers were in his traveling bag.

Ashore, he caught his train with but brief minutes to spare, and was so absorbed in the deal he meant to put through that he was a hundred miles on his way before he missed his luggage, finding in place of it only the uncomfortable reflection that throughout his long 30-hour ride he would be deprived of a shave and clean linen.

He was not one given to worry, however, and when he had his final brushing up at his destination he mechanically handed a dollar to the porter, but after he had left the train he found to his dismay that he had only one solitary ten-cent piece in his pocket.

Five cents of that he used in car fare to the office of the man he had so hastily come all this distance to see, and the other five cents he used in riding back downtown. His man had been called from the city that morning, and would not be back for a week or more! Preoccupied with vexation, he walked into the nearest big hotel and scrawled his signature upon the register.

The clerk hesitated a moment, though merely out of habitual courtesy.

"Your luggage has not arrived yet, Mister Cash?" he stumbled puzzling over the register.

Mr. Cash smiled grimly and rubbed his unshaven chin.

"Lost en route," he replied.

"Very unfortunate," commented the clerk with rather a cold expression, his eyes resting casually upon the unshaven face and soiled linen. "The rules of the house, of course, require payment in advance."

The prospective guest frowned a bit haughtily.

"Cash is my name," he observed. "E. H. Cash—of New York."

"Quite so," agreed the clerk, still more coldly. "Some relation of the famous railroad operator, no doubt."

"I am that Cash," announced the other with a trace of anger, resenting the implied sneer.

"Wake up!" admonished the clerk, throwing off all his suavity. "You are asleep under the deck-awning of your yacht, the Petrel, Mr. Cash. You just steamed away from Quebec yesterday morning, bound for the Labrador coast, and are only dreaming that you are here." And before Mr. Cash's eyes he thrust a folded newspaper that had been lying at his elbow, pointing sternly to a paragraph.

"Yes, that was to have been true," said Cash, recognizing the reasonableness of the clerk's stand in the matter. "The yacht left there for a short cruise yesterday morning, with my friends aboard, but I took a run down here. I can tell you every man that was on the Petrel. There's Billy Edwards—"

"I know," the clerk interrupted him. "Here's the entire list of guests, which anybody could read. Now, drop it. In the first place, Cash has a mustache."

"The papers and their cartoonists are using the old photographs—they always do!" snapped Cash. "I have been without a mustache for over a year."

"Step out of the way!" snarled the clerk, pounding savagely upon a bell. "You're lucky I don't have you arrested."

Cash turned. The two or three men who had now come up behind him to register glared back at him in icy contempt, noting the unshaven face, the soiled collar and shirt front. For a moment he lost his poise, and a wild idea came to him of attempting to explain to these men. Even as the thought came, however, he realized the futility of it and walked out of the place, followed, too closely for comfort, by a broad shouldered porter. By the time he had gained the street he was fuming, but a blue-and-white sign a block away brought him back with a comfortable jerk, to practical affairs. The sign betokened the location of a telegraph office, and as a happy haven of refuge he hurried to it.

"Collect," he directed presently, handing in his telegram at the receiving window.

The girl in charge did not even glance at the telegram. She was looking at the man, at the unshaven face and the soiled collar.

"Are you located in the city?" she asked mechanically.

"No."

"Where are you stopping?"

"Nowhere as yet," he confessed, angry with himself that he felt a flush rising under the skin of his cheeks.

"We can send no telegrams for you collect without a deposit sufficient to insure payment," she advised him.

"Look at that telegram," he expostulated; "see to whom it is addressed, and by whom it is signed!"

Still without looking at it she shoved the yellow slip toward him.

"It don't make any difference who it is to or who it is from," she insisted. "I've got my orders." And she turned to the next customer.

He glared at her for a moment, but she remained entirely unaware of his existence, and, crumbling the telegram in his hand, he strode out with a set of emotions too varied and too much commingled to classify. An attempt at a near-by bank to draw upon his New York house of exchange came more nearly resulting in his arrest than any of the other experiments, and it was a very much stupefied man who trudged aimlessly up the street, as much a pauper in this city, where he could not think of a soul who knew him, as any tramp with whom he might brush elbows!

He turned into a dreary little park, where a few discouraged-looking trees fought to suck life from the stern gravel in which they were rooted. It was a most unattractive place, and the only thing that drew him unconsciously into it was the fact that here were benches upon which he might rest without being expected to pay for anything. He was tired and hot, and, appalling fact! hungry; moreover, he noted with aversion that every lounger upon every bench bore the same attitude of hopeless dejection as himself. He had a bad quarter of an hour, in which a great many of his impressions of the corresponding relations of human beings to each other underwent a radical change. For one thing, he began to estimate his actual value, considered merely as two hands and a brain, if thrown upon the immediate market, for it looked as if the great railroad king would have to hunt a job at unskilled labor.

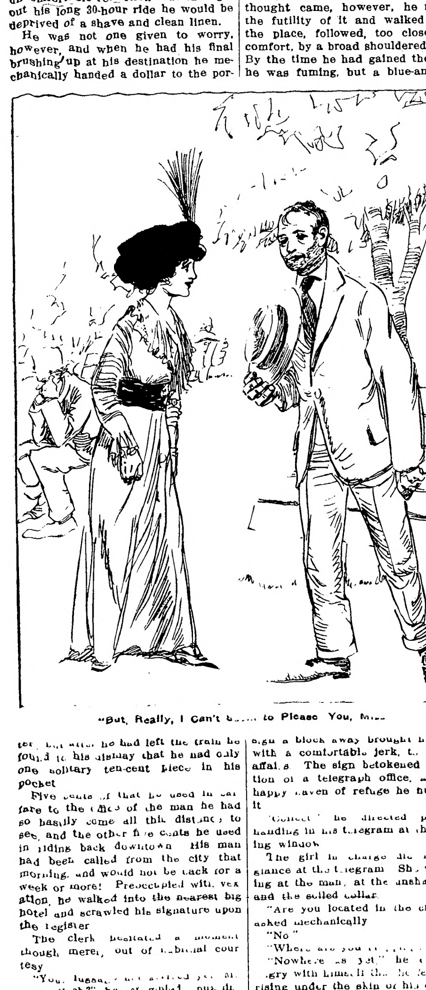
As he sat dejectedly humped over, his elbows upon his knees and his hands clasped idly together, he noticed that a brown skirt—with a draggled bit of braid at the bottom—that twice had slowly passed him, now stopped directly in front of him. Naturally he glanced up and found a very good-looking girl gazing fixedly down at him. The moment she met his eyes her face lighted with a smile of delight, and she came toward him.

"I just knew it was Mr. Cash," she began vivaciously. "My! this is a long way from Broadway, isn't it?"

No sound had ever rung more agreeably in his ears than his own name pronounced at this moment. For the last couple of hours that magic word had completely lost its power, and he began to realize how few people knew him after all. It was with a sense of positive gratitude that he answered this girl, whom he could not place, but whose face seemed pleasingly familiar.

"Indeed it is," he assented, rising and removing his hat. "I expect I am stupid, but really I cannot seem to place you, Miss—"

"Bessie Williams, but you don't know the name," she returned. "I used to manicure you in the Hotel Belveigh, don't you remember? You've had your mustache shaved off, but goodness! I'd know those hands with the mole on both little fingers if I found you down in Africa stained with walnut juice. I guess you'll think I've got a nerve for wedging in this way, but honest, anybody that was ever nice to me in little old New York looks like a long lost brother!"



"But, Really, I Can't [illegible] to Please You, Miss."

He remembered her perfectly now, and he smiled with amusement as he recalled her vivid personality. She was a girl who had struggled up from the most squalid section of the East side, and was noted on Broadway, not only for her own uncompromising rigidity of conduct, but for the number of other girls she had saved from "making fools of themselves." More especially, however, she was known for the picturesque slang which had clung to her as the only mark of her origin and for the originality with which she used it. In the present juncture he was surprised to find her suddenly hesitate and show a bit of embarrassment.

"I feel somewhat in the cold myself," he admitted, to put her at ease. "What brings you out here so far?"

"I'm my own lemon," she replied, recovering her vivacity at once and rattling on with the greatest sang froid, once she had plunged into the main topic. "Say, Mr. Cash, I'm going to be real open-faced with you about my troubles, because I know you don't make any mistakes in the dark and you don't keep the small change glued down. Every time I ever saw you there was a circle of tips rolling away from you in every direction, and once when a bell hop got his leg broke I saw you peel off a fifty before anybody could ask if he had a mother. It's this way with me. I'm so stony broke that a ten cent piece would look the size of the full moon coming up out of the water at Rockaway beach, and if you will just ship me back among the tall buildings I'll manicure the whole Cash family for a year!"

"I wish I could," he said sincerely, "but I haven't a penny upon which I can lay my hands. I'm as hard up as any loafer in this park."

"I beg your pardon," said Miss Williams with more dignity than he had expected to find in her. "I am very sorry that I made such a mistake." And she turned to go.

He could see that she was both hurt and mortified; that she had instantly come to the conclusion that he did not care to help her.

"Wait a minute," he called after her, his sympathies wonderfully quickened by his own disagreeable experience. "Come back here and sit down. I was perfectly honest when I said that I am in as much trouble as you are."

She was still incredulous, but he was so earnest in his insistence that she reluctantly came back and allowed him to seat her upon the bench beside him. He explained to her in careful detail precisely what had happened to him, and his unshaven face and soiled collar were sufficient corroboration. She laughed at his somberness when he had finished.

"Lovely!" she exclaimed with sparkling eyes. "For a minute I was afraid exchange had given me the wrong number, but I couldn't figure out how you'd joined the T. Wad family so quick. But now watch the blue trail of our gasoline. Come with your Aunt Bessie!"

She sprang to her feet and he arose uncertainly.

"Where are you going?" he asked.

"To beat it before the banks close," she exultantly replied. "Before three o'clock we'll be looking over an assorted collection of time-tables, and I won't owe you a cent for my fare to New York and a new outfit from plume to patent leathers. Now, don't ask me how I'm going to do it, or I'll giggle myself to death over how easy it is."

"If blind can lead blind I am very willing to be led," he laughingly observed as he caught step with her. "But you have not told me about your own troubles."

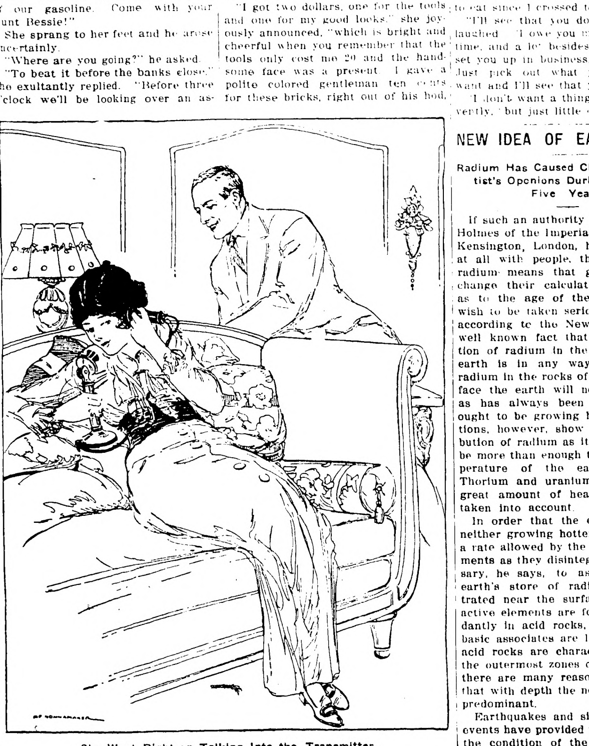
"Me!" she said with infinite disdain. "I fell a victim to my own fatal beauty and it gave me the brain storm all right. I dreamed I had a voice and a figure, and that if I just let the public know about them I'd have Patti forgotten and Melba retired on a pension. So I tried it and 'The Belle of Broadway Company' Number Forty-Two quit here. That's all. There's only seven people in this town with pink nails and there's 42 girls to look after them. If I'd send to mother for a cent she'd have to borrow a jimmy and a dark lantern to get it. If I'd send to the boss barber at the Belveigh I'd get money so quick the edges would be scorched off when it got here, but I'd have to marry Jimmy when I got back, and while starving would be quicker it wouldn't be so painful. And that starvation turn's no musical comedy either. I've got a dinky little two-by-two room paid for until tomorrow night, and then it would have been little me to somebody's kitchen with a half Nelson on a gas range. And I can't boil eggs."

They had crossed the little park by this time, and had stopped in front of one of those dingy looking houses that have the perpetual smell of mildew in the front hall. She ushered him into a dim parlor embellished with six pieces of ragged plush furniture and a collection of atrocious wax flowers on the mantel under a glass globe, and then she tripped upstairs to the third floor. In a moment she hurried back with her suit case and a bowl of water. She threw up a blind and placed the bowl on a little table beside the window.

"First of all, you've got to look the part, so dip in your hand," she directed him as she opened the suit case and produced her manicure set. She was silent only until she sat down. "When I get back to little old Broadway tomorrow night," she rattled on as she deftly and vigorously manicured him, "I'll promise never to go farther than four blocks away from the subway again as long as I live. I used to kick because I'd get called up to a room as sure as death, that the job would take an hour and a half, and that there'd be no tip to manicure some waspy woman with her hair on the table and her complexion on the dresser and her figure hanging up in a closet, and the rest of her beauty scattered on four chairs and the bed, but even that would be joy to me now. I've seen all of the country I want, and it's Bessie sit by the fire for me from this on! I'm willing to live the rest of my life with the 'L' trains rattling over my head; and when I die, if they'll just bury me any place on the Great White Way, I'll lie happy and still in my grave forever. Now you're done." A sour-visaged old lady had come to the door and glared at them, then walked away. "I don't owe her a cent, and she don't bite," observed the girl; "so just you sit here and look sassy till I get back."

She dried her manicure set and packed it in its roll of chamois and flannel and fine leather, put on her hat, and left him alone. In ten minutes she had returned, bearing a heavy package and jingling some coins in her hand.

"I got two dollars, one for the tools and one for my good looks," she joyously announced, "which is bright and cheerful when you remember that the tools only cost me 20 and the handsome face was a present. I gave a polite colored gentleman ten cents for these bricks, right out of his hod, so we've got a dollar-ninety to represent our capital."



She Went Right on Talking Into the Transmitter.

"Bricks!" he repeated with a wondering glance at the bundle. "What on earth do you want with those?"

"To put in the suit case, so it won't go straight up when a bell-hop grabs it," she replied. "There's nothing in there now but an old waist that I couldn't get a cent on. Just think! I was going to hock that nice, ready-money looking suit case the minute I got back to the room, if I hadn't met you! Now, you take this dollar-ninety. Right around the corner there's a ten cent barber shop and a gent's furnishing goods store right next door. You buy you one collar for 15 cents, one pair of cuffs for a quarter, one shave for ten cents, one shine for five cents, and a real extravagant looking 15 cent cigar, but don't light the cigar. Have you got a clean handkerchief?" Fortunately he had. "Give it to me. Now, you bring back the dollar thirty to spread around in tips, and hurry!"

When he returned, shaved and much refreshed, she had run a white thread through the hem of his handkerchief, and this she slipped up under his collar, tying it behind. So far as it was visible it looked like an immaculate white negligee shirt. She had him cut off his attached cuffs and don the clean ones.

"You look the part," she announced as she surveyed him with pride. "In a few jiffs I'll have a double extra sirloin for mine, please, but don't let me think about it or I'll faint."

Fifteen minutes later, his 15-cent cigar in fragrant evidence, he stood at the register of the best hotel in town, not the one to which he had gone before, but he did not sign himself "E. H. Cash." Instead he wrote:

O. H. Jones
Miss Gertrude Jones

"The two best suites you have," he ordered.

"Yes, sir, Mr. Jones," said the clerk deferentially, glancing at the respectable brick-laden suit-case. "Anything you want sent up?"

"A boy with some telegraph blanks and a waiter."

Presently there came down from him a telegram marked "prepaid," and to be charged upon his bill. It was addressed to Henry Cruse of Henry Cruse & Co., bankers, New York, and read like this:

"Here incog. Jiggers. [illegible] woolly. Wire $1,000 immediately to me as O. H. Jones, care Hotel Grace. Describe me but waive other identification."

The telegram was unsigned, but the private code words in the body of the telegram were better than a signature. Having sent the wire, Mr. Cash knocked at the door of Miss Williams' reception room.

"Come in," cried a cheerful voice, and he opened the door.

She was at the telephone, and her eyes were sparkling as she nodded to him, but she went right on talking into the transmitter.

"Yes, size 36; and I shall want a brunette traveling gown and a hat to match. Send over at least half a dozen for selection."

"Get a whole outfit!" he interjected as she repeated her address and hung up the receiver. "Get all the dresses you want. We take the same train out of here at seven o'clock this evening, and you shall have all afternoon to shop. Do you care to have lunch downstairs or up here, until you get better gowned?"

"Right here and right now," she replied. "You'd better have it sent up a little at a time, for fear I choke at first—but keep it coming for at least two hours. I haven't had enough to eat since I crossed to New Jersey."

"I'll see that you don't starve," he laughed. "I owe you meals for a long time, and a lot besides. I'm going to set you up in business, for one thing. Just pick out what you think you want and I'll see that you get it."

"I don't want a thing," she said fervently, "but just little old Broadway!"

NEW IDEA OF EARTH'S AGE

Radium Has Caused Change in Scientist's Opcnions During the Past Five Years.

If such an authority as Prof. Arthur Holmes of the Imperial college, South Kensington, London, has any weight at all with people, the discovery of radium means that geologists must change their calculations materially as to the age of the earth if they wish to be taken seriously. He says, according to the New Press, it is a well known fact that if the proportion of radium in the interior of the earth is in any way equal to the amount in the rocks of the earth's surface the earth will not grow colder, as has always been taught, but it ought to be growing hotter. Calculations, however, show that the distribution of radium as it is found would be more than enough to keep the temperature of the earth stationary. Thorium and uranium also supply a great amount of heat and must be taken into account.

In order that the earth should be neither growing hotter nor cooling at a rate allowed by the radio-active elements as they disintegrate it is necessary, he says, to assume that the earth's store of radium be concentrated near the surface. The radio-active elements are found most abundantly in acid rocks, and their more basic associates are less rich. These acid rocks are characteristic of only the outermost zones of the crust and there are many reasons for believing that with depth the nonacid rocks are predominant.

Earthquakes and similar terrestrial events have provided facts from which the condition of the earth's interior may be deduced with confidence. First, there is the crust zone, which has an approximate thickness of 30 miles. Then comes the stone zone, something under 100 miles thick, and, finally, the central iron core of the earth, with a density eight times greater than water. Meteorites contain radium, and Professors Strutt and Holmes say that these meteors contain the proof that no radium is found in the stone zone or inner core.

It is supposed that the earth began, of course, as a misty, nebulous mass and that it has become the great mass it is by the capture of meteors and greater masses floating in space during the ages. It is very unlikely that the earth was ever as a whole in a molten condition. It is surmised by several English savants that the internal heat probably arose in a great measure from the condensation of the mass as it grew.

The temperature would slowly rise until the fusion point of certain of the earth's constituents was reached. Then the pockets and tongues thus formed would tend to move away from the center, and the less heavy, stony substances would be squeezed outward relatively to a network of the heavier rigid metals.

Surrounding the metallic core a thick zone of sandy rocks would be formed and the radio-active materials would be concentrated in the stony layers. When the oceans and the atmospheres were produced the sediment rocks appeared for the first time, and then came the earth's crust with the rocks that contain most of the radium and other radio-active elements. Before the advent of radium geologists did not recognize the difficulties presented by the peculiar makeup of the earth's crust. Radium did not create this difficulty, but it certainly emphasized it in the attention of scientists.

It can hardly be said that radium has given a blank check on the bank of time for its discovery not only destroyed all the old measurements of the earth's heat but it necessitated a new method for getting at it. Every kind of radio-active mineral as well as radium may be regarded as a self-contained hour glass; the radio-active emanations such as helium and residues such as lead, slowly accumulate at the expense of their ultimate parent uranium.

The geologist who a few years ago was harrassed by the brevity of the time allowed to him for the evolution of the earth's crust, is now still more embarrassed by the overabundance of time that now confronts him. The recognition of radium means difficulties for the geologist and the absolute overthrow of ever acknowledged theory as to the earth's age and development. The age of the earth, according to what happens to be radium, varies from 5,000,000,000 to 3,000,000,000 years but what matters a few thousand million of years among geologists?

MAN THEY WERE LOOKING FOR

Fortune Was Good to Youngsters Eager for the Delights of the Moving Picture Theater.

"Going in?" queried the small boy excitedly.

His question was put to the elderly pedestrian. Behind the boy came other boys, all peering eagerly into the pedestrian's puzzled face.

They hung to his footsteps until he found himself, a little further on, in the midst of a numerous crowd of youngsters. Each boy clamored for the pedestrian to accept a five-cent piece.

"What is all this?" demanded the pedestrian sharply.

"We are too young to go in alone," volunteered a ready spokesman. "If you will buy our tickets for us we can go in with you."

Then came a sudden light and the old man smiled broadly. He went to the ticket window of an adjacent moving-picture theater, where he paused to count faces.

"Nine tickets," he said.

"There is a law against children," objected the ticket man. "Are those little people with you?"

"They are," declared the old man. "Come on, boys—going in?"

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

DEMOCRATS PICK CONG. HAMMOND

CONFERENCE AT ST PAUL INDORSES ST. JAMES MAN FOR NOMINEE.

LAWLER TO STAY IN RACE

Friends Assert He Will Carry His Fight to State Primaries June 16—C. M. Andrist Out for Lieut. Governor.

St. Paul.—Congressman Winfield S. Hammond announces that he will heed the request of the Democratic state conference and become a candidate for governor. Charles M. Andrist, of Minneapolis, was indorsed for lieutenant governor.

Voted by Large Majority.

Hammond's indorsement was voted by the conference by an overwhelming vote, after the Lawler delegation from Hennepin had bolted, followed by part of the Ramsey delegation. The convention adopted the credentials committee report seating both the contending delegations from Hennepin, with half a vote each. The Lawler delegation refused to accept the verdict.

Friends of Dan W. Lawler, who is also a candidate for the nomination, bolted the conference and assert that they will carry the fight into the primaries June 16.

The Resolutions.

The resolutions praised the achievements of the national administration, declared opposition to intervention in Mexico, praised Hammond's work in congress, urged support of the initiative and referendum amendment to be submitted to the voters next fall, denounced Governor Eberhart's veto of the Nolan and Minnette bills and his attempt to create a public utilities commission, approved the constitutional amendment for a revolving fund for improvement of state lands, urged legislation for the employment of state convicts on public roads, opposed the use of the injunction in labor disputes and urged submission of a woman suffrage amendment.

The suffrage amendment declaration was later stricken out after a vote had been taken on it.

ORTONVILLE BUILDERS ACTIVE

The Operations This Season Will Surpass Those of Previous Years.

Ortonville.—Building operations in this city this season will surpass those of any of five previous years.

Two new banks have been organized, the Ortonville State bank and the First State bank, and work has commenced on the construction of a modern building to be occupied by the former. The organization of the two gives this city four financial institutions.

The contract for the sewerage system was let a short time ago and the work is being pushed to completion.

The plans for a $10,000 Carnegie library were submitted and arrangements are being made for its construction.

A splendid private hotel more especially for summer patronage, is being built on the lake front by Clarke Orton.

Fred [illegible] & Son have about completed the [illegible] of remodeling the creamery. At least fifteen dwelling houses will be erected.

SMALL BOYS TURN BANDITS

[illegible] Albert Lea Store and Are Captured—Sentence Is Suspended

[illegible] The p[illegible] [illegible] the Albert Lea Hardware company of nearly $60 in merchandise and $14 in [illegible] have been located. The robbers proved to be two school boys aged 11 and 14 years.

They went into the store just before closing time and secreted themselves under a counter until all employees had gone. Crawling out they robbed the cash register, gathered in what merchandise they wanted and made their escape. The boys, who were posing as "Diamond Dick" bandits, were arraigned before Judge Hammond, but promising to go to school regularly and furnish Chief of Police Sullivan with a written report each week for six months, their sentence of six months in the county jail was suspended.

Owatonna's Chief Resigns.

Owatonna.—G. G. Morehouse, [illegible] selected mayor when the saloons were voted out, appointed L. F. Fenner chief of police. However, the new chief resigned on Monday following a so-called mass meeting of the temperance faction. A second meeting was called but was cancelled after Fenner's resignation, which was accepted by the mayor. The recount which was the outcome of an effort by the liquor faction to make Owatonna a wet town again gave an additional vote for no license.

WILL STUDY HOG CHOLERA

JAMES J. HILL GIVES $50,000 TO FIGHT SWINE DISEASE.

Endowment Pledged to Rockefeller Institute to Swell Million Dollar Fund of Oil King.

St. Paul. — Science will now exert added efforts in its war on hog cholera by use of a $50,000 endowment pledged by James J. Hill to the Rockefeller institute for the study of hog cholera. Announcement of the donation is contained in dispatches from New York which state that Mr. Rockefeller himself has added $1,000,000 to the general fund which will be used exclusively for the investigation of animal diseases.

The endowment will mean a new departure in the field of the institute which has hitherto confined its studies to human diseases and biological sciences.

Mr. Hill's stipulation that his donation be used specifically for the investigation of hog cholera is timely by reason of the fact that the Northwest has suffered an estimated loss of $60,000,000 worth of swine last year because of cholera.

The hope that some similar method of rendering swine immune from cholera may be discovered by use of the Hill donation to Rockefeller institute was expressed by Dr. S. H. Ward, secretary of the state live stock sanitary board.

"The present method of treating hogs against cholera is very cumbersome. It is necessary to inject too much vaccine and this makes the treatment expensive. Also the preparation of the vaccine is cumbersome.

"The endowment by Mr. Hill if the use of it produces some more simplified method of producing vaccine and giving the treatment, will be a boon to the live stock industry of the country.

"Minnesota, with her tremendous loss due to hog cholera, can look with hope to any scientific investigations that promise much needed relief. The endowment by Mr. Hill at least gives this promise."

SHIP CROW WING COUNTY ORE

Nine Hundred Tons Per Day Being Loaded Directly Into Cars.

Brainerd.—The distinction of shipping the first ore from the Cuyuna iron rage in Crow Wing county will fall to the Rogers, Brown Ore company of Armour No. 2 mine near Ironton. Nine hundred tons of ore a day are being loaded directly into the cars.

The Kennedy mine of the Rogers, Brown Ore company at Cuyuna is expected to ship 300,000 tons this season. In the stockpile are 75,000 tons. As the pioneer producer of the range, the Kennedy has always mined and shipped a substantial tonnage each year.

The pit mines are getting active. At the Rowe pit mine at Riverton electrical machinery will be installed within a week. A steam shovel has been working all winter getting the ground in shape. As soon as warm weather comes the hydraulic plant will be placed in operation. The Pennington pit mine west of Ironton, and the Thompson pit mine of the Inland Steel company in Crosby, have steam shovels at work and crews of about 100 men each.

Now that the tonnage of the Cuyuna Mille Lacs and Cuyuna-Duluth Iron mines will be handled by an eastern furnace company, all being associated together in the American Manganese Manufacturing company, these two mines are assured of continuous activity and will do much to create prosperous times on the north range.

State Fair Program Changes.

[illegible]—Several distinct changes in the methods of conducting the speed program at the Minnesota state Fair this fall, supplemented by the usual liberal amount of purses, are certain, in the opinion of the Fair Board, to insure the best racing card ever scheduled on the Hamline track. A total of $[illegible]6,000 has been hung up by the management, to be divided among twenty harness and six running classes, a prize large enough to attract the best stables in America. Another concession is the new rule by which one half of the entrance money will be refunded on all starters which finish the race ahead of the flag but are outside of the money. In this way a fuller field is assured the race horseman. A special this year is to be the Saddle Horse Stake for a purse of $1,[illegible].

Files for State Senate.

St. Paul.—Three new candidates for the state senate filed with the secretary of state last week. [illegible] W. Smith of Sleepy Eye, a banker and member of the republican state committee, filed to succeed Frank Clague in the Brown-Redwood district. Senator Edward Rustad of Wheaton filed to succeed himself in the forty-sixth district which includes Grant, Stevens, Traverse and Big Stone counties. Alfred A. Haagenson of Barnesville filed in the forty-ninth district including Clay and Wilkin counties.

MINNEAPOLIS GETS BIG RESERVE BANK

FLOUR CITY IS CHOSEN REGIONAL CENTER FOR DISTRICT NUMBER NINE.

AREA INCLUDES SIX STATES

Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Part of Michigan Make Up Northwest Territory.

Minneapolis.—The Northwest will have a federal reserve bank, located in Minneapolis.

The federal reserve organization board announced its decision to have twelve banks, one of them to be located here.

The Minneapolis District.

The "Minneapolis district," designated as district No. 9, will comprise Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota and parts of Wisconsin and Michigan.

There are in this territory 687 national banks. The capital of the regional institution will be $4,702,864 to start.

This district has an area in square miles of 437,930; the population is 5,724,893.

Boundaries Prove Surprise.

The boundaries of the district proved a surprise. Numerous banks in Wisconsin will be included and all the national banks in northern Michigan.

P. M. Kerst, clearing house examiner for the twin city banks, has the indorsement of both the Minneapolis and St. Paul clearing houses for the position of federal reserve agent, and John H. Rich, Red Wing, is also being mentioned for the appointment as active manager of the bank.

It is thought the first thing the clearing house committee probably will do will be to send out ballots to all national banks in the district for nominations for the three places on the board that are to be filled by practical bankers.

Minneapolis Largest Contributor.

Minneapolis will represent the largest investment in the stock of the bank. The subscription that will be made by local banks under the law requiring that 6 per cent of capital and surplus be put into the stock of the new institution will be $837,000.

Ten men will probably be a sufficient number of employees to start the new Minneapolis reserve bank going and it is considered likely that it will be located in the Minneapolis federal building or in the old post-office. But should the federal reserve board decide to take over the work of collecting checks and of sending out currency to the country, it would mean that 25 to 40 men could be let out of the transit departments of each of the larger Minneapolis banks. In that event the federal reserve bank might shortly become an institution employing 200 to 300 men.

Indian Fighter Is Dead.

St. Paul.—George Laurent, 7[illegible], old, an Indian fighter who came to Minnesota sixty-two years ago, died here of infirmities, due to old age. Laurent styled himself "the last of the Indian fighters." He came to St. Paul with A. L. Larpenteur from St. Louis. The last stage of the journey from Galena was made aboard the old steamer Black Hawk. Unlike Mr. Larpenteur, Laurent followed the frontier West for several years and had a reputation for being one of the most fearless fighters in Colonel Cody's army.

Wealthy Minnesotan Ill.

Los Angeles, Calif., March 5.—Frederick Weyerhaeuser, Minnesota multimillionaire lumberman, ill at his winter home near Pasadena, was prostrated by a severe cold Wednesday. Signs of pneumonia were noted but his physician reports now that he is much improved. Some anxiety was felt for Mr. Weyerhaeuser on account of his advanced age, until the reassuring report came from the attending physician.

Mankato to Lay Concrete.

Mankato.—At a meeting of [illegible] council, the Widell company, of this city, of which Governor Eberhart is a member, was awarded the contract for paving fifteen blocks in the residence district with seven-inch concrete. This will be the first of this kind of pavement laid in the city. The Widell company's bid, $1.02 a square yard, was the lowest of half a dozen bids submitted.

Her answer to his demand for her money was met with a well directed short-arm jab. There was a desperate struggle for her purse. The robber got it but it cost him a black eye and he bears other marks by which the police hope to locate him. The purse contained $12, a pair of gloves and keepsakes.

CHIEF FACTOR IN NATIONAL DEGENERACY.

A wave of degeneracy is sweeping the land, and its development threatens the physical vitality of the nation. Within a period of 50 years the population of the United States increased 330 per cent., while the number of insane and feeble-minded increased 950 per cent.

What is the cause of this degeneracy? A hundred different intermediate agencies may contribute to the undoing of the race, but back of them all stands alcohol as the chief degenerative factor. Statistics compiled by the leading insurance companies, and presented by Sir T. P. Whitaker in a report to the British parliament, show that out of every 1,000 deaths among the population at large, 440 are due to alcohol. This would mean a mortality from alcohol in the United States of 680,000 a year.

The great burden of drink is not borne by the drinker, but by the drinkers' children. In our studies among school children in New York city we find that 62 per cent. are the children of drinking parents, and that 91 per cent. of these children of drinking parents suffer from some functional or organic disease. If this percentage holds good over the entire country there are 13,000,000 children of a school age that are afflicted with functional and organic diseases, and less than two and a half millions of these are free from hereditary alcohol taint. A nation half diseased and half well cannot live, but here we show three-fifths of the rising generation mentally and physically diseased.—Dr. L. Alexander MacNicholl.

STRIKES FROM THE SHOULDER.

(From an Address of MORRIS SHEPPARD, Before the Texas Legislature After His Election as United States Senator.)

The liquor traffic is a peril to society because it undermines the health, the strength, and the integrity of man. It is a source of danger to posterity because the alcoholic taint foredooms the unborn millions to degeneracy and to disease. I shall oppose this scourge until my arm can strike no longer and my tongue can speak no more. I shall oppose it because I hear the cries of children who are hungering for bread. I shall oppose it because I see a mother's wasted face, her pale lips pleading with the besotted figure at her side. I shall oppose it because I see the staggering forms of men whose trembling hands hold but the ashes of their strength and pride. I shall oppose it because it mocks all manhood and makes of woman's virtue a commodity of the slums. I shall oppose it because I see its battle line outstretched across the globe, threatening the pure, the true, the good. I shall oppose it because its abolition will mean a new stability for the republic, a new radiance for the flag.

TROUBLE MAKER.

A Pittsburgh paper tells us that one person out of every 95 in Pennsylvania was behind prison bars in 1911. Out of 707 prisoners receiving penitentiary sentence 80 per cent. were drinkers. Out of 10,607 prisoners sentenced to serve time in jails and workhouses over 85 per cent. were drinkers. Out of 3,670 persons sentenced to the Allegheny workhouse in 1912, 92 per cent. were drinkers. Father Penn's children who are dependent wholly or in part for support upon the taxpayers outnumber the combined armies of Meade and Lee at Gettysburg in 1863. The vast majority of them are the victims of John Barleycorn. One person out of every 45 in Father Penn's dominion is dependent either as a lunatic, pauper or criminal."

The drink traffic produces criminals, paupers, dependents and undesirables generally. The state pays the bills. The twentieth century taxpayer is waking up to the situation. He—and she—is moving to "put the liquor business out of the government and the government out of the liquor business."

ONE EXCEPTION.

Legitimate industries favor[illegible] [illegible]fect each other. The liquor traffic unfavorably affects them all. The more it flourishes, the more they must decline. Its profits are taken from the merchant, and the manufacturers behind him; from the butcher, and the cattle raisers behind him; from the farmer, the miller, the baker, the builder, the shoemaker, the printer, the teamster, and the preacher. Every honest producer suffers from it. The country suffers from it. More than low tariff, or high tariff, or no tariff at all, it depreciates American industry.—A. A. Hopkins, Ph. D.

ALCOHOL AS ASHES.

In the production of al[illegible] the raw material is destroyed. Alcohol is not the outcome of a development or adaptation of food properties. It is the creature of destruction, obtainable only by the destruction of the natural properties of the subject. A log of wood may be developed, altered or adapted so as to produce a table or a case for an organ or piano. Put the log into the fire and all that will be left of it is ashes. So likewise alcohol is the ashes of the fruit, barley or corn.

WOMEN FROM 45 to 55 TESTIFY

To the Merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound during Change of Life.

Westbrook, Me. — "I was passing through the Change of Life and had pains in my back and side and was so weak I could hardly do my housework. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has done me a lot of good. I will recommend your medicine to my friends and give you permission to publish my testimonial." — Mrs. LAWRENCE MARTIN, 12 King St., Westbrook, Maine.

Manston, Wis. — "At the Change of Life I suffered with pains in my back and loins until I could not stand. I also had night-sweats so that the sheets would be wet. I tried other medicine but got no relief. After taking one bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I began to improve and I continued its use for six months. The pains left me, the night-sweats and hot flashes grew less, and in one year I was a different woman. I know I have to thank you for my continued good health ever since." — Mrs. M. J. BROWNELL, Manston, Wis.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled in such cases.

Backache Warns You

Backache is one of Nature's warnings of kidney weakness. Kidney disease kills thousands every year.

Don't neglect a bad back. If your back is lame—if it hurts to stoop or lift—if there is irregularity of the secretions—suspect your kidneys. If you suffer headaches, dizziness and are tired, nervous and worn-out, you have further proof.

Use Doan's Kidney Pills, a fine remedy for bad backs and weak kidneys.

AN OKLAHOMA CASE

John T. Jones, 218 S. Pine St., Pauls Valley, Okla., says: "I was confined to bed for days with kidney trouble. I had terrible pains through my back and got dizzy and exhausted. The doctor prescribed for me, but nothing helped me. I had almost given up hope when a friend brought me a box of Doan's Kidney Pills. In three days they relieved me and four boxes made me well. I am today in the best of health."

SYNOPSIS.

Francois Beaupre, a peasant babe of three years, after an amusing incident in which Marshal Ney figures, is made a Chevalier of France by the Emperor Napoleon, who prophesied that the boy might one day be a marshal of France under another Bonaparte. At the age of ten Francois visits General Baron Gaspard Gourgaud, who with Alixe, his seven-year-old daughter, lives at the Chateau. A soldier of the Empire under Napoleon he fires the boy's imagination with stories of his campaigns. The boy becomes a copyist for the general and learns of the friendship between the general and Marquis Zappi, who campaigned with the general under Napoleon. Marquis Zappi and his son, Pietro, arrive at the Chateau. The general agrees to care for the Marquis' son while the former goes to America. The Marquis asks Francois to be a friend of his son. The boy solemnly promises. Francois goes to the Chateau to live. Marquis Zappi dies leaving Pietro as a ward of the general. Alixe, Pietro and Francois meet a strange boy who proves to be Prince Louis Napoleon. Francois saves his life. The general discovers Francois loves Alixe, and extracts a promise from him that he will not interfere between the girl and Pietro. Francois goes to Italy as secretary to Pietro. Queen Hortense plans the escape of her son Louis Napoleon by disguising him and Marquis Zappi as her lackeys. Francois takes Marquis Zappi's place, who is ill, in the escape of Hortense and Louis. Dressed as Louis' brother Francois lures the Austrians from the hotel allowing the prince and his mother to escape. Francois is a prisoner of the Austrians for five years, in the castle owned by Pietro in Italy. He discovers in his guard one of Pietro's old family servants, and through him sends word to his friends of his plight. The general, Alixe and Pietro plans Francois' escape. Francois receives a note from Pietro explaining in detail how to escape from his prison. Alixe awaits him on horseback and leads him to his friends on board the American sailing vessel, the "Lovely Lucy." Francois, as a guest of Harry Hampton, on the "Lovely Lucy," goes to America to manage Pietro's estate in Virginia. Lucy Hampton falls in love with Francois.

CHAPTER XXIII.—Continued.

The female mind paid no attention to the disgression. Lucy had long ago, finally if unconsciously, put her father's personality into its right place.

"Father, is the prince really poor and alone in this country?"

"Poor—yes, I fancy—I am quite certain, in fact. Alone—that depends. The authorities of Norfolk received him with some distinction, the Herald states, but he is putting up at the inn—one would conclude that he was an invited guest at many of our great houses."

Lucy flew like a bird across to the fireplace. Her hands went up to either side of the colonel's face. "Father, quick! Have Thunder saddled, and ride in—quick, father—and bring the prince out here to stay with us. Give the order to Sambo, or I shall."

Colonel Hampton's eyes widened with surprise. "Why, but Lucy," he stammered. "Why—but why should I? What claim have we—"

"Oh, nonsense," and Lucy shook her head impatiently. "Who has more claim? Aren't we Virginians of the James river princes in our own country, too? Hasn't our family reigned in Roanoke longer than ever his reigned in Europe? Haven't we enough house room and servants to make him as comfortable as in a palace? But that isn't the most important. It is a shame to us all, father, that no one has invited him before, that a strange gentleman of high station should have to lodge at an inn. Why hasn't Cousin George Harrison asked him to Brandon? And the Carters at Shirley, and the people at Berkeley, what do they mean by not asking him? But we won't let Virginian hospitality be stained. We will ask him. You will ride to Norfolk at once, will you not, father dear?"

The touch on his cheek was pleasant to the vain and affectionate man, but the spirit of the girl's speech, the suggestion of the courtesy due from him as a reigning prince, to this other prince forlorn and exiled, this was pleasanter. He pursued his lips and smiled down.

"Out of the mouth of babes—" he remarked, and drew his brows together as if under stress of large machinery behind them. "My little girl, you have rather a sensible idea. I had overlooked before, that"—he cleared his throat and black Aaron, standing tray in hand across the room, jumped and rolled his eyes—"that," he continued, "a man of my importance has duties of hospitality, even to a foreigner who comes without introduction into the country."

"Aaron, tell Sambo to saddle Thunder," he ordered.

• • •

Prince Louis, lounging at [illegible], looked at his visitor from between half-shut eyelids and measured him, soul and body. He considered the invitation for a silent moment. This was one of the great men of the country. The prince had already heard his name and the name of his historic home. It was well to have influential friends, more particularly as no letter awaited him as he had hoped from his uncle, Joseph Bonaparte, with the American introductions for which he had asked. A visit of a few days at this place of Roanoke could do no harm and might lead to good.

"I thank you very much, Monsieur le Colonel," he said gravely, yet graciously. "You are most good to desire that I visit you. I will do so with pleasure."

On they rode through the [illegible] [illegible] wind which [illegible] country [illegible] fitfully through its last winter a sap stirring already at the step of lively April on the threshold. The air was sharp, and nipped at the prince's fingers and toes, but it was exhilaration to be across a horse again, and the exile's spirit—the case-hardened heart of steel which failure and misfortune never broke till it broke forever at Sedan—grew buoyant. That "something about the outside of a horse which is good for the inside of a man" worked its subtle charm on this finished horseman and horse lover, and he was gently responsive as the colonel talked fluently on.

"Does it so happen, Monsieur le Colonel, that there is in these parts a Frenchman of—of instruction—a man whom I might use as a secretary? I shall have need tomorrow to write letters. Would you know of such a man, Monsieur le Colonel?"

Nothing pleased Monsieur le Colonel more than to be master of the situation. "Most certainly," he answered blandly and felt that the prince must notice how no demand could find Colonel Hampton at a loss. "Most certainly. My daughter's French master would be the very fellow. He is intelligent and well educated, and what is more, he is a most ardent adherent of your family, prince. He has talked to Miss Hampton with such a vehement enthusiasm that, by the Lord Harry, I believe she expects to see you fly in with wings, sir—I believe she does," and the colonel laughed loudly and heartily. It was as good a joke as he had ever made.

And before them, at that moment, rose a stately picture. A large old house, built of dark red brick brought from England, towered suddenly from out of the bare trees of its park like a monument of calm hospitality. Its steep roof was set with dormer windows; its copings and its casements were white stone; a white stone terrace stretched before it. At one front, as they came, was the carriage entrance, and the squares of a formal English garden, walled with box hedges, lay sleeping before the springtime; at the opposite side a wide lawn fell to a massive brick wall, spaced with stone pillars, guarding the grounds from the flowing of the James river. Colonel Hampton gazed at the home of his people and then at his guest, and he cast the harness of his smallnesses and stood out in the simple and large cordiality which is the heritage above others of southern people.

"Your are welcome to Roanoke, prince," he said.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Brothers.

Colonel Hampton's study was dark from floor to ceiling with brown oak wainscoting and was lightened by a dull brightness of portraits. An ancestor in a scarlet coat, the red turned yellow and brown with time, an ancestress in dimmed glory of blue satin and lace and pearls; a judge in his wig and gown, gave the small room importance. A broad window looked through bare branches, lacy black against sky, across a rolling country and groups of woodland.

On the morning of the first day of April, 1837, Prince Louis Napoleon Bonaparte stood at this window, staring at brown fields and trying to [illegible] a likeness between this new world and the ancient country which he called his; France, where, since he was seven years old he had been allowed to spend but a few weeks; France, which had freshly exiled him; France, the thought of which ruled him as he meant one day to rule her; France for whom he was eating his heart out today, as always, thousands of miles from her shores.

He recalled the happy life at Arenenberg in Switzerland, and the work and play and soldierly training which all pointed in the boy's mind to one end—to serve France—a service which did not at that time mean sovereignty, for the Duke of Reichstadt, Napoleon's son, was alive and the head of the house of Bonaparte. He thought of his short career in [illegible] and his well beloved brother's together with the Italian insurgents against the Austrians, and the lonely man's heart longed for his own people as he went over again that time of excitement and sorrow, ending with the older boy's death at Forli and his own illness and narrow escape from capture.

"What a mother!" he cried aloud, tossing up his hands with French demonstrativeness, as the memory came to him of the days in Ancona when he lay at death's door, hidden in the very room next that of the Austrian general, saved only at last by the marvelous mother's wit and courage. The journey through Italy to France, that was drama enough for one life. Recognized at every turn, betrayed never, and ending with—Prince Louis smiled his slow dim smile—a fitting ending indeed to days whose every minute was adventure. He thought of the landlord of the inn, the old cavalryman; the young Frenchman—Beaupre—that was the name; it was set in his memory; had been in that tenacious memory since an afternoon of 1824, when a runaway schoolboy prince had slipped over the Jura, and played with three other children, about a ruined castle; he saw Francois Beaupre take reverently in his hand the sword which Napoleon had held—and then the alarm! That was a fine sight—the dash of the youngster through the startled mob of Austrians; the flying leap to the horse; the skirmish to get free, and, at last, the rush of the chase. He had seen it all, watching quietly while his mother and the landlord implored him to hide himself. That young Frenchman—if he should be alive—if ever he should meet him again Prince Louis would not forget. It was psychological that he should have been thinking this when a knock sounded deferentially on the door of the room. But picturesque coincidences happen in lives as well as on the stage; in Louis Napoleon's there was more than one. "Entrez!" he called sharply, and then, "Come in!"

The door swung slowly and Aaron, white-aproned and white-eyeballed, stood in it.

"Marse Prince," he stated with a dignity of service which crowned heads could not daunt, "ole Marse sen' me bring you dis hyer Marse Bopray."

A light figure stepped before the black and white of Aaron, and halted, and bowed profoundly. The light from the window shone on his face and the dark immense eyes that lifted toward Prince Louis, and for a moment he stared, puzzled. Was he in the present? Surely this man was part of the past which he had been reviewing. Surely he had played a role in the prince's history—where? With a flashing thought into the years he knew.

"Mon ami!" cried Louis Bonaparte, and sprang forward and stretched out both hands, his royalty forgotten in the delight of seeing a face which recalled his youth and his mother.

Francois, two minutes later, found himself standing, bursting with loyalty and pride, with the prince's hands clasping his, and the prince's transformed face beaming on him.

"You rode like the devil," said the prince. "But the Austrians had the horses. That poor Bleu-bleu! How did you get away? Where have you been? Mon Dieu, but we looked for you, Zappi and I!"

"But no, your highness, I did not get away," smiled Francois Beaupre as if imparting a joyful bit of news. "They caught me."

And he told briefly his story of the five years in prison, of the desperate escape, of the rescue and voyage to America, of his wrecked health, not yet re-established. Through the account shone the unconquerable French gaiety. Another thing there was which a Frenchman and a Bonaparte could not fail to see, that the thought of his service to the house of Bonaparte had been a sustaining pride, and the hope of future service an inspiring hope.

Superstition and gratitude laid hold together on the prince's troubled mind. He threw himself back into Colonel Hampton's leather arm chair, throne-like in impressiveness and size, the mask of impassivity closed on his colorless features.

"Sit there, Monsieur," he ordered, "and tell me your life."

Simply yet dramatically, as was his gift, the young man went over the tale which he had told to Lucy Hampton, that and more. And the prince listened to every word. He, too, had the French sensitiveness to theatrical effect and his overwrought imagination seemed to see the hand of destiny visibly joining this story to his. Here was a legacy from Napoleon, an instrument created by his uncle which he, the heir, should use. There was a long silence when Francois had finished and Louis' deep-pitched voice broke it.

"'One day, perhaps a marshal of France under another Bonaparte,'" he repeated thoughtfully. "It was the accolade, the old right of royalty," and gazed as if reflecting at the other man's face.

Heightened color told how much it meant to Francois Beaupre to hear those words spoken by the prince.

"My prince, I will tell you, though it may be of little moment to know that it is not for my own advancement that I care. It is the truth that I would throw away a hundred lives if I had them to see the house of Bonaparte rule France. It is only so, I believe, that France can become great once more. We need heroes to lead us, we Frenchmen, not shopkeeper kings such as Louis Phillippe; if it has not a hero the nation loses courage and its interest in national life. But the very name of Napoleon is inspiration. It pricks the blood, a monarch of that name on France's throne and our country will wake with life. You, my prince, are the hope of the house of Napoleon."

With a quick step forward he threw himself on his knees before the quiet figure in the throne-like chair; he seized the prince's hand and, head bent, kissed it with passion. There was a line of color in each cheek as his face lifted, and his brilliant look was shot with a tear.

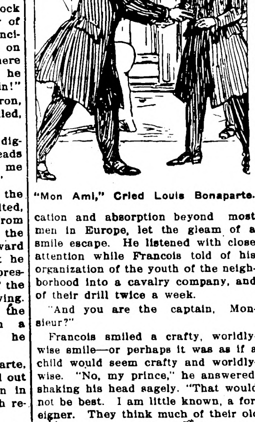
"If I may die believing that I have helped to win your throne, I shall die in happiness."

Prince Louis had his mother's warm heart, and this went to it. He put his hand on the other's shoulder, familiarly as if the two were equals, kinsmen.

The brotherly touch on Francois' shoulder was withdrawn, and with gentle dignity, with a glance, the prince lifted him to his feet, and Francois stood happy, dazed, before him. He found himself telling his plans, his methods, his efforts to fit himself for the usefulness that might be on the way.

"I have studied enormously, my prince. All known books on warlike subjects, all I could borrow or steal I have studied. Ah, yes! I know much of these things."

Louis Bonaparte, with an exhaustive military education, a power of application and absorption beyond most men in Europe, let the gleam of a smile escape. He listened with close attention while Francois told of his organization of the youth of the neighborhood into a cavalry company, and of their drill twice a week.



"Mon Ami," Cried Louis Bonaparte.

"And you are the captain, Monsieur?"

Francois smiled a crafty, worldly-wise smile—or perhaps it was as if a child would seem crafty and worldly-wise. "No, my prince," he answered, shaking his head sagely. "That would not be best. I am little known, a foreigner. They think much of their old families, the people of these parts. So that it is better for the success of the company that the captain should be of the nobility of the country. One sees that. So the captain of the company is Monsieur Henry Hampton, the younger, the kinsman of Monsieur le Colonel, and a young man of great goodness, and the best of friends to me. Everything that I can do for his pleasure is my own pleasure."

The prince turned his expressionless gaze on the animated face. "Mademoiselle Lucy likes the young monsieur?"

"But yes, my prince, she likes every one, Mademoiselle Lucy. It is sunshine, her kindness, it falls everywhere and blesses where it falls. She loves Henry as a brother."

"As a brother!" the prince repeated consideringly. "Yes, a brother. You find Mademoiselle Lucy of—of a kind disposition."

"Beyond words and most charming," Francois answered steadily and flushed a little. He felt himself being probed. With that the facile mysterious, keen mind of the prince leaped it seemed a world wide chasm. "That most winning little girl of the ruined chateau of Vicques, our playmate Alixe—you remember how she stated, 'I am Alixe,' and was at once shipwrecked with embarrassment?"

"I remember," Francois said steadily, and was conscious that he breathed quickly and that his throat was dry and that the prince knew of both troubles.

"Is she still Alixe, the same Alixe?" inquired the prince, turning ostentatiously to the window. "Has she grown up as sweet and fresh and brilliant a flower as the rosebud promised?"

Francois, hearing his own heart beat, attempted to answer in a particularly casual manner, which is a difficult and sophisticated trick. He failed at it. "They say—I think she has—oh, but yes, and I think—he—" stammered, and the prince cut short his sufferings. "Ah yes. I see that it is with you as with Monsieur Henry, a case of devoted brotherhood. You love her as a brother, you will not boast of her."

"You have done well, Chevalier Beaupre. You have done well that when the time is ripe again—it will not be long for Strasburg must be wiped out in success—that I shall send for you to help me and I shall know that you will be ready. I see that the star which leads us both is the only light which shines for you. It holds your undivided soul. [illegible] I am right?"

Francois turned his [illegible] [illegible] face toward the [illegible] [illegible] with a feeling which swept over him, for a moment he did not answer. Then he spoke in a low tone.

"When a knight of the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] to [illegible]," he said, "he wore on his helmet the badge of his lady, and carried the thought of her in his heart. A man fights better so."

And the silent prince understood.

CHAPTER XXV.

How Lucy Told.

The prince was gone. There had been festivities and formalities, great dinners, gatherings of the Virginia nobility to do honor to his highness at Roanoke house and elsewhere; everywhere the Chevalier Beaupre had been distinguished by his highness' most marked favor. And Lucy Hampton's eyes had shone with quiet delight to see it and to see the effect on her father. For the colonel, confused in his mind as to how it might be true, reluctantly acknowledged that there must be something of importance about this Chevalier Beaupre, that a prince should treat him as a brother. He believed that it would be best to treat him—he also—at least as a gentleman. So the French lessons were continued and the Jefferson troop was encouraged, and Francois was asked often to Roanoke house. And as the months rolled on he tried with every thoughtful and considerate effort to express to the little lady of the manor his gratitude for the goodness of her family. It troubled him more than a little that the early friendliness and intimacy of Harry Hampton seemed to be wearing off. The boy did not come so often to Carnifax, and when he came he did not stay for hours, for days sometimes, as was his way at first. He was uneasy with his friend, and his friend wondered and did not understand, but hesitated to push a way into the lad's heart. "He will tell me in time," thought Francois, and, sure of his own innocence, waited for the time.

Meantime he was going home. Going, much against the advice of the Norfolk doctor, who warned him that he was not yet well or strong, that the out-of-door life in the mild Virginia climate should be continued perhaps for two years more, before he went back to the agitation and effort of a Bonapartist agent in France. But he could not wait; he must see his old home, his mother, his father, and all the unforgotten faces. He longed to watch the black lashes curl upward from the blue of Alixe's eyes. He longed to hear her clear voice with its boyish note of courage. It would put new life into him, that voice. It was seven years now and more since he had left them all at a day's notice to go to Pietro in Italy—to a living death of five years, to many undreamed of happenings. The fever was on him and he must go home.

There was to be a celebration for the new and very fashionable cavalry troop of which Francois was the unofficial backbone and author. In the great grassy paddock at Bayly's Folly the proud mother of eighteen-year-old Caperton Bayly—first lieutenant, and the most finished horseman in the Virginia country—had invited the gentry from miles about to feast with her and to watch her son and his friends show how the Chevalier Beaupre had made them into soldiers. They came in shoals, driving from far off over bad roads in big lurching chariots, or riding in gay companies, mostly of older men and girls and young boys, because all of the gilded youth were in the ranks that day.

When the drill was over there was to be rough riding and jumping. Hurdles were swiftly dragged out and placed in a manner of ring.

"This one is very close to the bank," said Lucy Hampton, standing by Bluebird and watching as the negroes placed the bars. "If a horse refused and turned sharp and was foolish he might go over. And the bank is steep."

"Lucy, you are a grandmotherly person," Clifford Stewart, who was another girl, threw at her. "You would like them all to ride in wadded wool dressing gowns, and to have a wall padded with cotton batting to guard them." And Lucy smiled and believed herself overcautious.

The excited horses came dancing up to the barriers and lifted and were over with or without rapping, but not one, for the first round, refusing. Then the bars were raised six inches. Six inches in midair is a large space when one must jump it. Caperton Bayly went at it first, his mother watched breathless as he flew forward sitting erect, intense, his young eyes gleaming. Over went his great horse Traveler and over the next and the next, all of them, but the white heels had struck the top bar twice; the beautiful, spirited performance was not perfect. Harry Hampton came next, all of the kindly multitude gazed eagerly, hoping that the boy to whom life had given less than the others might win this honor he wanted. The first bars without rapping, the second, and a suppressed sound of satisfaction which might soon be a great roar of pleasure hummed over the field. Black Hawk came running, snorting, pulling up to the third jump, the jump where Lucy stood. And as he came a little girl high in a carriage, a chariot as one said then, flourished her scarlet parasol in the air and lost hold of it, and it flew like a huge red bird into the course close to the hurdle. And Black Hawk, strung to the highest point of his thoroughbred nerves, saw and a horror of the flaming living thing as it seemed caught him and he swerved at the bar and bolted straight for the steep slope.

A gasp went up from all the three or four hundred people; the boy was dashing to death, no one stirred; every muscle was rigid, the spectators were paralyzed. Not all. Francois from his babyhood had known how to think quickly, and these boys were his pride and his care; he had thought of that possible danger which Lucy had foreseen, when the jumping began, mounted on his mare Aquarelle, he was posted near the head of the slope, not twenty yards from the hurdle, to be at hand in any contingency.

When Harry's horse bolted, one touch put Aquarelle into motion. Like a line of brown light she dashed at right angles to the runaway—a line drawn to intercept the line of Black Hawk's flight. There was silence over the field—one second—two seconds—the lines shot to the angle—then it came—the shock they awaited.

Black Hawk, rushing, saw the other coming and swerved at the last moment—too late. The animals collided, not with full force, yet for a moment it looked like nothing but death for riders and mounts. Harry Hampton was thrown backward to the level field. Black Hawk galloped off, frantic and unhurt, across it; Aquarelle, one saw, lay on the very edge of the drop and was scrambling to her feet with liveliness enough to assure her safety; of Francois there was no sign. In half a minute the breathless still crowd was in an uproar, and a hundred men were jostling one another to reach the scene of the accident.

It was two minutes, perhaps, before Caperton Bayly, with a negro boy at his heels, with Jack Littleton and Harry Wise and a dozen other lads racing back of him, had plunged over the drop of land where Francois had disappeared. Two minutes are enough sometimes for a large event. In that two minutes Lucy Hampton, without conscious volition, by an instinct as simple and imperative as a bird's instinct to shield her young, had slipped from her horse Bluebird and flown across the level and down over the steep bank till she found herself holding Francois' dark head in her arms and heard her own voice saying words she had never said even to herself.

"I love you, I love you," she said, and if all the world heard she did not know or care. There was no world for her at that minute but the man lying with his head against her heart—dead it might be, but dead or alive, dearest. "I love you—love you—love you," she repeated, as if the soul were rushing out of her in the words.

With that the luminous great eyes opened, and Francois was looking at her, and she knew that he had heard. And then the training of a lifetime, of centuries, flooded back into her, and womanly reticence and maidenly shame and the feelings and attitude which are not primeval, as she had been primeval for that one mad moment. She drew back as she felt him trying to lift himself, and left him free and was on her feet, and then with a shock she was aware of another presence; turning she looked up into the angry glow of her cousin's eyes. He was not looking at her, but at the man who, dazed, hurt, was trying painfully to pull himself up. Harry Hampton glared at him.

"We will settle this later," he brought out through his teeth. "I hope I can kill you." And Lucy cried out:

"Shame!" she cried. "He has just saved your life!"

"Damn him!" said Harry Hampton. "I do not want my life at his hands. I hate him more for saving me. Damn him!"

And Francois, clutching at a bush, things reeling about him unsteadily, looked up, friendly, wistful, at the boy cursing him.

With that there was an influx of population, the whole world, apparently tumbled down the steep bank,

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

[illegible] Burns' Granddaughter.

An action has been entered in the [illegible] sheriff court by Miss Annie [illegible] Burns of Cheltenham, the only surviving granddaughter of the Scottish poet, claiming "to have herself as the nearest of kin declared executrix of certain hitherto unconfirmed personal estate of the said Robert Burns." This is a sequel to the recent announcement that the Liverpool Athenaeum had sold for £[illegible],000 the two volumes of Burns poems and better known as the Glenriddell manuscripts and that they were likely to go to America, an announcement which brought strong protests from Lord Rosebery, Sir William Wallace and others.—Westminster Gazette.

Old [illegible] [illegible].

Robert Morris, the financier of the revolution, early in 1783 arranged with Benjamin Dudley to strike off some "pattern pieces" that could be placed before congress. On April 2 Dudley delivered to Morris some pieces which were in reality the first coin struck having the name "United States coin." The particular specimens are known to numismatists as the "Nova Constellatio Patterns." They were of silver and denominated the "mark" and "quint." The first coins struck by the United States mint were some half dimes, in 1792.

FOUR GUNMEN PAY PENALTY OF CRIME

GO TO ELECTRIC CHAIR AT DAWN FOR ROSENTHAL MURDER.

ORDER OF ELECTROCUTIONS

Nothing to Indicate Any One of Them Confessed Before End, Although Rumor Perists "Dago Frank" Did.

BULLETIN.

Albany, N. Y.—Some of the gunmen are believed to confessed before they died. Superintendent John B. Riley, of the state prison department, said that statements would arrive here from Ossining which would show that "no injustice had been done by the executions." The statement was declared to implicate no one but the men who died Monday.

Ossining, N. Y., April 14. — Harry Horowitz, Louis Rosenberg, Frank Cirofici and Frank Seidenschner have paid the death penalty.

As the gunmen whose picturesque aliases were flung across the continent after the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, they died at dawn Monday in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison, convicted of that crime.

To relatives who bade them goodbye and to their spiritual advisers the four condemned men again declared their innocence and there is nothing to indicate that they did not deny their guilt until the end.

How They Were Dispatched.

"Dago Frank" (Frank Cirofici), was the first to die; Frank Seidenschner ("Whitey Lewis") came second, "Gyp the Blood" (Harry Horowitz) was third and "Lefty Louie" (Louis Rosenberg), last. In 40 minutes all four were dispatched. This time would have been shortened had it not been for the overcrowding of newspaper reporters. Their numbers necessitated a shifting of witnesses for each execution.

"Nearer My God to Thee."

Easter Sunday and the night that followed was almost one continuous prayer for the condemned. They were on their knees practically all of the time that they were not talking with relatives. A prisoner in a distant cell now and then blew from a battered cornet the quavering notes of "Nearer My God to Thee," and in the death house proper a phonograph played sacred music.

On the board walks in front of the prison the curious townspeople passed to and fro, whispering, and every now and then a party of city automobilists swung from their car to survey the buildings.

In the cut, just under the prison eaves, express trains roared past while a wind out of the west whipped up whitecaps on the Hudson.

Of the scenes in the death house corridors that which stood out boldest concerned the visit of two nuns. As Father Cashin, the Roman Catholic prison chaplain, led the four gunmen in prayer, two Italian Franciscan sisters, who had come from New York to see Dago Frank, whom they had taught in his boyhood, knelt outside his cell.

Raised curtains, showing the cells bare and immaculate, disclosed the four gunmen also kneeling. Suddenly the spirit of devotion spread to the whole death chamber. Every one of the 16 condemned, among them three Chinamen and Hans Schmidt, slayer of Anna Aumuller, joined in the Lord's prayer.

Last Messages Sent.

To the boys of the East Side in New York the Jewish trio of the gunmen sent a final message through Rabbi Jacob Goldstein.

"Whitey Lewis" wrote: "Keep away from bad company, is the best message I can send."

"Lefty Louis" said: "Add what I said the other day about bad company. A fellow who honestly earns $6 a week is better off than he who gets $1,000 a week, if he does not get it straight."

"I must die some time," "Lefty Louie" told his wife. "If it pleases God that I die now, I am ready.'

"Whitey Lewis" asked his brother to tell their mother that she was not the mother of a murderer.

"I have never been more than a little wild," he said.

The prisoners were not left alone for a single instant during the day or night.

At 3 o'clock the final prayers were said. Father Cashin knelt with "Dago Frank" and received his final confession. The rabbis, Goldstein and Kopkstein, prepared the other gunmen for the end.

Warships to Test Canal.

San Diego, Cal., April 14.—United States warships of the Atlantic fleet will steam through the Panama canal early in July, speed up the Pacific coast to San Diego and return to Hampton Roads by the same route, according to Franklin D. Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, who inspected San Diego harbor and made preliminary arrangements for the reception of the battleships. The purpose of this early jaunt through the canal, he said, was to prove that the big waterway was even now ready.

Snow Will Not Quench Thirst.

The water which will allay our burning thirst augments it when congealed into snow, so that it is stated by explorers of the Arctic regions that the natives "prefer enduring the utmost extremity of thirst rather than attempt to remove it by eating snow." Yet if the snow is melted it becomes drinkable water. Nevertheless, although, if melted before entering the mouth, it assuages thirst like other water, when melted in the mouth it has the opposite effect. To render this paradox more striking, we have only to remember that ice, which melts more slowly in the mouth, is very efficient in allaying thirst.

PIMPLES ALL OVER FACE

1413 E. Genessee Ave., Saginaw, Mich.—"Cuticura Soap and Ointment cured me of a very bad disease of the face without leaving a scar. Pimples broke out all over my face, red and large. They festered and came to a head. They itched and burned and caused me to scratch them and make sores. They said they were seed warts. At night I was restless from itching. When the barber would shave me my face would bleed terribly. Then scabs would form afterwards, then they would drop off and the so-called seed warts would come back again. They were on my face for about nine months and the trouble caused disfigurement while it lasted.

"One day I read in the paper of the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I received a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and it was so much value to me that I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment at the drug store. I used both according to directions. In about ten days my face began to heal up. My face is now clear of the warts and not a scar is left." (Signed) LeRoy C. O'Brien, May 12, 1913.

Unfortunate Gallantry.

To his little native town a busy city man recently returned for a visit. As he had not seen the place nor its people for a long time, he was kept pretty busy greeting old friends. Among those whom he encountered was an elderly spinster, who beamed upon him with:

"Oh, Mr. Smith! I am sure you don't remember me!"

"Remember you!" gallantly exclaimed the city man, quite carried away by his wish to be friendly. "As if I could forget you, Miss Dixon! Why, you are one of the landmarks of the old town!"

Divorce Cure.

Chauncey M. Depew, discussing the change for the worse in the ideals of the American girl, said, recently: "Our young women should think less of tango teas and automobiling. They would do well to return to the ideals which prevailed when I was a lad. These ideals included the ability to manage a house properly, an intelligent supervision of children and a thorough knowledge of the kitchen. This last accomplishment, I think, should be given particular attention," Depew concluded, with a smile, "for many a good husband nowadays is spoiled in the cooking."

Home-Made Humor.

There is a judge in a certain Eastern city noted for his grouch. The most comical incident has no more effect on his frown than upon a wooden Indian. But one day a lawyer, who had tried in vain to make the judge laugh, walked into court and found the jurist doubled up with mirth. The lawyer hurried to his colleagues.

"Dinner to the man responsible for that," he said. "Who told the story?"

Another lawyer drew a sheet of paper toward him and wrote the words, "The judge."

UPWARD START

After Changing from Coffee to Postum.

Many a talented person is kept back because of the interference of coffee with the nourishment of the body.

This is especially so with those whose nerves are very sensitive, as is often the case with talented persons. There is a simple, easy way to get rid of coffee troubles and a Tenn. lady's experience along these lines is worth considering. She says:

"Almost from the beginning of the use of coffee it hurt my stomach. By the time I was fifteen I was almost a nervous wreck, nerves all unstrung, no strength to endure the most trivial thing, either work or fun.

"There was scarcely anything I could eat that would agree with me. The little I did eat seemed to give me more trouble than it was worth. I was literally starving; was so weak I could not sit up long at a time.

"It was then a friend brought me a hot cup of Postum. I drank part of it and after an hour I felt as though I had had something to eat — felt strengthened. That was about five years ago, and after continuing Postum in place of coffee and gradually getting stronger, today I can eat and digest anything I want, walk as much as I want. My nerves are steady.

"I believe the first thing that did me any good and gave me an upward start, was Postum, and I use it altogether now instead of coffee."

Name given by the Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Postum now comes in two forms:

Regular Postum — must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

VILLA'S CAVALRY PURSUING THE FEDERALS

PARTY OF U. S. MARINES ARE ARRESTED AT TAMPICO.

Detained Short Time, However—Apology From Huerta—San Pedro Said to Have Been Evacuated.

Mexico City, April 13.—A launch from the United States gunboat Dolphin, carrying the paymaster and a small detachment of marines, put in at Iturbide bridge at Tampico. The Americans were after a supply of gasoline. They were in uniform, but unarmed. The launch flew the American flag.

Col. Hinojosa, commanding a detachment of Mexican federals, placed the paymaster and his men under arrest. They were paraded through the streets and held for a time under detention.

Admiral Mayo made vigorous representations to the authorities and the men were released. General Ignacio Zaragoza expressed to Admiral Mayo his regret.

Although President Huerta in an official statement to Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American Charge d'Affaires, has apologized for the unusual zealousness of the Mexican commander at Tampico, there exists here great uneasiness because Admiral Mayo is reported to have given the government authorities at Tampico until but a few hours to salute the American colors.

Say Federals Are Attacking.

An agent of the American embassy reporting from Saltillo says that General Velazco, who commanded the federal forces at Torreon during the attack by Villa, has succeeded in uniting with Generals Maas and De Moure and that the combined forces are now attacking Torreon.

Tampico Attacks Diminishing.

Vera Cruz.—An official report sent by the commanding officer at Tampico, General Zaragoza, to the minister of war, through this port, says that he had to face a severe attack from the rebels several days ago, but since then the attacks have been diminishing in force each day. He reports that only four federals were wounded and none killed, but that he is exceedingly short of ammunition.

San Pedro Is Taken.

Juarez, Mex.—San Pedro, 40 miles north of Torreon, was evacuated by the federals in the face of superior numbers, according to a report from General Villa to General Carranza.

RADIUM BILL UP TO SENATE

Senator Walsh Opens Argument on Government Control of Producing Lands.

Washington, April 13.—Debate in the senate on the bill in favor of the government control of the radium ore bearing lands of the West was opened by Chairman Walsh of the mines committee.

Emphasizing the importance of the measure, Senator Walsh said radium-bearing ores were not only to be found in Colorado and Utah, but in Montana and probably would be found in other states. He added that the bureau of mines and two eminent doctors were conducting separate experiments in the methods of producing radium, which would be given to the public if successful.

The committee's findings upon the curative properties of radium, Senator Walsh assured the senate, would be fully discussed before the bill was taken up in detail.

Woman Air Rider Killed.

London, April 13.—The aviator Reichelt carried a woman passenger with him on a flight. At a height of 200 feet the motor exploded and the monoplane shot blazing to the earth. The woman was dead when extricated. Reichelt died at a hospital. On several previous occasions Reichelt had narrow escapes from death. Once in 1913, with a passenger aboard, at a height of 6,000 feet, his motor stopped and he had to plane downward, through a heavy fog, in the darkness.

CHOICE OF RESERVE CITIES DEFENDED

REGIONAL BANK COMMITTEE ANSWERS CRITICS OF SELECTIONS.

HAD TO DISAPPOINT SOME

Thirty-seven Applicants for 12 Places—Particular Attention Paid to Complaints From Southern Cities.

Washington, April 13.—The federal reserve bank organization committee has issued a statement defending its choice of reserve bank cities and definition of reserve districts.

Answers to Criticisms.

It was the first official answer made to criticisms voiced in congress and heard from cities which sought reserve banks but failed to get them. For the first time some of the data used by the committee on reaching its conclusions was made public.

Particular attention was given to the committee's reasons for choosing Atlanta, Ga., and Dallas, Tex., in preference to New Orleans; for selecting Richmond, Va., instead of Baltimore, and for naming Kansas City instead of Denver, Col., Omaha, or Lincoln, Neb. The committee called attention to the fact that since 37 cities were applicants and only 12 named, 25 had to be disappointed.

Misunderstanding Revealed.

"With so many conflicting claims," the statement said, "somebody had to judge. Congress constituted the committee a court and gave the federal reserve board the power to review. Disappointed competitors should seek a remedy through the orderly process the law prescribes.

"Critics of the decision of the committee reveal more misunderstanding and do not know, or appear not to know, that the federal reserve banks are bankers' banks and not ordinary commercial banks; that they are to hold the reserves and to clear the checks for member banks, make rediscounts for them and engage in certain open market operations. As a matter of fact, the ordinary every day banking relations of the community, of business men and of banks will not be greatly modified or altered."

WANT PUBLIC LAND SETTLED

Western Governors Urge This With View to Complete Jurisdiction for States.

Denver, April 13.—Speedy settlement of the remaining public lands of the western states with a view to complete jurisdiction by every state of all land within its borders, was urged upon congress by the Western Governors' conference.

The governors reaffirmed in full their platform of last year in which was set forth the policy on various subjects held by the executives to be vital to the building of the West.

While the governors were preparing to close their conference with the adoption of resolutions, the irrigation conference debated ways and means of raising money for irrigation projects.

Clinton for Senate in Iowa.

Marshalltown, Iowa, April 11.—M. L. Christian of Clinton, Iowa, was nominated here for United States senator. Malcolm Smith of Cedar Rapids was chosen as the candidate for governor. The convention adopted a platform, the three principal features of which advocated the repeal of the law permitting the operation of saloons under restrictions, the resubmission of the prohibition amendment to a vote of the people of the state, and the enactment of woman's suffrage legislation.

EXPLOSION; 2 KILLED, 1 DYING

FIRE CHIEF AND ONE ASSISTANT DEAD AT DAWSON, MINN.

Four Buildings Destroyed at Loss of $60,000 in Fire Which Breaks Out as Result.

Dawson, Minn., April 14.—Two firemen were killed, one fatally hurt and two others injured as the result of fire and explosion which destroyed four buildings, forced several others out of line and shattered $4,000 worth of plate glass windows in the business part of this town. The total loss will probably exceed $60,000.

The dead are: Fire Chief Elmer Thompson and Herbert Farmen.

Marvin E. Jacobson was fatally injured.

The other injured are: Arthur Kreisel, struck in head by falling stone; John C. Hanson, wrist nearly severed by broken glass.

The explosion occurred at 2 o'clock in the morning, awakening the townspeople from their slumbers and being distinctly heard by farmers six miles away.

Flames broke out immediately following the blast and spread rapidly in spite of the best efforts of the volunteer fire department, which was early on the scene. Fire Chief Thompson was one of the first to arrive when the alarm was turned in. He was standing in front of the building occupied by the Holtan restaurant, when the explosion occurred, lifting the entire roof from the building and burying Thompson in the debris.

Herbert Farmen, another volunteer fireman, was struck in the head by a falling brick, dying almost instantly.

The flames spread rapidly to adjoining buildings and soon the whole block was in flames.

Matt Wire, the local miller, who lived in apartments over the Holtan restaurant, managed to get his wife, two daughters and a son out of the building with difficulty. The flames were then playing along the north wall of the building.

The fire department was powerless to stay the work of the flames, which soon reached the J. E. Lund Hardware store, adjoining, and from there spread to the Citizens' State bank and the Jackson & Emerson's Merchandise store. The four buildings destroyed represent a loss of $22,000. The loss on the stock and fixtures will reach $34,000, all of which is partly covered by insurance.

The cause of the fire is a matter of conjecture, but is believed to have been caused by a charge of nitro-glycerine or gun-cotton. The fire marshal's office has been notified and an investigation may be ordered.

HOW TO CLEAR AWAY THOSE UGLY PIMPLES

It is so easy to get rid of pimples and blackheads with Resinol, and it costs so little, too, that anyone whose face is disfigured by these pests is foolish to keep on with useless cosmetics, or complicated "beauty treatments." See how simply it is done:

Bathe your face for several minutes with Resinol Soap and hot water, then apply a little Resinol Ointment very gently. Let this stay on ten minutes, and wash off with Resinol Soap and more hot water, finishing with a dash of cold water to close the pores. Do this once or twice a day, and you will be astonished to find how quickly the healing, antiseptic Resinol medication soothes and cleanses the pores, leaving the complexion clear and velvety. Sold by all druggists, Resinol Ointment, 50 cents and $1, Resinol Soap, 25 cents.—Adv

BEGINS CAMPAIGN AGAINST CHOLERA

MINNESOTA GOVERNOR CALLS ON ENTIRE NORTHWEST TO CO-OPERATE IN WAR.

FIXES "HOG CHOLERA WEEK"

Eberhart Issues Proclamation Setting Aside Eight Days For Concerted Campaign of Education and Enlightenment.

St. Paul, April 11. — A campaign against the terrible hog cholera scourge that cost the farmers of the northwest $60,000,000 last season is to be waged this year. The movement is being gotten under way by Governor A. O. Eberhart, of this state, who hopes to secure the co-operation of the executives of North and South Dakota, Montana, Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska, Illinois, Michigan and Missouri.

Letters Sent to All.

In a letter sent to the governors of the above mentioned states, it is pointed out that experts are agreed that the disease can only be stamped out by an enlightened public after a thorough understanding of the infection has been gained. As the disease is often carried from one state to another, a concerted action is deemed advisable on the part of the entire Northwest.

Governor Eberhart intends that Minnesota shall lead the way in dealing the death blow to the disease. Consequently, he has set aside the week of April 17 to 25 as "Hog Cholera Week," with the hope that the other Northwestern states may do likewise.

The Proclamation.

The proclamation of Mr. Eberhart follows:

"During the past year the State of Minnesota, with other states, suffered a severe loss through the disease known as hog cholera. The losses in other states have been even greater, entailing a national loss of $60,000,000. A serious loss, not only to the swine breeders of the State, but a tremendous economic loss to the entire public. In view of the present shortage of meat animals throughout the United States, this fact assumes a noteworthy sifinificance which Congress has decognized through the appropriation of $500,000 for the especial purpose of combating further inroads of the disease during the coming summer and fall months. The prevention of similar losses from hog cholera in 1914 is a matter that vitally concerns all the people of the State of Minnesota and it is commonly understood that the disease can only be prevented and stomped out by an enlightened public, through a campaign of education which will give an understanding of the disease, its methods of infection and spread, and its prevention and cure.

"According to the best authorities, hog cholera, a germ disease, spreads through lack of strict quarantine regulations which, if not recognized, will eventually infect all of the hog raising sections of the Northwest. Hog cholera may also become general through lack of understanding of the use of serum-virus treatment, as the use of virus simply means taking live cholera germs to the community. There are a great many infected communities through Minnesota at the present time and it is believed that when warm weather arrives there will be other serious outbreaks of the disease unless the public generally becomes aware of the situation and takes measures to unitedly stamp it out.

How to Stamp Out Scourge.

"The best live stock sanitary authorities of the country will agree that hog cholera may be prevented and stamped out only by following three procedures.

"First, quarantine and thorough disinfection of infected farms and communities.

"Second, by the use of the serum-virus treatment in communities where the disease is known to exist and through a supervision of its use in uninfected communities.

"Third, the strict and efficient co-operation between the hog raisers and neighbors and the public.

"Without this united co-operation no effective progress can be made in fighting the disease. In this connection it is extremely important that carriers of the disease should be excluded from cholera farms and that all sources of infection should become common knowledge.

'These and other matters pertaining to hog cholera are of vital interest to the citizens of Minnesota, and all such citizens should post themselves as to methods of dealing with the present situation.

"In view of these facts, I hereby appoint the week of APRIL 17TH to 25TH

'HOG CHOLERA WEEK

and would urge that all farmers' organizations, by whatever name they may be designated, hold local meetings, at which time they should thoroughly discuss this question and call to their aid the state experimental station, the agricultural press, the daily press, the county press and all other sources of information or means whereby the public may become generally conversant with the present situation.

"United action on the part of farmers and all co-operating agencies is of the utmost importance in dealing with any infectious live stock disease and any measures which may be taken for the enlightenment of the public, are most desirable for the effectiveness desired as a result of this statement.

CORN AND PORK CONTEST

Murray County Leads Movement Unique in Minnesota—$540 in Prizes.

Slayton.—Murray county is pushing the better farming movement by means of a corn and pork contest which is probably unique in the state. The rules provide for no less than fifty-nine prizes of an aggregate value of $540. The smallest prize is $2 and the largest is valued at $65.00

Any boy or girl in Murray county not less than 12 and not more than 20 is qualified to compete for the prizes offered. They are required either to raise a litter of pigs from the time of farrowing until Nov. 15, keeping a careful account of the feeding and care of the hogs or to raise an acre of corn, keeping a careful record of the work and expense, or to raise both the corn and litter of pigs. The highest prize for which the contestant can compete in case only one of the two is engaged in is $15. However, if the contestant raises both corn and pork he is in line for the grand first prize valued at $65.

The leaders in this movement have been Professor R. F. Grim, director of agriculture in the Slayton high school, and J. K. Campbell, a breeder of Poland China swine. These two, respectively secretary and chairman of the organization, with F. D. Weck, the treasurer, have assumed the chief responsibility. With B. I. Weld, R. F. Lamb, P. J. Nelson, Robert B. Forrest, P. H. Harrington, Superintendent D. S. Brainerd and others, they were influenced to promote this contest because of the educational advantages of the Murray county corn contest which has ben so successfully carried on for two years. They believe in the expansion of the contest principle and the increase in the premium list from $40 to $540 must necessarily result in educational and pecuniary advantages to the community.

That the educational value is recognized is shown by the offer of the Slayton high school to grant credits to those students who enter and successfully complete this contest.

That the contest has the hearty co-operation of the entire county is demonstrated by the fact that the commissioners appropriated $100. It is also shown by the receipt of unsolicited contributions from farmers and farmers' clubs.

The contestant must report to the committee before determining the yield of corn and before weighing the pigs.

St. Paul, April 9.—Martin Flanagan and Fred Turner, former police officials of St. Paul, found guilty of accepting bribes for protection from disorderly women and sentenced to the state prison for indeterminate periods not to exceed 10 years, were not taken to Stillwater Tuesday night as was anticipated. It was stated that in order to avoid a curious crowd certain to gather to see the prisoners on their way to the penitentiary the journey would be made at night and at an unexpected hour.

Canby.—Canby went dry here by 44 votes after the hottest campaign in the history of the city. This town has been wet for 35 consecutive years except one.

Lake City.—The only contest was on city treasurer. Mayor, W. C. Squire; treasurer, R. A. Hoyt.

Austin.—Austin voted license by a vote of 948 to 764 after weeks of the hottest campaign in the history of the city.

Hastings.—The wets came out victorious, license being carried by a vote of 172. Democratic ticket was elected.

New Ulm.—L. A. Fritsche elected mayor, Gottlieb Oswald treasurer

Blue Earth Men Prosperous

Vernon Center.—Blue Earth county farmers are in a prosperous condition. W. H. Richter, cashier of the local bank, finds that during the first three months of this year the farmers doing business at the bank sold $65,000 worth of live stock, mostly western cattle that they have been fattening, more than 20,000 bushels of corn valued at $11,000, other small grain to the value of $20,000 and $6,000 worth of creamery butter. There are cattle to the value of $20,000 yet to be disposed of this month

Good Cheer Aids Digestion of Food

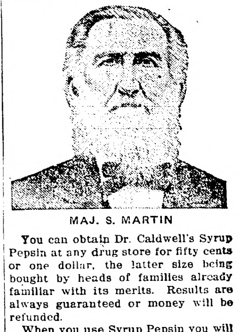
Dyspeptics Can Make the Rest of the Family Happy by Using a Laxative-Tonic.

The temper of the family and the good cheer around the table depend so much on the good digestion of each individual present that the experiences of some former dyspeptics who overcame their trouble should be of interest to those now suffering in this way.

The best advice one can give—but it is advice that is seldom heeded—is to eat slowly and masticate each mouthful carefully. However, if slow eating and careful mastication fail the next aid is one close to nature. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This remedy is an excellent digestant, and in addition to helping in the digestion of the food, acts gently on the liver and bowels, ridding them of the accumulation of waste that should long ago have been passed off. It is safe, reliable, pleasant-tasting, and results are guaranteed.

Maj. S. Martin, of Joplin, Mo., now 77, thinks Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has helped him to a longer and happier life. He has not felt so good in years as he has since taking this excellent medicine, and in spite of his 77 years he says he feels like a boy.

It is the ideal remedy for indigestion, no matter how severe; constipation, no matter how chronic, biliousness, headaches, gas on the stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances.

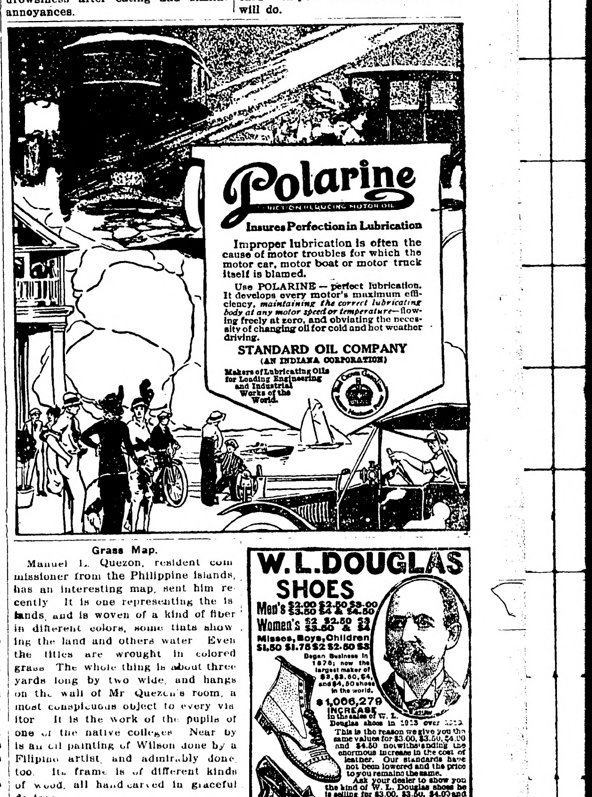


MAJ. S. MARTIN

You can obtain Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store for fifty cents or one dollar, the latter size being bought by heads of families already familiar with its merits. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

When you use Syrup Pepsin you will see the fallacy of chewing mints and tablets or of taking cathartics, salts, pills and similar drastic medicines. Unlike these, Syrup Pepsin does not lose its good effect, and by automatically training the stomach and bowel muscles to do their work, soon restores these organs to normal.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 203 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.



Polarine
FRICTION REDUCING MOTOR OIL
Insures Perfection in Lubrication
Improper lubrication is often the cause of motor troubles for which the motor car, motor boat or motor truck itself is blamed.
Use POLARINE — perfect lubrication. It develops every motor's maximum efficiency, maintaining the correct lubricating body at any motor speed or temperature—flowing freely at zero, and obviating the necessity of changing oil for cold and hot weather driving.

Grass Map.

Manuel L. Quezon, resident commissioner from the Philippine Islands, has an interesting map, sent him recently. It is one representing the islands, and is woven of a kind of fiber in different colors, some tints showing the land and others water. Even the titles are wrought in colored grass. The whole thing is about three yards long by two wide, and hangs on the wall of Mr. Quezon's room, a most conspicuous object to every visitor. It is the work of the pupils of one of the native colleges. Near by is an oil painting of Wilson done by a Filipino artist, and admirably done, too. Its frame is of different kinds of wood, all hand carved in graceful designs

Witte on War

Count Witte, the famous Russian statesman, estimates that 40 per cent of the total income of the great powers is absorbed by their armies and navies. Of the consequences he writes: "When and how will it all end? Unless the great states which have set this hideous example agree to call a halt so to say, and knit their subjects into a pacific, united Europe, war is the only issue I can perceive. And when I say war, I mean a conflict which will surpass in horror the most brutal armed conflicts known to human history and entail distress more widespread and more terrible than living men can realize.'

A woman's organism is a very delicate thing, it very easily gets out of order—just like a delicate piece of machinery, it requires more than ordinary care and attention.

There are many signs which point to disorder, such as headaches, unaccountable pains in various parts of the body, listlessness, nervousness, irritableness, dizziness, faintness, backache, loss of appetite, depression, and many others.

Pechie and Johnson went fishing but did not catch any. Good thing their neighbors didnt.

Whitford News

Iver Engelbritson was a business visitor to Middle River on Monday.

John Anderson has just completed a nice cottage home on his claim which is a decided improvement.

Ludwig Sagsteen and Peter Kneppe are busy these days clearing on the quarter section they have lately purchased and intend having it broken with the Norbeck-Sagsteen gasoline outfit.

E. A. Wright from Middle River is out to his claim fixing up matters for the coming season.

A mass meeting was held at Ludwig Sagstuen's last Thursday to discuss the mud Creek problem, the following plan was unaminously adopted that a petition be signed and forwarded to the county commissioners urging them to clean it and erect bridges. This creek has been the source of great trouble to homesteaders in previous years as it at present cannot take care of the volume of water which enters into it from the Rollis ditches.

ARTESIAN WELL

An artesian well is a spouting well bored down to a point, usually at great depth, where the water pressure, owing to the geological conformation, is so great as to force the water out at the surface. This is the proper meaning of the term, but is now often applied to any very deep bored well, as for petroleum, and even when pumping is necessary, as in an ordinary driven well. The name artesian is derived from Artois, in France, where the first well of the kind in Europe was sunk

NAVAL STRENGTH IN MEXICAN WATERS

Washington.—Never before in the history of the nation has the strength of the navy been shown as it is in Mexican waters today. A greater percentage of fighting machines were assembled about Cuba in the war with Spain, but the navy of 1898 had not the fighting strength of the navy of today either in number of vessels, in tonnage or in gun caliber.

The war strength which the United States now has or will have in Mexican waters within a few days with which to compel compliance with the demands of this government may be summarized as follows:

WILSON GIVES HIS VIEWS

Following is the official statement issued as representing the views of President Wilson and the administration on Mexico:

"In discussions in official circles in Washington of the present Mexican situation, the following points have been very much dwelt upon:

"It has been pointed out that, in considering the present somewhat delicate situation in Mexico, the unpleasant incident at Tampico must not be thought of alone. For some time past the de facto government of Mexico has seemed to think mere apologies sufficient when the rights of American citizens or the dignity of the government of the United States were involved and has apparently made no attempt at either reparation or the effective correction of the serious derelictions of its civil and military officers.

Orderly Placed in Jail.

"Immediately after the incident at Tampico an orderly from one of the ships of the United States in the harbor of Vera Cruz, who had been sent ashore to the post office for the ship's mail, and who was in uniform and who had the official mail bag on his back, was arrested and put into jail by the local authorities. He was subsequently released and a nominal punishment was inflicted upon the officer who arrested him, but it was significant that an orderly from the fleet of the United States was picked out from the many persons constantly going shore on various errands, from the various ships in the harbor, representing several nations.

Official Dispatch Withheld.

"Most serious of all, the officials in charge of the telegraph office at Mexico City presumed to withhold an official dispatch of the government of the United States to its embassy at Mexico City, until it should have been sent to the censor and his permission received to deliver it, and gave the dispatch into the hands of the charge d'affaires of the United States only upon his personal and emphatic demand, he having in the meantime learned through other channels that a dispatch had been sent him which he had not received.

United States Singled Out.

"It cannot but strike anyone who has watched the course of events in Mexico as significant that untoward incidents such as these have not occurred in any case where representatives of other governments were concerned, but only in dealings with representatives of the United States, and that there has been no occasion for other governments to call attention to such matters or to ask for apologies.

"These repeated offenses against the rights and dignity of the United States, offenses not duplicated with regard to the representatives of other governments, have necessarily made the impression that the government of the United States was singled out for manifestations of ill will and contempt."

THE INSULT AT TAMPICO

Friday morning, April 10, a boat's crew of United States marines, in command of Assistant Paymaster Charles C. Copp, left the gunboat Dolphine for Tampico to get a fresh supply of gasoline.

The United States flag was flying from the stern of the whaleboat when it approached the landing in Tampico.

For no assigned cause Assistant Paymaster Copp and his men were placed under arrest as they stepped ashore.

After the Americans had been detained several hours, word of their arrest was carried to Rear Admiral Mayo, who demanded their immediate release.

The demand was complied with, but the only reparation made was a brief expression of regret for the alleged mistake.

Mining in Korea.

Gold exists in Korea in quantities to render its mining profitable, but it has as yet given no promise of ever sensibly affecting the world's supply. Iron, coal, graphite, silver and copper are also found, but as yet they have not been sufficiently exploited to justify any estimate being formed as to their future influence on the wealth and prosperity of the country. Under their own laws the people were forbidden to engage in mining operations, and the only concession that was made was that which permitted placer mining being carried on in small areas by very limited associations, in the most primitive manner. For this heavy fees had to be paid to the government; and as the fees were certain, while the product was very much the reverse, the industry was not one which attracted either capitalists or prospectors of good repute.

Some Ages of Trees.

Observations and records as to the general age of trees have shown that the pine tree attains 700 years as a maximum length of life; 425 years is regarded as the allotted span of the silver fir; the larch lives, as a rule, about 275 years; the red beech, 245; the aspen, 210; the birch, 200; the ash, 176; the elder, 145; the elm, 130. The heart of the oak begins to rot at about the age of 300 years. Of the holly it is said that there is a specimen 410 years old near Aschaffenburg, Germany. A count of the annular rings in a gigantic California redwood tree showed that it began to grow in A. D. 550. It was 350 feet high, with a base circumference of 90 feet.

Nonsensical Question.

Jakey, the lazy and overgrown son of a resident of the Bronx, was recently haled before the magistrate in the Morrisania police court by his father, who charged him with being incorrigible, a deadly enemy of work in all its branches, staying out late at nights, smoking cigarettes and a few other habits unbecoming a boy on the threshold of manhood. The parent was mad clear through, and told the court in no soft language just what he thought his boy was coming to.

"Does he strike you?" asked the judge of the young man's father when the latter had cooled off somewhat.

"Strike?" came back the father. "Why, Mr. Judge, your honor, how can dot boy strike ven he doesn't even wok?"—New York Tribune.

HOUSE GIVES ENDORSEMENT

Detailed Plans For Landing Marines at Two Principal Mexican Ports Are Made at White House Last Evening

Washigton, D. C., April 21.—In forty-eight hours, possibly less, the United States government will have taken possession of Mexican customs houses at Tampico and Vera Cruz.

Detailed plans for landing marines at these two points were completed at a White House conference.

The resolution passed the house, 337 to 37. The resolution follows: A joint resolution justifying the employment of armed forces by the United States in enforcing certain demands against Victoriano Huerta.

"Resolved by the United States house of representatives, that the president of the United States is justified in the employment of armed forces of the United States to enforce the demands upon Victoriano Huerta for unequivocal amends to the government of the United States for affronts and indignities committed against this government by Huerta and his representatives."

Objection to the singling out of Huerta as an individual cropped out among the senators when they were called upon to consider the resolution, and after a lengthy conference the senate forign relations committee, to which the resolution, with the preamble amended to read: "In view of the situation presented by the president," and eliminating the individual reference to Huerta throughout the measure.

The house had adjourned until 10 o'clock tomorrow. President Wilson, worn out, had retired, and crowds in the senate galleries were disappointed when the senate put over final action on the resolution by recessing at 12:30 until 12 noon to-day, under an agreement to consider the resolution then.

The vote on the resolution in the house came in after a spirited debate of over two hours, which was opened by Representative Flood favoring the adoption of the resolution.

The verbal strife waged from one side to the other, the first democrat speaking against the resolution being Stephen of Mississippi.

Minority Leader Mann, closing the debate against the resolution, declared I was opposed to war because he "had served in this house through one war, I have seen the results of the Spanish war. I have seen that no one can foretell the results of war.'

Reilly aroused a storm of applause on the democratic side by reciting a dramatic poem to the flag.

Those Voting Against

Among the representatives voting against the resolution were Anderson, Davis, Steenerson, Stevens, Volstea, all of Minnesota.

The senate which, after resuming the session to consider the resolution at 9:45 o'clock this evening, recessed to await the report from the committee on foreign relations, to which the resolution was referred. 12 o'clock is set for reassembling.

In his message the president emphasized that it is not the part of a powerful nation such as the United States, to declare war on a weak neighbor and indicated clearly that should war result, the United States will not seek to add to its territorial confines, its only purpose will be the restoration of law and order in Mexico.

Secretary Garrison announced that if the army will be used in enforcing the demands of Huerta, Major General Woods will go to Texas City to take charge of the situation.

The administration's plans for further action against Mexico marked the time tonight, the pending passage of a resolution endorsing the president's proposed action.

After an hourt and a half conference at the White House, both Daniels and Garrison announced that no order will be issued tonight to Admiral Badger's fleet or to the army.

Not Anxious for War

The president, in statements to newspaper correspondents, said he had no enthusiasm for war and hoped to avoid it, but he is taking forceful steps now to stop those indignities which might lead to armed conflict He drew distinction between the Huerta faction and the great body of Mexicans, who have refused to recognize Huerta as president.

The president said: "In no conceivable circumstances will we fight the people of Mexico."

Measures "short of war" are planned by the president, such as seizure of the custom house, occupation of coast towns, taking Mexican warships and a blockade of Mexico's commerce with the United States.

Are You Suffering From Auto-Intoxication?

The dictionary says that Auto-Intoxication is "poisoning, or the state of being poisoned, from toxic, substances produced within the body." This is a condition due to the stomach, bowels, kidneys, liver, or pores of the body failing to throw off the poisons. More than 50% of adults are suffering from this trouble. This is probably why you are suffering from nervousness, headaches, loss of appetite, lack of ambition, and many other symptoms produced by Auto-Intoxication. Your whole system needs stirring up.

TORTURING TWINGES

Much so-called rheumatism is caused by weakened kidneys. When the kidneys fail to clear the blood of uric acid, the acid forms into crystals like bits of broken glass in the muscles, joints and on the nerve casings. Torturing pains dart through the affected part whenever it is moved. By curing the kidneys, Doan's Kidney Pills have eased thousands of rheumatic cases, lumbago, sciatica, gravel, neuralgia and urinary disorders.

400,000 Settlers a Year

Immigration figures show that the population of Canada increased during 1913, by the addition of 400,000 new settlers from the United States and Europe. Most of these have gone on farms in provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Lord William Percy, an English Nobleman, says:

"The possibilities and opportunities offered by the Canadian West are so infinitely greater than those which exist in England, that it seems absurd to think that people should be impeded from coming to the country where they can most easily and certainly improve their position.

New districts are being opened up, which will make accessable a great number of homesteads in districts especially adapted to mixed farming and grain raising.

PRESIDENT ASKS FOR AUTHORITY TO MEET CRISIS

READS MESSAGE BEFORE CONGRESS ASKING PERMISSION TO USE ARMED FORCE IN MEXICO.

HONOR OF UNITED STATES AT STAKE, SAYS EXECUTIVE

Thinks High Office Carries Power to Meet Situation, But Seeks Cooperation of Both Houses—Disclaims Intention of Aggression on Part of U. S.

Washington, April 21.—President Wilson laid the Mexican situation before congress in these words:

Message of President.

"Gentlemen of the Congress: It is my duty to call your attention to a situation which has arisen in our dealings with General Victoriano Huerta at Mexico City which calls for action and to ask your advice and co-operation in acting upon it. On the ninth of April a paymaster of the U. S. S. Dolphin landed at the Iturbide bridge landing at Tampico with a whaleboat and boat's crew to take off certain supplies needed by his ship and while engaged in loading the boat was arrested by an officer and squad of men of the army of General Huerta. Neither the paymaster nor any one of the boat's crew was armed. Two of the men were in the boat when the arrest took place and were obliged to leave it and submit to be taken into custody, notwithstanding the fact that the boat carried, both at her bow and her stern, the flag of the United States.

How Arrest Was Made.

"The officer who made the arrest was proceeding up one of the streets of the town with his prisoners when met by an officer of higher authority, who ordered him to return to the landing and await orders; and within an hour and a half from the time of the arrest orders were received from the commander of the Huerista forces at Tampico for the release of the paymaster and his men.

"The release was followed by apologies from the commander and later by an expression of regret by General Huerta himself. General Huerta urged that martial law obtained at the time at Tampico; that orders had been issued that no one should be allowed to land at the Iturbide bridge; and that our sailors had no right to land there. Our naval commanders at the port had not been notified of any such prohibition; and, even if they had been, the only justifiable course open to the local authorities would have been to request the paymaster and his crew to withdraw and to lodge a protest with the commanding officer of the fleet.

Admiral Demands Salute.

"Admiral Mayo regarded the arrest as so serious an effront that he was not satisfied with the apologies offered, but demanded that the flag of the United States be saluted with special ceremony by the military commander of the post.

"This incident cannot be regarded as a trivial one, especially as two of the men arrested were taken from the boat itself—that is to say, from the territory of the United States; but, had it stood by itself, it might have been attributed to the ignorance or arrogance of a single officer.

"Unfortunately, it was not an isolated case. A series of incidents have recently occurred which cannot but create the impression that the representatives of General Huerta were willing to go out of their way to show disregard for the dignity and rights of this government and felt perfectly safe in doing what they pleased, making free to show in many ways their irritation and contempt.

Other Indignities.

"A few days after the incident at Tampico an orderly from the U. S. S. Minnesota was arrested at Vera Cruz while ashore in uniform to obtain the ship's mail and was for a time thrown into jail. An official dispatch from this government to its embassy at Mexico City was withheld by the authorities of the telegraphic service until premptorily demanded by our charge d'affaires in person.

"So far as I can learn, such wrongs and annoyances have been succered to occur only against representatives of the United States. I have heard of no complaints from other governments of similar treatment. Subsequent explanations and formal apologies did not and could not alter the popular impression which it is possible it had been the object of the Huerista authorities to create, that the government of the United States was being singled out and might be singled out with impunity for slights and affronts in retaliation for its refusal to recognize the pretensions of General Huerta to be regarded as the constitutionalist provisional president of the republic of Mexico.

Other Offenses May Come.

"The manifest danger of such a situation was that such offenses might grow from bad to worse until something happened of so gross and intolerable a sort as to lead directly and inevitably to armed conflict. It was necessary that the apologies of General Huerta and his representatives should go much further, that they should be such as to attract the attention of the whole population to their significance and such as to impress upon General Huerta himself the necessity of seeing to it that no further occasion for explanations and professed regrets should arise.

"I, therefore, felt it my duty to sustain Admiral Mayo in and to the whole of his demand and to insist that the flag of the United States should be saluted in such a way as to indicate a new spirit and attitude on the part of the Huerістas.

Asks Support for New Course.

"Such a salute General Huerta has refused and I have come to you to ask your approval and support in the course I now propose to pursue.

"This government can, I earnestly hope, in no circumstances, be forced into actual strife. If we are to accept the tests of its own constitution, Mexico has no government. General Huerta has set his power up in the City of Mexico, such as it is, without right, and by methods for which there can be no justification. Only part of the country is under his control.

"If armed conflict should unhappily come as a result of his attiude of personal resentment towards this government, we should be fighting only General Huerta and those who adhere to him and give their support, and our object would be only to restore to the people of the distracted republic the right to set up again their own laws and their own government. I earnestly hope war is not now in question. I believe I now speak for the American people when I say we do not now desire to control in any degree the affairs of our sister republic.

Friendly Towards Mexico.

"Our feeling for the people of Mexico is one of deep and genuine friendship and everything that we have so far done or refrained from doing has proceeded from our desire to help them, not to hinder or embarrass them. We would not wish even to exercise the good offices of friendship without their welcome and consent. The people of Mexico are entitled to settle their own domestic affairs in their own way and we sincerely respect their right. The present situation need have none of the grave implications of interference if we deal with it promptly, firmly and wisely.

Approval to Use Armed Force.

"No doubt I could do what is necessary in the circumstances to enforce respect for our government without recourse to the congress and yet not exceed my constitutional powers as president; but I don't wish to act in a matter possibly of so grave consequence except in close conference and cooperation with both the senate and house. I therefore, come to ask your approval that I should use the armed forces of the United States in such ways and to such an extent as may be necessary to obtain from General Huerta and his adherents the fullest recognition of the rights and dignity of the United States, even amidst the distressing conditions now unhappily obtaining in Mexico.

Honor of U. S. at Stake.

There can in what we do be no thought of aggression or of selfish aggrandizement. We seek to maintain the dignity and honor of the United States only because we wish to keep our great influence unimpaired for the uses of liberty, both in the United States and wherever else it may be employed for the benefit of mankind."

After His Own Heart.

At the Progressive banquet in New York last month a westerner told a story about the colonel.

"My wife and I," he said, "have a large family of children, and whenever the colonel comes west and stops off we have a new addition to show him. That pleases him, you bet.

"The last time the colonel came to see us he was in a hurry. As he was leaving my wife said to him:

"'But you haven't seen our last baby!'

"'No, ma'am,' says the colonel, his eyes twinkling behind his glasses, 'and I never expect to!'"

Big English Incomes.

Replying to a parliamentary inquiry as to how many persons in Great Britain are assessed for super-tax at $750,000 or more, the secretary of the treasury said: "I cannot undertake to classify in separate divisions incomes exceeding $500,000 a year. The aggregate number of persons assessed for super-tax in respect to an income exceeding $500,000, according to the latest figures available, is 66."

Natural Mistake.

"I was only whispering sweet nothings in Mabel's ear," said the young man as Aunt Miriam entered the parlor in search of her glasses.

"Strange you should have mistaken her mouth for her ear," retorted the aunt as she left the room.

IF YOUR SKIN ITCHES, JUST USE RESINOL

The moment that Resinol Ointment touches itching skin, the itching stops and healing begins. That is why doctors have prescribed it successfully for more than eighteen years in even the severest cases of eczema, tetter, ringworm, rashes and other tormenting, unsightly skin eruptions. Aided by warm baths with Resinol Soap, Resinol Ointment restores the skin to perfect health and comfort, quickly, easily and at little cost.

You need never hesitate to use Resinol. It contains absolutely nothing that could injure the tenderest skin—even of a tiny baby. All druggists sell Resinol Ointment (50c and $1.00), and Resinol Soap (25c).—Adv.

IMMIGRATION INSPECTOR

Port of San Francisco Praises Peruna for personal benefit received.

San Francisco, January 6, 1914.

Mr. A. de la Torre, Jr., formerly U. S. Inspector of Immigration, Port of San Francisco, writes from No. 1111 Powell St., San Francisco, Cal.: "I take great pleasure in recommending your great national catarrh cure, Peruna, as the best I ever used. I sincerely express my thanks to you for the health which I now enjoy. It has done me and a number of my friends good, and I can assure you that I shall take every opportunity to speak in favor of what I consider to be the best remedy for catarrh in existence today."

Sick Women Attention

Is it possible there is a woman in this country who continues to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial after all the evidence that is continually being published, which proves beyond contradiction that this grand old medicine has relieved more suffering among women than any other one medicine in the world?

We have published in the newspapers of the United States more genuine testimonial letters than have ever been published in the interest of any other medicine for women—and every year we publish many new testimonials, all genuine and true. Here are three never before published:

From Mrs. S. T. Richmond, Providence, R. I.

Providence, R. I.—"For the benefit of women who suffer as I have done I wish to state what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I did some heavy lifting and the doctor said it caused a displacement. I have always been weak and I overworked after my baby was born and inflammation set in, then nervous prostration, from which I did not recover until I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The Compound is my best friend and when I hear of a woman with troubles like mine I try to induce her to take your medicine."—Mrs. S. T. Richmond, 199 Waldo Street, Providence, R. I.

A Minister's Wife Writes:

Cloquet, Minn.—"I have suffered very much with irregularities, pain and inflammation, but your wonderful medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, has made me well and I can recommend the same to all that are troubled with these complaints."—Mrs. Jennie Akerman, c/o Rev. K. Akerman, Cloquet, Minnesota.

From Mrs. J. D. Murdoch, Quincy, Mass.

South Quincy, Mass.—"The doctor said that I had organic trouble and he doctored me for a long time and I did not get any relief. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and I tried it and found relief before I had finished the first bottle. I continued taking it all through middle life and am now a strong, healthy woman and earn my own living."—Mrs. Jane D. Murdoch, 25 Gordon St., South Quincy, Mass.

ANCIENT METAL WORK LASTS

Metallurgist's Investigation of the Nature of Old Egyptian Objects Proves Interesting.

In a paper read at the recent meeting of the (British) Institute of Metals in Ghent, Belgium, the writer described his investigations into the crystal structure of Egyptian metal objects, all more than 2,000 years old, made either of bronze or copper.

An interesting photograph reproduced in the paper is of a Roman coin which still shows cores.

The writer described the case of a bronze knife 3,500 years old, in which the original cored structure has endured until the present day and is still perfectly stable at atmospheric temperatures. The view is held that the knife was hammered cold and so the best cutting edge was obtained. The crystal grains are very small, there having been apparently no crystal growth during the ages that have passed since the metal was first worked. This shows either that recrystallization does not take place at ordinary temperatures or if it does then many times 3,500 years is required to effect the change.

WORLD'S LARGEST ORGAN

The new organ which is to be placed in the great cathedral now in course of erection in Liverpool will probably be classed among the wonders of the world, as it will be the largest organ in existence. According to the "Musical Times," the organ in the Sydney town hall now has the distinction of standing first in point of size.

The Liverpool organ will take four years to construct. It will contain 215 drawstops, speaking and mechanical, and the total number of pipes will reach the remarkable number of 10,567. It will occupy two special chambers, one on each side of the chancel. It is the gift of Mrs. James Barrow of Waterloo, near Liverpool, and will cost $450,000.

P. L. Anderson, Anne Tharaldson and Mr. and Mrs. Huseth autoed to Viking last Sunday evening to take in the cantata given by Rev. Roseland's choir. Mrs. Huseth and Miss Taraldson are members of the choir

Yes, that is the coffee, McFaddens Happy Day coffee. None better. Over two million packages sold every month. It's the best 35 and 40c coffee sold in America for 30 cents. Sold by R. Reierson, Holt, Minn.

Four of the young gentlemen of Holt made a very enjoyable auto tiip to Middle River last Saturday evening, to take in the dance. Some returned with a livery, but Pete, however, returned with his auto the following Sunday. The car presented a rather muddy appearance. There seems to be a question in some of the boys' minds as to whether they had an enjoyable time or not.

We have just received a supply of House and Floor Paint.

For State Senator

To the Voters of the 67th Legislative District.

At the solicitation of numerous friends throughout the district comprising Marshall, Kittson and Roseau counties, it gives me pleasure to announce my candidacy for the office of State Senator

If honored with the nomination and election I hereby pledge myself to carry out the wishes of the people irrespective of personal views or opinions, as I conceive it to be the highest duty of a representative to represent the will, not of himself, but those of who honor and trust him to do their bidding for the welfare of the district

Primarily I [illegible] attitude in the county option question, and I recognize the right of the public to such a statement from one who seeks their support for so important and honorable a position as that of State Senator I am in favor of County Option and if elected I will not only vote for, but will use my best efforts in furthering the adoption of such a bill, believing that to be the best solution of the liquor question.

I further pledge myself to use my best efforts to further the [illegible] development of Northern Minnesota and especially the counties that I shall represent.

Assuring you that I will at all times endeavor [illegible] our interests and [illegible] of the 67th Legislative district, I remain

Wilson Will Leave Salvation of Mexico to Rebels, Huerta Being Permanently Eliminated

GEN. FUNSTON'S TROOPS ARRIVE

European Countries Join Latin America In Bringing Pressure on Dictator To Accept Mediation--U. S. To Keep Vera Cruz Temporarily

Washington, D. C., April 27.— President Wilson Has Practically Decided to Let the Mexican Rebels Try to Work Out the Salvation of Their Country. He will Hold the Vera Cruz Custom House, However, Until They Establish a Worthy Government When He Will Turn It Over to Them and Withdraw the American Forces. Meanwhile, Unless Americans are Massacred, the Troops at Vera Cruz Will Wage no Aggressive Campaign

Washington, D. C., April 27.—The Mexican war situation has taken on a decidedly Pacific aspect. With Huerta's consent to mediation, leaving the details only to be arranged, and President Wilson's decision to wage no aggressive campaign with his troops at Vera Cruz, the probability of real war has become, within the past 24 hours, a mere possibility.

President Wilson appears to have decided to eliminate Huerta through the mediation plan by letting the Latin-American republics conduct the negotiators, and in so doing deprives Huerta of the opportunity to stir up an anti-American feeling in Central and South America in the event he is deposed. If on the other hand Huerta shows a selfish nature in impossible requests, Latin-America will readily see his objects and block them.

So pacific is the outlook that the Associated Press and other large news gathering mediums have cut off their extra service and it will not be resumed unless affairs take a sudden and unexpected turn.

Washington, D. C., April 27.—Huerta must go, despite any mediation plans. This is the possitive assertion of one of the leading diplomats at the national capital. Fear was expressed that Huerta might attach many impossible conditions to his acceptance of the mediation plan, met with the answer that his conditions did not matter. Wilson will eliminate Huerta even if he has to recognize the Constitutionalists.

Washington, April 27.—Huerta's formal acceptance of the good offices of Brazil, Chile and Argentina to attempt to bring about peace, was cabled to the Spanish ambassador, Riano, tonight by Portillo Y' Rojas, foreign minister of the Huerta cabinet.

Immediately upon receipt of Huerta's acceptance, the three South American diplomats began a conference lasting far into the night, discussing the next move of the peace plan. The text of Huerta's acceptance was not made public.

Washington, April 27.—The tenseness in the Mexican situation was relieved today as representatives of Argentine, Brazil and Chile, supported by pressure from all Latin American and from foremost powers of Europe, concentrated their efforts toward a pacific adjustment of the crisis.

The success of the first steps toward mediation, the prompt acceptance by the United States, and the announcement of the Spanish ambassador that Huerta had accepted the tender of the good offices produced a feeling of hope which was reflected in administration quarters and congress, where "war talk" gave way to a spirit of conciliation.

The three South American envoys conferred throughout the day. Pending receipt of a formal acceptance by Huerta no proposals will be submitted. It was also pointed out that no conditions from either party as to the terms that will be acceptable has yet been formally placed before the intermediaries.

Through two separate diplomatic sources Wilson and Bryan have been assured Huerta is ready to accept the good offices and is now drafting a formal acceptance.

Pressure from Germany, Great Britain and France, advising Huerta to accept and approving the attitude of the Latin-American countries emphasized that world wide influences are working to bring peace.

Both the navy and war departments meanwhile are continuing their efforts to care for the refugees and perfecting plans for any unexpected turn of events. All ship commanders are being instructed to spread the news of mediation throughout Mexico.

By this Secretary Daniels hopes the feeling toward Americans may be alleviated and refugees enabled to depart unmolested.

Advices told of the arrangements for the safe departure of Americans from Mexico City. The French ambassador gave the state department a message he had received stating that while there has been some anti-American manifestations in the Mexican capital, order now prevailed.

Bryan declared that no Americans had been killed or injured since the crisis of the last two weeks began; that though many have been detained at Aguas Calientes, Cordoba and Orizaba, efforts are being made to obtain their release. Order prevails at Vera Cruz.

Brigadier General Funston of the army is expected to be in command of the situation tomorrow.

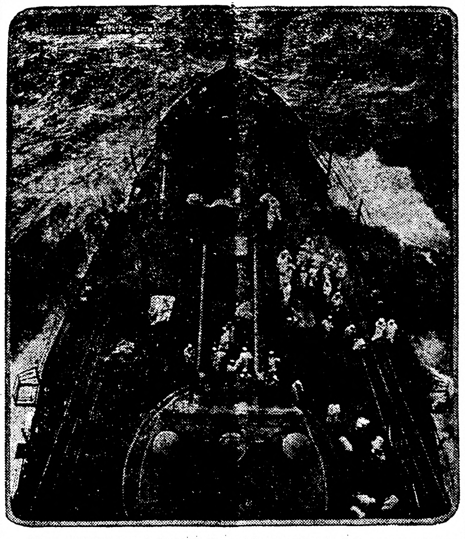
Vera Cruz, April 27.—With all ceremony the firing of a salute and a dress parade, the American flag was raised over the division headquarters of Rear Admiral Fletcher. Over the customs house the flag has been flying since the landing of the American forces, but until now there has been no ceremony indicating the formal occupation of Vera Cruz.

Transports with Brigadier General Funston's command aboard were off the port late today, but there have been no indication that the military force will be sen ashore now If the army lands, the blue jackets now on duty here will go aboard their ships but the marines will be left for land service.

Driven From City

Five Americans arrived by train from Mexico City today virtually expelled by Huerta. They were arrested at Pachuca for an unknown cause. One of them Dr. Hoskins, was treated rougher than others, but all were told to leave the country.

MISSISSIPPI HURRIES TO THE SCENE



View of the forward deck of the battleship Mississippi, commanded by Lieut. Com. W. G. Roper, which hurried from Pensacola to the Mexican coast. She is one of the vessels of the Atlantic reserve fleet and has four twelve-inch, eight eight-inch, eight seven-inch and twelve three-inch guns.

NO SUFFRAGE DECISION

HIGH COURT ADJOURNS WITHOUT TAKING ACTION.

Over 1,000 Illinois Saloons Will Have to Close, Temporarily at Least.

Chicago, Ill., April 25.—Failure of the supreme court to determine the constitutionality of the Illinois woman's suffrage act before the adjournment of the April term Thursday leaves the issue in doubt until the court reconvenes the first Tuesday in June.

The immediate result is that the 959 saloons closed by the elections of April 7 and the eight-odd closed by municipal elections last Tuesday will have to go out of business, at least temporarily. It also means local officials elected by women's votes, including six Chicago aldermen-elec, will not be disturbed for the present.

Two of the aldermanic candidates defeated by the women—T. H. Donoghue in the Twenty-eighth ward and W. F. Schofield in the Twenty-first—filed notice of contest during the day. Both attacked the constitutionality of the suffrage act. Schofield also charged the misuse of money by his successful opponent, Hugo Krause, Progressive, who was strongly supported by women of the statesmen's ward.

Mary A. Sellers, for five years stenographer in the banking department of the state auditor's office, whose resignation was demanded by State Auditor James J. Brady when the Democratic administration came into power at Springfield, must be reinstated in her position. The supreme court so decided. The ruling upholds the constitutionality of the state-wide civil-service act and places beyond the power of any political party or faction to discharge a competent employe on trumped-up charges through political prejudice. Forty-nine hundred employes are directly affected by the ruling. Their aggregate salaries amount to about five million dollars annually.

The opinion knocked down every ruling which has been handed out from Attorney General Lucey's office to the effect that the act is unconstitutional.

I. W. W. HIT SALVATION ARMY

Crowd at Seattle Street Meeting Attacks and Disperse Band of Worshipers.

Seattle, Wash., April 25.—Several street speakers of the Industrial Workers of the World and their followers objecting to the noise made by a Salvation Army band which was playing in the street, attacked the Salvationists, who retreated to their barracks. Police reserves were summoned to protect the religious workers, many of whom were women. Detectives near the scene when the trouble began held the attacking party at bay with drawn pistols until the reserves arrived from police headquarters. During the retreat of the Salvation Army many stones and clubs were hurled.

Four Are Burned to Death.

Houston, Tex., April 27.—The Houston Light guard and troop A of the Houston cavalry, part of the state militia, were ordered by Governor Colquitt to be prepared to leave for the border at any time.

ENTOMBED PARTY SAFE

MINE SIEGE CRUX OF COLORADO STRIKE WAR.

Desultory Skirmishes Occur in Other Districts—Lists of Dead Reaches Twenty-nine.

Trinidad, Colo., April 25.—The feeling of relief over the announcement in Trinidad Thursday afternoon that all of the women and children entombed in the wrecked slope of the Empire mine had been taken out in safety was turned to gloom again by the receipt of authentic information that the Southwestern mine has been razed, and 20 more miners, their wives and children, and a number of guards have fled into the mine entrance to escape a hail of lead.

The known death list, as a result of the fighting that started on Monday and has been almost continuous since, is 29. Twenty-one lives were lost on Monday in the Ludlow battle, four employes of the Victor American Fuel company are known to have been killed at Delagua, and the bodies of four strikers, killed during the fighting in and about Aguilar, are lying in the morgue at that place.

Late today strikers had cleared away the wreckage at the mouth of the Empire mine, which was closed by explosions of dynamite, and after a parley with the entombed prisoners, conducted three women, two children, and Superintendent William Waddell, who was wounded in fighting, to a place of safety.

Desultory firing occurred in the forenoon at Ludlow. The main body of armed strikers was believed to be in the vicinity of Rugby and Primrose. A small number of guards was prepared to resist any attack at Rouse. A large body of armed men was reported marching from Trinidad against the militia at Ludlow.

Messages received at the Colorado Fuel & Iron company offices from Rouse said that Primrose was being dynamited. All of the inhabitants are believed to have left the camp.

Two Killed in Motor Collision.

Ottawa, Ill., April 27.—Fred Wasmer of Varna and Eugene Reeves of Indiana were instantly killed near Varna when a motorcycle on which they were riding collided head-on with an automobile.

CARRANZA'S ATTITUDE SECRET

REFUSES TO TALK CONCERNING MEDIATION.

Rebel Leader Expecting Statement From Wilson Dealing With His Note.

Chihuahua, Mex., April 28.—General Venustiana Carranza, chief of the Constitutionalists, received a telegram telling of the offer of the governments of Argentina, Brazil and Chile to use their good offices in attempting a solution of the Mexican question. Whether he was included in the offer could not be learned, nor would he tal for publication on the subject.

Carranza is expecting a statement from President Wilson dealing with his note, the note which caused consternation among all classes here and accelerated the exodus of foreigners who, with the departure of a train load Saturday night, are now pretty well out of Northern Mexico.

Officials here insist that the purport of the note was friendly and that there was no intention of conveying the threat that if the American troops did not leave Vera Cruz, as Carranza said that in common justice they should, the Rebels would take the field against the United States.

It is known that the United States has asked Carranza for a precise statement of his attitude to clear up questions arising from a possibly faulty translation of his note. While it is not known what answer he has made, it was pointed out that his brusque refusal to accept the offers of certain Federal commanders to join forces against a foreign enemy plainly indicates that he does not contemplate war with the United States.

Refugees Reach California.

San Diego, Cal., April 28.—The monitor Cheyenne, carrying 81 American refugees from Ensenda, Lower California, has just reached this port. It is believed that practically all have heeded the advice of the state department to leave the country.

Villa Leaves Jaurez.

Jaurez, Mex., April 28.—General Francisco Villa has gone to Chihuahua on a special train.

Although speculators and shippers gave the hog market a little firmness at the outset, prices failed to hold. Packers held off. Most of the cattle offered seemed to be of poor quality. Choice beeves were in demand. Sheep and lambs went mainly to country buyers.

All Tampico Refugees Home.

Galveston, Texas, April 28.—The battleship Connecticut and torpedo boat convoy Dixie came into port Sunday bringing the last of the American refugees from Tampico and nearby districts. "There may be five or six Americans still in Tampico, but they would not leave," said Captain John J. Knapp of Connecticut just after the battleship had dropped anchor. There were 490 refugees on the Connecticut and 570 on the Dixie. In all, about 2,100 American refugees have landed.

LOBBY REPORT MADE

JUDICIARY BODY GIVES HOUSE FINDINGS IN N. A. M. AND McDERMOTT CASE.

MAJORITY IS FOR CENSURE

Minority Recommendation Demands Expulsion of Member From Illinois —Lobbyists Are "Informally" Condemned in Statement.

Washington, D. C., April 27.—Whether the invisible government is greater than the constituted government was the issue put squarely up to the house of representatives Friday by the members of the judiciary committee of that body.

On behalf of the majority of the committee, Representative Floyd of Arkansas, Democrat, presented a report which in its recommendations not only treats the invisible government with great consideration, but declares it immune from punishment by the constituted government.

The report by the majority of the committee recommends merely the censure of Representative James T. McDermott of Chicago for his participation in the lobby scandal. A minority report by Representative John M. Nelson of Wisconsin and George S. Graham of Pennsylvania, Republicans, recommends the expulsion of McDermott.

The majority of the committee "informally" condemns the officials of the National Association of Manufacturers' J. Philip Byrd, John Kirby Jr., and James A. Emery, and former Field Agent Martin M. Mulhall for "improper and reprehensible lobby activities and systematic secret and disreputable practises against the honor, dignity and integrity" of the house in the last congress.

But any formal punishment, even censure of this organization or of its officials, is beyond the power of the house, says the majority of the committee, because the offenses were committed during the previous congress.

That the invisible government is not immune from punishment by the constituted government is contended by Representative FitzHenry of Illinois, Democrat, who filed a minority report.

Representative Floyd announced that he would call the report up for action by the house at a later date. At that time the house will decide the issue raised by the invisible government and the constituted government.

The resolution of expulsion proposed in the minority report by Representatives Nelson and Graham follows:

> Resolved, That James T. McDermott, a representative from the state of Illinois, having been guilty of gross misconduct entirely inconsistent with his public trust and duty, be and he is hereby expelled from his seat as a member of this house.

In their dissenting views recommend the expulsion of McDermott Representatives Nelson and Graham say:

"The large purpose of any action to be taken in cases of this kind is not punishment of an individual, but the protection of the honor of the house, the maintenance of the confidence of the people in its integrity and the preservation of its self-respect before the eyes of the world.

"The undersigned in this minority report respectfully submit that a careful weighing of the evidence by the membership of the house, provided we lay aside for the moment a wholly misplaced feeling of personal sympathy and look at the contradictions, evasions, and shifts in his testimony with cold common sense and dispassionate judgment, must inevitably lead to the conviction that Mr. McDermott is guilty, to say the least, of corrupt misconduct, wholly incompatible with official honor, trust, and duty.

"His admitted transactions with the district liquor dealers' lobby; his undeniable transactions with the pawnbrokers' lobby; his peculiar relationship with the National Brewers' association; his proven transactions with Mulhall in accepting sums of money; his inexcusable action in asking the manufacturers' association for financial credit, and his soliciting campaign funds from corporations, knowing that such contributions are in violation of law, these interests being vitally concerned in pending legislation and in every instance it being clear that Mr. McDermott received these funds in his representative capacity—all these venal transactions lead imperatively to the conclusion of guilt to a moral certainty."

Spain Would Be Mediator.

Spain, it is reported, has expressed his willingness to act as arbitrator between the United States and Provisional President Huerta, if agreeable to both sides.

WOMAN COULD NOT SIT UP

Now Does Her Own Work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her.

Ironton, Ohio.—"I am enjoying better health now than I have for twelve years. When I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I could not sit up. I had female troubles and was very nervous. I used the remedies a year and I can do my work and for the last eight months I have worked for other women, too. I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough for I know I never would have been as well if I had not taken it and I recommend it to suffering women."

Daughter Helped Also.

"I gave it to my daughter when she was thirteen years old. She was in school and was a nervous wreck, and could not sleep nights. Now she looks so healthy that even the doctor speaks of it. You can publish this letter if you like."—Mrs. RENA BOWMAN, 161 S. 10th Street, Ironton, Ohio.

Why will women continue to suffer day in and day out and drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

State News of General Interest

MILITIA ORDERED TO BE PREPARED

MINNESOTA NATIONAL GUARD MAY BE CALLED OUT AT ANY TIME.

PLANS ARE ALL BEING MADE

Regimental Officers Directed to Have Men Ready for Quick Mobilization—Most Will Volunteer.

Minneapolis.—Colonel Erle D. Luce, of the First regiment, Minnesota National guard, in common with the other regiment commanders in Minnesota, has received orders from General Fred B. Wood of the state troops to get in touch with the other officers immediately and to get ready to mobilize at short notice.

Most Will Volunteer.

Anticipating the receipt of the order Colonel Luce met with the officers of the First regiment. At the meeting he was assured that far more than 75 per cent of the men would volunteer for service in event of a call to arms and was assured that the officers would also volunteer.

This assured the acceptance of the Minnesota troops under their present organization. Fort Snelling would be the mobilization station under the law.

Twin City Recruits.

Colonel Luce has ordered the companies to recruit above the peace footing required by the war department, though all the companies are well above the minimum required. Recruits are being taken at the armories both in Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Should a call come to the Minnesota national guard, the officers believe the three regiments would be held at Fort Snelling only long enough to innoculate the men against typhoid fever, which would take but a few days.

CADETS PREPARE FOR WAR

Equipment Comes and Plan is to Organize a Regiment for Mexico Service.

Minneapolis.—War preparations are on at the University of Minnesota. The department headquarters of the regular army on request forwarded to the university two three-inch field guns and two caissons for artillery practise. Battery F at the university has war aspirations and will utilize the guns for practise in sighting, loading and firing.

Captain Charles C. Pulin, inspector and instructor for the state militia, is forming a class to instruct officers in the war game.

The cadets will form a regiment of the present cadets and alumni if there is a general call to Mexico. The students plan to have Major E. L. Butts, Twenty-fifth infantry, U. S. A., former commandant, now in Honolulu, for colonel, and Lieutenant J. B. Woolnough, U. S. A., present commandant, as lieutenant colonel.

Active and alumni officers will be asked to command the companies.

Spanish War Veterans Eager

Duluth.—Declaring that they are in favor of peace, but not for the kind purchased at the price of daily insults to the flag, 79 members of Camp John McEwen, United Spanish War Veterans, tendered their services by wire to President Wilson. They asked the privilege of again defending the flag of their nation in the threatened war with Mexico. The resolution to the president was adopted unanimously and with much cheering.

Buffalo Girl Killed By Auto.

Montrose.—Miss Marie Pohl Buffalo, was killed almost instantly when an automobile in which she was riding with Ed Boslough, Mike Swenson and Miss Edna Varner, turned over about a mile east of Waverly The party was returning from a dance. The accident occurred at a sharp turn in the road. Boslough, who was driving, received a severe cut on the forehead. Swenson and Miss Varner escaped uninjured.

To Resist Second Wife's Claims

Mankato.—The funeral of J[illegible] Micke, who died in a hospital in Minneapolis several days after an operation had been performed to remove a bullet that he had fired into his head, while despondent over the disappearance of his newly wedded second wife, took place here and was largely attended. He was well known, and left an estate valued at about $40 000. Steps will be taken on behalf of his seven small children to see that the second wife does not obtain the property.

REFUGEES REACH MINNESOTA

Women, Patients at Rochester, Tell of Night Attack on Home by Villa's Men.

Rochester.—Senora de la Vega Rafaela and Senorita Maria L. Flores, Mexican refugees, are in Rochester, coming here to consult surgeons. They tell a thrilling tale of how they lost all of their possessions in the Mexican land at the hands of the forces of General Villa.

At Culiacan the Rafaelas owned a fine estate with a mansion of twenty-seven rooms. In the darkness of the night, while the family was sleeping, the rebel forces attacked the home and ordered the inmates to get out at once. All jewels and other valuables were taken.

In the flight Senora Rafaela became separated from the rest of the family and took refuge in a chicken-house, where she spent the night. Her family, thinking that she had been captured or killed, continued on their way, catching a train and crossing the border to El Paso. When daylight came, Senora Rafaela disguised herself as a peasant woman, and by this means crossed the border unharmed, and later located her family at El Paso.

The rebel band took possession of the property, driving their horses into the house and watering the animals in the bath tub.

Members of the Rafaela family are well to do and had placed money in a bank at El Paso, which has furnished them with the necessities of life since their forced abandonment of their home. They have no hope they will ever regain their property.

FARMINGTON "DRYS" WIN OUT

Temperance Men Win Contest and Three Saloons Close as a Result.

Farmington.—The Farmington election contest involving the granting of liquor licenses has been decided in favor of the "drys" by Judge Johnson. On March 10 the village voted upon the license question, and the election board found that 154 voters voted against license and 152 for license. On one ballot all the printed words had been scratched out and two ballots were folded together, both being for license, thus making the total number of ballots in the box 309.

The election board could not agree upon the disposition of the ballots and therefore reported the matter undecided, and the village council allowed the saloons to run. Thereupon the "drys" instituted an election contest. Judge Johnson decided that the two ballots which had been folded together had been voted by the same person and that neither could be counted, and also held that the scratched ballot could not be counted, and that the "wets" had failed to receive a majority of the lawful votes cast at the election, and that consequently the town was "dry." The three saloons of the town have been closed.

Alfred E. Rietz of Farmington and Lind, Ureland & Jerome of Minneapolis represented Warren A. Hansomb, the contestant, and Earl C. Wilmot of Farmington and Albert Schaller of St. Paul represented the contestee.

E. L. RAAB OUT FOR GOVERNOR

Entrance of Another Into Republican Field May Complicate Situation Somewhat.

Duluth.—Second choice votes may decide who is to be the Republican nominee for Governor because of the unexpected filing of Elwood L. Raab, of this city, for that position. With but two candidates—Governor Eberhart and William E. Lee—in the field there would be no second choice space provided on the primary ballot, but with three in the race, this is made necessary, and if the contest is close this vote may determine the result.

Mr. Raab was born at Stewartville, Olmstead county, in 1860 and moved to Duluth in 1874. He has been a surveyor and mining engineer, he says for thirty years and was one of the first to discover iron ore in the range country. He was associated with the Merritts at one time, he asserts, and aided them in locating valuable mineral deposits.

Lutherans Hold Conference.

Thief River Falls.—The Park [illegible]sion special conference of the Evangelical Lutheran synod of Missouri Ohio and other states held its spring session in St. John's Evangelical Lutheran church in this city. The district, representing a constituency of over 1,000 voting members and [illegible],000 adherents, is the largest in the German Lutheran church of Minnesota. Pastors from every part of the state north of the twin cities were in attendance.

MAY COMPEL STATE AUDITOR

Game and Fish Protective Society Demand $30,000 for Fish Commission.

St. Paul.—Attorneys appointed by the Minnesota Game and Fish Protective association will appear shortly before the state supreme court in a certiorari proceeding to compel State Auditor S. G. Iverson to turn over to the state game and fish commission $30,000 received by the state from game licenses for residents. P. W. Guilford and H. G. Carleton were named by the association to act in the case, and the expense of the suit will be borne by the association.

The state commission will have a special meeting in a few days and make formal demand for the money. When refused, it will apply to the supreme court for the writ.

Mr. Iverson contends that the legislature made an appropriation to cover all expenses of game and fish protection. The commission asserts it is still entitled to the resident game license fees. The appropriation is nearly gone and unless the suit is won the commission will have to lay off all but four of its game wardens next month until Aug. 1.

SNELLING TROOPS IN MEXICO

Regiment That Went to Front First Had Been in State for Two Years.

Minneapolis.—The sending of the Twenty-eighth infantry of the United States regular army to Vera Cruz was of almost as much interest to Minneapolis residents as the departure of Minnesota troops would have been for the regiment, with a Minneapolis man as one of the commissioned officers and Colonel Edward H. Plummer, was at Fort Snelling for two years. Since early in 1913 the regiment has been at the Mexican border.

Second Lieutenant Charles Winslow Elliott, son of Judge Charles B. Elliott, sailed with the regiment. Lieutenant Elliott is a graduate of the University of Minnesota. He entered the army after taking an examination and Minneapolis friends are expecting his promotion to rank of first lieutenant in a few weeks.

The regiment since it has been on the Mexican border has been drilling and getting into shape for a rough active campaign.

JOHN LIND ORIGINATES PLAN

Minnesotan Responsible for Policy of Administration in Troublous Mexico.

Washington.—John Lind, the president's special envoy to General Huerta, virtually originated the plan pursued in Mexico by the president.

That plan, when fully carried out, means the ultimate elimination of Victoriano Huerta from the Mexican situation in order to enable the Constitutionalists to restore order, according to the belief expressed by members of congress who say they know the situation.

Mr. Lind, as a former member of the house, was in the chamber during the debate, and quietly urged members to vote for the resolution as drafted, containing a direct reference to Huerta. His reason for wanting Huerta's name to remain in the resolution is that he believes that so long as the dictator remains in charge of the so-called de facto government in Mexico City, internal strife will continue in the troubled republic.

50,000 AUTOS IN MINNESOTA

Number of Motor Cars Reach That Mark Says Secretary of State.

St. Paul.—There are 50,001 automobiles licensed in Minnesota, the 50,000 mark having been passed when A. J. Berthiaume, clerk in the office of Secretary of State Schmahl finished the work of the day.

No. 50,000 went to Arthur G. Rice, St. Paul. No. 50,001 was sent to D. C. Armstrong of Albert Lea, a banker and former president of the Minnesota State Bankers' association.

Licenses are being issued by the secretary of state at the rate of about 1[illegible] a day and it is believed that the 60,000 mark will be reached in a year. The numbers date back to January 1, 1912; Mayor Herbert P. Keller of St. Paul has No. 1.

The last legislature failed to make any provision for the extension of the state licensing system after January 1 next, and all licenses are issued to expire at that time.

Slayton Man Voluntary Bankrupt.

Mankato.—Peter M. Nelson, a hardware merchant of Slayton, has filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy in the federal court in this city.

Old Officers Reappointed.

Virginia.—At a meeting of the city council Edward F. Johnson was reappointed city engineer at a salary of $200 a month. C. Christofferson was given his old position as street commissioner. These two places have been a bone of contention with the council for a month, and other men were appointed. In the case of the engineer, the former appointee, A. E. Anderson, failed to qualify and Robert Lindsay, appointed street commissioner, could not secure confirmation.

Mary, aged five, was watching her mother dust the Encyclopaedia Britannica—where it stood a long phalanx of volumes on the bottom shelf of the bookcase.

"What," she asked, "is an encyclopaedia?"

"An encyclopaedia," replied the mother, "is a lot of books that tell you about everything you want to know."

The next day Mary, whose recent studies at Sunday school had dealt with the Creation, was discovered seated upon the floor turning over the leaves of that volume of the encyclopaedia which bears the superscription Edw—Eva.

"What are you doing?" asked the grown-up intruder.

"I'm looking for a picture of God making the world," replied Mary.

ECZEMA ON BACK AND CHEST

Pierson, N. Dakota.—"The eczema started on my scalp. It finally went on to the back of my neck, then on to my back, arms and chest. It broke out in pimples first and then seemed to run together in some places, making a sore about the size of a dime. At times the itching and burning were so intense that it seemed unbearable. The more I scratched it the worse it became, and there would be a slight discharge from it, especially on my scalp, so as to make my hair matted and sticky close to the scalp. The hair was dry, lifeless and thin. My hair was falling so terribly that I had begun to despair of ever finding relief. My clothing irritated the eruption on my back. The affected parts were almost a solid scab.

"I had been bothered with eczema for about a year and a half. Then I began using the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used them daily for two months and I was cured." (Signed) Miss Mildred Dennis, Apr. 30, 1913.

1913 RECORD

Magnificent Crops in all Western Canada

All parts of the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, have produced wonderful yields of Wheat, Oats, Barley and Flax. Wheat graded from Contract to No. 1 Hard, weighed heavy and yielded from 20 to 45 bushels per acre; 22 bushels was about the total average. Mixed Farming may be considered fully as profitable an industry as grain raising. The excellent grasses full of nutrition, are the only food required either for beef or dairy purposes. In 1912, and again in 1913, at Chicago, Manitoba carried off the Championship for beef steer. Good schools, markets convenient, climate excellent. For the homesteader, the man who wishes to farm extensively, or the investor, Canada offers the biggest opportunity of any place on the continent.

Small Pox.

Dr. Greene of the State Board of Health was here last Monday and visited some of the homes out in the country. He is here to assist the authorities in stamping out the small pox which has become pretty generally spread out over the central part of the county. Several cases are reported from the following towns: Jupiter, Tegner, Davis, Norway, Percy, Hazelton and in the unorganized town east of Percy. The doctor advises the people to get vaccinated, as being quarantined with the small pox is so inconvenient. It is much better to have a sore arm for a few days than to be shut up for six weeks or so. Families infected with the disease cannot sell butter or cream off the farm. The easiest way out of an embarrassing situation seems for everybody to get vaccinated the sooner the better.—[illegible] Budget

Mrs. Karin Anderson died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. F. Carlson, last Friday, April 17th, at the old age of 82 years. She was born in Eidsvold, Norway, in 1832, emigrated to this country in 1890, and first located at Red Wing, Minn., and later moved to Holt with her daughter and son-in-law, F. Carlson. She leaves three daughters to mourn her death, Mrs. F. Carlson, Mrs. Gust Peterson, both of Holt, and Mrs. Engebretson, of Red Wing, Minn., and a number of other relatives and friends. The funeral services were held at Norwegian Lutheran Church the following Tuesday afternoon and the remains laid to rest in the Holt cemetery.

[illegible] Holt and vicinity. Have your family vaccinated as there is quite a number of cases of small pox around the country. Vaccination is for the benefit of yourself and the whole community at large. Small pox is not a very welcome disease, but by being vaccinated you may keep it away; should you have it, it would be in a mild form, red pimples without fever. If sickness like this or other spreading diseases should appear in your family, do not take your cream to the creamery; nor butter to the stores for by doing so you are under the penalty of the state law.

DELEGATES TO BE NAMED AS PEACE ENVOYS DESIRE

U. S., HUERTA AND CARRANZA TO BE REPRESENTED AT MEDIATION CONFERENCES FROM NOW ON.

REBELS FORMALLY REFUSE TO AGREE TO ARMISTICE

Asserted That No Form of Treaty Can Ever Be Arranged Between Constitutionalists and Huerta—Arbitrators May Change Their Seat of Actions.

Washington, May 5.—The mediation plans of the South American envoys who are trying to straighten out the troubled affairs of Mexico, are going steadily forward, the next step in their procedure receiving most careful attention.

Delegates to Be Named.

The United States, the Huerta government and General Carranza are expected to name their delegates, as requested by the mediators Saturday night, within the next day or two.

The delegates for the United States have not yet been selected but it has became known that it will not be officials closely identified with the government.

Will Name Outsider.

As the three South American envoys are accredited to the United States this government does not wish to name a government official to deal with them, but to have an outsider who would deal with them without reference to their official relations to the United States.

This has eliminated Robert L. Lansing, counsellor of the state department, and in general all other government officials. To the names of John Bassett Moore and John Lind and Henry White, already mentioned, are now added those of Richard Olney, former secretary of state; Dr. David Jayne Hill, former ambassador to Germany, and Hannis Taylor, former minister to Spain.

De La Barra Expected.

The Huerta delegate is expected to be Francisco De La Barra, now Mexican minister at Paris, but nothing definite has been heard from Mexico City. A Mexico City dispatch, however, says Joaquin D. Casasus, former Mexican ambassador to the United States, has been hurriedly ordered to proceed to Washington from Carlsbad, where he has been taking the cure. The nature of his mission was not made public though.

Carranza Delegate Arrives.

Rafael Zubaran, personal representative of General Carranza, arrived here and is available as the Carranza delegate, although his particular mission in coming from Carranza is still to be announced and it is not yet definite that Carranza will go to the extent of naming a delegate to deal with the mediators.

When the delegates of the three parties arrive, it is expected the mediators will be ready to take up the crucial issues between the United States and Huerta at least, and, if possible, between Huerta and Carranza. Whether a plan of adjustment can be worked out is still an open question, even in the minds of the mediators. They expect the delegates from the three parties to assist them to get together on some middle ground. The mediators will continue to be the main body formulating a plan of settlement, as the delegates from the three parties will have no plenipotentiary powers and will act merely as advisers.

Carranza Refuses Armistice.

It became definitely established Sunday that General Carranza would not agree to the request of the mediators that he suspend military operations against Huerta pending the mediation proceedings and the envoys have been advised of this decision. It has been apparent for several days that Carranza intended to rush the army southward, but it was not until then that this was communicated as a finality.

It is said this will have no effect on checking the general plans of mediation, which will go steadily forward.

No Mediation Possible.

Close associates of Carranza, who have now arrived here, say that no mediation between them and Huerta is possible and that any move on the part of the three mediators to include in their program such a scheme for the general adjustment of Mexican affairs will be regarded as being outside the scope of their labors.

Carranza's refusal of an armistice with Huerta is the first adverse reply the mediators have received. On the other hand, favorable comment is made in circles close to the envoys upon the amenability Huerta has shown.

Aside from the personnel of the delegates from the three parties to the controversy, the mediators have given some informal consideration as to whether it may become desirable to go to some neutral point outside of Washington to carry forward their negotiations with the three parties concerned.

The only purpose in this would be to forestall the feeling on the part of any one of the parties that their sessions at the seat of government here might tend to a leaning toward the viewpoint of the United States.

ENEMY APPEARS TO BE HOSTILE

OVER 10,000 MEXICANS WATCHING VERA CRUZ.

Gen. Funston Reports to Wotherspoon and Garrison that Federals are Throwing Up Defenses.

Washington, May 5.—Dispatches from Brigadier-General Funston on the situation at Vera Cruz were the subject of a long conference at the war department between Secretary Garrison and Major General Wotherspoon, chief of staff of the army. It was said General Funston has asked for instructions in view of the hostile attitude of the Mexican army near the city.

Earlier the general had reported that the American outposts at Vera Cruz were being watched by the Mexicans, and there were over 10,000 troops encamped in the vicinity. These dispatches were summed up by Secretary of War Garrison in the following statement:

"I am in receipt of a dispatch from General Funston regarding the incident at the pumping plant. He says that the officer in command of the Mexican troops was Major Zapota, of the engineer corps of the Mexican army. He refers to the fact that very little dependable news about the conditions in the interior is coming in, because no more refugees are now coming into Vera Cruz.

"It is reported to him that General Maas has about 4,000 men at Soledad, and there are an unknown number, not larger, watching our lines. He understands that the Mexicans have 5,000 troops at Jalapa, and about 1,500 at Palma, where they are throwing up defenses. He says that there are many wild rumors afloat which are not worthy of credence. Some provision sellers came into the city from the north.

"The city is entirely quiet. A Mexican officer who was in Vera Cruz in civilian clothes was directed to leave."

GENERAL D. E. SICKLES DIES

Had Been Prominent Figure in Affairs of United States for Over Half Century.

New York, May 5.—General Daniel E. Sickles died at his home here. His wife was at his bedside at the end. Mrs. Sickles had been estranged from her husband for more than a quarter of a century.

The final reconciliation was brought about largely through the efforts of their son, Stanton, it is understood, the general recently having made advances to his wife when assured by Stanton that they would be met half way.

General Sickles' death was due to cerebral hemorrhages and paralysis. General Sickles was born in New York city, Oct. 20, 1825.

In 1844 he was admitted to the bar, and three years later, after dabbing in local politics with some success, he was elected to the legislature. In 1853 he was appointed corporation counsel of New York, and during the same year went to London as secretary to James Buchanan, then minister to the court of St. James and later president of the United States.

Upon his return to the United States Sickles was elected to the New York senate, and later became a member of congress.

During the Civil war General Sickles began his career which since then has kept him almost continuously in the eye of the public. His was one of the most prominent figures in that great struggle and he emerged from it severely crippled.

In 1869 General Sickles was made minister to Spain.

UNIT OF ARMY IN VERA CRUZ

Forces Under Funston Will Be Sufficient to Advance on Mexico City After Saturday.

Galveston, Tex., May 1.—A complete unit of the United States army, prepared to advance on Mexico City, will be under command of Brigadier General Frederick Funston when the troops of the Sixth cavalry, regimental headquarters of the field artillery and the horses and mules of both the cavalry and field artillery, which sailed on the converted transport San Marcos, reach Vera Cruz Saturday.

The San Marcos carries the advance of artillery, while the 350 mules aboard will pack the mountain guns already en route to Vera Cruz. Other troops and great quantities of supplies are here ready to be sent to Vera Cruz.

Col. Lucien G. Berry of the Fourth field artillery, was senior in command on the San Marcos, which carries 17 officers, 300 enlisted men and 360 horses and mules.

Anti-Trust Bill Approved.

Washington, May 4. — The house judiciary committee ordered favorably reported the omnibus anti-trust bill.

American to Be Executed.

Washington, May 2.—Unofficial reports reaching Washington that Dr. Edward Ryan, an American in the service of the United States government, looking after refugees, was to be executed as a spy at Mexico City, caused Secretary Bryan to make urgent representations in behalf of Dr. Ryan to the Spanish ambassador, General Huerta's representative here. Secretary Bryan said that no news of Dr. Ryan's reported plight had reached him through official circles.

'DEATH TO GRINGOS' A MEXICAN SLOGAN

REFUGEES REACHING SAN DIEGO REPORT BAD TREATMENT.

EXPECTED ASSASSINATION

U. S. Flags Trampled Upon and Finally Burned in Street—Insults of Every Kind Hurled at Americans.

San Diego, May 4.—Two hundred and fifty-nine refugees from Mexico reached here on board the German steamer Marie, which left the Mexican port of Manzanillo, April 25.

The majority are from Guadalajara and tributary territory, the others coming from Colima and Manzanillo. There are 127 men, 60 women and 72 children.

Anti-American Feeling Intense.

The feeling against Americans was so intense that the majority of the refugees from Guadalajara and Colima, were forced to seek the protection of the British consuls and were given shelter in the consulates.

Anti-American demonstrations were held at frequent intervals, the Mexican press was given over to the most alarming reports and editorials, insults were hurled at Americans in the street, and threats of wholesale assassination were made.

Antonio Del Gadillo, governor of the state of Colima, concluded a speech inciting Mexicans to take up arms with the exclamation:

"Death to the gringos."

In Guadalajara, H. L. Percy, a Los Angeles mining man, entering a store there to make purchases, was chased out by the Mexican proprietor. In the street the Mexican yelled:

"Mexicans, here is a Yankee; kill him."

Ran for Life.

A crowd started after Percy and he was forced to run for his life. He finally gained the hotel, where 100 other Americans were waiting to take the train for Manzanillo.

While refugees from Guadalajara were at the wharf a vessel, thought to be an American warship, was sighted.

Great excitement resulted and a Mexican wearing a Red Cross badge rushed into the American consulate, tore from the walls two large American flags, and carried them outside, where Mexicans tore them into shreds, spat upon them, stamped on them and then set fire to them. As they were burning, a Mexican flag was waved over them.

The wharf was cleared, preparatory to blowing it up with dynamite, and the Americans there were marched to the consulate. The refugees who arrived assert a massacre of the Americans was regarded as a certainty if the vessel had been a warship.

They declare the consulate had previously been mined. When it was determined that the ship was not a United States vessel the Americans were released.

Ready to Dynamite.

Military escorts were provided on the trains carrying refugees from Guadalajara and Colima, but the soldiers made no efforts to stop anti-American demonstrations at the stations en route. The Americans were searched by officers and all fire arms and silver money in their possession were confiscated.

Civil Guard to Defend Capital.

Mexico City, May 2.—A plan for organizing a civil guard for the defense of the federal capital was submitted to the minister of the interior by the city council and approved by him as well as by Provisional President Huerta. Sir Lionel Carden, the British minister, said he had received a report stating that the refugee train carrying over 500 Americans to Puerta Mexico had arrived safely at its destination without untoward mishap.

TONG WAR LIKELY TO FOLLOW

CHISESE IMMIGRATION OFFICER KILLED IN ST. LOUIS.

Victim Given Bouquet of Roses to Mark Him for Assassin's Gun Is the Theory.

St. Louis, May 4.—"Hoy Alley," the local Chinese quarter, extending over an area of five blocks in the downtown business section, is excited as a result of the murder of Haw Lin Shuck, a Chinese immigration officer of the United States, and the subsequent prediction by Lee Bing, "mayor of the alley," that the shots which killed Shuck would inaugurate a tong war in St. Louis, Chicago and New York.

The murder was executed with such precision as the police have not met within many years. In accordance with custom among Chinese secret societies, Shuck was warned of sudden death by a piece of red glazed paper believed to have been thrust into his vest pocket a few minutes before the crime was committe. A bunch of American Beauty roses, handed to him in the house from which he had just departed, is believed by the police to have identified the immigration agent to his slayer. Shuck was killed as he stepped from the alley with the flowers under his arm.

When the police reached the scene the "mayor" of the alley, bending over the body with a flashlight in his hand, was the only Chinaman in sight. Other residents of the alley huddled in their dens until they were raided by the police. Hundreds of white persons were attracted by the shots.

The motive for the murder, as advanced by Bing, was the desire of New York and Chicago tong men to establish in St. Louis a branch of their society, which was strongly opposed by Bing and Shuck.

75 BODIES ARE RECOVERED

Intense Heat of Burning Coal Hampers Those Who Would Drag Forth Entombed Corpses.

Eccles, W. Va., May 1.—All hope for the 178 miners entombed in the shaft of the New River Colleries company, wrecked by an explosion Tuesday, has been completely abandoned by rescuers who have penetrated to within 60 feet of the bottom of the pit without finding any sign of life.

Hampered by the intense heat and gases, the work of clearing away the debris from the mouth of the shaft proceeded slowly under the direction of government and state officers.

Thousands of persons visited the scene of the tragedy throughout the day. The eight bodies removed Tuesday from Mine No. 6 were prepared for burial. The 60 injured are all expected to recover.

Seventy-five Bodies Located.

Eccles, W. Va., May 2.—At least seventy-five blackened bodies had been located in mine No. 5 of the New River Colleries Company here and rescuers after bringing seven to the surface were searching for more victims of Tuesday's explosion.

Canada Bars Asiatic Laborers.

Vancouver, B. C., May 1.—Under a new interpretation of an order promulgated six months ago, Asiatic laborers of all kinds are forbidden to enter Canada. The new ruling is supposed to have been brought about by the sailing of a shipload of Hindus from Shanghai for Vancouver recently.

Freight Rate Hearing Concluded.

Washington, May 4—Proceedings in the advance rate case, in which the eastern railroads are asking a horizontal increase of 5 per cent in all freight rates, have been concluded. President Daniel E. Willard of the Baltimore and Ohio made the closing arguments for the roads. A decision is expected within a month. In adjourning the sitting Chairman Harlan of the interstate commerce commission made an announcement which is regarded with great significance.

RUMORS PERSIST HUERTA WILL QUIT

REPORTS SAY DICTATOR READY TO RESIGN MEXICAN PRESIDENCY AT ONCE.

WANTS SAFETY ASSURANCES

Vera Cruz Dispatch Asserts He Only Wants to Leave Country—Feeling of Mexican People Said to Be Turning Against Him.

Vera Cruz, May 5.—Persistent reports continue to circulate here that General Huerta intends to retire from the provisional presidency of Mexico on condition that he be assured a safe conduct to a port and placed on board a foreign warship.

Ready a Week Ago.

It is declared in some Mexican circles in this city that General Huerta was ready to resign a week abo, but was prevented from doing so by internal dissensions in his cabinet.

The disappearance from the Mexican cabinet of Jose Lopez Portillo y Rojas, the foreign minister, coupled with reports that there is a growing under-current of feeling in Mexico City against the Huerta government, is interpreted here as foreshadowing a change in the situation in the Federal capital.

Way May Be Cleared.

Some of the closest observers of the government's situation express an inclination to the view that Senor Portillo's resignation may clear the way eventually for the appointment of a foreign minister who, under the Mexican constitution, could succeed General Huerta as president. In these circles it is pointed out that while Venustiano Carranza declined to treat with General Huerta he might consent to enter into negotiations with his successor and thus facilitate mediation.

The effect of the continued Rebel successes in the north and the outcome of the pending attack on Tampico may, according to well informed opinion, bring about a rapid change in Mexico City.

Populace Beginning to Learn.

While the Federal capital is reported quiet, people who arrive here from the seat of government declare that the populace there are bgihning to learn that General Huerta has been deceiving the people all the time by issuing false reports of Federal successes over the Constitutionalists.

The news of the peaceful way in which the Americans are occupying Vera Cruz, it is said, has spread to the capital and has convinced Mexicans that the American invasion of the port is not for conquest or aggression. Refugees declare the inhabitants of the capital fear the coming there of Francisco Villa more than that of the American troops.

FEELS LIKE A NEW WOMAN

As Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Dispelled Backache, Headaches and Dizziness.

Piqua, Ohio.—"I would be very ungrateful if I failed to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the praise it deserves, for I have taken it at different times and it always relieved me when other medicines failed, and when I hear a woman complain I always recommend it. Last winter I was attacked with a severe case of organic weakness. I had backache, pains in my hips and over my kidneys, headache, dizziness, lassitude, had no energy, limbs ached and I was always tired. I was hardly able to do my housework. I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound on one other occasion, and it had helped me so I took it again and it has built me up, until now I feel like a new woman. You have my hearty consent to use my name and testimonial in any way and I hope it will benefit suffering women."—Mrs. ORPHA TURNER, 431 S. Wayne St., Piqua, Ohio.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

35 BUSHELS PER ACRE was the yield of WHEAT

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

on many farms in Western Canada in 1913, some yields being reported as high as 50 bushels per acre. As high as 100 bushels were recorded in some districts for oats, 50 bushels for barley and from 10 to 20 bus. for flax.

J. Keys arrived in the country 5 years ago from Denmark with very little means. He homesteaded, worked hard, is now the owner of 320 acres of land, in 1913 had a crop of 200 acres, which will realize him about $4,000. His wheat weighed 68 lbs. to the bushel and averaged over 35 bushels to the acre.

Thousands of similar instances might be related of the homesteaders in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The crop of 1913 was an abundant one everywhere in Western Canada.

Irishman Made Poor Selection of Name Under Which He Proposed to Cast Fraudulent Vote.

It was election day, and after Murphy had cast his vote he went on his way. About a block from the polling place he was approached by an old friend, who said:

"Murphy, you can get $50 by going back to the booth and voting again. Go back and vote in Ike Rosenbaum's name and you get the fifty."

"Sure, they might get me at it, and I'd land in jail."

"Not a chance. They don't know you, and they don't know Rosenbuam. So go to it."

Murphy thought a moment and then went to the polls."

"I wish to vote," said Murphy, with a decided Dublin roll.

"What is your name?"

"Ike Rosenbaum."

"That's not your name," said the clerk suspiciously.

"'Tis me name," said Murphy.

"It's not," argued the clerk.

"Ike Rosenbaum's me name and I intind to cast me vote as sich," said Murphy hotly.

A friend of Murphy in the rear jumped up and yelled:

"That's right, go on and vote, Murphy; don't let 'em bluff you."

Why?

Alden had reached the "Why" age. It isn't always easy to answer the whys. One day he lay on the floor with his eyes shut.

"Am I asleep, mother?" he asked.

"You know you aren't," said his mother.

"Well, I'm lying down; my eyes are shut, why ain't I asleep?"

Have You a Bad Back?

Does your back ache night and day, making work a burden and rest impossible? Do you suffer stabbing, darting pains when stooping or lifting? Most bad backs are due to hidden trouble in the kidneys and if the kidney secretions are scant or too frequent of passage, proof of kidney trouble is complete. Delay may pave the way to serious kidney ills. For bad backs and weak kidneys use Doan's Kidney Pills—recommended the world over.

A KANSAS CASE

Charles Cole, 204 N. Buckeye Street, Iola, Kan., says: "My back was so weak and painful that the least exertion made me miserable. My feet and limbs swelled and the kidney secretions were scant and filled with sediment. I was in awful shape, when a friend recommended Doan's Kidney Pills. They helped me from the first and I kept on until I was cured."

AFTER HALF-CENTURY MARK

No Real Reason Why Man of That Age Should Not Be Capable of Good Work.

Speaking of the age of efficiency, a Toledo gentleman located it beyond the half-century mark. He calls our attention to the fact that Columbus was fifty-six when he discovered America, that Darwin, Kant, Spencer, Wagner, Haydn, and others did their greatest and best work when far past the fifty mark, and that some have persisted in great accomplishment until seventy or more years of age. This argument won't help the man who is aged and broken and tottering at fifty, will it? But it will hearten the man of forty or more who has been careful of his resources, to think that to him achievement still is a possibility—and it may find him the opportunity to achieve by convincing some master of opportunity that years do not always spell senility or loss of virility. The young man may reflect that he has the opportunity to run a long race—and he may catch sight of the fact that the man of fifty is not necessarily a "back number" merely because of his half-century.

Brothers, Eh?

A certain curate was of a painfully nervous temperament, and in consequence was constantly making awkward remarks intended as compliments—to the bishop and others.

Having distinguished himself in an unusual degree during a gathering of clergy at an afternoon tea a short while ago in the bishop's palace, he was taken to task for his failings by a senior curate, who was one of his companions on the way home.

"Look here," said Simms, the senior, decidedly, "you're a donkey. Why can't you keep quiet instead of making your asinine remarks? I am speaking to you as a brother."

Loud laughter interrupted him at this point, and for the moment he did not see the joke.

Laughter Aids Digestion

Laughter is a most healthful exertion; it is one of the greatest helps to digestion with which I am acquainted; and the custom prevalent among our forefathers, of exciting it at table by jesters and buffoons, was founded on true medical principles.—Hufeland.

HAPPY NOW
Family of Twelve Drink Postum.

"It certainly has been a blessing in our home" writes a young lady in regard to Postum.

"I am one of a family of twelve, who, before using Postum, would make a healthy person uncomfortable by their complaining of headache, dizziness, sour stomach, etc., from drinking coffee.

"For years mother suffered from palpitation of the heart, sick headache and bad stomach and at times would be taken violently ill. About a year ago she quit coffee and began Postum.

"My brother was troubled with headache and dizziness all the time he drank coffee. All those troubles of my mother and brother have disappeared since Postum has taken the place of coffee.

"A sister was ill nearly all her life with headache and heart trouble, and about all she cared for was coffee and tea. The doctors told her she must leave them alone, as medicine did her no permanent good.

"She thought nothing would take the place of coffee until we induced her to try Postum. Now her troubles are all gone and she is a happy little woman enjoying life as people should."

Name given by the Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Postum now comes in two forms.

Regular Postum — must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum — is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

"There's a Reason" for Postum.

SENTENCE SCHOOL OFFICIALS

CHICAGO BOARD OF EDUCATION MEMBERS ORDERED JAILED.

Contempt of Court Growing Out of Superintendency Fight Causes Action.

Chicago, May 5.—Dean Walter Taylor Sumner and seven other members of the Chicago board of education, including its president, were sentenced to thirty days in the county jail for contempt of court for refusing to obey the order of Circuit Court Judge Foell reinstating four members of the board.

The seven members, in addition to Dean Sumner, given jail terms are: Peter Reinberg, president of the board; Julius Smietanka, Jacob M. Loeb, Charles S. Peterson, Ralph C. Otis, Harry Lipsky and Michael J. Collins.

Dean Sumner is dean of the cathedral of Saints Peter and Paul, chairman of the Chicago vice commission and interested in many sociological and educational ventures.

The situation was brought about by the disputo over the retention of Mrs. Flagg Young as superintendent of schools.

Early last winter a vote was taken in the board of education which resulted in the election of John D. Shoop as superintendent of schools, to succeed Mrs. Young. A storm of protest over the shelving of Mrs. Young arose and Mayor Harrison took action by accepting the resignations which Henry Huttmann, James B. Dibelka, Charles O. Sethness and John C. Harding, board members who opposed Mrs. Young, had filed with him before they accepted places on the school board.

Four new members were appointed by the mayor and the action ousting Mrs. Young was rescinded. The four men whose resignations had been accepted took the case before Foell, who ruled that the mayor had no right to accept resignations which were dated prior to the appointment of the officials. The court ordered the board of education to recognize as members the four ousted by Mayor Harrison.

Ranchman's Body Recovered

Laredo, Tex., May 5.—The body of Porforio Laurel, an American ranchman, who disappeared last November, has been recovered from a grave near Nuevo Laredo, Mexico. Laurel had been arrested by Mexican federals who persistently denied reports of his execution, and until the body was exhumed the mystery of the Texan's absence was unexplained. Recovery of the ranchman's body was made possible by the federal evacuation of Neuvo Laredo.

RED, ROUGH HANDS MADE SOFT AND WHITE

For red, rough, chapped and bleeding hands, dry, fissured, itching, burning palms, and painful finger-ends, with shapeless nails, a one-night Cuticura treatment works wonders. Directions: Soak the hands, on retiring, in hot water and Cuticura Soap. Dry, anoint with Cuticura Ointment, and wear soft bandages or old, loose gloves during the night. These pure, sweet and gentle emollients preserve the hands, prevent redness, roughness and chapping, and impart in a single night that velvety softness and whiteness so much desired by women. For those whose occupations tend to injure the hands, Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are wonderful.

Mrs. Nyberg returned from Minneapolis last Saturday where she has been visiting her sister and other relatives for about a month. She reported a very enjoyable time. But still she feels like home is the best.

Quite a number of the Holt people went to Thief River Falls last Friday to attend the high school class play, "Why Smith Left Home." Among those who went were Cora Hanson, Anne Tharaldson, Clara and Belle Sollom, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Johnson.

Arvid and Tony Carlson and Ben Docken made an auto trip to Thief River Falls last Friday night to take in the Elks lodge where they initiated twenty-five new members. They reported a very good time. They reached home 4 o'clock the following morning.

For Register of Deeds

I hereby announce that I am a candidate for the nomination for Register of Deeds of Marshall County, and respectfully solicit the votes and support of the voters of Marshall County at the Primary Election June 16th, 1914.

Having been Deputy Register of Deeds of this County since the spring of 1906, I am thoroughly familiar with the work and if nominated and elected I shall always strive to serve the people to the best of my ability.

Oslund - Sorter

On May 3d, 1914, in the I. O. G. T. Hall at Wanaska, Minn., occured one of the largest and finest weddings that has ever been held in Roseau County, given by Mr. and Mrs. Ole Oslund, pioneer settlers of the town of Mekinock, in honor of the marriage of their daughter, Hannah Elizabeth Oslund to Ellef P. Sorter, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Sorter, of Holt, Minn.

The wedding ceremony was held at 11 o'clock in the afternoon, Rev. Wercklund officiating. There was about 200 guests in attendance. The hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion. The bridal couple were escorted to the improvised alter by Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Hagen, Misses Julia Olson and Ester Oslund acting as bridesmaids and Messrs. Albin Oslund and Ed. Anderson as bridesmen. The wedding march was played by Miss Sarah Lee. The bride was dressed in white silk with veil and flowers.

After the ceremony a sumptuous and elaborate dinner was served. The dinner was prepared by Mrs. L. Jensen and was indeed proof of her exceeilent cooking accomplishments. Mr. A. O. Hagen acted as toastmaster. In the evening a dance was given which lasted till the wee hours of morning. The bridal couple received many costly and useful presents as a token of the high esteem in which they were held by their friends. Mr. and Mrs. Sorter will make their future home at River, Minn., where Mr. Sorter owns a homestead and where he has a fine home. They have our best wishes for a happy journey through life.

For Register of Deeds

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the nomination for the office of Register of Deeds in and for Marshall County, Minnesota, and ask your kind support at the Primary Election to be held on June 16, 1914.

Thief River Falls News.

Work is rapidly progressing on the new Citizens State Bank building.

The A. C. Rankin meeting which was held at the auditorium last Sunday afternoon was well attended by the men of the city, the auditorium being filled to its full capacity.

The senior class play "Why Smith Left Home" played to two full houses at the auditorium last Friday afternoon and evening. The players were under the instruction of Miss Theoline Goodwin, who deserves much credit for the way in which the play was rendered. The play will be repeated again and the proceeds will go toward the building of a hospital for this city.

The new Soo depot has been completed and was opened to the public last Sunday evening. The entire Soo office force moved into the second floor of the new building the latter part of the past week. The new depot was constructed at a cost of $60,000 and is one of the best on the Soo system between this city and the coast.

For Sheriff

To the voters of Marshall County:

Build A Silo

All stock raisers know the value of the silo as a means of storing feed for stock. It is not to early for farmers to begin to think about building a silo for next winter's feed. It will first be necessary to plant fodder corn, one acre will yeild from eight to twelve tons of silage. For a 14x36 silo holding approximately 130 tons, about 13 acres should be planted. A 14x36 silo will provide feed 8 months for about 30 head of stock. Enough silage should be provided to give feed up to pasture time the following spring. Many farmers have a summer silo, also, feeding silage all year around.

There are many kinds of silos that give satisfaction. A silo of permanant material is to be preferred, however, but the main emphasis should be placed on planing to build a silo this summer, and of getting the corn ground ready now. A bulletin on silos giving an account of the two silos at the experiment station, Crookston, may be had upon application to the N. W. Experimena station. Questions regarding silo construction will be gladly answered. All interested in real development of farming will push corn an alfalfa growing, the building of silos and increasing the dairy and beef herds on Minnesota farms.

For State Senator

To the Voters of the 67th Legislative District.

At the solicitation of numerous friends throughout the the district comprising Marshall, Kittson and Roseau counties, it give me pleasure to announce my candidacy for the office of State Senator.

If honored with the nomination and election I hereby pledge myself to carry out the wishes of the people irrespective of personal views or opinions, as I conceive it to be the highest duty of a representative to represent the will, not of himself, but those of who honor and trust him to do their bidding for the welfare of the district.

Primarily I wish to state my attitude on the county option question, and I recognize the right of the public to such a statement from one who seeks their support for so important and honorable a position as that of State Senator. I am in favor of County Option and if elected I will not only vote for, but will use my best efforts in furthering the adoption of such a bill, believing that to be the best solution of the liquor question.

I further pledge myself to use my best efforts to further the development of Northern Minnesota and especially the counties that I shall represent.

Assuring you that I will at all times endeavor and [illegible] your interests and to the interest of the 67th Ligislative district, I remain

HUERTA RESENTS SEIZURE BY U. S. OF LOBOS ISLAND

LEADING MEDIATOR MAKES CALL AT WHITE HOUSE—CONSTRUED AS PROTEST VISIT.

AMERICAN REPRESENTATIVES TO PEACE COUNCIL CHOSEN

Men Selected to Meet With Arbitrators at Niagara Falls—Retired Soldiers Called Upon to Report as to Availability for Service.

Washington, May 12.—President Wilson received at the White House Ambassador Dagama of Brazil, the ranking member of the South American mediators, who are trying to compose the Mexican troubles.

Probably to Protest.

The receipt later of a dispatch from Mexico City stating that Foreign Minister Ruiz had protested to the mediators that several United States torpedo boats with a transport and tender had landed a party on Lobos island, eight miles off the coast, and taken the lighthouse, was believed to have been the purpose of the ambassador's visit to the White House.

The mediators had held a conference previous to the ambassador's call at the White House and this indicated developments of more than ordinary importance.

Nothing Made Public.

The navy department has not made public anything concerning the operation of vessels about Lobos island. Admiral Howard cabled to the navy department that Huerta had ordered the lighthouses on the Pacific coast extinguished, so as to impede navigation by American ships.

The same order by Huerta is reported to have been made to lighthouses on the Atlantic side, so that the reported seizure of the lighthouse on Lobos island might be held to be a precaution to keep the lights burning to protect all shipping.

As such a precautionary measure, the taking of the lighthouse, it is contended, would be without significance as an occupation or territorial acquisition of the island and therefore would not justify any charge of violation of armistice.

The Island of Lobos lies eight miles off the east coast and 180 miles north of Vera Cruz and 65 miles south of Tampico. Two islands are near together, Lobos and Blanquilleo.

To Represent U. S.

Associate Justice Joseph P. Lamar of the United States supreme court, and Frederick W. Lehman of St. Louis, formerly solicitor general, will be the representatives of the United States to confer with the mediators. This became known from an authoritative source. Justice Lamar had a long talk with the president, and later he and Mr. Lehman conferred.

The war and navy departments showed more than their wonted activity. Secretary Garrison and Major General Wotherspoon, chief of staff, were at their desks for several hours, conferring over the precautionary military movements now being matured. Except to say that no additional orders had been sent for troop movements, the officials were silent on their deliberations.

At the navy department much anxiety was felt over the reports that the German steamer Kron Prinzessin Cecilie actually had discharged her arms and ammunition at Puerto Mexico.

Retired Soldiers "Sounded."

The adjutant general's office of the war department has sent out an order to all retired enlisted men which includes non-commissioned officers to report their availability "in case of emergency" and many seasoned soldiers may thus be added to the active list. The order calls upon its recipients to report at once the duties previously performed with the grades held during active service.

Much apprehension is felt in diplomatic quarters as to the fate of foreigners at Mexico City in case a sudden revolt should overthrow Huerta and permit the entry of the lawless hordes of Zapata and other undisciplined rebel bands.

Word has reached some of the legations here of savage threats Zapata has sent from time to time to leading citizens and their wives and daughters in towns near where he was operating. One message is said to have notified a prominent citizen that when the town was captured Zapata would cut off his ears and "eat them fried." Another from Zapata to the daughter of a merchant is said to have informed her in revolting language to prepare to become his wife.

The Duke of Connaught, governor-general of Canada, is taking steps to have suitable attention and courtesy extended to the South American mediators, and the delegates from the United States and Mexico, when they assemble at Niagara Falls, Ontario, on May 18.

LARGEST WINTER WHEAT CROP

ONE-FIFTH AGAIN AS GREAT AS RECORD SET LAST YEAR.

630,000,000 Bushels Is Estimate Set Now From Present Prospects—Other Grains Estimated.

Washington, May 9.—The greatest crop of winter wheat ever grown, one-fifth again as large as the record crop grown last year and more than half again as large as that harvested in 1912, is indicated by statistics announced by the department of agriculture.

In all 630,000,000 bushels will be produced if the highly favorable conditions existing since the crop was planted last fall continue until harvest time. The acreage abandoned through unfavorable conditions of the winter amounted to only 3.1 per cent of the area planted, an unusually low area. This makes the area remaining to be harvested a record one of 35,387,000 acres.

Indications are that Kansas will have a crop of 132,000,000 bushels or 45,500,000 bushels more than last year and Oklahoma 35,500,000 or 17,000,000 more than last year.

Acreage remaining on May 1 to be harvested, condition on May 1 and estimated production in the surrounding states, follow:

States.	Acreage.	Condition.	Production
Illinois	2,576,000	97	47,500,000
Michigan	879,000	92	15,800,000
Wisconsin	85,000	89	1,600,000
Minnesota	41,000	89	700,000
Iowa	479,000	95	11,100,000
Missouri	2,549,000	99	44,200,000
S. Dak.	69,000	88	1,000,000
Kansas	7,950,000	96	132,000,000
Montana	481,000	96	12,900,000

Winter wheat, condition 95.59; area remaining to be harvested, 35,387,000 acres, or 1,119,000 acres less than planted last autumn, but 3,688,000 acres more than harvested last year.

Indicated yield per acre, 17.8 bus.

Indicated production, 630,000,000 bus.

Rye—Condition, 93.4.

Hay—Lands condition, 90.9.

Hay on Farms—7,832,000 tons

Pasture Condition, 88.3.

Spring Plowing—70.9 per cent completed.

Spring Planting 56.4 per cent completed.

THE THAW CASE IS APPEALED

Supreme Court Must Proceed to Determine Legal Status of Fugitive.

Concord, N. H., May 11.—A bill of exceptions filed by counsel for New York state in the matter of the decision of Federal Judge Edgar Aldrich's decision granting the petition of Harry K. Thaw for a writ of habeas corpus was received and allowed by Judge Aldrich.

Counsel filed a bond covering the costs of the case to the supreme court of the United States which will determine Thaw's legal status.

Thaw was not in court, but was represented by Merrill Shurtleff, an attorney of Lancaster. William T. Jerome and Franklin K. Kennedy of New York and Bernard Jacobs of Lancaster appeared for New York state.

So far as is known here Thaw will remain in Concord in custody of Sheriff Holman Drew of Coos county, pending the supreme court's decision.

Suffragists in Big Parade

Washington, May 11.—With delegations from nearly every state in the union here, the women's suffrage procession and demonstration was held, between 5,000 and 10,000 suffragists marching from the White House to the capitol to demand the passage of the Bristow-Mondell resolution proposing a constitutional amendment giving women the right to vote.

Women Oppose Territorial Conquest

Rome, May 9.—The American delegation of the International council of women, headed by Mrs. Kate Waller Barrett of Washington, adopted a resolution indorsing the statement of President Wilson at Mobile last October that "the United States never again will seek to obtain one additional foot of territory by conquest." It was decided to urge the American congress and the women of the United States to support President Wilson in this attitude.

SCORES KILLED IN ETNA EARTHQUAKE

135 KNOWN DEATHS AND MANY HUNDREDS INJURED IN SICILY.

PROPERTY LOSS ENORMOUS

Refugees Declare Catastrophe Is As Bad As Messina Disaster—Figures May Be Greatly Increased.

Catania, May 11. — An earthquake and volcanic eruption, followed by fire, destroyed many vilalges on the slopes of Mount Etna. The disaster caused the death of at least 135 persons. The number of injured is placed at 283. These figures probably will be greatly increased. Refugees declare that the property loss is as great as in the Messina disaster of 1908.

Devastation Is General.

Railroad tracks were torn up, churches razed, houses shaken to ruin and telegraph poles overturned over a radius of several miles around Catania. Terror-striken people rushed from the village into Catania, bringing stories of ruin and disaster. Their reports caused the authorities to take immediate steps to start measures of relief. The army, the navy and the civilian authorities received orders from Rome to render aid in the work of rescue. The aid of the Red Cross quickly was enlisted.

Interruption of railroad and telegraphs made it impossible to obtain any accurate details as to loss of life.

Shocks Felt For Days.

For several days past earthquake shocks had been felt at frequent intervals, accompanied by eruptions of Mount Etna. No particular attention, however, was paid to the occurrences, as the inhabitants of the district are accustomed to these agitations and the shocks were not exceptionally violent.

The center of the present terrible disturbance was at the village of Linera. Here the proportion of dead and injured was very heavy. The victims mostly were women and children. The property loss at Linera also was extremely heavy. The work of rescue was rendered difficult by the accumulation of debris.

Fire Adds Horrors.

According to the refugees fire in some places completed the work of destruction and hindered the work of rescuers.

Soldiers, firemen, sailors, priests and private individuals worked together in bringing succor. In many cases they found their way obstructed by broken bridges and ruined roads. In the village streets huge heaps of debris lay everywhere.

In the vilalge of Cosenti twenty bodies were recovered and at Santa Maria, six.

Acereale, a seaport town, is well built on a height at the base of Mount Etna, and every road leading to that city was almost choked with sobbing, praying refugees fleeing from their homes.

Linera with a population of 952 and Venerina, a town of 2,183, were completely destroyed. Hundreds of houses were wrecked in the village of Zerbati, Pennisi, Belpasso, Maria, Vergine, Mangano and Zafferanao.

Wireless Heard 8,500 Miles.

San Francisco, Cal., May 9.—Officers of the Pacific Mail liner Mongolia, which is here from the Orient, announced that on the night of April 21 the ship's wireless operator had picked up a message from Boston, 8,500 miles away.

Eggs Pay Church Expenses.

Ravenwood, Mo., May 11.—How to make the hen pay the preacher and bear all other expenses of the church and never know it has been figured out by members of the Harmony church, five miles northwest of here. The project followed Sunday's egg collection at the Harmony church when the worshipers brought the Saturday product of their hens to church instead of the usual dimes and quarters. One hundred and sixty-eight dozen eggs went into the contribution boxes.

CONGRESS TO ADJOURN JULY 10

BOTH BODIES BENDING ENERGIES IN THIS DIRECTION.

Formal Call for Democratic Caucus Issued in House—Senate Meets Hour Earlier Daily.

Washington, May 11.—Plans for an early adjournment of congress took more definite shape when the senate advanced its meeting hour from noon to 11 o'clock and house leaders issued a formal call for a Democratic caucus Tuesday night, when a legislative program will be laid out which will include adjournment as a feature. If the senate holds to the 11 o'clock meeting hour and insists upon a few night sessions leaders believe that the hope of adjournment on July 10 may be realized. Majority Leader Underwood has no doubt that the house can finish its business before that date.

The house caucus Tuesday will consider a resolution announcing it to be the sense of the party that the anti-trust, interstate trade commission and railway capitalization bills, the rural credits measures and the appropriation bills should be passed and the house then adjourn. It is not expected that there will be any opposition to its adoption. The senate changed its meeting hour in order that it might hasten passage of the agricultural bill. This bill has dragged along for more than a week with little progress and several senators are anxious that it be disposed of before other appropriation bills are reported.

There was one cloud on the adjournment horizon when talk was renewed of an attempt to reach a vote at the present session on the proposed constitutional amendment for nation-wide prohibition. The resolution proposing the prohibition amendment will be taken up in the house under a special rule to be brought in within a week, so that action may be taken promptly. There is little likelihood that the amendment will be taken up in the Tuesday caucus, but there is no intention on the part of the house leaders to stifle it. Its passage requires a two-thirds vote and leaders expect the fight to be close.

No matter what the house does at this session with the prohibition resolution the senate has its hands so full of other subjects that it is not believed it will be taken up there for the present.

CANAL TO BE READY MAY 15

Panama, May 11.—Colonel George W. Goethals, governor of the Panama canal zone, says that he will put torpedo boats through the canal at any time Secretary of the Navy Daniels desires him to do so.

He said also that he would ask Secretary of War Garrison's approval to send ships through the canal on or about May 15, as he anticipated having a 30-foot channel cut through the slide at Cucaracha by then.

American Soldiers Executed?

Vera Cruz, May 11.—According to a report received here, Private Parks, orderly for Lieutenant Colonel Elmore Taggart, who disappeared inside of Mexican lines Thursday with two of Colonel Taggart's horses was put to death by the Mexicans near Terra. This information, however, was not regarded as conclusive. A Mexican railroad man, the authority for the report, said he was told by one of Maas' soldiers, with whom he had a talk in the vicinity of the alleged execution, that Parks had been killed.

Airship Turns Turtle.

Utica, N. Y., May 11.—Percival Van Ness of this city, a licensed aviator, was killed here when his new biplane turned turtle.

Home Rule Compromise Opposed

London, May 8.—John Redmond, the Irish Nationalist leader, is understood to have opposed any negotiations for a compromise on home rule for Ireland until the bill reaches the house of lords. He had a long conference with Premier Asquith on the question of settlement and as a result of his opposition to negotiations the government agreed to hasten the final stages of the bill in the house of commons which will be completed week after next. The Irish home rule bill will thus become a law as it stands.

STRIKE BREAKERS ARE ALL BARRED

PRESIDENT ORDERS THIS ACTION AND WANTS DISARMAMENT TIME LIMIT.

PROCLAMATION TO FOLLOW

War Department to Permit Rehabilitation of Ludlow Tent Colony Under Certain Restrictions. Strike Situation.

Trinidad, Colo., May 12.—President Wilson, through the war department, has instructed Colonel James Lockett, commanding federal troops in Southern Colorado, to permit no importation of strike breakers, and further announced that a time limit would be set at once within which delivery of arms must be completed.

This statement was made by Major W. A. Holbrook. He said both subjects would be treated in proclamation later.

Colonel Lockett announced that the war department had determined to permit the rehabilitation of the strikers' tent colony at Ludlow provided the federal military officers are given a roll of the inhabitants, with the address of their former places of employment, and provided further that a union man of strong influence is placed in charge of the camp, with whom military officers may confer.

In his statement upon President Wilson's instruction concerning strike breakers, Major Holbrook said that the commanding officers here have been advised that no man shall be employed in any mine in the Colorado coal fields who has not been actually in its employ on April 22, the date when the first proclamation ordering the federal troops into the field was published.

No mine that was closed down at that time or before will be permitted to open, according to Major Holbrook's statement, but all others may be operated under full protection from the government.

Strikers, those formerly employed at certain mines, will be permitted to return to work at the specific places of their former employment if they choose and if they are desired by their former employers, according to Major Holbrook.

In connection with the president's announcement that a time limit would be set for the delivery of arms, Major Holbrook announced that the war department would probably issue an early proclamation. After that, according to Major Holbrook, forcible seizure will be begun.

In many sections many have surrendered their arms already, as a result of the previous order of Colonel Lockett.

At various meetings of locals of the United Mine Workers of America, the members were told they would be dropped from the role of membership unless they complied with the disarmament proclamation.

SHRINERS MEET AT ATLANTA

More Than Thirty Thousand Nobles Are Attending Imperial Council in the Georgia City.

Atlanta, Ga., May 12.—More than thirty thousand Nobles of the Mystic Shrine are here for the annual Imperial Council which opened today. Most of them have brought their wives and families and the city is crowded. There are prominent men from every state in the Union.

The city has been transformed for the convention. By permission of the mayor and city council the local entertainment committee, headed by Potentate Forrest Adair, of Yarrab Temple, has taken full control for the time of the whole street lighting system of Atlanta. White globes with the Shriners' emblems have been substituted for the top globes of the electric light clusters.

The elaborate social functions include a grand ball in the Auditorium armory tonight and tomorrow night. There is to be a barbecue at which tables will be spread beneath the trees for the accommodation of from 3,000 to 5,000 persons.

Californians are trying to attract the Imperial Council of 1915 to San Francisco.

There was a parade this morning at 9 o'clock, forming an official escort for the imperial potentate and members of the imperial council from the hotel to the place of meeting.

Huerta Warship Blown Up

Washington, May 12.—Rear Admiral Howard, of the Pacific fleet reports that the abandoned Mexican federal gunboat Morelos was boarded, set fire to and blown up by the constitutionalists at Mazatlan. Admiral Howard further reports that the constitutionalist artillery at San Piedras island drove the Mexican transport Korrigan out of the harbor. Skirmishing between federalists and constitutionalists at Mazatlan continues. All Americans are reported safe.

AFTER SUFFERING TWO LONG YEARS

Mrs. Aselin Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Minneapolis, Minn.—"After my little one was born I was sick with pains in my sides which the doctors said were caused by inflammation. I suffered a great deal every month and grew very thin. I was under the doctor's care for two long years without any benefit. Finally after repeated suggestions to try it we got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After taking the third bottle of the Compound I was able to do my housework and today I am strong and healthy again. I will answer letters if anyone wishes to know about my case."—Mrs. JOSEPH ASELIN, 628 Monroe St., N.E., Minneapolis, Minn.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and today holds the record of being the most successful remedy we know for woman's ills. If you need such a medicine why don't you try it?

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Fearful and Wonderful Excuses Given for Occasional Nonattendance of Their Pupils.

While the law of the land compels children to attend school up to a certain age, there is no law that makes it obligatory for them to be present at every session. They may be "excused" on the written request of parents, and we herewith present some of these reasonable excuses:

"Well, sis," said her brother at the breakfast table as Agnes, daughter of the household, appeared at the table, heavy-eyed after she had entertained a tiresome and late-staying admirer the evening before, "you look as if you need something to keep you awake."

"I do not," she responded wearily, "I had it last evening."

STOP THAT BACKACHE

There's nothing more discouraging than a constant backache. You are lame when you awake. Pains pierce you when you bend or lift. It's hard to rest and next day it's the same old story.

Pain in the back is nature's warning of kidney ills. Neglect may pave the way to dropsy, gravel, or other serious kidney sickness.

Don't delay—begin using Doan's Kidney Pills—the remedy that has been curing backache and kidney trouble for over fifty years.

Wife—It was a nice party, you say, John. I'm sorry I couldn't go, but am really glad that you enjoyed yourself. How was Mrs. Gadabout dressed?

Husband—Well, she had on one of those dresses of what-you-call-it stuff, of a kind of a mixed shade and trimmed with what's-his-names. I don't remember now whether it was cut low or not, or whether it had sleeves, but I know it had one or the other. Her hair was done up the style like you see in the pictures—you know what I mean. I don't know whether she had any ornaments or not, but I expect she had. That's about all, I think, that I noticed about her, but you can easily tell from that how she looked.

HONORS PAID TO VERA CRUZ DEAD

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR SAILORS AND MARINES ARE HELD BY NATION.

ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT

Seventeen Bodies Brought By the Cruiser Montana Are Drawn on Caissons Through New York to Brooklyn Navy Yard.

New York, May 12.—President Wilson, congress and the nation paid tribute today to the memories of the seventeen brave American sailors and marines who lost their lives in the fighting that attended the taking of Vera Cruz and whose bodies were brought back home on the armored cruiser for burial.

The Montana arrived in New York harbor yesterday afternoon, having been met Saturday off the Virginia capes by Secretary Daniels and a party of navy department officials aboard the presidential yacht Mayflower. President Wilson came up from Washington last night, and the congressional delegation arrived early this morning.

Cortege Moves Through City.

When the Montana anchored off the Battery yesterday the bodies of the dead bluejackets and marines were landed at once and placed on caissons which were parked on the south side of the plaza in the Battery and guarded by a detachment from the cruiser.

At 9 o'clock this morning the order was given for the funeral cortege to move. It was a solemn and imposing procession, with detachments from the battleships Wyoming and Texas, the New York naval militia, the Spanish war veterans and numerous civilian bodies in line. A halt was made in City Hall plaza in Manhattan, where school children chanted a hymn in honor of the dead.

President the Only Speaker.

The funeral services were held at the Brooklyn navy yard. President Wilson was the only speaker, and his address was an eloquent and touching tribute to the bravery and patriotism of the dead, and a consoling of their bereaved relatives.

Standing back of the president were the members of congress named to attend the services. There were committees from both the senate and house.

Names of the Dead.

Following is a complete list of the sailors and marines killed at Vera Cruz, whose bodies were brought by the Montana.

Huerta Will Not Resign.

Vera Cruz, May 11.—Mexicans arriving here from Mexico City say General Huerta shows no intention of abandoning the presidency of Mexico. The president, they assert, popularly is credited with having made the statement that he would see the capital in ashes before he left it. Rebels in the vicinity of the federal capital, particularly the followers of General Zapata are continuing their campaign against the Huerta administration, it is reported.

SCATTER MORSELS OF CHEER

Impossible to Estimate How Much a Kind Word May Mean to Those in Misfortune.

It is often told that Eugene Field one day wandered into a basement restaurant, sat down at a table, put his chin in his hands and gazed moodily into space. A waiter came to him and after the manner of his kind enumerated the long list of dishes that were ready to be served.

"No, no," said Field, dejectedly, "I require none of those things. All I want is some sliced oranges and a few kind words."

Whether or not the incident be true, it is suggestive. Unquestionably, deeds weigh far more than words, and yet it is almost tragic to think how much happier and better this struggling world would become if kind words were more often heard. We all, every day, come in contact with those who are in Eugene Field's state of mind. They are in our own homes; mothers and fathers and children. They are behind the counters of stores; they are employes on trains; they are servants in kitchens; they are everywhere, and their name is legion. A word of appreciation would brighten the whole day and would make it easier for them to keep on trying.—Youth's Companion.

BLISTERS ALL OVER BODY

Hollene, New Mexico.—"Our little boy first broke out in little yellow blisters about the size of pin heads and they itched and hurt so badly he could not rest day nor night. In a few days they were running sores and kept spreading until they were as large as a dollar. He had them all over his body and was nearly tortured to death, as they hurt him so badly he could hardly sleep. He would scratch and cause great sores all over his face and legs.

"We tried several highly recommended remedies but they didn't seem to help him a bit. Nothing seemed to do any good until we got Cuticura Soap and Ointment. We hadn't used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment but a short time before he was completely cured without a scar." (Signed) Mrs. J. H. Northcutt, Nov. 22, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."—Adv

Getting a "Thrill" in Formosa.

The traveler who is tired of conventional journeys and who is anxious to visit an "unspoilt" country where he can enjoy the comforts of civilization and at the same time taste some of the thrills and excitement attendant upon encounters with unsubdued savage tribes should certainly make a trip to Formosa, that wonderful island lying off the coast of China which passed into the possession of Japan in 1895.

Here, along the eastern coast, he will find prosperous towns, with fine harbors and wharves, spacious streets and magnificent residences, schools and churches, electric lights and ample water supply—all the luxuries, in fact, of a European city. He can journey comfortably by train from one place to another, passing through vast tea gardens and rice fields. Everything is civilized, orderly and safe. Yet only a few miles inland, among the mountains and forests, dwell fierce, unconquered tribes, whose chief aim and ambition in life is to gather human heads.—Wide World Magazine.

Must Have Pleased Whistler

Richard A. Canfield, who has parted with his superb collection of Whistler paintings and pastels for $300,000, said the other day in New York:

"It would be a wise criticism to state my Whistler collection is the best in the world. And this reminds me of the unwisest criticism going—a criticism that a pretty English girl made to Whistler about my Whistler portrait of Count Robert de Montesquiou Fezensac.

"This pretty girl gazing at the famous portrait with enthusiastic eyes cried in a gushing voice:

"'Oh, Mr. Whistler, I do think your foreshortening of the skin tints is perfectly wonderful!'"

CAUSE AND EFFECT

Indigestion and the attendant discomforts of mind and body are certain to follow continued use of improper food.

Those who are still young and robust are likely to overlook the fact that, as dropping water will wear a stone away at last so will the use of heavy, greasy, rich food, finally cause loss of appetite and indigestion.

Fortunately many are thoughtful enough to study themselves and note the principle of cause and effect in their daily food. A N. Y. young woman writes her experience thus:

"Sometime ago I had a lot of trouble from indigestion, caused by too rich food. I got so I was unable to digest scarcely anything, and medicines seemed useless.

"A friend advised me to try Grape-Nuts food, praising it highly and as a last resort, I tried it. I am thankful to say that Grape-Nuts not only relieved me of my trouble but built me up and strengthened my digestive organs so that I can now eat anything I desire. But I stick to Grape-Nuts."

MANY VISIT CAIRO

Tourists Heed the Call of Egypt's Attractions.

Present Season Promises to Be One of the Best Egyptian City Has Had for Many Years—Visitors Catered To.

Cairo.—The present season promises to be one of the best Cairo has had for several years. The hotels are nearly full and the Nile steamers are already nearly all let. Of late years the terrible Khamsin winds have not set in until late in May, and conditions generally have improved very considerably during the past few years.

One can now land at Alexandria and motor up to Cairo, where a car is today of the greatest utility for dashing out to Heliopolis for concerts, aviation and other attractions; for running over to Helouan, the suburb favored by the late khedive; for making an excursion along the Pyramids road, constructed for the opening of the Suez canal by that master organizer, Ismail Pasha, to Mena house, at the foot of the Pyramid of Cheops; for visiting the Barrage, with its medieval superstructure and its picturesque gardens, and even for taking trips along the old Suez or the Alexandria road.

The tastes of visitors and residents are amply catered to all over Egypt, especially in Cairo, which, by reason of its being the hub of the official world, is also naturally the social center of the country. A good deal of private entertaining goes on, but with the exception of the garden parties given by Lord Kitchener at the agency—which, bordering on the river, enables a magnificent view of the country and the Pyramids to be obtained—and of the private dinner parties and "at homes" which the British agent and General and Mrs. Byng give at their residences, most of the dinners and receptions are held at the various hotels.

The Blue Mosque at Cairo.

Polo forms a prominent part of the social program. On at least three afternoons every week matches are played by Ghezireh, and it has become quite the thing to retire to the pretty tea gardens to gossip and discuss the games.

WIND STAMPEDES FINE BUGS

Native Butterflies of the Death Valley Region Blown Over Mountains.

San Bernardino, Cal.—Since the recent heavy north winds there have been thousands of butterflies observed in the city, many of them of a different species than usually seen on this side of the range.

Particularly noticeable is a brown butterfly of a species peculiar to the Death Valley region and never seen this side of the mountains.

It is believed the heavy winds on the desert blew the insects over the mountains and their presence here can be accounted for in no other way.

Their appearance has been of great interest especially to men who are used to traveling the desert and who quickly recognized the butterflies.

'SCRATCHED' BY PICKLED HAM

Under Washington State Law Workman Gets Paid for Lay-Off of Ten Days.

Olympia, Wash.—Employes of the industrial insurance department declare the most novel claim presented since the law went into effect is that received from Alvodor Gernonpre, employe of a Seattle packing plant, who reported being "scratched by a pickled ham. It was the 'bone' of the ham that inflicted the damage,' Gernonpre set forth, infection setting in later. He asked and got compensation for ten days' idleness.

Recently another packing plant employe reported that he had been kicked in the mouth by a pig and the department is inclined to believe that the vicious pickled ham must have come from that ferocious porker.

With Seven Hooks Gets Eight Fish.

Libby, Mont.—George Blackwell brought to town an oddity in fish catching. This was a seven-hook set line upon which he had caught eight fish. One hook had first been taken by a charr about a foot long and later a large ling had swallowed the charr and was caught on the same hook.

NEW WAY OF LOOKING AT IT

Possibly Many of Us May Find Food for Reflection in Remark Made by Reverend Gentleman.

Perry S. Eustis, railroad passenger traffic manager, was complaining at the Traffic club dinner in Kansas City a few nights ago about the way the government pays the railroads for hauling the mails.

"I was a sweet, curly-haired child," he said. "I guess I had a sweet voice, too, for I sang in the choir of the Chestnut Hill Episcopalian church in Philadelphia. The rector, the Rev. J. Andrews Harris, always took the choir boys for a walk each Saturday, a privilege we greatly esteemed. On this particular Saturday my nose was out of joint because some one had been chosen to sing a solo the next day, and I was voicing my indignation.

"'As I understand it, your position is that you didn't get what you deserved,' said the rector.

"'Exactly,' I replied.

"'Then pray God you don't the rest of your life,' answered the Rev. Mr. Harris.'"—Kansas City Star.

RESINOL WILL HEAL BABY'S ITCHING SKIN

Resinol ointment and resinol soap are absolutely free from anything of a harsh or injurious nature, and can therefore be used with perfect confidence in the treatment of babies' skin troubles—eczema, teething rash, chafings, etc.—where you wouldn't dare use ordinary "skin-cures." Resinol stops itching instantly and speedily heals even severe and stubborn eruptions. Doctors have prescribed it for the past nineteen years.

Resinol soap and resinol ointment clears away pimples, blackheads and dandruff, and is an invaluable household remedy for sores, burns, boils, piles, etc. Sold by every druggist.—Adv.

Knew What He Was Doing.

A little boy had a colt and a dog and a friend of the family took special delight in teasing him with questions such as "Won't you give me one of your pets?"

One day the boy said: "All right, I'll give you my colt."

The mother much surprised asked: "Why didn't you offer him the dog?"

"Sh," whispered the boy; "say nothing, say nothing, mother, but when he goes to get the colt I'll sic the dog on him."

A school picnic was given by Misses Hanson and Tharaldson, our popular schoolmams, last Wednesday at the school house in Holt, in celebration of the closing of a successful term of school. The day was spent very enjoyably in playing games and other amusements, after which a delicious luncheon was served. This season's term of school has been a very successful and instuc'ive one due principally to the ability and untiring efforts of our instructors, Cora Hanson and Anne Tharaldson The pupils who finished the 8th grade and who were awarded diplomas are Amanda Mickelson, Ernest Selbaugh and Nellie Sorter.

There will be a grand opening of the new store about May 18th. Coffee and lunch will be served all day, free to all. The Sollom Bros. are expeirenced in store business and will without a doubt have as fine a store as there is in the country.

For County Attorney

I hereby announce that I filed for the nomination for the office of County Attorny on March 31st, and that I am a canidate for that office, subject to the approval of the voters of Marshal County at the Primary on June 16th.

For County Treasurer

I desire to announce myself as a Candidate for re-nomination to the office of County Treasure of Marshall County, subject to your approval at the primaries on June 16th, 1914.

In this connection I desire to thank the taxpayers for the loyal manner in which they supported me, and their co-cperation in helping me in the discharge of my duties has been of materiel assistance to me in more ways than one.

When I first sought this office I pledged myself that if nominated and elected I would try my very best to discharge the duties of the office with the utmost fidelity. Whether I have done this or not to your entire fatisfaction it is for you to judge, and it will be my earnrst endeaver if re-nominated and elected to make still greater effort to do my full duty as a public servant.

If I have failed in any particular it is not because I have not tried to my duty conscientiously, but an honestly made failure that I have tried to remedy.

As for the duties of the office I have become perfectly familiar with every detail and am in a position to serve your interests with utmost dispatch and promptness. Thanking you for your kindly consideration and asking that you will bear my candidacy in mind at the June primary, I remain,

Yours very respectfully,

(adv) Fred Bakke, Co. Treasure.

PANAMA CANAL NOW IN USE

TRAFFIC PASSING THROUGH IS THE REPORT.

Twelve-Hour Barge Service From Atlantic to Pacific in Effect, Washington Dispatch Says.

Washington, May 15.—For the first time in the world's history waterborne traffic between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans is now passing through the Panama canal, according to the reports that have been received at the headquarters of the Panama railroad in New York, forwarded here.

Though confirmation of the report has not yet reached the Washington office of the isthmian canal, it is known that ample provision had been made by Colonel Goethals for the institution of water service, limited at first strictly to barges, beginning not later than May 10. As a matter of fact, according to the Panama railroad reports, the service actually began last Saturday and a steady stream of barges in tow is now passing through the canal.

Colonel Goethals has not yet reported to Washington just when the canal will be opened to merchant shipping, but the understanding here is that the waterway is practically finished and that even now there is a sufficient channel through the Culebra cut for almost any warship or liner.

It is understood that this barge service is to be operated on about twelve hours' schedule from the Atlantic to the Pacific, which allows about an hour's delay in each of the locks.

"NO VOTE---NO KISS" SLOGAN

Suffragist Has Novel Plan for Forcing Men to Grant Franchise to Women.

New York, May 18.—A kissing strike is the newest method in the votes for women war.

"If we women all go on strike and agree not to kiss our husbands until we get the vote," Mrs. Havelock Ellis told the members of the woman suffrage party, "and if we agreed also not to cook, or wash, or even look at our husbands, we would get it much quicker than by the present program of destroying art treasures and golf grounds.

"All we need to do is to sit still with our hands in our pockets and a noncommittal smile on our countenances, while we watch the men running to bring us the vote. Let us take as our motto, 'To break hearts rather than windows.'

"Yes, sisters, it is true that effective results would be forthcoming should we insist, with authority, upon compliance with the slogan, 'No vote—no kiss.'"

Strikers Killed While Escaping.

Denver, Colo., May 18.—Louis Tikas (Louis, the Greek), James Fyler and Frank Rebino, Ludlow strikers, were shot and killed on the night of April 20 while running from the military lines toward the burning tent colony, directly in the line of fire between the militia and strikers, according to testimony of Sergeant P. N. Cullom and Private Frank M. Mason, at the trial of Major Patrick J. Hamrock, before the general court martial. The strikers had been taken prisoners, said the witnesses.

WOMAN FAN STARTS A RIOT

St. Louis, May 16.—The principals of two public schools, acting as umpires, were stoned and the majority of 600 schoolboy spectators engaged in a general fight during a riot started by a woman at a baseball game here. The woman took exception to the ruling of one of the umpires when he called the boy at bat out on strikes. She rushed onto the diamond, yelling "Protest! Protest!" and was followed instantly by the grand stand constituents of both teams.

THIRTEEN DAYS OF AWFUL SUFFERING

FOUR SURVIVORS OF BURNED SHIP COLUMBIAN FINALLY SAVED FROM SEA.

LIMIT OF HUMAN ENDURANCE

Almost Exhausted From Starvation and Cold When Seneca Crew Sights Boat—12 Had Already Succumbed.

Halifax, N. S., May 19.—After 13 days of terrible suffering in an open boat, four survivors of the freight steamer Columbian were picked up in the north Atlantic by the United States revenue cutter Seneca.

Twelve Others Succumbed.

Twelve others of the boat's crew which left the Columbian when she was burned just south of Sable Island on May 3, had succumbed to injuries and privations and their bodies had been thrown overboard. The death toll of the lost freighter now stands at 16. Twenty-seven other members of the crew were saved by the Cunard liner Franconia and the steamer Manhattan after two days of exposure.

The men just snatched from death by the Seneca were the first officer, Robert Tiere, and Seamen Oscar Kendall and Peter Bellanger, and Fireman Michael Ludwigsen. The Seneca reached Halifax this morning.

Limit of Endurance.

The survivors had lived on only a few ship's biscuits and a cask of water which had long since been exhausted. They had gone the limit of human endurance.

Hope for this missing third boat had been abandoned after a dozen of the trans-Atlantic liners searched for five days within a wide radius of the spot where the Columbian burst into flames. To seafaring men, it seemed impossible that a small boat could pass through the series of gales that have since swept those waters, and the news that the Seneca had picked up survivors was received here almost with incredulity.

Although the survivors were too weak from their suffering to tell the story completely, the revenue cutter's officers gathered that some of the 16 who had hastily piled into the third boat had been so badly burned that they died within the first few days. It was decided to lighten the boat by casting the bodies overboard.

Some Die of Cold.

Some who had tumbled from their bunks at the first explosion and had rushed on deck half-clothed, succumbed to the cold. Others, weakened by hunger and thirst, gradually sank into lethargy that was scarcely to be distinguished from death.

Somehow the survivors managed to keep the boat head-on to the seas when the weather became rough, but for the past few days little or no effort could be made to guide the craft. Day by day the number dwindled until the four who were left sank limply to the bottom of the boat and awaited the end.

Cattle Queen of Utah Dies.

Salt Lake City, May 18.—Mrs. Elizabeth Bonnemort, known through the West as the cattle and sheep queen of Utah, died at her home here. Mrs. Bonnemort came to Utah from Scotland in 1865 at the age of 20 years and immediately engaged in the cattle and sheep business with great success. Later she became identified with the real estate business in Salt Lake which, with her cattle ventures, netted her a fortune computed at $2,000,000.

EXPLOSION KILLS THIRTEEN

ONE IS DYING AND THREE ARE FATALLY INJURED.

Blast Blows Detroit Rubber Factory to Pieces—Many Narrowly Escape.

Detroit, May 16.—Thirteen men were killed and three terribly injured in an explosion which blew the plant of the Mexican Crude Rubber company to pieces. There were about twenty-five employees working in the plant. Twelve survivors have been accounted for. Gasoline is believed to have been responsible for the explosion.

Most of the victims were skilled mechanics. One body was blown through the building. Three other bodies were burned beyond recognition. Three men were removed to a hospital and physicians said they did not expect any of the men would survive. Dozens of windows in buildings near the rubber company's plant were shattered.

There were several reports as to the cause of the explosion, but survivors said a vat containing a large quantity of molten rubber exploded. Officials of the company declined to issue a statement until they conducted an investigation.

The plant, a one-story concrete building, in West Detroit, was almost obliterated. Flying chunks of substance riddled adjoining buildings and concrete blocks weighing pounds, were found more than two blocks from the scene of the explosion.

The explosion was witnessed by scores of pedestrians and there were many narrow escapes. One man told the police he heard a roar; the concrete factory seemed to split into three huge pieces, two of which "melted away." The third, he said, shot high into the air, breaking into fragments and went whizzing in every direction.

SALTILLO ATTACK TO FOLLOW

Believed Villa Will Capture Important City Thus Completing Federal Downfall.

Torreon, Mex., May 16.—General Francisco Villa, in command of the Constitutionalist army now moving upon Saltillo, before his departure said he is prepared to meet any situation which may arise. His army is amply provisioned for 30 days and it appears he has enough ammunition for the task before it. Each man carried from 250 to 400 rounds of ammunition in his belts. It is said also there is an amply supply of artillery ammunition.

That Saltillo will be taken is confidently believed by the Constitutionalists here, although apparently the Federals will have most of the advantages.

With Saltillo in the hands of the Constitutionalists it is thought here the Huerta government will have lost all claim to control of the greater half of Mexico. The Federals must then retire upon San Luis Potosi, making it possible for the government of the North to concentrate its troops on that port without fear of being outflanked.

Picture Slasher Sentenced.

London, May 15.—Mary Ansell, the militant suffragist, who Tuesday slashed the Royal Academy portrait of the Duke of Wellington by Hubert von Herkomer, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

Run Closes Iowa Bank

Corning, Iowa, May 18.—The First National bank of Corning failed to open its doors following a run in which about $60,000 in deposits was withdrawn. The institution was closed on the order of the comptroller of the currency and W. W. Smith, of St. Louis, a bank examiner, is in charge. R. R. Newcomb is the president and B. Newcomb the cashier. The capital stock of the bank was $100,000 with deposits at $220,000. Resources not counting capital stock already placed at $280,000.

WESTERN CANADA'S PROSPECTS FOR 1914

Excellent Spring for Work and Wheat Seeding About Finished.

The writer has just returned from an extensive trip through the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, in Western Canada. The crop conditions are the very best, and no one locality seems to have an advantage over another in this respect. The uniformity in growth is remarkable, and in all parts of the three provinces spring wheat at the time of writing, May 10th, is well above the ground from two to three inches. Considerable fall plowing was done last year, and this, with the summer fallow, is already seeded, so that practically wheat seeding is over by this date. Everywhere the farmers are busy and the whole country presents one great scene of activity—three-horse, four-horse and five-horse teams are busy preparing land for barley, oats and flax. On some of the larger farms batteries of steam and gasoline outfits are at work, but in a great many districts where these have been operated in the past they are being displaced by horses, owing no doubt partially to the difficulty of securing experienced men to operate them. Anyway, there is being put into agriculture in Western Canada, greater effort with more promise than for some years past. The soil is in the best possible condition; moisture has been sufficient, there have been no winds to dry out the soil, and if the farmers have had to lay up for a day or so now and again, it was merely that the ground might have the advantage of the rain and an occasional snow, which promise so much for the growing crop. With some warm weather the grain will come along in a manner that will equal the best years Western Canada has ever had.

It must not be thought from this that the farmers are full bent on securing a grain crop alone. In nearly every district there is more and more the indication and inclination to go into mixed farming. Herds of cattle now dot the plains that up to the present had been fully given up to grain growing, hogs and sheep are in evidence. New buildings are to be seen on a great many places, these being pig houses and cow stables, although protection of cattle is not regularly required, excepting for calves and such cows as it may be necessary to house from time to time.

The growing of alfalfa and other fodder grasses is an industry that is being rapidly developed.

During this spring a splendid class of new settlers have gone in, many of them from the eastern states. These have seen what success the western and central states man has achieved in Western Canada, and are now going in in hundreds. The movement from Montana, Oregon and Washington to Canada continues without any abatement as to numbers and value of effects, while the central and eastern states are still sending an excellent class of farmers with means sufficient to begin farming on a scale that will pay from the start.

Those who contemplate visiting the Panama Exposition next year will find that one of the most interesting trips they can make will be via the Canadian West. There will be three lines of railway they can use—the Canadian Pacific, Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk Pacific, all of which will have through to coast lines completed. Thus will be given a view of prairie, woodland and mountain scenery unexcelled in America.—Advertisement.

HAIR CAME OUT IN HANDFULS

Hughson, Cal.—"Last winter my hair began to fall out and later my scalp began to itch terribly and my hair was full of dandruff. There were pimples broke out on my scalp, especially around the edge of my hair. Sometimes I would wake up at night and lie awake an hour or so with the itching. My hair came out in handfuls when I combed it. It was dry and lifeless and the dandruff was so thick it could be plainly seen.

"I used several different kinds of shampoo and soap but it got worse all the time for five or six months. When I had lost about half of my hair I started using Cuticura Soap and Ointment. In about six weeks my scalp stopped itching and in two or three months my hair began to come in new. My head is clear of dandruff now and new hair is coming in all the time." (Signed) Mrs. W. R. ENVOYS REALIZE HUERTA'S RULE IS FAST CRUMBLING

FALL OF DICTATOR IS CONCEDED BY MEXICAN MEDIATION DELEGATES, IT IS REPORTED.

ADMIT WAR WITH U. S. MAY BE PROVOKED BY FEDERALS

Fears are Entertained that Army Near Vera Cruz May Do Something That Will Lead to Resumption of Hostilities—Talk of Successor.

Washington, May 19.—Intimation of the attitude of the Huerta delegates to the mediation conference to be held at Niagara Falls Wednesday, was obtained from persons said to be in touch with the envoys. The Mexicans refused to talk of their plans before their departure.

Three are Optimistic.

That the three were optimistic regarding the chances for mediation was learned from quarters in close touch with them. They have little idea how long the arrangement of a settlement will keep them at Niagara Falls, but they are confident their trip will not have been in vain.

The Mexican delegates are said to realize that the present administration in Mexico City is fast crumbling and that the choice of some one to succeed Huerta is inevitable.

After Huerta, What?

But conceding the retirement of Huerta, the delegates are said to be most interested in the vital question of what is to follow, what guarantees are to be obtained against the possible confiscation of property by the invading Constitutionalists, protection against conditions of anarchy, and what kind of government will be stable and will obtain world-wide recognition.

On the other hand, those close to President Wilson and Secretary Bryan say that the question to be mediated is no longer the failure of Huerta to salute the flag or the offenses committed against the dignity of the United States, but the broad question of pacifying Mexico. Those who know the broad-minded view of the Washington administration declare the American troops will not be withdrawn from Vera Cruz until a stable government is established or is in sight in Mexico City.

Mexican Envoys Federals.

Persons close to the Mexican delegates emphasized that the three men who will represent the Huerta government are not "Huertaistas or the representatives of any group of any people, but were representatives of the interests of the territory controlled by the Federals."

Though technically the delegates are dealing with an international question—the differences which arose with the United States out of the Tampico incident—privately they admit that before them is the problem of the actual pacification of Mexico.

Persons close to Emilio Rabasas, chairman of the Mexican commission, and intimate adviser of Huerta, said when the time came for their answer to suggestions as to a successor for Huerta they probably would insist that no man who had gained military prominence or was obtaining power "by arbitrary force," as set forth in President Wilson's Latin-American declaration, should be permitted to take the reins of government. This would eliminate Generals Carranza and Villa, but there are other men in the Constitutionalist ranks who are looked upon as of presidential caliber who would be acceptable to the Huerta faction.

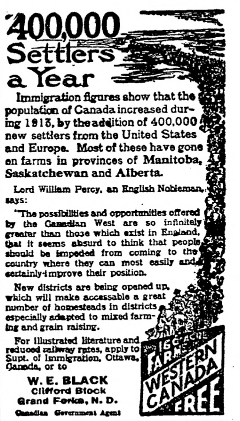
War Yet Possible.

Although General Huerta has sent the delegates here to mediate the differences and they know his viewpoint, there is a possibility—and it is admitted by representatives of all Mexican factions here—that hostilities may at any time be provoked by the Federal troops near Vera Cruz, which may generally entangle the situation and force another crisis. Huerta's whimsical moods are pointed to by even some of his friends as a dangerous aspect of the situation.

That the Huerta delegates are men of the highest ability is admitted by Constitutionalists. In settling the Mexican questions these delegates, according to their friends, will not be guided by the personal ambitions of any one man, but will recommend the things which their independent judgment of the situation will dictate.

Tell of Murder of Americans.

San Francisco, May 18.—Graphic reports of the murder of Americans, the capture by a Mexican transport of the American brig Geneva, and the imprisonment of United States Consul Clement S. Edwards of Acapulco were brought in by 150 refugees on the British steamer Cetriana from Manzanillo. According to the refugees, when news of the capture of Vera Cruz reached the west coast it was taken by the Mexicans as the beginning of war. Americans abandoned their homes and fled.



400,000 Settlers a Year

Immigration figures show that the population of Canada increased during 1913, by the addition of 400,000 new settlers from the United States and Europe. Most of these have gone on farms in provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Lord William Percy, an English Nobleman, says:

"The possibilities and opportunities offered by the Canadian West are so infinitely greater than those which exist in England, that it seems absurd to think that people should be impeded from coming to the country where they can most easily and certainly improve their position."

New districts are being opened up, which will make accessable a great number of homesteads in districts especially adapted to mixed farming and grain raising.

JUST SAVED THE SITUATION

British Royalty's Narrow Escape From What Might Be Called "Simply Awful" Position.

When truth gets a fair inning she rarely fails to be much funnier than fiction. Strange to say, old England, where truth is supposed to be always dismally sober, now and then makes quite a merry record. A rector of the Church of England, in a remote parish in Wiltshire recently discovered among his parishioners a fine old figure of a woman, age one hundred and four, the widow of an innkeeper. This ancient dame has eight sons living, six of whom have served in either the army or the navy. The rector wrote informing King George of these things, and the king ordered a warm congratulatory telegram to be sent to her.

Just as the telegram was sent off, the rector, having received additional testimony concerning the "old un," wrote again, explaining that she had been twice divorced, and had not gone through the marriage ceremony at all with the man of her latest household. Another wire was promptly set at work at the king's command, ordering the postmaster at the other end to stop delivery of the royal congratulations, and that functionary had barely time to grab the coattails of the messenger with the bicycle as he was about to make delivery.

Army's Fight on Typhoid.

The efficacy of the treatment of typhoid by vaccination is established by the remarkable statistics for the United States army during last year, when only two cases of typhoid fever among the enlisted force of 80,000 were recorded. Of the two cases, one was that of a man who had not been treated with the vaccine; the other was among the troops in China. This man had been immunized in 1911, but the history of the case is in doubt.

Before the vaccine treatment was adopted the typhoid average was 3 to 1,000; in 1910, before inoculation was practised, the rate was 2.323 a 1,000; in 1911 it dropped to 0.80, and in 1912 to 0.26.—Engineering Record.

Glow of Health Speaks for Postum.

It requires no scientific training to discover whether coffee disagrees or not.

Simply stop it for a time and use Postum in place of it, then note the beneficial effects. The truth will appear.

"Six years ago I was in a very bad condition," writes a Tenn. lady. "I suffered from indigestion, nervousness and insomnia.

"I was then an inveterate coffee drinker, but it was long before I could be persuaded that it was coffee that hurt me. Finally I decided to leave it off a few days and find out the truth.

"The first morning I left off coffee I had a raging headache, so I decided I must have something to take the place of coffee." (The headache was caused by the reaction of the coffee drug—caffeine.)

"Having heard of Postum through a friend who used it, I bought a package and tried it. I did not like it at first but after I learned how to make it right, according to directions on pkg., I would not change back to coffee for anything.

"When I began to use Postum I weighed only 117 lbs. Now I weigh 170 and as I have not taken any tonic in that time I can only attribute my present good health to the use of Postum in place of coffee.

Watch For Particulars.

For Clerk of the District Court.

I am a candidate for re-nomination for the office of Clerk of the District Court of Marshall County, and would appreciate your support at the primaries to be held June 16th, 1914.

During my incumbency of this office I have tried to be courteous and efficient. I have tried to do what was right, and have treated all persons alike. I am willing to let my record while in office speak for itself, and if nominated and elected I pledge myself to conduct the office upon business principles, and to give to the people of Marshall County the best administration of the office that I am capable of. I shall in the future, as in the past, give my personal attention to the office, and when you have business with the clerk's office, you will know that it is the undersigned that is attending to your business, and no one else.

I desire to thank the people of Marshall County for what they have done for me in the past, and trusting they will see their way clear to help me in the future, I remain,

Yours very truly,
A. C. Swandby.

Announcement for County Commissioner.

To the Voters of the 5th Commissioner District of Marshall County:

Having filed as a Non-partisan candidate for the nomination for County Commissioner of the 5th District of Marshall County, I hereby solicit your vote and influence.

If nominated and elected I pledge myself to conduct the affairs of the office in an honest and business-like manner.

Yours Very Respectfully,
Carl T. Olson,
Randin, Minn.

HENRY RINES.

Candidate for Republican omination for State Auditor of innesota

Henry Rines, of Mora, Minnesota, Candidate for the Republication Nomination for State Auditor, was County Auditor of Kanabec County, Minnesota, ten years, and a member of the State Legislature eight years. He was Speaker of the House during the session of 1913. Under his administration the House expenses were cut to $52,190.41 as compared with $74,958.47 during the previous session, and the number of House employes was reduced one-third. Mr [illegible] is a progressive Republican and has an excellent legislative record. He is an expert accountant and is recognized as an authority on Taxation. His long legislative experience has enabled him to become thoroughly familiar with the various branches of the State government. He is the author of many important laws now on the statute books, including the Gross Earnings Tax Law, increasing the railroad taxes from four to five percent, which was approved by the voters of the last election. This law is bringing over $1,000,000 additional revenue into the State treasury annually. Mr. Rines was born in Orsa, Sweden, 42 years ago, and he has resided in Minnesota for 41 years.

County Superintendent

I wish to announce to the voters of Marshall County my candidacy for the office of County Superintendent of Schools. I am a graduate of the University of Minnesota and have been in school work for seven years, hence am amply qualified for this work both in preparation and experience. At present I am principal of the Middle River Schools

Mark L. Stewart.

For County Auditor.

I have filed for re-nomination for the office of County Auditor of Marshall County, Minnesota, and desire the support of the people of the County at the primaries to be held June 16th, 1914.

As an official of the County, it has been my aim to act honestly and uprightly; it has been my aim to keep the books of the County clean and correct; and when I had occasion to act officially upon any matter I have done what I considered for the best interests of the County.

I now come before the people of the County upon my past record, and if painstaking and energetic attention to business meets with your approval, reward it by placing an "X" opposite my name when you vote.

If nominated and elected, I pledge myself to do everything I can to give the County a clean, successful and efficient County Auditor's Office.

Respectfully submitted

Terrible Tragedy

One of the most cold-blooded murders in the history of the coun- of the country occured yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, a few miles east of Germantown, when Anton Gilsol shot and killed Mrs. Ludwig Larson, Helen and Inga Olson, and wounded Mrs. O K Olson.

After committing this terrible deed the murderer disappeared but his dead body was found in a small grove a short distance from the place of the murder. It is not known for certain whether he committed suicide or was shot by the posse which quickly formed and surrounded his place of concealment. The motive of the crime is as yet unknown.

Mrs. Park— No, but I sometimes find ones that he has forgotten to burn.

For County Attorney

To the Voters of Marshall County,

I hereby announce that I am a candidate for the office of County Attorney for Marshall County, subject to the choice of the voters at the primaries, June 16th 1914. I respectfully ask your vote and influence and if nominated and elected it shall be my purpose to discharge the duties of that office in a fair and impartial manner.

WRITING LETTERS IN SYRIA

Not Always an Easy Task Here, but Something to Be Dreaded in That Country.

I always dreaded writing letters when called upon to do it by my father. It was not the business part of the letter which I dreaded, because that was dictated to me; but I had to write the "preface," a chapter of fulsome salaams and laudatory phrases, extolling the recipient, and without which a letter was little short of an insult. Again, I had to ascertain "the day of the month" which, in the entire absence of calendars, was known only to a few select minds. When the question, "How much of the month is it?" was put to me my face reddened with incredible swiftness. And when I was ridiculed by the men present for my inexcusable ignorance, being a "schoolboy," my mother would come to the rescue by telling these men that they themselvese did not know how much of the month it was, and they were of much larger dimensions than I was. I was often sent to the priest to ask him what day of the month it was. He usually counted on his fingers from the last saint's day, according to the eastern calendar, and I ran home with the information lest I should forget it on the way.—Abraham Rihbany in the Atlantic.

[illegible] AND [illegible]

"I [illegible] you for my [illegible]," and the rich old gentleman [illegible] had succeeded in getting the beautiful girl to listen to him.

"But how can I [illegible] own?"

"Why, [illegible] can't you?"

"I suppose I [illegible] think, if you really [illegible] would be safe to [illegible]."—Judge's Library.

THE MERCHANT WHO WINS

EMERSON said something about an institution being the lengthened shadow of a man. The same is true of a business. A STORE, for example, REFLECTS THE CHARACTER OF ITS OWNER.

Take two typical stores. The one is enterprising, has attractive displays, advertises liberally and intelligently and reaches out for new business.

The other goes along in a humdrum fashion, advertises little, and that in a stereotyped way, makes no display of its wares and no effort to turn over its stock at frequent intervals. It follows the methods of twenty years ago. It does not reach after new customers and in consequence loses its old ones.

Which of these stores will succeed and which will fail?

WHICH PROPRIETOR READS THE PAPERS AND WHICH READS LAST YEAR'S ALMANAC?

That tells the whole story. THE PROGRESSIVE, HUSTLING, UP TO DATE MERCHANT READS THE NEWSPAPERS. He also makes others read the advertisements he places in the newspapers. Therefore he is a winner. BE A WINNER.

HAD BEEN AT THE BEACHES

She—W[illegible] to be loved.

He—Yes, I've observed, though, that you like a whole lot better to be made love to.

Sick Women Made Well

Reliable evidence is abundant that women are constantly being restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The many testimonial letters that we are continually publishing in the newspapers—hundreds of them—are all genuine, true and unsolicited expressions of heartfelt gratitude for the freedom from suffering that has come to these women solely through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Money could not buy nor any kind of influence obtain such recommendations; you may depend upon it that any testimonial we publish is honest and true—if you have any doubt of this write to the women whose true names and addresses are always given, and learn for yourself.

Read this one from Mrs. Waters:

CAMDEN, N.J.—"I was sick for two years with nervous spells, and my kidneys were affected. I had a doctor all the time and used a galvanic battery, but nothing did me any good. I was not able to go to bed, but spent my time on a couch or in a sleeping-chair, and soon became almost a skeleton. Finally my doctor went away for his health, and my husband heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got me some. In two months I got relief and now I am like a new woman and am at my usual weight. I recommend your medicine to every one and so does my husband."—Mrs. TILLIE WATERS, 1135 Knight St., Camden, N.J.

And this one from Mrs. Haddock:

UTICA, OKLA.—"I was weak and nervous, not able to do my work and scarcely able to be on my feet. I had backache, headache, palpitation of the heart, trouble with my bowels, and inflammation. Since taking the Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I am better than I have been for twenty years. I think it is a wonderful medicine and I have recommended it to others."—Mrs. MARY ANN HADDOCK, Utica, Oklahoma.

Now answer this question if you can. Why should a woman continue to suffer without first giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial? You know that it has saved many others—why should it fail in your case?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with woman's ailments does justice to herself if she does not try this famous medicine made from roots and herbs, it has restored so many suffering women to health.

LAUNCH CAPSIZES; FIVE ARE DROWNED

FATAL ACCIDENT OCCURS ON MISSISSIPPI RIVER AT MINNEAPOLIS.

THREE BELONG TO A FAMILY

Man Holds Wife by Hair and Saves Sister's Child on Back While His Own Children are Whirled to Death By Eddies.

Minneapolis, May 19.—Five persons were drowned in the capsizing of an overcrowded 16-foot launch in the Mississippi river at Thirty-third avenue northeast at 3 p. m. Sunday. Four more of the party were rescued from three or four bobbing logs snagged in mid-stream onto which they had crawled after half an hour in the water whose current carried them four blocks.

Those Who Lost Lives.

Those drowned were: Mrs. Otto Justman, 2812 Harriet avenue south; Orville Justman, 7 years old; Justman baby, 8 months old; Norman Buchholz, 5 years old; Harold Buchholz, 2 years old.

The rescued included: John C. Buchholz, 1830 Marshall street northeast; Mrs. John C. Buchholz; Fred Weber, Merrill, Wis.; Helen Justman, 9 years old.

The body of Harold Buchholz was found floating at Fifteenth avenue, 18 blocks from the scene of the accident, an hour later. Too short a turn in a big eddy overturned the heavily-loaded launch as if it were a canoe.

John C. Buchholz, who drove the launch, kept his wife and his sister's daughter afloat. His own two children were drowned. Fred Weber, aged 20, of Merrill, Wis., struggled to save Mrs. Justman and failed. She and two of her children were drowned.

Man Saves Wife.

Buchholz struggled to a cluster of logs, gripping his wife by the hair and with his sister's little girl clinging around his neck. Merrill followed him. The woman and child were pushed onto the logs, Mrs. Buchholz unconscious. They clung there until three employes of the General Electric company's nearby plant took them off in a boat.

Otto Justman was fishing and not until late did he learn of the accident that took three of his family of four. Mr. and Mrs. Buchholz have no children left.

Launch Turns.

When the launch capsized, it spun over and over on its side and afforded no refuge. One of the Buchholz children was shoved onto it for an instant, then it whirled again and the child disappeared. The same whirl that drowned his child threw Mrs. Buchholz within the reach of Mr. Buchholz. In another spin the boat struck Mrs. Justman from the arms of Weber and she sank.

Boat and floundering people were carried fast down the river.

Only One Body Recovered.

Fifty men began search for bodies immediately under the direction of police of the north and east stations. The only body recovered was that of Harold Buchholz, the clothing of a two-year-old keeping him afloat. The fact that his body was found 18 blocks from the spot where the launch overturned discouraged hope of early recovery of the other bodies.

It was a family dinner party that went out for a short ride.

TROOPS ARE READY TO SAIL

Six Army Transports Waiting to Carry Men and Supplies on 5 Hours Notice.

Galveston, Tex., May 18.—Six army transports lie along side the government piers in readiness to carry troops, horses and supplies to Vera Cruz. Embarkation officers say that five hours after an order to sail has been received the transports will be loaded with soldiers and headed toward Mexico.

Within the last four days the quartermaster's department has converted the steamship Denver into a troop ship which will carry 1,400 men.

The Colorado is now a floating stable and can transport 450 horses. The freighter Kansas, due here from ports in the West Indies, will be made over into a stable ship with a capacity of 900 horses.

The regular army transports Meade, Sumner and Kilpatrick are loaded with coal, provisions for a voyage, and supplies for the troops already in Vera cruz. The newly chartered transports are expected from New York some time next week.

The army is preparing itself for a possible campaign through the Mexican mountain passes, where the nights are cold. Hundreds of boxes containing hoodless overcoats have been unloaded on the government 143,000 Visitors in Atlanta.

Atlanta, Ga., May 15. Tuesday capped the peak of the load of Atlanta's burden of entertainment for the Shriners. The early part of the week the Shriners took care of themselves. From now on they will take care of Atlanta. Stores closed until 1 o'clock to give the public the opportunity of seeing 90 Temples and 30,000 Arabs marching down Peachtree street, in a stupendous spectacle. It is estimated that 43,000 of the nobility, and 100,000 country visitors are here.

WANTS TROOPS TO REMAIN

GOV. AMMONS AND LABOR UNIONS APPEAL TO PRESIDENT.

Colorado Executive Maintains Strike Disorders are Interstate—Laborers Fear Further Outrages.

Denver, Colo., May 19.—Federal aid in bringing about a settlement of the Colorado coal miners' strike is desired by Governor Ammons even if President Wilson carries out his intimation that federal troops may soon be withdrawn from the strike districts, the governor announced.

The governor's announcement followed an interchange of telegrams with President Wilson, in which the president expressed a wish that Colorado should regulate its difficulties without United States troops.

"I am earnest in my belief we should have national aid to bring about a settlement of the strike, because it is an interstate conflict," said Governor Ammons.

"Many of the coal companies are composed of a large part of stockholders beyond our state lines and the United Mine Workers of America is a national organization whose headquarters are in the East, while Colorado is only one of three states of district 15 in this jurisdiction. Even most of the newspapers here are owned or controlled by persons beyond our borders, while many notorious ultra socialistic, if not anarchistic, leaders have taken advantage of conditions to come here and incite insurrection in defiance of constituted authority and law."

Officials of the United Mine Workers of America said if the federal troops were withdrawn the union would protest to Washington.

"We are afraid trouble might break out again if the regular troops are replaced by the state militia," said Robert G. Bolton, who is now in charge of headquarters at Trinidad.

Requesting co-operation in a demand upon President Wilson that he maintain federal troops in Colorado and close down mines where there is any controversy, the policy committee of District No. 15, United Mine Workers of America, sent a telegram to secretaries of the 29 districts of the union. "If the militia returns further massacre of our men, women and children are certain to follow," the telegram read.

Butterfly Decoration.

Many artists have employed the butterfly in decoration, but neither brush nor crayon is as effective as nature itself. No intimation, however good, can do justice to the gorgeous colors of the tropical butterfly. One might as well try to reproduce a rainbow in oils. A most effective novelty—a butterfly tray—was shown me recently by a charming North side hostess. It was made on the same principle as the tapestry tray. A glittering butterfly, the spread of whose wings must have been all of ten inches, was mounted on a stalk of milkweed. The pressed butterfly was then covered with glass and hermetically sealed in. To say that the tray was stunning is to speak very feebly of its attractiveness. With this object d'art as a centerpiece a clever hostess could easily arrange a "butterfly luncheon."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Are Your Kidneys Weak?

You may have kidney trouble and not know it. The only signs may be occasional twinges in the small of the back, constant lameness, dizzy spells or some annoying irregularity of the kidney action.

But no sign of kidney trouble can be safely ignored. Kidney disease moves rapidly. It leads to dropsy, gravel, Bright's disease, rheumatism.

If you suspect that your kidneys are sluggish, use Doan's Kidney Pills, which have relieved thousands.

Political Announcements.

Published in behalf of and authorized by the following and paid for by them at the regular rates.

For County Treasurer

I desire to announce myself as a Candidate for re-nomination to the office of County Treasurer of Marshall County, subject to your approval at the primaries on June 16th, 1914.

In this connection I desire to thank the taxpayers for the loyal manner in which they supported me, and their co-operation in helping me in the discharge of my duties has been of material assistance to me in more ways than one.

When I first sought this office I pledged myself that if nominated and elected I would try my very best to discharge the duties of the office with the utmost fidelity. Whether I have done this or not to your entire satisfaction it is for you to judge, and it will be my earnest endeavor if renominated and elected to make still greater effort to do my full duty as a public servant.

If I have failed in any particular it is not because I have not tried to my duty conscientiously, but an honestly made failure that I have tried to remedy.

As for the duties of the office I have become perfectly familiar with every detail and am in a position to serve your interests with utmost dispatch and promptness. Thanking you for your kindly consideration and asking that you will bear my candidacy in mind at the June primary, I remain,

Yours very respectfully,

Fred Bakke, Co. Treasurer.

For Register of Deeds

To the voters of Marshall County: Having filed for nomination to the office of Register of Deeds, I hereby respectfully solicit your support and your votes at the Primary Election to be held June 16th, 1914.

Yours, Louis M. Olson

For Register of Deeds

I hereby announce that I am a candidate for the nomination for Register of Deeds of Marshall County, and respectfully solicit the votes and support of the voters of Marshall County at the Primary Election June 16th, 1914.

Having been Deputy Register of Deeds of this County since the spring of 1906, I am thoroughly familiar with the work and if nominated and elected I shall always strive to serve the people to the best of my ability.

Chas. E. Grinder.

For Representative

I hereby announce my candidacy for the nomination of Representative to the State Legislature from Marshall County in the 67th Legislative District, at the Primaries on June 16,

Respectfully,

Geo. L. Johnson, M. D.

Newfolden, Minn.

For County Attorney

I hereby announce that I filed for the nomination for the office of County Attorney on March 31st, and that I am a candidate for that office, subject to the approval of the voters of Marshal County at the Primary on June 16th.

For State Senator

To the Voters of the 67th Legislative District.

At the solicitation of numerous friends throughout the the district comprising Marshall, Kittson and Roseau counties, it give me pleasure to announce my candidacy for the office of State Senator.

If honored with the nomination and election I hereby pledge myself to carry out the wishes of the people irrespective of personal views or opinions, as I conceive it to be the highest duty of a representative to represent the will, not of himself, but those of who honor and trust him to do their bidding for the welfare of the district.

Primarily I wish to state my attitude on the county option question, and I recognize the right of the public to such a statement from one who seeks their support for so important and honorable a position as that of State Senator. I am in favor of County Option and if elected I will not only vote for, but will use my best efforts in furthering the adoption of such a bill, believing that to be the best solution of the liquor question.

I further pledge myself to use my best efforts to further the developement of Northern Minnesota and especially the counties that I shall represent.

Assuring you that I will at all times endeavor and labor for your interests and for the interests of the 67th Ligislative district, I remain

Respectfully,

Nels S. Hegnes.

For County Attorney

To the voters of Marshall County:

I take pleasure in announcing that I am a candidate for re-nomination for the office of County Attorney.

During the brief time that I have served in that official capacity, I have endeavored to enforce the laws of the State fairly and impartially and without fear or favor. I have striven, at all times, to give the public the best service possible, and if nominated and elected, that is the kind of service which the public may expect from me.

Your support is kindly solicited

Respectfully yours,

A. N. Eckstrom.

For Sheriff

To the voters of Marshall County:

I hereby announce my candidacy for re-nomination for the office of Sheriff, and earnestly solicit the support and votes of my friends at the primary election, June 16th, 1914. I pledge myself, if re-elected to discharge the duties of the office faithfully and impartially.

Respectfully,

Wm. Forsberg, Warren.

For Sheriff

To the voters of Marshall County:

I hereby announce my candidacy for the office of Sheriff of Marshall County on the Non Partisan ticket, subject to the will of the people at the Primary election, June 16, 1914. I pledge myself, if nominated and elected, to discarge the duties of the office faithfully and impartially and to the best of my ability.

Respectfully,

BECKER IS GUILTY, SECOND JURY FINDS

FIVE BALLOTS NECESSARY TO CONVICT HIM OF FIRST DEGREE MURDER.

GRANTED STAY TILL MAY 29

Only Pardon or Interference Again by Court Can Save Former New York Police Lieutenant From Chair.

New York, May 25—Twelve men decided for the second time that Charles Becker was the arch-conspirator responsible for the Rosenthal murder which nearly two years ago awoke New York to a realization of corruption in the police department and opened a new era of police reform.

First Degree Murder.

Becker, once a police lieutenant, was found guilty of murder in the first degree. Only a pardon or interference again by the court of appeals can save him from following to the electric chair the four gunmen who shot Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, early on the morning of July 16, 1912.

The jury decided that the gunmen were Becker's agents.

Five Ballots Necessary.

Five ballots were necessary to decide Becker's fate. They were taken almost immediately after the jurors returned from luncheon at an uptown hotel, where they went as soon as Supreme Court Justice Samuel Seabury finished his charge. The fifth was unanimous for conviction.

Tears streamed down the foreman's face as he announced the decision and tears stood in the eyes of several other jurymen, but sympathy did not warp their judgment. They had agreed that the corroboration which the district attorney failed to present at the first trial to support the stories of Rose, Vallon and Webber, the three accomplices who turned informers, had been furnished by the new witnesses at the second.

Week's Stay Granted.

Becker's counsel announced that he would appeal and gained a week's stay for the preparation of his future campaign.

The defendant was granted a short meeting with his wife and his brothers and then taken back to his cell in the Tombs.

Becker and his wife were talking in a room adjoining the sheriff's office when a court attendant announced that the jury had reached a verdict.

Mrs. Becker was not permitted to accompany her husband to the courtroom.

"Foreman," Clerk Penny asked, "have you reached a verdict?"

Blagden, a youngish man, blond and slim, brushed his eyes with a handkerchief, already damp.

"We have," he said softly. "We find the defendant—" he hesitated a moment and continued in a whisper:

"We find this defendant guilty as charged in the indictment; guilty of murder in the first degree."

The veins at Becker's temples swelled. His great frame swayed and drooped; then, with quick control, he became himself again.

Manton, attorney for the convicted man, told by the court he would be granted a reasonable time in which to make any motion he deemed advisable, asked for one week and received it.

"Charles Becker, you are remanded to the Tombs prison until May 29," the court announced.

OPTIMISM IN MEXICO CITY

Confidently Expected There That Mediators Will Effect Amicable Settlement.

Mexico City, May 25.—Extreme optimism is manifested in official circles over the final outcome of the peace conference at Niagara Falls on the basis of the preliminary work done there. The foreign office in particular is greatly pleased and confidence is expressed there that the difficulty between the United States and Mexico would be satisfactorily arranged.

A high official said that President Huerta, actuated by the highest patriotic motives, was willing to sacrifice himself for the good of the country and a settlement of the difficulty was now believed to be less difficult than before the conferences began. President Huerta was said to be only concerned with a settlement compatible with the decorum and dignity of Mexico.

Passengers Landed Safely.

Washington, May 23.—The destroyer Cassin which went to the assistance of the steamer Atlantis after the latter had gone ashore off the Mexican coast Wednesday brought the 90 passengers from the steamer to Tampico.

New Haven Road Hearing.

Washington, May 25—Three directors of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad have been served with notices to testify before the interstate commerce commission which is ready to resume its investigation into the affairs of the New Haven. Their names, as announced: Lewis Cass Ledyard, George F. Baker and Geo. McCulloch Miller, New Haven directors, and E. D. Robbins, former counsel of the road, it is stated, are ready to testify, also.

GANG PLANK BREAKS; 3 DROWN

THREE MISSING, TEN HURT IN NEW YORK PIER ACCIDENT.

Score Plunged Into Hudson—Man Goes Insane Failing to Rescue Friend's Little Girl.

Hoboken, N. J., May 25.—The steamer Frederick VIII was about to start on her voyage over sea when a gang plank between her main deck and the pier broke without warning to a score or more persons hurrying across. Men, women and children—visitors returning ashore, and several passengers— were precipitated into the Hudson river. A few others fell back onto the pier and were hurt.

The list of victims contains the names of three known drowned, three other persons missing, and at least ten suffering from injuries or submersion. Men with grappling hooks continue to search for those who may be lost.

The body of three-year-old Annette Feldschau was recovered.

Those in the hospital include a junkman, known as "Junk" Peterson, who went temporarily insane after failing to rescue the Feldschau girl, daughter of a friend. The child slipped from his grasp while in the water. He was dragged upon the pier, but seeing a floating box, mistook it for the child and threw himself overboard again. He is expected to die.

Mrs. Anna Edwardsen of Brooklyn, was drowned and her body recovered. Her daughter Mary, three years old, fell into the water with her and was swept off by the tide. Of those injured three were women, including a passenger on the steamship.

According to a statement by the agents of the Frederick VIII's owners, the Scandinavian-American line, the accident was caused by the overcrowding of the gang plank, which the agents said was of steel, re-enforced with wood, in perfect condition. The whistle had blown as a last warning to visitors to go ashore. As they departed, belated steerage passengers rushed aboard.

The sailing of the vessel, which had what was said to be the largest number of cabin passengers—500—that ever left for Scandinavian ports on one ship from this city, was delayed an hour until it could be learned that none of the passengers was missing.

ROOSEVELT WILL TOUR U. S.

Progressives Lay Plans to Wage Vigorous Campaign Throughout Nation.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., May 23.—What Colonel Roosevelt described as "Not exactly a literary discussion" was held at Sagamore Hill. It was perhaps the most important political conference in which he has participated since the close of the campaign of 1912. It brought together representatives of New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio, the three states in which Colonel Roosevelt probably will do his hardest fighting this fall.

At the meeting were George W. Perkins of New York, chairman of the executive committee of the Progressive party; Charles Brown, member of the national committee Clifford Pinchot, Progressive Candidate for United States senator from Pennsylvania, and E. A. Van Valkenberg of Philadelphia, one of the foremost figures in the affairs in that state.

It was decided definitely that the tentative plans for Colonel Roosevelt's campaign trip from the Atlantic to the Pacific should be adopted. This tour probably will take the former president into almost every state in the Union.

'UNCLE JOE' ANNOUNCES SELF

Will Seek to Defeat Democratic Congressman in Eighteenth Illinois District.

Danville, Ill., May 23.—Formal announcement was made by former Speaker Joseph G Cannon of his candidacy for the congressional nomination in the Eighteenth district, at a meeting of the Republican congressional committee, held at his residence After the conference he announced that he would at once begin a vigorous campaign in the hope of unseating Representative Frank T. O'Hair, the present Democratic incumbent.

Girls Smarter Than Boys.

San Francisco, May 25—Girls are smarter than boys. Standardized tests of the relative intellects of the sexes, age for age, favor the physically weaker sex. This is what Lewis M. Terman, associate professor of education at Stanford university, told the San Francisco teachers' institute Professor Terman explained that the difference was one rather of temperament and emotion than mind. He also said work that is the most rapid is the most accurate.

Divorce Law Recommendations

Chicago, May 25.—Members of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church after devoting several hours to the discussion of recommendations for new state laws for the relation of mariage and divorce referred the subject back to the committee on Christian life and work for further consideration. Before the assembly adjourns it is expected that a revised report strongly criticising the present laxity and suggesting desired legislative reforms will be adopted.

CANADA'S PLACE AS A PRODUCER

Canada Is Getting a Great Many Americans.

"Three young provinces, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta," says a New York financial journal, "have already made Winnipeg one of the greatest primary wheat markets of the world. In 1904 they raised 58,000,000 bushels of wheat. Five years later they produced 150,000,000 bushels. In 1913 the crop approximated 200,000,000 bushels. At the present rate of progress Canada must soon pass France and India, and stand third in the line of wheat producers. Ultimately it will dispute with Russia and the United States for the first position. Wheat has been the pioneer of our development. Undoubtedly it will prove the same with Canada. In the last calendar year our trade with Canada amounted to 497 million dollars. Only with two countries—the United Kingdom and Germany—is our trade greater. No vivid imagination is needed to see what the future development of Canada means to the people of the United States.

The influx of American settlers to the Canadian prairies is now in full swing. Within the past few days over 80 of those arrived at Bassano carrying with them effects and capital to the value of $100,000. Fifty settlers from Oregon arrived in Alberta a few days ago; while 15 families of settlers from the state of Colorado arrived at Calgary on their journey northwards. The goods and personal effects of this party filled 20 box cars. Of live stock alone they had 175 horses, 15 cows and 2,000 head of poultry. Another class of settler has arrived at Peers, 110 miles west of Edmonton, where no fewer than 200 German farmers have taken up land. These are from good farming families and brought with them a large amount of capital.

Then in South Western Saskatchewan, there are large numbers settling, these from the United States predominating, while in the northern and central portions of all these provinces, the settlement of new people is going on steadily. Early in April, Peter Goertz arrived in Cardiff after a six-day journey from McPherson, Kansas. Mr. Goertz who had purchased land here was in charge of a party of 38 people from the same part of Kansas and they came through with a special train which included all their stock and implements. The equipment was all Rock Island cars, and was the first full immigrant train ever sent out by that railroad. The farms purchased by the members of the party are amongst the best in the district.

When the Panama exposition opens next year any of the three transcontinental lines in Canada will make convenient means of transport for those going to visit, and in doing so agricultural districts of Western Canada can be seen, and ocular demonstration given those who have heard but not before seen, of that which has attracted so many hundreds of thousands of American settlers.—Advertisement.

Prudent Youth.

A young society woman was having a chat one evening with a young man whom she had just met. They were in the conservatory.

"Which do you admire the greater," inquired the young belle, "black eyes or blue?"

"Well, really, replied the young fellow, slowly, "the light is so dim here I can't say just now."—Monthly Magazine.

Results Wanted.

"Who is that young man that calls on you, daughter?"

"A budding poet, father"

"Well, tell him to come around when he has blossomed and is able to show the fruit of his labors."

Cigar-Box Heroes.

The Leading Opinion Molder (tearing his hair)—I can't for the life of me remember the name of that latest Mexican bandit! What in the world is it?

The Smart Office Boy—Say, th' foreman has got a lot o' slugs in old cigar boxes in de composin' room. I'll just run up an' copy a few names from de boxes for you.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

First Appearance.

"The craze for the stage is what makes all the trouble," said Mr. Growcher.

"That's a rather general statement"

"It's true The sorrows of the human race started in the Garden of Eden when Eve undertook to give a performance as a snake charmer."

Plumed.

Neighbor—Tommy, how is your little brother?

Tommy—He's been ostracized.

Neighbor—Ostracized?

Tommy—Yes, mam, he went to the zoo Sunday and an ostrich pecked him.

Palpable Proof.

"Scientists say that anger puts sugar in the blood," remarked his wife.

"I believe it, my dear You always seem sweeter when we make up after a fight."

Beginning Young.

Mrs Grammercy—Do you think she's bringing up her daughter right?

Mrs. Park—Indeed she is, my dear! She gave the little thing a stuffed bulldog to play with instead of a doll.—Judge.

LIGHTSHIP IS LOST; HAD CREW OF 25

WRECKAGE AND THREE BODIES DISCOVERED OFF NOVA SCOTIA COAST.

WAS ON ITS MAIDEN VOYAGE

Ship on Way to Halifax From Scotland, Where It Had Just Been Built—All Victims Are Scotchmen.

Halifax, N. S., May 25.—The loss of the new lightship Halifax No. 19, with all of the twenty-five men on board is indicated by the discovery of wreckage and three bodies near Liscomb, 100 miles east of here.

Just Been Built.

The lightship was on its way to this port from Paisley, Scotland, where it was built.

The lightship is believed to have struck a rock while feeling its way through the thick fog that has enshrouded the coast for several days.

The wreckage was sighted and the bodies picked up by the steamer Dufferin, which reported that life belts marked "Halifax No. 19" were strapped about each of the victims.

Search For Bodies.

Upon receipt of the news of the wreck, the government marine agency here made preparations to send out steamers in search of other bodies. All of the victims are believed to be Scotchmen, who were engaged by the builders at Paisley to navigate the vessel across the Atlantic.

The lightship sailed a few days ago from St. Johns, N. F., where she had stopped for coal.

Liscomb, the supposed scene of the disaster, is a small island off the eastern coast of Nova Scotia, and is about forty miles west of Cape Canso.

PANAMA LOCKS HELD SAFE

Canal Authorities Asserts Defective Beams Were Discovered and Thrown Out.

Washington, May 25.—The great steel locks in the Panama canal are as strong and as safe as engineering skill can make them, and there is not the slightest danger to life or property in their use, notwithstanding the disclosure of attempted fraud in the supply of proper metal for their construction.

This statement was made at the Isthmian Canal offices when attention was called to criminal presentments found by the grand jury in Pittsburgh against five steel makers on a charge of conspiracy to furnish inferior material for the locks.

Major Boggs, in charge of the canal offices here, explained that the attempt to deliver defective steel castings that had not been fully treated an annealed, had been discovered by the government inspectors before the material was worked into the locks.

Thousands See Man Drown.

Alton, Ill., May 25.—As thousand looked on powerless to aid, Robert Cowan, aged 18, fell 500 feet with a balloon into the Mississippi river opposite Alton, and was drowned.

Refugee Ship Bringing 450.

Vera Cruz, May 25.—Picking up 186 Americans who had arrived there from Mexico City the steamer Monterey has sailed for New Orleans from Puerto, Mexico, according to advices received by W. W. Canada, American consul here. The Monterey carries over 450 Americans in all. She will not touch Vera Cruz again to take on board a score or more other Americans gathered here, who are anxious to return to the United States. The Monterey is the last of the chartered refugee ships in Mexican waters.

HOME RULE NEAR PASSAGE

CIVIL WAR MAY COME, AS RESULT, IN IRELAND.

Ulster and Nationalist Factions are Armed for Instant Action.

London, May 25.—In the course of a few hours, the home rule bill will pass its third reading in the house of commons, barring accidents, and in due course become a law, despite the opposition of the house of lords, whose veto under the parliament act is limited to two successive sessions.

There will be a long hard fight, however, possibly civil war in Ireland, before a parliament is set up in Dublin, for the Ulster men are determined that the Protestant portion of the province shall be excluded from the operation of the bill, and threaten to establish a provisional government as soon as the bill leaves the house of commons.

It was thought that the Ipswich election, in which C. F. G. Masterman, lately appointed chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster was defeated by the Unionist candidate, might influence the cabinet to take a different course, but this hope was dissipated by a letter from the Right Honorable Herbert Samuel, postmaster general, in which the minister, quoting the figures of 42 bye-elections since the bill was introduced in 1912, sets up the claim that 236,000 electors voted for the candidates who were pledged to home rule and 201,000 electors voted for the candidates opposed to home rule. He concludes his letter by saying.

"The eyes of England are now turning on Ulster, where arrangements have been made to assemble the provisional government and mobilize the well armed volunteers. Arms and ammunition have been distributed and plans have been completed for the calling out of the volunteers at a moment's notice. According to the orders to the commanders of the volunteers these steps have been taken to assist in keeping peace in the event of disturbances arising out of the passage of the home rule bill.

"Londonderry and Tyron are danger points, for here the Nationalists and Ulster men are evenly divided and both are armed. Nationalist rejoicings over the passage might easily lead to a clash and extra police have been drafted for service in these districts, and, if necessary, the military will be ordered to proceed to the assistance of the civil authorities in case of trouble."

Lake Huron Steamer Sinks.

Port Huron, Mich, May 25.—The steamer W. H. Gilbert, owned by the Pittsburg Steamship company, was sunk as the result of a collision with the steamer Caldera about 15 miles below Thunder Bay island, in Lake Huron. The vessels came together in a heavy fog Captain Cummings of the Gilbert succeeded in getting all of his crew on board the Caldera before the Gilbert went down. They were landed here The Caldera was badly damaged about the bow.

Kermit Roosevelt at Madrid.

Madrid, May 23.—Kermit Roosevelt, whose marriage with Miss Belle Wyatt Willard, daughter of the American ambassador to Spain, is to take place early in June, has arrived here.

Odd Ruling at Vera Cruz.

Vera Cruz, May 25.—An odd situation in which the army finds itself was set forth in a general order issued by Judge Advocate John J. Porter, in charge of the civil affairs at Vera Cruz. The order states that under the instructions of the war department the military occupation of Vera Cruz does not warrant the forcible seizure of private property without consent even though compensation be made. The occupation of private premises against the wishes of the owner also is impossible.

REMARKABLE CASE of Mrs. HAM

Declares Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her Life and Sanity.

Shamrock, Mo.—"I feel it my duty to tell the public the condition of my health before using your medicine. I had falling, inflammation and congestion, female weakness, pains in both sides, backaches and bearing down pains, was short of memory, nervous, impatient, passed sleepless nights, and had neither strength nor energy. There was always a fear and dread in my mind, I had cold, nervous, weak spells, hot flashes over my body. I had a place in my right side that was so sore that I could hardly bear the weight of my clothes. I tried medicines and doctors, but they did me little good, and I never expected to get out again. I got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and I certainly would have been in grave or in an asylum if your medicines had not saved me. But now I can work all day, sleep well at night, eat anything I want, have no hot flashes or weak, nervous spells. All pains, aches, fears and dreads are gone, my house, children and husband are no longer neglected, as I am almost entirely free of the bad symptoms I had before taking your remedies, and all is pleasure and happiness in my home."—Mrs. JOSIE HAM, R. DON'T FORGET

THE GRAND

4TH OF JULY CELEBRATION

AT HOLT

For Clerk of the District Court.

I am a candidate for re-nomination for the office of Clerk of the District Court of Marshall County, and would appreciate your support at the primaries to be held June 16th, 1914.

During my incumbency of this office I have tried to be courteous and efficient. I have tried to do what was right, and have treated all persons alike. I am willing to let my record while in office speak for itself, and if nominated and elected I pledge myself to conduct the office upon business principles, and to give to the people of Marshall County the best administration of the office that I am capable of. I shall in the future, as in the past, give my personal attention to the office, and when you have business with the clerk's office, you will know that it is the undersigned that is attending to your business, and no one else.

I desire to thank the people of Marshall County for what they have done for me in the past, and trusting they will see their way clear to help in the future, I remain,

Yours very truly,
A. C. SWANDBY.

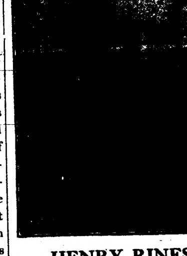
Announcement for County Commissioner.

To the Voters of the 5th Commissioner District of Marshall County:

Having filed as a Non-partisan candidate for the nomination for County Commissioner of the 5th District of Marshall County, I hereby solicit your vote and influence.

If nominated and elected I pledge myself to conduct the affairs of the office in an honest and business like manner.

Yours Very Respectfully,
Carl T Olson,
Randin, Minn



HENRY RINES.

Candidate for Republican Nomination for State Auditor of Minnesota

Henry Rines, of Mora, Minnesota, Candidate for the Republication Nomination for State Auditor, was County Auditor of Kanabec County, Minnesota, ten years, and a member of the State Legislature eight years. He was Speaker of the House during the session of 1913. Under his administration the House expenses were cut to $52,190.41 as compared with $74.958.47 during the previous session, and the number of House employes was reduced one-third. Mr. is a progressive Republican and has an excellent legislative record. He is an expert accountant and is recognized as an authority on Taxation. His long legislative experience has enabled him to become thoroughly familiar with the various branches of the State government. He is the author of many important laws now on the statute books, including the Gross Earnings Tax Law, increasing the railroad taxes from four to five percent, which was approved by the voters of the last election This law is bringing over $1,000,000 additional revenue into the State treasury annually. Mr. Rines was born in Orsa, Sweden, 42 years ago, and he has resided in Minnesota for 41 years.

County Superintendent

I wish to announce to the voters of Marshall County my candidacy for the office of County Superintendent of Schools. I am a graduate of the University of Minnesota and have been in school work for seven years, hence am amply qualified for this work both in preparation and experience. At present I am principal of the Middle River Schools.

Mark L. Stewart.

For County Auditor.

I have filed for re nomination for the office of County Auditor of Marshall County, Minnesota, and desire the support of the people of the County at the primaries to be held June 16th, 1914.

As an official of the County, it has been my aim to act honestly and uprightly; it has been my aim to keep the books of the County clean and correct; and when I had occasion to act officially upon any matter I have done what I considered for the best interests of the County

I now come before the people of the County upon my past record, and if painstaking and energetic attention to business meets with your approval, reward it by placing an "X" opposite my name when you vote.

If nominated and elected, I pledge myself to do everything I can to give the County a clean successful and efficient County Auditor's Office.

Respectfully submitted,
A C Lundgren.

GOOD FOR POLAR EXPLORERS

Frenchman's Invention of Much Benefit to Those Who Track Waste Places of the Earth.

Count Bertrand de Lessups, son of the famous Frenchman of Suez canal fame, has constructed an air-propelled machine which is capable of attaining a speed of from fifteen to sixty miles an hour over the snow, according to the condition of the frozen roads. The shoe-shaped chassis is attached to broad, flat metal runners, and vibration is reduced to a minimum by the addition of strong springs. The propeller behind the pilot if well guarded by a metal screen as a protection against any one approaching it closely. When snow falls wheels are placed on the propecting pins, which lift the ski from the ground, and the car will then attain a speed of nearly one hundred miles an hour. Some such machine as this is to be taken into the Antarctic regions by Shackleton with his forthcoming expedition. Abroad this form of amusement is called aeroskiing.

ERUPTION SPREAD ON FACE

810 East Elm St., Streator, Ill.—"A running sore broke out above my right eye, which spread over my entire face. It started as a small pimple. I scratched it open and the contents of this small pimple ran down my face. Wherever this ran a new sore appeared. They itched and burned terribly; I couldn't touch my face it burned so. It disfigured my face terribly and I couldn't be seen for everyone was afraid of it. It looked like a disease of some kind; it was all red and a heavy white crust on it. Everybody kept out of my way, afraid it would spread. I lost rest at night and I couldn't bear to have anything touch my face, not even the pillow. I had to lie on the back of the head. I was always glad when morning came so I could get up. It was extremely painful.

SHOOTS 4 WOMEN; THREE ARE DEAD

CRAZED MINNESOTA HUSBAND COMMITS SUICIDE AFTER RASH DEED.

JEALOUSY IS THE CAUSE

Mother-in-Law Wounded in Affair Not Expected to Live—No Witnesses of Tragedy on Farm Near Thief River Falls.

Thief River Falls.—At the home of O. K. Olson, living about thirty miles northeast of this city, occurred a triple and perhaps a quadruple murder and suicide. Louis Gilsoul was the murderer and suicide, and his victims were Mrs. Ludwig Larson, Mrs. Gilsoul, Helen Olson, and Inga Olson, a younger sister of Helen.

Woman Threatened Him.

The murderer appeared at the home of Olson and was met at the door by Mrs. Larson, who refused him admittance and threatened him with a pair of ice tongs.

The man immediately drew a .32-caliber revolver from his pocket and shot the woman through the breast, and as she ran into the yard he followed and again fired, the second bullet penetrating her head and killing her instantly.

The man then entered the house and shot to death his estranged wife, formerly Helen Olson, and Inga Olson, a younger sister. He then turned the gun on Mrs. O. K. Olson, mother of the two girls, and fired five shots into her body. The elderly lady is still alive, but mortally hurt, it is thought. During the fusillade the murderer was attacked by the family dog and he also ended the life of the canine with the deadly weapon.

Due to Family Quarrel.

The cause of the tragedy is said to be attributable to family quarrels. About two years ago Gilsoul's first wife was adjudged insane and was committed to an asylum; soon after this he began paying marked attention to Helen Olson, and induced her to accompany him to his claim in Saskatchewan, Canada. Last February he married the girl. The report is that he mistreated her, and she wrote her cousin, Mrs. Ludwig Larson, requesting her to come for her, as she could endure the hardship no longer.

About two weeks ago Ludwig Larson and his wife went to Canada and in the absence of Gilsoul induced the girl to accompany them home, the Larsons, living with the Olsen family. Gilsoul returned, found his wife gone, and immediately followed and appeared at the house having walked out from this city it is thought.

Young Olson Appears.

There were no witnesses to the tragedy with the exception of a brother of the Olson girls, about 22, who drove into the yard just as Mrs. Larson was shot, the elder Olson having fled at the first sign of trouble. The boy immediately turned the horses and went to arm himself and notify the neighbors.

He returned shortly armed with a 30.40 rifle and while half a mile from the house met the murderer, who at sight of him, turned and ran into the brush. The son fired on the fleeing man and missed. Very soon after the assassin disappeared a shot was heard. But it was some two hours later before the brushes were entered by the posse and the dead body discovered.

The man had placed the muzzle to his head, and fired and across his breast was lying a marriage certificate on which was written: "This is to show that she was my wife." In his pocket was also found a note to his son by his first marriage in which he admonished the boy not to follow in his footsteps.

Gilsoul is reported that to have killed a negro in Beltrami county a number of years ago.

500 Out for Legislature

St. Paul.—More than 500 candidates for the legislature have filed in the sixty-seven Minnesota districts created by the new apportionment. The reapportionment and the non partizan primary law wiping out party lines in the legislature brought out an unprecedented number of candidates. There will be sharp contests in the primaries in nearly every district, but the primaries will only be an elimination for the big fight in November. Two candidates for each legislative place will be nominated June 16.

Charges Women Work Too Long

Winona.—Caroline Manning, state factory inspector, has caused the issuance of a complaint against the Ra[illegible]mer Candy company for violation of the law passed by the last legislature providing that women shall not be employed for more than fifty four hours in a week. It is charged that from April 27 to May 2, fourteen young women were each worked over the time limit. The company has been granted a week's time to answer to the complaint.

MURDERED FOR HIS MONEY

Jury Finds That Aged Brainerd Shoemaker Was Struck From Behind—Two Suspects.

Brainerd.—That George Rappel, the aged shoemaker, who was found dead in his tiny shop in the heart of the business district of Brainerd, was struck on the back of his head by a blunt instrument like a hammer, which fractured his skull, was the testimony of Dr. J. A. Thabes, who with Drs. Berg and Beise performed the autopsy.

The witnesses examined included Dan Doran, who called for his shoes and found the shoemaker lying on the floor of his shop; John Wise, from whom he had bought a glass of beer two hours before the tragedy and who saw the buckskin bag in which Rappel carried his money; George Rappel, Jr., his son, who testified the old man always carried money in the buckskin bag and a flat pocketbook, and R. E. Clark, the deputy coroner, who brought the body to the morgue.

The man's pockets were turned inside out, showing that robbery must have been the motive. The coroner's jury returned a verdict that Rappel "came to his death by receiving a blow on the head by the hands of persons unknown to this jury." Two suspects are in jail.

Rappel, who was 70 years old, was harmless and inoffensive, tended to his own business, worked a little garden plot near his shoe shop, saved his money and found no greater pleasure than playing with his little grandchildren and often minding the babies of his son.

COW BREAKS STATE RECORD

Enters Class of the 25 Best Butter Producers in the United States, Also.

Minneapolis.—With 22,063.5 pounds of milk and 991.5 pounds of butter to her credit in 365 days, Lady Oak Fobes DeKol, an agricultural college cow, has established a new record for Minnesota and broken into the class of the 25 highest butter producers in America. Her year's production of butter fat was 793.2 pounds. This is far in excess of the year's record of Pieteje Maid Ormsby, owned by John B. Irwin of Minneapolis. Mr. Irwin's cow won the world's championship in 1911 for butter production in a thirty day period with a record of 145.66 pounds. This year's record of the animal, however, was only about 750 pounds of butter. This comparatively low year's record was attributed to the fact that the animal was taken from one place to another and kept on exhibition most of the time.

Members of the dairy department of the agricultural college have figured out that the milk produced by Lady Oak in one year is equivalent in food nutriment to that contained in five 1,200-pounds steers, or to twenty five 500-pound steers.

Icemen Return to Work

Minneapolis.—The local ice strike has been peacefully settled and 19[illegible] wagons which had been idle for nine days are making regular deliveries. After a long series of conferences a basis of agreement was reached which was satisfactory both to the union men and the company. The strikers obtained an advance of $2.50 a month in wages, with a commission which they estimate will yield in most cases at least $2.50 more. In addition, an arbitration plan was framed which is intended to make a similar strike practically impossible.

Red Wing Strike Is Settled

Red Wing.—The strike of the employees of the Red Wing Shoe company is over. The employees will accept the schedule of working hours from 7:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. with half a day off on Saturdays. They have the assurance of officials that the ten-hour schedule will be put in force on July 1 and it is also probable their request that the week's work be made up of ten hours a day for five days with Saturday afternoons off, will be granted.

FOREST FIRES IN THREE STATES

RAGING IN MINNESOTA, WISCONSIN AND MICHIGAN.

Much Damage is Caused by Conflagrations—Small Villages in Michigan are Destroyed.

Duluth.—Great brush and grass fires which have been burning for some time, have done considerable damage south and west of this city, according to reports, having destroyed large quantities of railroad timber, interrupted telegraphic communication, and in some cases halted trains.

Carlton, Minn., is the center of the worst part of the conflagration south of this city. Telephone and telegraph poles were burned at this city, halting communication between Duluth and the Twin Cities. Northern Pacific trains were stalled about three miles from Carlton when a huge pile of railroad ties on the right-of-way caught fire, blocking the tracks.

At Black Hoof, Minn., farmers have been fighting brush fires and have barely succeeded in keeping them in check. With a strong wind the flames will get beyond control in a short time and calls have been sent to larger towns nearby asking them to be prepared to give aid.

At Iverson, Minn., a large quantity of railroad ties and posts over 1,000 in all, were destroyed by a forest and brush fire.

North and west of Duluth fires are doing considerable damage. Towns along the eastern end of the Mesaba range all report large grass and brush fires.

It was while responding to a call from Hermantown, a few miles west of this city where a brush fire was doing considerable damage, that Assistant Chief Grantow of Duluth, struck and killed Lyda Hubert, the six-year-old daughter of Leander Hubert.

Fire that started in the dry house of the Section 30 mine at the village of Section 30 near Ely, destroyed the mine buildings and set fire to a heavy pine woods near by. This fire soon spread until it was beyond control.

A bridge was burned on the South Shore road near Nebagamon, Wis., and the South Shore trains are using the Northern Pacific tracks to get around the burned structure.

A passenger from Ashland, says that he heard when leaving there that logs estimated at 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 feet were burning near Saxon. They are the property of the Stearns Lumber company. He says there are many small fires along the Northern Pacific over toward Ashland.

Fires Well Under Control.

Duluth, May 21.—A light rain with prospects of heavier precipitation is expected to prevent any considerable amount of damage by grass and brush fires that have been burning south of here in the vicinity of Carlton, Minn., and northwest along the eastern end of the Mesaba range since early Sunday. Reports from Carlton, Iverson, Blackhoof and other small towns in that section, stated that while the fires were still burning they were well under control.

Stillwater Convict Convicted.

Stillwater.—Andrew Montpetit, a Mexican inmate of the new state prison, was tried by a jury in district court and found guilty of attempting to escape. He was given an indeterminate sentence by Judge P. H. Stolberg. It will begin when his present term expires. On Nov. 21 last Montpetit struck a guard at the new prison and jumped into an open box car as a train was leaving the prison yards. It was Montpetit's escape that caused the alleged controversy between Warden Wolfer and Deputy R. McCales that led to the latter's resignation.

Farmer and Helper Drown

Stillwater.—Frank Imholt, 45 years old, and Mack Muller, 19 years old, were drowned in the St. Croix river near the Imholt farm in Wisconsin, two miles from here. The men were recovered by the tug Edwin C. They were brought to a morgue here, where the coroner from Hudson county held an inquest. The tragedy was discovered by the crew of the Edwin C., who saw the men's clothing on the bank.

Rochester Drafts Boys

Rochester.—Mayor W. B. [illegible] has appointed thirty-one youths of the city as official inspectors in a sweeping cleanup campaign that was conducted last week. It was the duty of the boys to make an investigation of the entire city and report to the city clerk any premises that had not been cleaned up. The action was taken at the request of the Civic league. Saturday was inspection day, when the boys made the tour of the entire city.

Fire Along Tamarack River

Duluth, May 22.—Forest fires that broke out along the Tamarack river 10 miles north of Ely, Minn., threaten to sweep the Crane Lake lumber camp out of existence. Rangers from Robinson Lake and Ely were summoned to fight the flames and assistance was called from the numbers of men who have been battling the other brush fires in the vicinity, now well under control due to the rains of the last 24 hours. The Tamarack river blaze, it is thought, was started from brush fires.

Take this in liquid or tablet form and be a well woman!

Mrs. Eva Tyler of So. Geneva St., Ithaca, N. Y., says, "I have been in a run-down condition for several years. Suffered from nervousness and a great deal of pain at certain periods. Have taken several different medicines but found your 'Favorite Prescription' has given the most relief of anything I have ever tried. Am very much better than I have been in some time. I gladly recommend this remedy to any woman in need of a tonic." Write Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Continuous Problem.

"We sent Glayds Ann to cooking school to get her mind off her piano playing," said Mr. Cumrox.

"Did the plan succeed?"

"Yes. Now we're trying to persuade her to study political economy so as to get her mind off the cooking."—Washington Star.

RESINOL WILL SURELY STOP THAT ITCHING

My, what relief! The moment that resinol ointment touches itching skin, the itching stops and healing begins. That is why doctors have prescribed it successfully for nineteen years in even the severest cases of eczema, tetter, ringworm, rashes and other tormenting, unsightly skin-eruptions. With the help of warm baths with resinol soap, resinol ointment restores the skin or scalp to perfect health and comfort, quickly, easily and at little cost.

Resinol is also a perfect household remedy wherever a soothing, healing application is needed. It contains nothing of a harsh or injurious nature, and can be used on the tenderest or most irritated surface, where you wouldn't dare use most other skin remedies. Every druggist sells resinol ointment (50c and $1), and resinol soap (25c). Try them today.—Adv.

Shakespeare and Bacon.

It has not been proven that Bacon wrote the plays known as Shakespeare's. The various attempts at such task have all turned out to be melancholy failures. It has been shown that there are many difficulties in the way of believing that the historical Shakespeare wrote the immortal dramas, but it has not been shown that anybody else wrote them. The Stratford man is still in possession of the glory of their authorship, and if he is not entitled to the honor it is impossible to say who is.

The Busy Man.

Peals of laughter came from the president's room as the secretary stepped out.

"Mr. Green is too busy to see you at present," said the secretary, politely.

"I'm sorry," said the man who called on business. "Will you go back and tell Mr. Green that I've got two stories just as good as the one he's heard, if he'll let me in to tell them?"

On Australian Stamps

The Kookaburra, which is to figure on the new Australian stamps, is a kind of laughing jackass of the kingfisher tribe, and about the size of a crow. He kills snakes, is an optimist by nature, laughing at sunrise and sundown.

DID THE WORK

Grew Strong on Right Food

You can't grow strong by merely exercising. You must have food—the kind you can digest and assimilate.

Unless the food you eat is digested it adds to the burden the digestive organs have naturally to carry. This often means a nervous breakdown.

"About a year ago," writes a Mass. lady, "I had quite a serious nervous breakdown caused, as I believed, by overwork and worry. I also suffered untold misery from dyspepsia.

"First I gave up my position, then I tried to find a remedy for my troubles, something that would make me well and strong, something to rest my tired stomach and build up my worn-out nerves and brain.

"I tried one kind of medicine after another, but nothing seemed to help me.

"Finally a friend suggested change of food and recommended Grape-Nuts. With little or no faith in it, I tried a package. That was eight months ago and I have never been without it since.

"Grape-Nuts did the work. It helped me grow strong and well. Grape-Nuts put new life into me, built up my whole system and made another woman of me!"

1913 RECORD
Magnificent Crops in all Western Canada
All parts of the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, have produced wonderful yields of Wheat, Oats, Barley and Flax. Wheat graded from Contract to No. 1 Hard, weighed heavy and yielded from 20 to 45 bushels per acre; 22 bushels was about the total average. Mixed Farming may be considered fully as profitable an industry as grain raising. The excellent grasses full of nutrition, are the only food required either for beef or dairy purposes. In 1912, and again in 1913, at Chicago, Manitoba carried off the Championship for beef steer. Good schools, markets convenient, climate excellent. For the homesteader, the man who wishes to farm extensively, or the investor, Canada offers the biggest opportunity of any place on the continent.

Political Announcements.

Published in behalf of and authorized by the following and paid for by them at the regular rates.

For County Treasurer

I desire to announce myself as a Candidate for re-nomination to the office of County Treasurer of Marshall County, subject to your approval at the primaries on June 16th, 1914.

In this connection I desire to thank the taxpayers for the loyal manner in which they supported me, and their co-operation in helping me in the discharge of my duties has been of material assistance to me in more ways than one.

When I first sought this office I pledged myself that if nominated and elected I would try my very best to discharge the duties of the office with the utmost fidelity. Whether I have done this or not to your entire satisfaction it is for you to judge, and it will be my earnest endeaver if re-nominated and elected to make still greater effort to do my full duty as a public servant.

If I have failed in any particular it is not because I have not tried to my duty conscientiously, but an honestly made failure that I have tried to remedy.

As for the duties of the office I have become perfectly familiar with every detail and am in a position to serve your interests with utmost dispatch and promptness. Thanking you for your kindly consideration and asking that you will bear my candidacy in mind at the June primary, I remain,

Yours very respectfully,
Fred Bakke, Co. Treasurer

For Register of Deeds

To the voters of Marshall County:

Having filed for nomination to the office of Register of Deeds, I hereby respectfully solicit your support and your votes at the Primary Election to be held June 16th, 1914.

Yours, Louis M. Olson

For Register of Deeds

I hereby announce that I am a candidate for the nomination for Register of Deeds of Marshall County, and respectfully solicit the votes and support of the voters of Marshall County at the Primary Election June 16th, 1914.

Having been Deputy Register of Deeds of this County since the spring of 1906, I am thoroughly familiar with the work and if nominated and elected I shall always strive to serve the people to the best of my ability.

Chas. E. Grinder

For Representative

I hereby announce my candidacy for the nomination of Representative to the State Legislature from Marshall County in the 67th Legislative District, at the Primaries on June 16,

Respectfully,
Geo. L. Johnson, M. D
Newfolden, Minn.

For County Attorney

I hereby announce that I filed for the nomination for the office of County Attorney on March 31st, and that I am a candidate for that office, subject to the approval of the voters of Marshal County at the Primary on June 16th.

John R. Naeseth

He worked night and day thru sunshine and rain and by Wednesday night he had thirty acres broke, disced and seeded. He is now discing for Mr. Bernstein. It doesn't pay to let such a hustler get out of the country.

For State Senator

To the Voters of the 67th Legislative District.

At the solicitation of numerous friends throughout the the district comprising Marshall, Kittson and Roseau counties, it give me pleasure to announce my candidacy for the office of State Senator.

If honored with the nomination and election I hereby pledge myself to carry out the wishes of the people irrespective of personal views or opinions, as I conceive it to be the highest duty of a representative to represent the will, not of himself, but those of who honor and trust him to do their bidding for the welfare of the district.

Primarily I wish to state my attitude on the county option question, and I recognize the right of the public to such a statement from one who seeks their support for so important and honorable a position as that of State Senator. I am in favor of County Option and if elected I will not only vote for, but will use my best efforts in furthering the adoption of such a bill, believing that to be the best solution of the liquor question.

I further pledge myself to use my best efforts to further the developement of Northern Minnesota and especially the counties that I shall represent

Assuring you that I will at all times endeavor and labor for your interests and for the interests of the 67th Ligislative district, I remain

Respectfully,
Nels S. Hegnes

For Sheriff

To the voters of Marshall County,

I hereby announce my candidacy for re-nomination for the office of Sheriff, and earnestly solicit the support and votes of my friends at the primary election, June 16th, 1914. I pledge myself, if re-elected to discharge the duties of the office faithfully and impartially.

Respectfully,
Wm. Forsberg, W[illegible]

For Sheriff

To the voters of Marshall County,

I hereby announce my candidacy for the office of Sheriff of Marshall County on the Non Partisan ticket, subject to the will of the people at the Primary election, June 16, 1914. I pledge myself, if nominated and elected, to discarge the duties of the office faithfully and impartially and to the best of my ability.

Respectfully,
Hans C. Hanson
Viking, Minn.

FOR SHERIFF

To the voters of Marshall County:-

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the nomination of Sheriff of Marshall County on the Non-Partisan ticket, and respectfully solicit your influence and vote at the primary election to be held June 16th, 1914. If nominated and elected I will discharge the duties of my office to the best of my ability.

Yours very truly,
OSCAR OSETH. (adv.)

For County Attorney

To the voters of Marshall County:

I take pleasure in announcing that I am a candidate for re-nomination for the office of County Attorney.

During the brief time that I have served in that official capacity, I have endeavored to enforce the laws of the State fairly and impartially and without fear or favor. I have striven, at all times, to give the public the best service possible, and if nominated and elected, that is the kind of service which the public may expect from me.

Your support is kindly solicited

Respectfully yours,
A. N. Eckstrom.

For Superintendent of Schools.

Hereby I wish to announce my candidacy for re-election to the office of Superintendent of Schoolc of Marchall County. I also wish to thank the public for all past favors and to solicit your vote and support in this election.

Yours very truly,
David Johnson.

A party consisting of Mr. Arvid and Tony Carlson and P. L. Anderson made a visit to Edwin Erickson's last Sunday. On their return they were accompanied by Henry Wendt and sister.

Begin now, and plan to spend the 4th of July in Holt.

Mr. S. S. Kolden has purchased 200 acres of land three miles north east of Holt through the Holt Realty Co., they taking in the deal a 5-passenger Buick car. That's going some, and now they will go some more.

S. S. Kolden made a two days' business trip to Crookston this week.

Mrs. Ben Docken made a trip to Thief River Falls, to receive treatment for her teeth.

Mrs. B. L. Backe returned Monday from Fergus Falls, Minn., where she made a visit to her mother. On her return she was accompanied by her sister, Myrtle, who has been attending school in that city.

A very serious accident happened to Mr. Carl Newton's son, who lives on their homestead near Randine, this county. It seems that the boy had placed rubber bands about his leg and waded in the water until the circulation of the blood had stopped, causing his legs to swell in such a manner that he had to be taken to Warren and placed in the hospital for treatment.

Ferdinand Heinze, of Fergus Falls, has been visiting friends and relatives of this place the last week. Some years ago Mr. Heinze had a farm near Holt and is well known in this community.

H. A. Fosholm went to Thief River Falls on Tuesday, for a visit at the Fodstad home east of town.

H. S. Dahlen, of Thief River Falls, was a business caller at Holt on Tuesday.

K. O. Dock, of Thief River Falls, the insurance man, was a caller at Holt on Tuesday and Wednesday.

The Free Mission Young Peoples Society will meet at Elof Eide's place next Sunday afternoon, June 14, at 2 p. m. Everybody welcome.

FOR RENT.

Hay land for rent—120 acres, W half, NW. quarter, NE. quarter, NW quarter, 11-156-43. $30.00 for the season. Thos. L. Rudy, Minneapolis, Minn., care Maurice L. Rothschild.

For Shoes of Style, Quality and at a Low Price go to R. Reierson.

C. M. Lumpkin, with Merchants Nat. Bank of Crookston, was at Holt last Thursday. He expressed himself as being well pleased with the progress of the town. He is looking after the interests of the Northern Townsite Co. and while here had the ground surveyed for the new school site.

FOUND—A pair of eye-glasses was found in the main street and brot to this office. Same can be had by paying for this ad.

Ole A. Knutson received a telephone message yesterday that his son, Ole, who has been working at Bemidji, was drowned yesterday morning at that place.

The 4th of July Celebration at Holt this year will be a dandy.

GOLDEN VALLEY NEWS.

Several of the Mud Lake fans attended the game at Gatzke, Sunday. Gatzke has a team that would be hard to beat, if they had a little training and a set of rooters that would be a credit to the National League. Gilbert Johnson has decided that he can't play them alone. Score 3 to 25.

Squire Bergum is doing fine work with his new tractor.

Rudolph Dahl went to Crookston and while there purchased a new tractor.

Lars Lafilda purchased a new buggy from Sigard Vick and went for a joy ride. Everything must have went fine as we see the rim of Lars' hat is gone.

Miss Olga Larson finished a successful term of school in District No. 145.

A. S. Bernstein purchased a new cream separator from the Carlson boys. This will soon tell which cow gives the buttermilk and which cow gives the cream.

Roy and Herbert Sheffel, of Lyle, Minn., were out to visit Peshie, Thursday and returned Friday.

J. J. Kelly has a fine mosquito hatchery consisting of the Canadian Leg Horn, the Gally Nipers and the Panama Gamesters. Being a little overstocked it is said that he will sell eggs or pairs at a very reasonable price.

Mrs. Thompson, from Parkland, is visiting with her brother, Christ Sybilrudd, of Mud Lake.

Two experts were out from Thief River Falls to look over Peter Kolden's gas tractor last week. In motoring across from Golden Valley, they were stalled in the mud and had to walk until a neighbor came along and took them in. It seems that they found the machine in a rather poor condition. Mr. Kolden pulled their [illegible] out of the mud and went back to Thief River Falls again, saying [illegible] would send out another expert to try [illegible].

WHO LOST HIS SPECTACLES

Sir Evelyn Wood Retrieved Eyeglasses for Anthony Trollope, the Famous Novelist.

Sir Evelyn Wood, who met with an accident when riding last week, once came to the rescue of a distinguished man of letters in a similar plight. The distinguished man of letters was Anthony Trollope, and the story is told by T. H. S. Escott in his recently published biography. Trollope was an enthusiastic huntsman, but being something of a heavyweight he was sometimes landed in difficulties when out with the hounds. "His popularity in the field," writes Mr. Escott, "generally brought him timely relief in answer to his call for help.

"Such proved to be the case when on one occasion he had been making up lost ground after a fall in the middle of a plowed field. The fellow sportsman who answered to this cry was no less a person than the present Field Marshal Sir Evelyn Wood. 'For heaven's sake,' exclaimed Trollope, 'be careful; I am afraid to move lest I should trample on my spectacles, which have just fallen off my nose.' Quick as thought the future field marshal alighted from his horse and retrieved the glasses. Having fitted them to his nose, Trollope rejoined the hunt with as much serene steadiness as if the little contretemps had never occurred." — London Chronicle.

APPROPRIATE KIND.

"How did you know that fellow was a masher?"

"I guessed it from his soft crush hat."

SUPERFLUOUS ENERGY.

"Why should anybody try to uplift the stage?"

"Why not?"

"Hasn't it got wings of its own?"

HIS REASON.

"Why do you call your novel 'The Royal Wedding?'"

"Because I want it to draw the royalties."

WAR WITH MEXICO IS AGAIN AVERTED

HUERTA'S PLAN TO BLOCKADE TAMPICO IS CAUSE OF NEW CRISIS.

ORDER SUDDENLY RECINDED

Mediation May Go On Uninterrupted As Result of Sudden Change in Front By Government of Dictator.

Mexico City, June 9.—The Mexican government has decided to suspend the effects of the blockade of Tampico which had been ordered by General Huerta.

Ruiz Issues Statement.

Roberta Esteva Ruiz, the Mexican foreign minister, made the following statement:

"The Mexican government, upon learning that the Mexican delegates and other mediators were taking some action in regard to the expedition of the steamship Antilla, which was reported to have sailed from an American port with arms for the constitutionalists, has decided to suspend the effects of the Tampico blockade in order not to embarrass the peace negotiations."

Crisis Is Averted.

Washington.—It seems that the rescinding order of the Huerta government has averted the latest crisis in the Mexican situation.

General Huerta brought about the new crisis by ordering his gunboats to blockade the port of Tampico, and to seize a cargo of ammunition en route there for the Mexican Constitutionalists aboard the steamer Antilla from New York flying the Cuban flag. Huerta has notified the powers of the intent to blockade the port and that he proposed to seize the cargo consigned to the belligerents against his sovereignty as contraband of war.

The purpose of the United States to suppress the attempt to blockade and prevent interference with the Antilla was indicated when Secretary Daniels issued an official statement announcing that while no new orders had been given Rear Admiral Badger, there had been no change in the policy of the government in reference to its desire that the port of Tampico shall be open to all commerce." The statement follows:

To Keep Port Open.

"The navy department has issued no new orders to Admiral Badger since the Mexican gunboats were reported to be leaving Puerto Mexico. The department has at no time contemplated furnishing a convoy to the Antilla, or any other ship, nor have any orders to that effect been issued. No word whatever has been received as to whether or not warships of other nations have been notified of the blockade, at Tampico, or what their attitude would be toward such a blockade. There has been no change in the policy of the government in reference to its desire that the port of Tampico shall be open to all commerce."

As to whether "all commerce" in this instance includes contraband of war no official of the government will discuss. So far as is known, the only orders relating to Tampico that have been issued went to Admiral Badger on May 18 in the form of a message informing him that, while it was not believed the Huerta gunboats would return to Tampico, it was deemed advisable that the commanders of American naval vessels understand that the government desired that there be no interference with commerce at that port.

The president conferred over the telephone with cabinet officials and also received important messages from the American delegates to the mediation conference at Niagara Falls. These were believed to have a bearing on the impending delicate situation at Tampico, but no announcement was made concerning the interchanges.

Tampico Anticipates Attack

Tampico.—In anticipation of an attack on the city by the Federal gunboats Zaragosa and the Bravo, the work of erecting fortifications at the mouth of the river here is being rushed. Five heavy guns already have been placed. Steps also are being taken to block the channel of the river, should such a step be deemed necessary.

Fletcher Praises Officers.

Washington, June 9.—"Resourcefulness, courage and devotion to duty of all officers of the landing force was everything that could be desired and reflected the highest credit upon our naval service," declared Rear Admiral Fletcher in a report accompanying his story of the seizure of Vera Cruz.

Twenty Fishermen Perish

Quebec, June 9.—Some forty steamers were wrecked and twenty or more fishermen lost their lives in the storm that swept the coast of northern New Brunswick and Chaleurs bay Friday night. Nearly all the boats were blown ashore on Miscou and Shippegan islands, remote points from which the news came slowly. Eight bodies have been recovered and taken to Caraquet, N. B. Property along the coast and in Chaleurs bay was damaged by the storm.

NORTHWEST MEN DISTINGUISH SELVES

FLETCHER MAKES REPORT OF BRAVE ACTS DONE AT VERA CRUZ.

THREE ARE FROM WISCONSIN

Kenosha, Milton, and Milwaukee Men Among Those Given Special Credit for Services—Minneapolis Man Also Among the Heroes.

Washington, June 9.—Narratives of the bravery of enlisted men of the navy and marine corps during the fighting at Vera Cruz on April 21 and 22 were included in Rear Admiral Fletcher's report of the Mexican port's seizure just made public by the navy department.

Northwest Men Listed.

While the report bestows praise on the entire personnel, the following men from the Northwest were mentioned for conspicuous acts:

J. H. Hendrickson, hospital attendant on the cruiser Prairie, and Lee Mahr, Minneapolis, marine private, quit their cover on the firing line, ran with a stretcher, and removed private Percy under a heavy fire, and returned at once to their places on the line.

G. E. Bancroft, Milton, Wis., seaman, battleship New Hampshire, picked up a wounded man and carried him to a nearby house under a heavy fire from the Naval Academy. Fire being opened upon him from this house, he called for assistance, stationed himself in front of this house and kept down the fire from it with his own weapons until the wounded man was carried to the rear. He promptly returned to the firing line.—Captain Anderson.

H. H. Roloff, Kenosha, Wis., coxswain, battleship Arkansas—In face of a sharp cross fire from the enemy from the roof tops along San Francisco, Canal street, Roloff brought his squad out to defend street crossing, himself leading the way, and kept them there until ordered behind shelter.—Lieutenant Commander Keating.

A. De Somer, Milwaukee, Wis., chief turret captain, battleship Utah—On the afternoon of April 21, he was placed in charge of a small squad of men and stationed at the corner of a warehouse to the eastward of the custom house. His position was subject to a severe fire from the buildings along Avenida Landeroy Y Cos. and after several hours of well directed fire he silenced it. On April 22, when a general advance began, he was sent ahead to locate and silence fire from snipers. Being an excellent marksman and notably cool, he was specially selected for this work. Later, when two sections of artillery were sent to join Captain Anderson's command, he performed similar services and was almost continually under direct fire from snipers. His services in this connection were of more value than a whole squad.—Lieutenant Castle.

Prevents Surprise Attack.

F. N. O. Overall, Jela, Kan., boatswain's mate, first-class, battleship Utah.—During the night of April 21 he, with a small squad of three men, occupied the old Benito Juarez light tower, under fire, and later patrolled the surrounding roofs in the darkness, thereby preventing a surprise attack upon the section of his company in the streets below. I consider this service of special value.—Lieutenant Castle.

PRISON HONOR SYSTEM O. K.

Two Escape at Fort Leavenworth But are Captured by Fellow Convicts

Leavenworth, Kan., June 9.—Two prisoners, members of the disciplinary battalion under the honor system in the military prison at Fort Leavenworth, who attempted an escape were captured by fellow members of the battalion and returned.

John W. Hughes and Walter Ayres, taking advantage of the opportunities offered at a prison ball game, slipped through the crowd of spectators to freedom. The other members of the battalion were filled with wrath at the breach of honor of the two, and upon volunteering their services to return the men a score of them were sent out to search the surrounding country.

After a search of several hours the fugitives were found hidden in the woods.

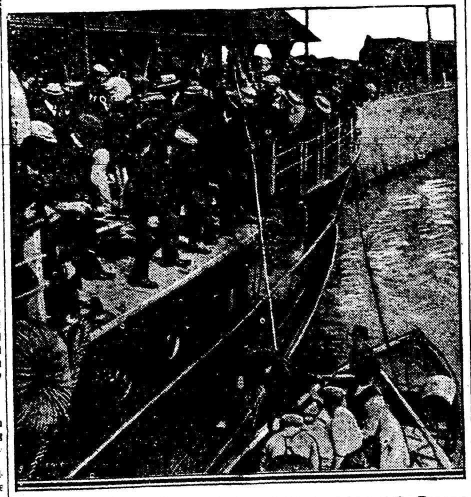
Fair and Hot This Week

Washington, June 9.—Generall, fair and hot weather is the forecast for this week east of the Rockies.

Four Injured in S. D. Tornado

Canistota, S. D., June 9.—A tornado injured four persons and did much damage to farm property in this vicinity Saturday night. It formed near Fred Henthorn's farm, traveling in a direction almost due north and swept everything in its path for about eight miles. Barns and outbuildings on the Henthorn and other farms were demolished. Mr. and Mrs. Harms and their two sons Edward and Herman, were in their house when the tornado truck. All were unconscious when found.

BRINGING THE DROWNED TO SHORE



Many of the bodies of those who perished in the sinking of the Empress of Ireland in the St. Lawrence were landed at Quebec by the Canadian government steamer Lady Evelyn. The photograph shows the transferring of the bodies.

CORRECTED DEATH LIST IS NOW 1024

FIFTY-FIVE MORE NAMES ARE ADDED TO EMPRESS OF IRELAND VICTIMS.

MORE ABOARD THAN SAID

89 Additional Reported Among Passengers Than at First Supposed—Storstad Found to Have Been Badly Battered.

Quebec, June 4.—The confusion as to the number of persons who perished in the Empress of Ireland disaster has been one of the distressing features of the tragedy, and the uncertainty was further emphasized when figures, declared by the Canadian Pacific railway steamship company to be official, raised the death list to 1,024 from 969 on Sunday—55 more.

More Aboard Ship.

The company had stated at its Montreal office that the Empress of Ireland carried 1,387 persons when she weighed anchor on her final and uncompleted voyage. It was upon that figure that the list of survivors and missing was based. Now, however, the company asserts that the Empress carried 1,476 passengers, officers and crew. As a partial off-set, the figures giving the number of rescued were raised.

Of the bodies recovered only 103 have been identified—22 first cabin, 31 second cabin, 38 steerage and 12 officers and crew.

Fourth Commission Member

The third member of the Royal commission, the official investigating body will be Lord Mersey, of England, who presided over the British government's inquiry into the loss of the steamship Titanic. The two other members are Ezekiel MacLeod, chief judge of the admiralty of the province of New Brunswick, and Justice Sir Adolph Routhier, judge of the court of admiralty of Quebec. George Vaux, of the legal staff of the British board of trade, will sit as an advisory member.

There will be two nautical assessors, a naval architect and a marine engineer appointed to assist the commission.

Collier Is Badly Damaged

Montreal.—The collier Storstad which rammed the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Ireland in the St. Lawrence has completed unloading her cargo of coal, and it is possible to make a thorough inspection of her bow, shattered by the shock of the collision.

It is seen that her stem was twisted so much to starboard that it almost formed a half circle. Some of the lowermost plates in her bow were also twisted to starboard and torn away. There is a large indentation on either side of the stem and the rivets are torn clear.

Upholds Captain's Claim

The condition of the Storstad's stem is pointed to in connection with Captain Anderson's claim that when the collision with the Empress of Ireland occurred it was impossible for the collier's stem to remain in the hole because it was twisted by the forward movement of the Empress.

The Storstad is still in the possession of the bailiff, who seized the vessel on the Canadian Pacific company's claim of $2,000,000 loss against the collier.

Much Mail Is Lost.

According to the statement of Montreal postoffice officials the heavy registered mail, something amounting to 1,903 packages, which went down on the Empress is a total loss and there will be no compensation for the senders or addressees of those packages. The postal regulations provide that the department is only to the extent of $25 for each package.

The Empress of Ireland carried 159 bags of newspapers, 51 bags of letters, eight baskets containing 301 parcels, and 1,903 registered articles.

BURY 12 OF EMPRESS' CREW

Quebec, June 6.—Twelve of the crew of the steamship Empress of Ireland who perished in the St. Lawrence disaster were buried here with fitting ceremony. The funeral procession, moving to the music of military bands, passed between double rows of sorrowing spectators. Everywhere flags were at half mast.

Ronald Ferguson, the Empress' wireless operator, had only eight minutes in which to call for assistance before the dynamos failed, according to his story.

Directly after the collision, Ferguson says, he ran to the wireless room from his cabin, to which he had retired for the night. He sent out a message to Father Point telling the operator there to "stand by, as the Empress had struck something." A second later First Officer Staid ran into the room and told him to despatch the "S. O. S." call. Father Point answered that help was coming and immediately the wireless of the Empress stopped.

Ferguson went down with the ship, but came up, and, after swimming for three-quarters of an hour, was picked up.

Montreal, June 8.—With further developments in connection with the Empress of Ireland disaster lacking the public has settled down to await the official investigation that is to be begun on June 16, with Lord Mersey as chairman of the commission of inquiry. There is confusion in the public mind as to whether the investigation is to be held at Montreal or Quebec, but Ottawa dispatches received here mention Quebec as the scene of the inquiry.

It is believed by many here that the Empress may be raised, though the Canadian Pacific railway officials have been careful not to make statements tending to confirm this belief. There is a general desire that all the bodies possible shall be recovered from the wrecked vessel. It is thought that divers may be employed to extricate the imprisoned bodies and the ship blown up after the bullion in it has been brought out.

Lloyds, the insurance underwriters of the sunken steamer, it is said here, will probably investigate the chance of floating the ship, although no official announcement to that effect has yet been made.

Arrangements are being made by the Montreal Board of Trade to open a general fund for the relief of the survivors and sufferers from the disaster.

Wisconsin Towns Threatened.

Greenwood, Wis., June 6.—With the Black river already past its greatest flood height and rising fast, this town and others in Clark county, in central Wisconsin, near the raging torrent are hourly in danger of being swept away.

The maddened waters, swollen by the heavy rains have torn the municipal light and power company's dam from its anchorage and have swept 250 feet of re-enforced concrete levee. Small building have already been washed away.

10,000 Threaten to Strike.

Pittsburgh, June 6.—According to officials of the Allegheny Congenial industrial union, an organization formed here last February, 10,000 employes of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, the Westinghouse Machine company and the Pittsburgh Meter company will go on strike. Officials of the Westinghouse interests questioned, refused to put any credence in the strike report and said it was nothing but the talk of "a few hotheaded workmen."

OPPOSITION MELTS; TRUST BILLS PASS

THREE ADMINISTRATION MEASURES PASS HOUSE IN A HURRY.

ARE ALL BEFORE SENATE NOW

Trade Commission, Clayton Anti-Trust and Rayburn Bills Get Big Vote When Final Test Comes in Lower Body.

Washington, June 8.—All three bills on the administration trust legislation program have passed the house and are now before the senate for action there.

Voting Done Quickly.

Opposition melted away when the final test came in the lower body and the voting went through quickly and without incident.

The Covington interstate trade commission bill was passed without a record vote; the Clayton omnibus anti-trust measure received 275 votes to 54 against it and the vote on the Rayburn railroad capitalization bill was 325 to 12.

The clerk hardly had finished the last roll call before the house had settled down to consideration of the sundry civil appropriation bill, one of several supply measures that must be disposed of before the session ends. The adjournment problem now is squarely up to the senate and the Democratic leaders on that side of the capitol are expected to agree upon a program in the near future.

Action Rather Unexpected.

Action on the trust bills in the house came rather unexpectedly. Three measures had been agreed to in "committee of the whole" after weeks of speech-making, consideration of the Rayburn bill as amended by the committee, being completed late this afternoon.

When the trade commission bill came before the house for a final vote Progressive Leader Murdock moved that it be sent back to the interstate commerce committee with instructions to report the Murdock bill as a substitute. This was rejected, 151 to 15, and the pending bill was passed without a roll call.

Votes in Rapid Succession.

Then the votes on the other two measures were taken in rapid succession.

Representative White of Ohio was the only Democrat to vote against the Clayton bill and all the Progressives voted for it except Representative Chandler of New York. Forty-three Republicans and 16 Progressives joined the majority in supporting the measure.

Senate Committee Reports But One.

Washington, June 8.—The senate interstate commerce committee voted to report out only the trade commission measure of the trust bills. The action was construed by many as an indication of limitation of the administration's program at the present session of congress. There was no record vote. In a general discussion, some senators opposed the motion and others declared themselves opposed even to the bill at the present time. Chairman Newlands said the committee later might take up supplemental legislation.

CANADIANS BAR "MOTHER"

Officials Refuse to Permit Mary Jones to Leave Seattle for Vancouver.

Seattle, Wash., June 6.—"Mother" Mary Jones, organizer of the United Mine Workers of America, was not permitted to board a Canadian Pacific steamer bound for Vancouver, being stopped at the gangplank by a Canadian immigration official.

"Mother" Jones, who had purchased a ticket to Vancouver, presented herself at the gangplank of the steamer and was subjected to the usual questioning by a Canadian immigration inspector. Asked if she was an American citizen, she replied:

"Yes, and proud of it."

She gave Ireland as her birthplace. The inspector looked at her ticket and said, according to Mrs. Jones:

"You're not going to Vancouver. You're going to Nanaimo to kick up a disturbance among the miners, and you can't go."

Dictator Is Very Optimistic

Mexico City, June 8.—Persons who spoke to President Huerta say that he is very optimistic over the outcome of the peace negotiations at Niagara Falls. The newspapers did not publish reports of any proceedings at Niagara Falls, but the belief was expressed that the end of the difficulty was near and that there soon would be a resumption of diplomatic relations with the United States.

Hindus Adopt Hunger Strike

Vancouver, B. C., June 6.—Led by three Hindu monks from Golden Temple of Amritsar, Hindus aboard the steamer Womagata Maru are dancing religious dances. The dance is accompanied by total abstinence from food, the Hindus having started a hunger strike as a forlorn hope. Whether the hunger strike is due to the force of circumstances or a desire to compel immigration officials to allow the Hindus to land, there is no doubt that it has commenced.

SLEUTH SAYS HE HAS "GOODS"

DETECTIVE TO RETURN TO SOLVE WINTERS CASE.

Automobile Accident Injures Sheriff and Other County Officials Interested in Case.

New Castle, Ind., June 9.—Developments in the search for Catherine Winters, the 9-year-old daughter of Dr. W. A. Winters, a dentist of this city, who mysteriously disappeared a little more than a year ago, will be only temporarily halted so far as officials here are concerned, by the automobile accident in which Sheriff Bouslog and other officials were badly injured while working on the case.

It is feared the sheriff may not recover. He is said to have been working on some promising new clues, but in the event he does not mend rapidly, his information will be turned over to others and the work continued.

Robert H. Abel, the private detective who caused the arrest of Dr. Winters, his wife, and Ross Cooper, a former boarder in their home, announces that he is coming back to New Castle to continue the fight.

In a message to Mayor Watkins, Abel announced that he "has the goods" beyond any question and that when he returns there will be no further delays.

When he departed after quarreling with the prosecuting attorney, W. R. Meyers, because the latter would not place charges of murder against Dr. and Mrs. Winters and Cooper, he took with him certain dictograph records and other evidence. Following the departure of Detective Abel, Mayor Watkins and Prosecutor Meyers held a conference and decided to drop the charges against the three accused persons.

Mr. Abel, when here a week ago, outlined the discoveries which he made in the basement of the Winters home. "After I took charge of the work at the request of Mayor Watkins and others, I soon exhausted every possible clue to the girl's whereabouts if she were alive. I thus turned attention to the home of the parents and found inside of a cement block in a partition of the cellar a red sweater, similar to the one worn by Catherine the day she disappeared. The sweater was torn, and apparently burned; as if it had been pulled from a fire.

"Next I found a red undershirt, which had evidently been worn by a one-armed man of a build corresponding to that of Cooper. Cooper has but one arm, the lost member having been replaced by a wooden arm."

N. Y. VOTING IRREGULARITIES

Dead Men Have Been Voting According to the Gotham Records, It Develops.

New York, June 8.—District Attorney Whitman's investigation of illegal voting at the special election on April 7, has, Mr. Whitman announces, disclosed the fact that in the 12th assembly district in which Charles W. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, makes his home the names of four dead men were registered as having cast votes in favor of the holding of a constitutional convention next year.

The investigation has also disclosed the fact that in the 14th assembly district the names of 15 men were voted as residents of Bellevue hospital. Detectives discovered that not one of the fifteen was known at the hospital.

The inquiry, according to the district attorney's statement, has shown that a large number of men identified with Tammany Hall who are now under indictment for irregularities alleged to have been committed at the special election, have been writing the names of illegal voters at all elections for several years.

Queen Eleanor Announces Coming.

New York, June 8.—Clayton Rockhill, honorary consul general of Bulgaria in New York city, has been advised by cablegram from Sofia, Bulgaria, that it is the intention of Queen Eleanora to visit the United States about the middle of next October. The queen planned to come to the United States last spring, but decided to defer her visit.

First Vera Cruz Pension.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 8.—Mrs. Donnie Smith of this city, mother of Charles Allen Smith, one of the two Philadelphia youths who lost their lives at the taking of Vera Cruz, was the first American to receive a pension as a result of the Mexican embroglio. Mrs. Smith received the first monthly installment of $12 from Washington.

$300,000 Powassan, Ont., Fire.

North Bay, Ont., June 8.—Twenty-five buildings were destroyed and 16 families made homeless in a fire which swept the village of Powassan Sunday, causing a loss estimated at $300,000.

Believed She Was Wife

Chicago, June 6.—Miss Mary Quinlan, who for almost a year believed herself to be the wife of James J. Brady, state auditor of Illinois, and as such was accepted by Governor Dunne's official family and by society in Springfield, has filed in the circuit court a suit for $50,000 against Brady for breach of promise. Furthermore, Miss Quinlan, who was Mr. Brady's secretary, is writing her own story of the inner workings of the state auditor's office.

DON'T FORGET

THE GRAND

4TH OF JULY CELEBRATION

AT HOLT

For Clerk of the District Court.

I am a candidate for re-nomination for the office of Clerk of the District Court of Marshall County, and would appreciate your support at the primaries to be held June 16th, 1914.

During my incumbency of this office I have tried to be courteous and efficient. I have tried to do what was right, and have treated all persons alike. I am willing to let my record while in office speak for itself, and if nominated and elected I pledge myself to conduct the office upon business principles, and to give to the people of Marshall County the best administration of the office that I am capable of. I shall in the future, as in the past, give my personal attention to the office, and when you have business with the clerk's office, you will know that it is the undersigned that is attending to your business, and no one else.

I desire to thank the people of Marshall County for what they have done for me in the past, and trusting they will see their way clear to help in the future, I remain,

Yours very truly,
A. C. SWANDBY.

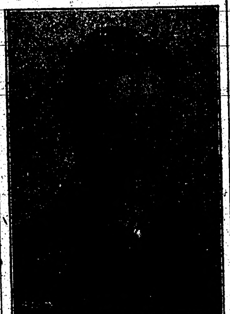
Announcement for County Commissioner.

To the Voters of the 5th Commissioner District of Marshall County:

Having filed as a Non-partisan candidate for the nomination for County Commissioner of the 5th District of Marshall County, I hereby solicit your vote and influence.

If nominated and elected I pledge myself to conduct the affairs of the office in an honest and business-like manner.

Yours Very Respectfully,
Carl T. Olson,
Randin, Minn.



HENRY RINES.

Candidate for Republican Nomination for State Auditor of Minnesota

Henry Rines, of Mora, Minnesota, Candidate for the Republication Nomination for State Auditor, was County Auditor of Kanabec County, Minnesota, ten years, and a member of the State Legislature eight years. He was Speaker of the House during the session of 1913. Under his administration the House expenses were cut to $52,190.41 as compared with $74,958.47 during the previous session, and the number of House employes was reduced one-third. Mr. is a progressive Republican and has an excellent legislative record. He is an expert accountant and is recognized as an authority on Taxation. His long legislative experience has enabled him to become thoroughly familiar with the various branches of the State government. He is the author of many important laws now on the statute books, including the Gross Earnings Tax Law, increasing the railroad taxes from four to five percent, which was approved by the voters of the last election. This law is bringing over $1,000,000 additional revenue into the State treasury annually. Mr. Rines was born in Orsa, Sweden, 42 years ago, and he has resided in Minnesota for 41 years.

County Superintendent

I wish to announce to the voters of Marshall County my candidacy for the office of County Superintendent of Schools. I am a graduate of the University of Minnesota and have been in school work for seven years, hence am amply qualified for this work both in preparation and experience. At present I am principal of the Middle River Schools.

Mark L. Stewart.

For County Auditor.

I have filed for re-nomination for the office of County Auditor of Marshall County, Minnesota, and desire the support of the people of the County at the primaries to be held June 16th, 1914

As an official of the County, it has been my aim to act honestly and uprightly; it has been my aim to keep the books of the County clean and correct; and when I had occasion to act officially upon any matter I have done what I considered for the best interests of the County.

I now come before the people of the County upon my past record, and if painstaking and energetic attention to business meets with your approval, reward it by placing an "X" opposite my name when you vote.

If nominated and elected, I pledge myself to do everything I can to give the County a clean, successful and efficient County Auditor's Office.

Respectfully submitted,
A. C. Lundgren.

New Perfection Oil Cook-stove

No Heat, Dirt or Trouble

No Smoke
No Odor
Clean
Convenient
Money-Saving

A NEW PERFECTION is an investment that pays because of the big saving in fuel cost. Oil, the most convenient of all fuels, the cleanest and one of the safest, is also by far the most economical. Soon saves the price of the stove.

Strike a match and your fire is ready, turn it off when you are through. Filling the patented supply reservoir is practically all the care required. No smoke or smell, none of the dangers of gasoline.

For Best Results Use Perfection Oil.

Cook With Oil and Keep Cool

Don't put up with your coal range another hot summer when a NEW PERFECTION Wick Blue Flame Cook Stove will keep the kitchen cool and make the heavy summer cooking easy.

Has a cabinet top, with warming shelves, a splendid portable oven, while the special odorless broiler broils on both sides at once.

Does everything a coal range can, without its suffocating heat. A blessing on washing and ironing days. No coal or ashes to carry.

A million NEW PERFECTIONS are now in use in comfortable Middle West kitchens, many all the year 'round. And the number increases, each season, by scores of thousands.

Your dealer can show you the different sizes—two, three and four burner and explain their exclusive features. Ask about the newest PERFECTION with Thermos oven. See him before the first warm day, no need to endure an hour's discomfort.

No Insult.

Some time back, when Sir Herbert Tree was taking the waters at Marienbad he was accosted by a perfect stranger.

"Begging your pardon, sir," said the latter, "but aren't you Beerbohm Tree, the actor?"

"No, certainly not," replied Sir Herbert unblushingly.

"I'm very sorry," said the other, "but I thought you were. You look so much like the pictures I have seen of him."

"I can assure you that you are mistaken," persisted Sir Herbert.

"Well, I didn't mean to insult you, sir," observed the stranger, "but I did think you looked like him."

Gave Him the Idea.

The sweet young thing sat in the stern of the boat, unmindful of the agonies of the inexperienced oarsman, who tugged and blistered himself at the paddles.

"What do you suppose we'll have for supper in camp?" she mused sweetly.

"Floating island, I think," panted the young man grimly. "That same island has passed me, going up stream, three times since I've been trying to make it to the landing."

Even the billboard man will tell you there is quite a difference between being well posted and being stuck up.

The man who depends upon his pull to get him into heaven had better begin to practise shoveling coal.

ROME GLORIOUS CITY

As Remarkable in Its Climate as Its Memorials.

Not Too Hot in Summer Nor Too Cold in Winter—Art Lovers of Every Degree Can Find Solace Here.

London.—There are those who tell us that Rome is glorious alike in its climate as in its memorials for all the 365 days of the year. It is not, as certain Italian cities are, too hot in the summer nor too cold in the winter, but there can scarcely be a question that it is at its brightest in the spring. Florence has been called the city of flowers but Rome also has its floral charm, and happy are they to whom it is given to enjoy the beauty of its Seven Hills at this time of the year. If the Gardens of Lucullus no longer adorn the Pincio we still have terrace upon terrace of views of unspeakable beauty.

The visitor to Rome perhaps makes his first interest the interior of St. Peter's. The exterior will disappoint him, for although the dome is higher than our St. Paul's it is so thrown back as to lack some of the distinction of our metropolitan cathedral, but the interior of St. Peter's will surpass all possible expectations. Here is a church the like of which in gorgeousness and in extent is unsurpassed in Christendom although some of the tombs of eariler popes may seem to you to be too ornate. With an assertiveness that is perhaps scarcely Christian the church records on its floor the relative sizes of other great churches of the world, including St. Paul's cathedral in London and Notre Dame.

To the lover of sculpture a great day is the visit that one pays to the Vatican galleries, sees the "Laocoon," the Vatican "Venus," and so many other treasures of world-wide fame. In one private picture gallery in the Palazzo Barberini you will see the much-talked-of "Beatrice Cenci" by Guido Reni, but wherever you go in Rome you will find wonderful works of art that have been made the subject of poem or of story. Then the ruins of an older Rome—the Rome of the ancient world—how abundant they are. Who that stands in the Forum but wishes to reconstruct that vast area as it was in the days of the Caesars?

The Palace of Nero again, is an inspiring monument, so also is the Column of Trajan, the Coliseum, the Pantheon, the Arch of Titus, the Baths of Caracalla. But some of one's most memorable hours will certainly be spent on a spring afternoon wandering about the Coliseum, where you will see little lizards jumping from step to step, for if the lion no longer holds its place in these wonderful ruins the lizard is there apparently to all eternity. Think again of the delightful drive along the Via Appia to the catacombs of St. Calixtus, a weird experience. Scarcely less noteworthy in its morbidity is that famous chapel in which the skulls and bones of innumerable monks make up the architectural design. Who that has seen all these and innumerable other wonders of the Eternal City, but will make his way to the Fontana di Trevi, that most magnificent of the public fountains of Rome, into the basin of which if you throw a copper you are certain to revisit the beautiful city on the Tiber.

Roman Flower-Sellers.

Let no visitor to Rome fail to pause in the Piazza di Spagna, where he will find at the corner just as he is about to climb the steps to view the house in which John Keats died. Keats lies buried in the Protestant cemetery just outside Rome. His simple tomb bears the melancholy inscription, "Here lies one whose name was writ in water." Of this old cemetery Shelley wrote that "it might make one in love with death to think that one should be buried in so sweet a place."

MEANT TO GIVE INSPIRATION

Old Man Could Not Understand How Orator Could Make Good Speech Without a Drink.

William Jennings Bryan as a young man visited a small place in Illinois for the purpose of showing the voters exactly how to vote. Shortly before the psychological moment came for young Bryan to let loose the floods of oratory an old countryman approached him mysteriously and silently led him around to the back of the schoolhouse. There he drew from his pocket a bottle of whisky and pronounced the classic command, "Have a drink." "No, thanks," said Mr. Bryan. The old man's eyes widened, and in their depths was the shadow of fear. "Just a little," he said persuasively. "No, not even a little," Mr. Bryan declined again politely. The old man's eyes began to bulge. "Just one drop," he insisted. Mr. Bryan declined for the third time. The old man's chest grew flatter, his shoulders sagged, and he was the picture of melancholy as he said with indescribable pathos: "Well, do the best you can, anyway."

SCALY PSORIASIS ON LIMBS

Troop H, 6th U. S. Cavalry, Camp McCoy, Sparta, Wis.—"I was troubled with psoriasis for nearly two years. Portions of my arms and limbs were affected mostly with it. It appeared in scaly form, breaking out in very small dots and gradually grew larger and white scales formed when about the size of an ordinary match-head. The looks of it was horrible, which made it very unpleasant for me. It itched a little at times.

"I tried several treatments which cured me for a month, but it always broke out again. One day a friend saw the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment in the paper and I sent for a sample. They helped me, so I purchased two more boxes of Cuticura Ointment and some Cuticura Soap and they completely cured me. It took three months for Cuticura Soap and Ointment to complete my cure." (Signed) Walter Mahony, Oct. 22, 1912.

DOCTORS UNABLE TO AGREE

Question Whether Brown Bread Is Superior to White Still Forms Subject for Argument.

White bread was said by experts, or by those who claim to be experts, to be much superior to brown bread a few months ago, and we were told that the idea of eating graham bread or any bread containing part or all of the bran of wheat and other portions of the grain which are taken out in the bolting process was old-fashioned and might lead to injury. Now come the medical inspectors of the French army, a group of very distinguished physicians and scientists, who say that bolting pushed beyond a certain limit eliminates the useful element of flour in more than one respect and does nothing but improve the color of the bread. When white bread is used exclusively they have found that the men eat and need more meat, but when the flour is only partially bolted and only the coarser particles of the bran are removed the soldiers are in better health and they eat less meat, which results in superior economy and efficiency at the same time. The method of bolting flour was invented some centuries ago, and it seems about time that the relative values of white and unbolted flour were settled, but the doctors can no more agree about it than they can about the therapeutic value of alcohol.—New York Commercial.

What He Needed.

After Jack Sullivan, the witness who charged that Becker was "framed up" by the gamblers, left the witness stand, it took him considerable time to cool off. Sullivan created an uproar in court by defying everyone and giving his answers as he saw fit. Some friends met him on the street outside the court building.

"Jack," said one, "come over at the corner and get something cool to drink."

"Not me," he replied, wiping the perspiration from his face. "If I took a drink now in my condition I'd crack a boiler. What I need is a two or three days' snooze in somebody's icehouse."

Seeing Is Believing.

If you are going to kick at all it is perhaps just as well to do it with both feet.

WOMAN COULD HARDLY STAND

Because of Terrible Backache. Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I suffered from displacement and inflammation, and had such pains in my sides, and terrible backache so that I could hardly stand. I took six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now I can do any amount of work, sleep good, eat good, and don't have a bit of trouble. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to every suffering woman."—Mrs. HARRY FISHER, 1642 Juniata Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Another Woman's Case.

Providence, R. I.—"I cannot speak too highly of your Vegetable Compound as it has done wonders for me and I would not be without it. I had a displacement, bearing down, and backache, until I could hardly stand and was thoroughly run down when I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helped me and I am in the best of health at present. I work in a factory all day long besides doing my housework so you can see what it has done for me. I give you permission to publish my name and I speak of your Vegetable Compound to many of my friends."—Mrs. ABRIL LAWSON, 126 Lippitt St., Providence, R. I.

Danger Signals to Women

are what one physician called backache, headache, nervousness, and the blues. In many cases they are symptoms of some female derangement or an inflammatory, ulcerative condition, which may be overcome by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Thousands of American women willingly testify to its virtue.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. Albert W. Kahl, of Buffalo, N. Y., says: "I have used Castoria in my practice for the past 26 years. I regard it as an excellent medicine for children."

Dr. Gustave A. Eisengraeber, of St. Paul, Minn., says: "I have used your Castoria repeatedly in my practice with good results, and can recommend it as an excellent, mild and harmless remedy for children."

Dr. E. J. Dennis, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have used and prescribed your Castoria in my sanitarium and outside practice for a number of years and find it to be an excellent remedy for children."

Dr. S. A. Buchanan, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have used your Castoria in the case of my own baby and find it pleasant to take, and have obtained excellent results from its use."

Dr. J. E. Simpson, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I have used your Castoria in cases of colic in children and have found it the best medicine of its kind on the market."

Dr. R. E. Eskildson, of Omaha, Neb., says: "I find your Castoria to be a standard family remedy. It is the best thing for infants and children I have ever known and I recommend it."

Dr. L. R. Robinson, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria certainly has merit. Is not its age, its continued use by mothers through all these years, and the many attempts to imitate it, sufficient recommendation? What can a physician add? Leave it to the mothers."

Dr. Edwin F. Pardee, of New York City, says: "For several years I have recommended your Castoria and shall always continue to do so, as it has invariably produced beneficial results."

Dr. N. B. Sizer, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I object to what are called patent medicines, where maker alone knows what ingredients are put in them, but I know the formula of your Castoria and advise its use."

For County Treasurer

I desire to announce myself as a Candidate for re-nomination to the office of County Treasurer of Marshall County, subject to your approval at the primaries on June 16th, 1914.

In this connection I desire to thank the taxpayers for the loyal manner in which they supported me, and their co-operation in helping me in the discharge of my duties has been of material assistance to me in more ways than one.

When I first sought this office I pledged myself that if nominated and elected I would try my very best to discharge the duties of the office with the utmost fidelity. Whether I have done this or not to your entire satisfaction it is for you to judge, and it will be my earnest endeaver if re-nominated and elected to make still greater effort to do my full duty as a public servant.

If I have failed in any particular it is not because I have not tried to my duty conscientiously, but an honestly made failure that I have tried to remedy.

As for the duties of the office I have become perfectly familiar with every detail and am in a position to serve your interests with utmost dispatch and promptness. Thanking you for your kindly consideration and asking that you will bear my candidacy in mind at the June primary, I remain,

Yours very respectfully,
Fred Bakke, Co. Treasurer

For Register of Deeds

To the voters of Marshall County:
Having filed for nomination to the office of Register of Deeds, I hereby respectfully solicit your support and your votes at the Primary Election to be held June 16th, 1914.

Yours, Louis M. Olson

For Register of Deeds

I hereby announce that I am a candidate for the nomination for Register of Deeds of Marshall County, and respectfully solicit the votes and support of the voters of Marshall County at the Primary Election June 16th, 1914.

Having been Deputy Register of Deeds of this County since the spring of 1906, I am thoroughly familiar with the work and if nominated and elected I shall always strive to serve the people to the best of my ability.

Chas. E. Grinder.

For Representative

I hereby announce my candidacy for the nomination of Representative to the State Legislature from Marshall County in the 67th Legislative District, at the Primaries on June 16,

Respectfully,
Geo. L. Johnson, M. D.
Newfolden, Minn.

For Register of Deeds.

To the Voters of Marshall County:
I hereby announce my candidacy for the nomination for the office of Register of Deeds of Marshall County and earnestly and respectfully solicit your vote and influence at the primary election to be held on June 16, 1914.

If nominated and elected I promise to discharge the duties of the office faithfully and business-like.

Respectfully yours,
Abel Anderson,
Newfolden, Minn., R. 2.

HALVOR STEENERSON

Congressman from the Ninth Minnesota District and Candidate for re-election. He is one of the ablest men in congress and one of the chief opponents of those who seek ship subsidy and other special privileges.

For County Commissioner for the 5th County Commissioner District.

Appreciating keenly the honor and trust the good people of this commissioner district have bestowed upon me in the past, and the confidence and good will shown me in the past as your member of the county board, for which I am sincerely thankful. I feel that I shall be more able to serve you and the best interests of the county in the future than I have in the past. Therefore I hereby announce that I am a candidate for the nomination of County Commissioner for the 5th Commissioner District, and sincerely ask for your vote and support on June 16th. My aim and policy is honest and economical administration of county affairs.

Truly your servant,
P. B. Malberg.

For County Attorney

I hereby announce that I filed for the nomination for the office of County Attorney on March 31st, and that I am a candidate for that office, subject to the approval of the voters of Marshal County at the Primary on June 16th.

John R. Naeseth
Warren Minn.

For State Senator

To the Voters of the 67th Legislative District.

At the solicitation of numerous friends throughout the the district comprising Marshall, Kittson and Roseau counties, it give me pleasure to announce my candidacy for the office of State Senator.

If honored with the nomination and election I hereby pledge myself to carry out the wishes of the people irrespective of personal views or opinions, as I conceive it to be the highest duty of a representative to represent the will, not of himself, but those of who honor and trust him to do their bidding for the welfare of the district.

Primarily I wish to state my attitude on the county option question, and I recognize the right of the public to such a statement from one who seeks their support for so important and honorable a position as that of State Senator. I am in favor of County Option and if elected I will not only vote for, but will use my best efforts in furthering the adoption of such a bill, believing that to be the best solution of the liquor question.

I further pledge myself to use my best efforts to further the developement of Northern Minnesota and especially the counties that I shall represent.

Assuring you that I will at all times endeavor and labor for your interests and for the interests of the 67th Ligislative district, I remain

Respectfully,
Nels S. Hegnes.

For Sheriff

To the voters of Marshall County:
I hereby announce my candidacy for re-nomination for the office of Sheriff, and earnestly solicit the support and votes of my friends at the primary election, June 16th, 1914. I pledge myself, if re-elected to discharge the duties of the office faithfully and impartially.

Respectfully,
Wm. Forsberg, Warren.

FOR SHERIFF

To the voters of Marshall County:-
I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the nomination of Sheriff of Marshall County on the Non-Partisan ticket, and respectfully solicit your influence and vote at the primary election to be held June 16th, 1914. If nominated and elected I will discharge the duties of my office to the best of my ability.

Yours very truly,
OSCAR OSETH. (adv.)

For County Attorney

To the voters of Marshall County:
I take pleasure in announcing that I am a candidate for re-nomination for the office of County Attorney.

During the brief time that I have served in that official capacity, I have endeavored to enforce the laws of the State fairly and impartially and without fear or favor. I have striven, at all times, to give the public the best service possible, and if nominated and elected, that is the kind of service which the public may expect from me.

Your support is kindly solicited
Respectfully yours,
A. N. Eckstrom.

For Superintendent of Schools.

Hereby I wish to announce my candidacy for re-election to the office of Superintendent of Schoole of Marchall County. I also wish to thank the public for all past favors and to solicit your vote and support in this election. Yours very truly,

David Johnson.

For Sheriff

To the voters of Marshall County:
I hereby announce my candidacy for the office of Sheriff of Marshall County on the Non Partisan ticket, subject to the will of the people at the Primary election, June 16, 1914. I pledge myself, if nominated and elected, to discarge the duties of the office faithfully and impartially and to the best of my ability.

Respectfully,
Hans C. Hanson
Viking, Minn.

FOR REPRESENTATIVE.

To the voters of Marshall County:
I am a candidate for nomination for Representative, from Marshall County, and respectfully solicit your vote and influence in my behalf.

If nominated and elected to represent you, my aim in the future will be as it has been in the past: to work for the best interests of Marshall County and the State at large.

Thanking you most heartily for past favors, and for any assistance you may render me, I remain,

Yours respectfully,
Donald Robertson.

For Sheriff.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the nomination for Sheriff of Marshall County at the Primary Election to be held June 16th, 1914.

I am a pioneer farmer of Marshall county and am still engaged in the useful and noble occupation of tilling the soil, but at the earnest solicitation of neighbors and friends, I have thrown my hat in the political ring. Therefore, I respectfully solicit the support of the voters in the county and pledge myself, if successful, to discharge the duties of the office in an able and satisfactory manner.

[illegible] IN CANNED MEATS

High Prices for Fresh [illegible] in France Has Been Source of Profit to America.

The steady rise in the cost of living in general and the retail price of meats in particular has brought about an increase in the importation into France of canned meats. This is not astonishing when it is considered that the present retail prices for the best cuts of fresh meats are as follows: Veal, 35 cents a pound; beef, 31 cents a pound; mutton 26 cents a pound; pork 26 cents a pound.

It is the impossibility of paying prices such as these that has led to an increase of over 30,000,000 pounds in the imports of canned meats within three years. In 1910 the imports amounted to 45,502,600 pounds; in 1911 to 55,404,800 pounds, and in 1912 to 76,883,400 pounds. These figures appear to be eloquent testimony of the steadily increasing demand and of the ever-growing opportunity for larger American exports to this country, and support is given to this statement by the large number of letters lately received at the Paris consulate general from commission houses and agents asking to be put in touch with Chicago or other packers of canned meats not yet represented in France.

ACTION OF HOUSE ENDS TOLLS FIGHT

BILL ONLY AWAITS SIGNATURE OF PRESIDENT WILSON TO BE EFFECTIVE.

ACCEPT SENATE AMENDMENT

By a Vote of 216 to 71 Lower Body Concurs After Final Debate Marked by Strong Feeling.

Washington, June 15.—Only President Wilson's signature is necessary to repeal the clause of the Panama canal act exempting American coastwise shipping from tolls.

House Ends Fight.

The long and bitter fight in congress came to an end when the house, after brief debate, and without the formality of a conference, accepted by a vote of 216 to 71 the senate amendment specifically reserving all rights the United States may have under the Hay-Pauncefote treaty or otherwise.

The president is expected to sign the measure at once. It was just a little more than three months ago that he addressed the house and senate in joint session, urgently asking for repeal of the exemption clause that the nation might keep its treaty obligations.

Bill Sent to Wilson.

Speaker Clark and Vice President Marshall attached their signatures and sent the bill to the White House.

Before ending the contest by concurring in the senate amendment the house voted down, 174 to 108, a proposal advanced by Representative Moss, of West Virginia, to attach to the repeal a flat declaration of the right of the United States to exempt its vessels from tolls and of the sovereignty of the United States over the canal zone.

During the discussion there were flashes of heat in the debate which characterized the original consideration of the measure. Representative Underwood, Democratic leader, although voting for the senate amendment, said that congress should never have made this "un-American surrender" and called the amendment "ineffective and negative."

Mann Likes Amendment.

Republican Leader Mann, who had vigorously opposed repeal, supported the amendment, declaring it left the entire question of the rights of this country to be determined in the future.

Representative Glass of Virginia attacked the Democratic leaders who opposed the measure. He denounced the "outrageous assaults made on the president" by the Republicans and expressed indignation "at the leaders of the Democratic side who have aspersed their own colleagues because they would not follow them into the camp of the Republican party in advocacy of a Republican doctrine."

Twenty Democrats voted against the motion to concur in the senate amendment. Thirty-seven Republicans and three Progressives joined the Democrats in support of the motion.

SUICIDE IS THEORY NOW

Man Who Saw Ella G. Winter, Baltimore Girl, Last Gives This Clue.

Baltimore, Md., June 15.—While no clue was obtained by investigation of county officers into the circumstances surrounding the death of Ella G. Winter, whose body was found late Monday in Curtis Creek, D. Meredith Reese, Jr., the last person known to have seen the girl alive, expressed the belief that she committed suicide.

Two women friends of Miss Winter also made statements in support of the suicide theory.

Reese previously had declared several times that he knew of no reason why Miss Winter should take her life. Now, however, he says that she more than once had threatened to commit suicide. His desire to protect the girl and her family, he said, caused him to refrain from advancing the suicide theory before.

Car Overturns; Girls Hurt.

Paris, Ill., June 13.—An automobile driven by Miss Lola Miller crashed over a 20-foot embankment, probably fatally injuring Miss Miller and Hazel Lowther and seriously injuring three other women. The automobile overturned, pinning four of the young women down. Miss Green was thrown clear of the wreck. She walked a quarter of a mile for assistance, but could find no men and neighboring women lifted the car from the victims.

Twenty Deaths in Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh, June 12.—Sixteen deaths due directly to heat prostration and four to drowning is the toll of western Pennsylvania to the torrid wave.

Colonel Roosevelt Leaves Spain.

Madrid, June 13.—After a strenuous day beginning with a visit to the Museo Del Prado and including the events connected with the marriage of his son, ex-President Roosevelt left for Paris. The colonel at the dance which followed the wedding stepped the Virginia reel with Senora Dato, wife of the premier. On account of the hostile attitude of the Spanish papers detectives continued to guard the embassy and were at the station when the ex-president departed.

CABINET MEMBERS JUBILANT

FAIRLY RADIATE HAPPINESS OVER PEACE PROSPECTS.

Even President Wilson Breaks Long Silence and Declares Outlook Encouraging.

Washington, June 15.—The Washington government was so optimistic over the prospects for the success of mediation in the Mexican imbroglio that members of the cabinet fairly radiated jubilation when they left the White House after a conference with the president.

President Wilson broke his long and patient silence on the subject by authorizing the declaration that the outlook for mediation was very encouraging. Not a word on the subject has come from the chief executive for many weeks.

Secretary Bryan was so enthused over the outlook for peace that he laughed with newspaper men and cabinet members as they tarried outside the executive offices. The secretary of state and Secretary Daniels traded yarns as they patted each other on the shoulder, and when pressed for more serious matters they declared that the Mexican situation was looking very hopeful from the viewpoint of the United States.

Later in the day Secretary Bryan verified reports from Niagara Falls that the Huerta delegates and representatives of the United States had had an agreement on the means by which the transmission of authority in Mexico should be conducted from Huerta to the proposed provisional government. The secretary said he did not recall the exact wording of the tentative agreement, but that a conclusion upon this first point in dispute had been reached.

Mr. Bryan declined, however, to reveal the details of the method proposed, stating that he had no authority to speak for the mediators in the first place, and secondly that he thought it unwise to make public part of an agreement until the whole plan had been determined.

General Carranza's latest note, forwarded by mail to Niagara Falls, announcing his decision to send representatives to the mediation conference, was subject of most interest at the cabinet meeting and in other official quarters here. The White House learned early in the day of this decision on the part of Carranza, learning also that the Constitutionalist chief, in reaching this decision, adhered strictly to his attitude that an armistice in the campaign against Huerta should not be required. It was also learned that the note makes no mention of any other terms upon which the Constitutionalist representatives should participate in the peace conference.

Word from Niagara Falls that the mediators would not officially receive into the conference the Carranza delegates unless they should agree to an armistice, threw no damper on the enthusiasm of Washington government officials or their hopes for ultimate peace. There were again made in official quarters references to the suggestion that Carranza's agents could be unofficially welcomed by the American and Huerta delegates to discuss plans of settlement upon which a way might be found for all to meet later before the mediators and a protocol eventually signed by the representatives of the United States, General Huerta and the Constitutionalists.

LIGHTNING HITS BIG BALLOON

Message Saying Pilot Is Hurt but Giving No Details Sent By Carrier Pigeon.

Portland, Ore., June 15.—One brief message telling of disaster to the balloon Million Population Club, is the only word received from three of the balloons that started here in a race under the auspices of the Aero Club of America. Of the fate of the Kansas City III. and the Springfield there was an ominous silence. The other balloon in the race, the Uncle Sam was wrecked in a thunder storm.

On the wings of a white carrier pigeon was brought this laconic message from the Million Population club:

"Balloon struck by lightning. Berry hurt. Come quick.

(signed) "MORRISON."

The message was written by George Y. Morrison, probably while he was in a daze, for he failed to give his location. His companion was Captain John Berry, of St. Louis, the pilot.

Every effort possible is being put forth to find the Million Population club and the other two unreported balloons.

First Wheat Shipped.

Ponca City, Okla., June 15. What is believed to be the first car of wheat of the new crop to be shipped from the big wheat country of Oklahoma left Dodock, a station south of here. The car was consigned to a Chicago firm.

Eruption Near Mt. Lassen's Peak.

Redding, Cal., June 15.—The fourth and greatest eruption of steam and smoke from the new opening near the peak of Mount Lassen at the foot of the Shasta range has just occurred. The smoke column reached an estimated height of 2,500 feet. The first outbreak at Lassen occurred May 30 and broke a hole in the side of the mountain near the peak. A second somewhat larger occurred June 1 and a third June 8. None approximated the magnitude of this latest.

WOMEN ENDORSE FIGHT FOR BALLOT

FEDERATED CLUBS SUCCEED IN GIVING SUPPORT TO EQUAL SUFFRAGE.

MANY CRY WITH EMOTION

Resolutions Which Broke Down Constitutional Bar of Years Is Adopted Amid Stirring Scene—Much Opposition.

Chicago, June 15.—The principle of woman's suffrage was endorsed here by the General Federation of Women's Clubs. By this action a twenty years' fight by the suffragists to break down the federation constitutional bar on political and religious subjects was successful. The motion was made by Mrs. E. G. Denniston, of San Francisco, chairman of the resolutions committee.

Rush to Second.

There were seconds from all over the house, but Mrs. James Lee, of Kentucky, insisted on being heard and read a paragraph of the hymnlike woman's creed. Others would have spoken, but Miss Lutie E. Stearns, of Milwaukee, objected.

"I don't see why there should be any discussion," she said in a voice that shook with emotion. "Eight million women are waiting for us. As Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt said in her wonderful address, the women of the world are waiting for our action."

When the question was put there was a chorus of "ayes," but scattered negatives were plainly heard when Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker declared the motion carried.

Tears of Emotion.

There were tears of emotion in many eyes. Then in a distant gallery to which the Illinois delegation as hostess had consigned itself, the women raised their voices above the tumult in the "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

The refrain, "Glory, Glory, Hallelujah," was taken up in various sections of the auditorium.

This is the resolution:

"Whereas, the question of political equality of men and women is today a vital problem under discussion throughout the civilized world;

"Resolved, That the General Federation of Women's Clubs give the cause of political equality its moral support by recording its earnest belief in the principle of political equality, regardless of sex."

Wanted—Men to Fill Jobs.

Washington, June 15.—Predicting that within a month's time there will be more jobs in the United States than men, Secretary of Labor Wilson hopes to solve the problem of getting men to fill the places. His forecast is based upon the bumper wheat crop, revival of the iron trade, mining and the textile industry. The secretary already has received requests for more than 80,000 laborers in the wheat belt of the West and South and he plans to arrange with the railroads special excursions.

May Head Reserve Board.

Washington, June 13.—Thomas B. Jones, a Chicago lawyer, former member of the Princeton university trustees and a personal friend of President Wilson, has practically been selected for governor of the federal reserve board. It was said unofficially that his nomination would go to the senate Monday. The other members of the board are likely to be Paul M. Warburg of New York, W. P. G. Harding of Birmingham, Ala., A. C. Miller of San Francisco and E. C. Simmons of St. Louis.

DRAMATIC ACT OF MILITANTS

EXPLODE BOMB AS PARLIAMENT DISCUSSES THEM.

Westminster Abbey Visitors Panic-Stricken by Detonation—Part of Coronation Chair Ripped Off.

London, June 13.—The militant suffragettes staged one of the most dramatic acts of their campaign when they exploded a bomb in Westminster Abbey at the very moment that the Right Hon. Reginald McKenna, secretary of state for home affairs, was delivering an optimistic speech in the house of commons nearby regarding the government's method of dealing with "the wild women."

The bomb was placed beside the famous coronation chair in Edward the Confessor's chapel.

Although it did little damage, like previous attempts at destruction of the same kind, its report penetrated to the chamber of the house, interrupting Mr. McKenna's oration and bringing some of the members into the street to learn what had happened.

The detonation was heard for many blocks and a crowd quickly filled the square in front of the abbey. But the police immediately closed all the doors.

A statement issued by Scotland Yard gives the facts in most conservative form.

"At 5 o'clock," says the statement, "a small bomb was exploded in immediate proximity to the coronation chair. It is supposed that some members of a large party of sightseers lagged behind the rest and deposited the bomb when the others had left the chapel.

"Fortunately, the damage done was slight. A portion of the carved back of the chair was blown off and some of the stone carving of the screen of the great altar was damaged apparently by some iron nuts contained in the bomb.

"The bomb, of thin metal, nickel plated, was exploded by a fuse. A woman's feather boa, a guide book and a small black silk bag were on a chair nearby. No material damage has been done as happily the pieces blown off can be put together again. The police are making inquiries in conjunction with his majesty's inspector of explosives."

A hundred or more visitors, divided into small parties, were being conducted by vergers about the abbey when a sudden flash, like lightning, penetrated every corner. A sharp detonation set the women to screaming and running for the doors. Some said afterwards that the report was deafening.

STEAMER AND 24 MISSING

Halifax, N. S., June 13.—It is reported that the government steamer Montmagny is missing and it is feared all on board have been lost.

Word was received here that the marine department at Ottawa had sent orders to all marine signal stations in the lower St. Lawrence and the gulf to try to obtain tidings of the Montmagny. The steamer, with a crew of 24 men aboard, has not been seen or heard from since she coaled at Cape Race several days ago.

1,400 More Men Walk Out.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 15.—The strike of the members of the Allegheny Congenial Industrial union, which began last Friday with the walkout of 10,000 employes of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, the Westinghouse Machine company, and the Pittsburg Meter company, has spread to the plant of the Union Switch and Signal company at Swissvale. Between 1,100 and 1,400 employes of the Switch and Signal company, which is one of the so-called Westinghouse industries, walked out.

GREAT DIPLOMATIC STRUGGLE SHAPING

MEDIATORS AT NIAGARA FALLS FACE BIGGEST OBSTACLE TO PEACE.

MUST NOW SELECT PRESIDENT

United States Declares Its Stand for Man Favorable to Rebels—Stated Position at Very Outset of Conference, It Is Learned.

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 16.—It is apparent that things are making for a great struggle in diplomacy between the United States and the Huerta government here during the coming week.

Most Important Factor.

While mediation has passed safely over many obstacles so far, the factor on which peace most depends—the selection of a provisional president acceptable to all factions—has brought the entire mediation body to a realization that ultimately on this mediation will succeed or fail. Many names have been suggested, but thus far none has been found suitable. The discussion of names will likely continue for several days.

There is no longer any doubt in the minds of the mediators or Mexican delegates that the American government believes the only solution of the present tangle is to place the executive power in the hands of a broad-minded Constitutionalist through a peaceful negotiation rather than to have the inevitable occur, military conquest of Mexico City with the possibility of international complications through injuries to foreigners.

Position of U. S. Revealed.

In the last few days alone has the American government's position been revealed publicly, but on the highest authority it has become known that the United States informed the mediators in unequivocal language at the very outset that it contemplated favoring a Constitutionalist for provisional president.

If Huerta delegates were not informed of this it was because the mediators thought they might dissuade the American delegates from their purpose.

The American plan finally submitted in writing to the mediators was the embodiment of what the American delegates on instruction from Washington had said in formal conversation in the two weeks prior to the presentation of their proposals.

FIRST PRIZE TO BE $100,000

Tentative Rules are Announced for Airship Race Around the World.

New York, June 16.—The tentative rules and regulations for the Panama-Pacific International Exposition Round the World Aerial race, as prepared by Guy T. Slaughter, president of the Pacific Aero club, have just been given out here.

Under the proposed rules and regulations, $150,000 will be offered by the exposition as prizes and an endeavor will be made to raise an additional $150,000 from cities over which the course of the race will lie and from individuals, which also will be given as prizes.

To the competitor finishing within 121 days from the start of the race $100,000 will be awarded. In case the first arrival in the race fails to reach the finish line within the 121 days, but does finish before Dec. 4, the first prize will be reduced by $1,000 per day for each day over the 121 days.

The race will start from the Panama-Pacific exposition grounds, San Francisco, May 15, 1915, and must be completed before noon of Dec. 4, 1915. The course will be eastward around the world.

Mexican Naval Heroes Rewarded.

Washington, June 15.—Officers and men among the American bluejackets and marines who distinguished themselves by conspicuous bravery and heroism at Vera Cruz, were formally recognized and rewarded Sunday by the navy department. Every one of the 107 singled out for mention in Rear Admiral Fletcher's reports of the occupation of the Mexican port was given official commendation in a letter from Secretary Daniels, bringing word in most cases of medals, gratuities or promotions.

Zeppelin Wrecked; One Hurt.

Diedenhoffen, Germany, June 15.—Another of the Zeppelin airships of the Germany army, the "Z 1," was badly wrecked near here. While trying to effect a landing in a rain storm, the cruiser broke at right angles behind the rear gondola. A lieutenant was injured. The accident occurred during a flight from Cologne to Metz.

Sun Turns "Fire-Bug."

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 15.—The sun's rays shining through a window glass and being focused upon some matches lying on a table ignited the matches and caused a heavy loss to Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Felton, well known residents on a Tripp county homestead. Before the blaze was discovered by one of the little girls of the household it had gained considerable headway. The flames had spread to all parts of the building, and the structure was completely destroyed, together with all its contents.

REAR ADMIRAL FLETCHER WHO IS TO BE REWARDED

His conduct during the occupation of Vera Cruz by the United States won Admiral Fletcher the command of the entire Atlantic squadron.

SECEDING UNION MEN RIOTING

REBELLION IN RANKS OF W. F. OF M. AT BUTTE.

Governor on Scene to Probe Case and Ten Companies of M. N. G. Are Held in Readiness.

Butte, Mont., June 16.—Rioting by seceding members of the local union of the Western Federation of Miners continued all Saturday night and Sunday. Ten companies of the M. N. G. have been ordered held in readiness for service here. The order was issued by Adjutant General Greenan.

With the announcement of this order and the arrival of Governor S. W. Stewart to investigate the situation, some semblance of order was restored.

After dynamiting and looting the safe of the local union Saturday at midnight, many of the 2,000 revolters against extra assessments and the card system of the union continued to parade the streets. Dynamite was exploded under the porch of the home of P. K. Sullivan, an officer of the miners' union and the seceders vowed that a new union would be formed under leadership of officers of the Industrial Workers of the World.

Although several hundred miners have returned to work, many disorderly persons kept up riotous tactics. One crowd took two prisoners from the city jail and later seized a fire truck. A false alarm of fire was turned in and the firemen tried to run the fire apparatus through the crowd of spectators that had been attracted by the disorderly doings of the rioters.

The revolting union miners scrambled on the truck and threw the fire fighters off. When the miners found that they could not operate the vehicle they returned it to the firemen with a warning not to try to run through a crowd again.

During all the disorder the unruly miners declared they would not continue the card system under which each union miner must show his union card before going to work in the mines. Many members of the local miners' union were recently disfranchised from voting at the recent union election because they refused to show their cards at the mines.

This, in addition to large extra assessments for the copper mine strike in Michigan, caused the men to secede from the union, they said.

The first act was to attack the union parade Saturday, stoning several marchers. Then the union headquarters were demolished. Disorder continued all night, the shouting of men being punctured by pistol shots and dynamite explosions.

The police are unable to find any of the insurgents reported to have taken $3,000 from the federation safe after it was dynamited.

Acting Mayor Frank Curran, who was thrown out of a window and sustained a broken leg and wrist while trying to pacify the mob which wrecked the federation's headquarters Saturday, is resting easy in a hospital.

Of the 9,000 members of the union here, the insurgents are said to control the votes of 2,000.

N. D. Chiropractic Bound Over.

Jamestown, N. D., June 16.—G. T. Strand, a chiropractic, was Saturday bound over to the district court of Stutsman county charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Marie Funda of this city. The preliminary examination brought out testimony relative to the form of treatment used by Strand, which medical physicians say was contrary to the form that should have been given in the case. The girl died a few minutes after Strand treated her, according to the evidence.

HOW WOMEN AVOID OPERATIONS

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cleveland, Ohio—"My left side pained me so for several years that I expected to have to undergo an operation, but the first bottle I took of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound relieved me of the pains in my side and I continued its use until I became regular and free from pains. I had asked several doctors if there was anything I could take to help me and they said there was nothing that they knew of. I am thankful for such a good medicine and will always give it the highest praise."—Mrs. C. H. Griffith, 7305 Madison Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

Hanover, Pa.—"I suffered from female trouble and the pains were so bad at times that I could not sit down. The doctor advised a severe operation but my husband got me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I experienced great relief in a short time. Now I feel like a new person and can do a hard day's work and not mind it. What joy and happiness it is to be well once more. I am always ready and willing to speak a good word for the Compound."—Mrs. Ada Wilt, 196 Stock St., Hanover, Pa.

If there are any complications you do not understand write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

HOW TO TREAT PIMPLES AND BLACKHEADS

For pimples and blackheads the following is a most effective and economical treatment: Gently smear the affected parts with Cuticura Ointment, on the end of the finger, but do not rub. Wash off the Cuticura Ointment in five minutes with Cuticura Soap and hot water and continue bathing for some minutes. This treatment is best on rising and retiring. At other times use Cuticura Soap freely for the toilet and bath, to assist in preventing inflammation, irritation and clogging of the pores, the common cause of pimples, blackheads, redness and roughness, yellow, oily, mothy and other unwholesome conditions of the skin.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."—Adv.

The Source of Uric Acid

Eating too much is a common habit that does a lot of harm. Meat, especially, forms uric acid and the constant filtering of acid-laden blood weakens the kidneys. Uric acid causes rheumatic and nervous trouble, weakens the eyes, forms gravel and leads to dropsy and Bright's disease. Kidney weakness gives early warnings, however, such as backache and urinary disorders and can be stopped by prompt treatment. Use Doan's Kidney Pills, the best recommended and most widely used kidney remedy.

LIND THINKS PEACE WILL BE RESTORED

WILSON'S SPECIAL ENVOY DOESN'T EXPECT TO BE CALLED AGAIN.

UP TO CONSTITUTIONALISTS

Declares Rebels Must Now Show That They Can Succeed Where Huerta Failed—No Receivership Intended.

Minneapolis, June 12. — John Lind, special representative of President Woodrow Wilson in Mexico until the outbreak of hostilities at Vera Cruz, has returned to his Minneapolis home after an absence of nearly a year.

Prospects For Peace.

"I do not expect to be called back," said Mr. Lind. "The prospects are good for a peaceful settlement of Mexico's difficulties and for settled conditions there. It is up to the constitutionalists to show that they can succeed where Huerta failed. It is not a receivership. We want Mexico to work out her own salvation, and I believe she will do it.

"My presence in Washington is no longer necessary. The president and Mr. Bryan asked me not to make any engagements that would prevent my return, if new developments came and they should wish to consult me, or to have me see others about the situation. But I think it will not be necessary. The general policy of the administration as to Mexico is well worked out, and things are progressing satisfactorily."

A Hard Customer.

Mexican papers found Mr. Lind a hard customer, and El Imparcial of Mexico City, called him "El Gran Silencioso" in a headline over the story of its failure to get an interview.

CAR HITS AUTO; THREE KILLED

Parts of Demolished Machine Tear Through Interurban Station at Brookside, Minn.

Minneapolis.—Three were killed when a Minnetonka car hit an automobile at Brookside, two miles west of the city limits. Those killed were: Charles Hendrickson, 50 years old, contractor; Otto Hendrickson, 47 years old, carpenter; John Specht, 22 years old, carpenter. The first two were Brookside residents and the last named was from Glencoe, Minn.

The three men were hurled about 150 feet. They were dead when the car crew and passengers reached them. The automobile was a tangled mass of wreckage and a part of the Brookside station was smashed as the automobile was forced through it.

Seated in the station was Samuel B. Rees, Brookside, employed by Barnott & Record company, 700 Flour Exchange. Parts of the automobile tore away the station wall less than two feet from his seat. An umbrella, held in his hand, was hurled 50 feet into an adjoining field. Seated in the station also was Joseph Lutzi, 11 years old. He was not injured.

RESORT LAW IS HELD VALID

Wallace-Fosseen Abatement Act Is Declared Constitutional by State Supreme Court.

St. Paul.—The Minnesota resort abatement law, known as the Wallace-Fosseen act, was held valid in all its essential provisions in a decision of the supreme court on appeals taken from Hennepin and Ramsey counties. Judge Joseph W. Molyneaux, who held the law valid and declared that personal rights were not restricted by the act, is sustained and Judge Frederick N. Dickson of Ramsey county is reversed in his opinion that the law was unconstitutional.

Woodmen Picnic at Benson.

Benson.—The annual picnic of the Modern Woodmen of America for the west central Minnesota district, was held in this city last week, but owing to inclement weather much of the program had to be curtailed and the attendance from outside towns was small. There was an automobile parade in which fifty machines participated. The address of welcome was made by Mayor J. N. Edwards and the response by Neighbor Stone. John L. Sundean of Minneapolis, state consul, and Governor A. O. Eberhart made addresses.

Two Indian Boys Killed.

Pipestone.—Quincy Shambo, aged [illegible], and Frank Shrau, aged 12, Indian students at the government school in the northern part of Pipestone, were killed last week in the fiercest windstorm that ever visited this locality. Several persons were injured, hundreds of fine shade trees were destroyed and small buildings were wrecked. Thousands of dollars damage was done to business buildings. The Indian boys were struck by flying boards from a barn. Both were residents of White Earth, Minn.

U. C. T. ELECT NEW OFFICERS

Grasse of Fargo Chosen Grand Counselor—Winona Next Meeting Place.

Mankato. — Officers of the grand council, United Commercial Travelers, elected to guide the membership in Minnesota and North Dakota, are: Grand counselor, W. L. Grasse, Fargo; grand junior counselor, P. F. Murphy, Stillwater; grand past counselor, O. H. Griswold, Winona; grand secretary, J. M. Dresser, St. Paul; grand treasurer, H. G. Lillyblad, Red Wing; grand conductor, G. M. Peterson, Duluth; grand page, J. L. George, Bismarck, N. D.; grand sentinel, E. C. Mahle, St. Paul; grand executive committee, G. E. Tisdale, Minneapolis; re-elected, C. A. Hitchcock, Crookston; re-elected, B. F. Ashelman, Fargo; and H. G. Blake, Minneapolis.

With the street pageant Saturday the convention, which attracted 3,000 commercial travelers to Mankato, closed.

Winona won the 1915 convention. At the business session, J. R. Tawney of Winona, cousin of former Congressman James H. Tawney, and J. R. Kinsloe, secretary-manager of the Winona Association of Commerce, led a delegation 100 strong into the convention hall to show the reasons why the Queen city of Minnesota should be selected. Special trains from Albert Lea and Owatonna added other boosters for Winona's cause.

Early in the session it was thought Bismarck might make a bid for the 1915 convention, but its campaigners admitted they were working with a view to bringing Bismarck to the front for 1916.

CIRCUS REMEMBERS SICK LAD

Parade Turns Aside so That "Shut-In" Can See Pageant at Litchfield.

Litchfield.—From his bed, drawn close to the hospital window, Guy Peters, 9 years old, watched a circus parade that had come three blocks out of its way to march before his window.

With the average boy's passion for clowns and elephants, Guy was heartbroken when the doctors said he would have to stay in bed on circus day. He has just been operated on for tuberculosis of the hip and probably will never walk again.

When the Yankee Robinson circus managers learned the story, they ordered the parade out of its scheduled route to pass the boy's window. As the procession came by the band played its loudest, the wagon drivers waved their whips to the boy in the window, the bareback riders threw him kisses and the white-faced clowns performed their funniest capers on the grass beneath the window.

Afterward several of the circus folk in full regalia visited him in his room.

Litchfield Girl Bound Over.

Chicago.—Pleas that Hazel Pollock of Litchfield, Minn., student of music and high school graduate, stole diamonds and other jewelry, while under a nervous strain, failed to move Judge Wells of the municipal court. He held her to the grand jury in bonds of $2,500. She was given until June 16 to obtain sureties. Otto Strohm of 2059 Lawrence avenue, accused of receiving jewelry that the Pollock girl had stolen, was discharged.

Politics at Road Meeting.

Le Sueur Center.—More than [illegible] farmers gathered here Saturday afternoon for the purpose of forming a county taxpayers' league. The meeting developed into an old-time political rally and when the speaker was interrupted by W. V. Brockway, a farmer, who accused him of making wrong statements in regard to the Dunn road law, it was some time before order could be restored.

Virginia Woman Drowned.

Gilbert.—Mrs. J. Ronda of Virginia, Minn., was drowned in Cedar Island lake at 11 a. m. Sunday, when a boat in which she was rowing with three young women struck a rock and capsized. The three young women managed to reach the shore, but Mrs. Ronda, who was unable to swim, sank. The body was recovered about twenty minutes later. Mrs. Ronda was 24 years old.

Minnesota Pellagra Victim.

Rochester, Minn., June 12.—Mrs. David Elliott of this city died a victim of pellagra. Mrs. Elliott's case was the first known in Minnesota, and attracted the attention of the state board of health which confirmed the diagnosis made by Dr. C. T. Granger of this city. Prior to this case, another was found in the city, but the patient was a resident of another state.

Bankers Indorse Candidates.

Minneapolis.—The Minnesota Bankers' association, at its annual convention at the Hotel Radisson, indorsed by unanimous vote the six candidates recommended for the directorate of the Minneapolis district reserve bank by the steering committee of six states, which met here last month. These candidates included E. W. Decker of Minneapolis, F. R. Bigelow of St. Paul, F. R. Hixon, La Crosse, Governor L. B. Hanna, Fargo; A. C. Bassett, Webster, S. D., and Norman B. Holter, Helena, Mont.

FIRE UNDERSWRITERS UNITE

Minneapolis Man Chosen President of Minnesota and North Dakota Association.

Osakis.—An attendance of nearly 100 fieldmen, managers and company executives, combined with an enthusiasm never seen at any previous meeting, made the twenty-ninth annual meeting of the Minnesota and North Dakota Fire Underwriters one of the most successful in the history of the association. President Joseph L. King of Minneapolis, in his annual address, traced the work of the association the past year and decried the lack of co-operation among the members, saying in part:

"When an earnest solicitation for co-operation is met with the response, 'I will put my house in order when the other fellow's premises are presentable,' is to my mind a mighty poor form of co-operation and does not tend to bring about the good feeling which should exist among our members."

He referred to the agitation relative to a reduction of rates at various points the past year and thought the public were prone to misconstrue the work done along fire prevention lines. He urged that in the future inspections should be made with no attempt to attract public attention. The Minnesota and North Dakota Fire Underwriters and the Minnesota Fire Prevention associations were combined at a joint meeting of the two organizations. Officers were elected as follows:

E. C. Bowe, Minneapolis, president; Byron K. Cowles, Minneapolis, vice president; Charles G. Stone, Minneapolis, secretary; E. C. MacDonald, Minneapolis, treasurer; executive committee, Walter A. Acres, Charles G. Bates, Minneapolis.

PEOPLE GET BACK $1,500,000

That Amount Refunded Shippers and Passengers by Minnesota Railroads.

St. Paul.—Minnesota railroads have refunded $1,500,000 to passengers and shippers of freight since Aug. 7 last, as a result of the United States supreme court decision in the Minnesota rate cases.

Commissioner O. P. B. Jacobson of the state railroad and warehouse commission announced that the commission has handled 7,224 claims, upon which it collected for the claimants $89,450.74. Thousands of other claims were sent directly to the railroads or placed in the hands of collection agencies, which solicited this business, all over the state.

The commission collected the claims filed with it at a cost for clerical and other hire of 2 7-10 cents on the dollar, while persons who employed private agencies were compelled to pay 25 to 50 per cent of their claims for fees.

Though nearly a year has elapsed since the refunding began, claims are arriving at the commission's offices at the rate of 80 to 100 daily.

RATES MAY BE INCREASED

Roads of Middle West May Seek to Boost Freight Charges 10 Per Cent.

Minneapolis.—A horizontal increase of about 10 per cent in freight rates will be announced by Middle Western roads shortly, according to a rumor current in railroad circles here.

The exact amount of the increase, it is understood, will be conditional on the action of the interstate commerce commission on the Eastern roads' request for a 5 per cent increase.

If the Eastern roads are successful, the Western lines are likely to ask for the full 10 per cent. If the commission rules against the Eastern roads, the West may modify its demands.

Municipal Topics at Herman.

Herman.—The business men of the community met at luncheon Wednesday to listen to an address by Professor Frederick H. Bass of the University of Minnesota on "The Engineer and the City." Municipal improvements that Herman, as the "model town" of the state, should adopt, were outlined. This was one of the lectures of "University week." "University week" was financially successful, more than enough tickets to pay the expenses being sold.

Lamp Explodes; Couple Burned.

Elbow Lake.—Peter Peterson died from burns received when a lamp exploded in his tailor shop. His hands were fairly cooked, his head, feet and body were also terribly burned. Mrs. Peterson was also badly burned about the face, and her hands will be crippled for life.

Home Post Graduate Course.

Winona.—In addressing the class of the Winona high school, Rev. T. S. Devitt gave the graduates some practical advice when he urged the girls to take a post graduate course in domestic science at home under their mothers, learning to clean, wash, iron and do plain sewing and cooking. In advising the boys, Dr. Devitt recommended that unless they were going to follow professions they do not go to college for in business they would be further along in four years if they entered it now.

Would Not Be Recognized.

"Oh, dear me!" wailed a tenement mother, happening upon a sympathetic neighbor. "I'm in such trouble! My little Willie's got himself lost."

"Well, don't worry," consoled the neighbor. "He'll soon be found. Everybody about the place knows him."

"But not today, I'm fearing. You see, he's just been washed."

A Real Need.

A Frenchman named Delamoy has invented an apparatus whereby you can wind your clock by opening and shutting a door, the winding machine doing its work by the action of the door.

What is really needed, however, is an invention that, attached to a door, will get rid of people inside of the room. No known method has yet been invented to accomplish this purpose. Yet is there anything which would promote greater efficiency and comfort and give more lasting satisfaction?—Life.

Why Not Armor for Every Bullet?

An ingenious New York doctor has invented a bichloride of mercury tablet in which the antidote is combined with the poison, so that a person may swallow corrosive sublimate, intentionally or accidentally, with immunity. It's a capital idea, and ought to be applied to poisons generally, and possibly Maxim might find some way of applying the principle to firearms. An automatic, self-resisting bullet, or something of that sort, would be of much greater utility than his silencer.

Useful Knowledge.

The very young lady was showing her school friend from another city about her native town. Presently the pair came to a little square adorned with a statue of the local Civil war hero.

"It isn't very much to boast of as art," said the sophisticated young chit, "but it's important to know about it because one usually asks one to meet one here."

EYE STRAIN

Relieved by Quitting Coffee

Many cases of defective vision are caused by the habitual use of coffee.

It is said that in Arabia where coffee is used in large quantities, many lose their eyesight at about fifty. Tea contains the same drug, caffeine, as coffee.

A N. J. woman writes to the point concerning eye trouble and coffee. She says:

"My son was for years troubled with his eyes. He tried several kinds of glasses without relief. The optician said there was a defect in his eyes which was hard to reach.

"He used to drink coffee, as we all did, and finally quit it and began to use Postum. That was three years ago and he has not had to wear glasses and has had no trouble with his eyes since.

"I was always fond of tea and coffee and finally became so nervous I could hardly sit still long enough to eat a meal. My heart was in such a condition I thought I might die at any time.

"Medicine did not give me relief and I was almost desperate. It was about this time we decided to quit coffee and use Postum, and have used it ever since. I am in perfect health. No trouble now with my heart and never felt better in my life.

"Postum has been a great blessing to us all, particularly to my son and myself."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum now comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

"There's a Reason" for Postum
—sold by Grocers.

Sounds That Way.

Patience—She has a pretty mouth.

Patrice—A mere incident.

"Yes, but one which is never closed."

IT MAKES SICK SKINS WELL

No matter how long you have been tortured and disfigured by itching, burning, raw or scaly skin humors, just put a little of that soothing, antiseptic resinol ointment on the sores and the suffering stops right there! Healing begins that very minute, and in almost every case your skin gets well so quickly you feel ashamed of the money you threw away on tedious, useless treatments.

Resinol ointment and resinol soap clear away pimples, blackheads, and dandruff; great for sunburn and insect bites. Sold by all druggists.—Adv.

There is no limit to wishing, but a fellow has to hustle to land anything.

400,000 Settlers a Year

Immigration figures show that the population of Canada increased during 1913, by the addition of 400,000 new settlers from the United States and Europe. Most of these have gone on farms in provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Lord William Percy, an English Nobleman, says:

"The possibilities and opportunities offered by the Canadian West are so infinitely greater than those which exist in England, that it seems absurd to think that people should be impeded from coming to the country where they can most easily and certainly improve their position.

New districts are being opened up, which will make accessable a great number of homesteads in districts especially adapted to mixed farming and grain raising.

When Others Boost For Holt Why Shouldn't We

The following is a reprint from the Minneapolis Journal, date of May 31st, 1914:

Holt a Thriving Village.

"Holt is a thriving little town situated in the heart of eastern Marshall county, with a population of 200. It is in the midst of a rich and well developed farming district. It has two banks, two good hotels, a weekly newspaper, four general merchandise stores, hardware stores, excellent public schools, blacksmith shop, two lumber yards, elevators, a first class creamery and livery barn. There are Lutheran and Free Mission churches. The principal industries are farming, dairying and stock raising. Fine herds of beef and dairy cattle are numerous. Since the creamery was built much attention has been given to improving the dairy stock.

"Eastern Marshall county is lavishly endowed and offers many opportunities for the home seeker. Lands vary in price according to situation and character but all—whether hay lands or grain lands—are selling at reasonable prices, at the present time. The character of the land is mostly open prairie, dotted with brush and small groves of poplar. The county is traversed by a magnificent net work of ditches assuring it perfect drainage, thus enabling spring seeding at the earliest date possible. Because of this fine system of ditches, 100 per cent of this land can be placed under cultivation. There is no portion of northern Minnesota better drained, more fertile and capable of higher development than the country surrounding Holt.

Raise No. 1 Hard Wheat.

"Wheat, oats, barley, flax and hay are the chief crops. The wheat is of excellent milling quality and some crops grade No. 1 hard. Oats yield from 50 to 90 bushels per acre, barley about 40 bushels, flax makes large yields, 150 to 400 bushels of potatoes are dug from one acre, tame hay is raised in large quantities."

"This section of country offers unusual advantages to the homeseeker who desires to secure farm lands by purchase at low prices. It is traversed by the Great Northern railroad, and offers excellent shipping facilities for grain and produce. Raw lands in this section sell at from $15 to $25 per acre, improved farms at from $20 to $40 per acre."

"'Every day knowledge of the opportunities which exist in Marshall county is spreading and every day settlers are coming in,' says a leading business man. 'Marshall county desires home seekers to come and till its uncultivated lands, to aid in developing its natural resources, to add to the strength and number of its citizens, and it offers greater opportunities to the energetic and returns greater rewards for intelligent efforts than any other section. The way to learn what Marshall county has to offer is to visit it, and he who comes will behold a panorama of activity and prosperity that no words can picture and from his own observation will draw the only possible conclusion, namely, that Marshall county is the land of unequaled opportunities.'"

WILL THEY?

"The slit skirt has something to recommend it, after all."

"Yes?"

"Sure! The women will have to carry their money in their pocketbooks after this."—Boston Globe.

WHY, OF COURSE!

"I'd call it a black and tan go."—Springfield Union.

GOLDEN VALLEY.

Ole Ellingson, from Carpenter, Iowa, was out here looking for land. He was more than pleased with the country.

Mr. Richardson, from Grand Forks, was out to Peter Kolden's place to help him repair his engine.

Ole Saastad done his seeding in a hurry. He pulled two drills with his engine, doing all his spring work in about ten hours.

Mr. and Mrs. Tony Anderson and niece, Gladys Sorum, spent Sunday with E. E. Pechie.

Chas. Holmgren is again with the bachelor class. Mrs. Holmgren having gone away for a month's visit.

Mr. Holmgren informs the writer that he is going in the nursery business. He has some cigarette trees that has just arrived and says that if they do well he will put in some Copenhagen Snus brush.

Rudolph Dahl has his new tractor and is ready for work. He traded in his old machine which was to heavy for this country.

The bridge at Thief River has been condemned, so beware.

Mud Lake ball players had their usual jollification last Sunday. One player has a new fielder mitt that will draw a ball forty feet. Everybody is doing it now—getting ready for the Fourth at Holt.

Miss Rankins, from Middle River, visited with her sister, Mrs. Melvin Olson last week.

Mr. Elwick has made his final proof and is some—what happens.

The Ladies' Aid at Lily's was well attended. The ice cream friends were more than pleased.

PRESERVING IDEAS OF VALUE

Ingenious Contrivance Enables One to Make a Record of Thoughts That Come During the Night.

Do you ever get ideas during the night, or think of something very important that you must remember to do, and it worries you and worries you until you can't sleep, yet you just hate to get out of bed and go shivering around the room in search of a pencil and a scrap of paper? Think of the ideas that are lost in this way—brilliant ideas, sometimes, that fade away on the wings of sleep! What you should do, if your mind works overtime in this fashion, is to get one of those new, cunning little memo pads that have a tiny electric bulb attached and keep it on your dressing table at night. Then you can write it down and go to sleep.

The pad is of white paper, measuring about four by six inches, and is set in a leather frame, with a flap at the back, by which you can stand it up. The top of the pad contains an electric battery, with a miniature bulb in the center, and a pencil attached to a string is fastened at one side. You press a little metal knob at the other side, and—presto! A flood of light illumes the sheet of paper.

SKIN PECULIARITY.

Human cuticle reacts peculiarly to stimuli. The makers of billiard balls test the smoothness of the finished article by rubbing it against the cheek. Certain areas of the tongue are very sensitive to different flavors, while about an inch from the tip is a little patch which is the precise spot to dump objectionable medicine, for in that region the sense of taste is absent. If one marks on the biceps of the arm a little space, and test it with the warmed head of a pin, some spots will feel just pressure, others warmth and pressure. And if one has a little red ink on the pin he can mark out just where these "warm spots" are. In fact, the cuticle seems a mosaic of "warm" and "cold" spots. And there is said to be a place above the knee where one can drive a pin without pain.

TWO CENTENARIES.

The year 1913 will be remembered in years to come as being very prolific in centenaries of great musicians, for that year witnessed the celebrations of the two immortals—Wagner and Verdi—and also of Sir George Macfarren, and the last is that of Henry Thomas Smart, the great English organist, whose music is so much used in church service now-a-days.

WITHOUT HERO AMBITION.

"No man is a hero to his valet," said the ready-made philosopher.

"Perhaps not," replied Mr. Growcher. "But so far as I am personally concerned it would be a positive annoyance to have a valet shaking pennants at me and shouting 'rah! rah! rah!'"

One of the big things to be had at the Fourth of July Celebration at Holt will be a wrestling match between Harry Norlund, of Lancaster, and Ludwig Monson, of Holt. This promises to be one of the best matches ever pulled off in this part of the country as Mr. Norlund has thrown all comers in his class and Mr. Monson is in the best of trim ready to pin him to the mat two out of three.

Oscar Knudson, of Randen, is spending a few days in the city.

A very fine sample of alfalfa was brought to the office of the Holt Realty Co., this week, by Nils Engebretson, and which he raised on his own place, near town. This is excellent proof that alfalfa can be grown to great advantage in this part of Marshall county.

Begin now, and plan to spend the 4th of July in Holt.

Ole J. Moen, of East Valley, enjoyed a visit from his nephew last week, who is employed as a policeman in Minneapolis.

Axel Nelson, Hans Stensrud and Svenke Svenkeson are in the city this week enjoying a short vacation after several weeks of tilling and seeding a portion of that rich Mud Lake soil.

FOR SALE—A Gaar-Scott separator, 28x40, complete with blower, feeder and stacker. Used ten days. [illegible]

P. A. Risberg and family are again at home after several weeks' stay on their farm in East Valley.

O. J. Backlund is the purchaser of a brand new "Ford."

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Pederson, of Jasper, Minn., were visitors at the C. H. Gunheim home this week.

Miss Anna Iverson, of Golden Valley, was a caller in this city this week.

B. L. Backe, A. H. Huseth, and Adolf Sollom made an auto trip to Theo. Sollom's claim east of Thief River Falls, last Friday, and were accompanied by Theo. on their return. On their way home when out of Thief River Falls a short ways, they were run into by another car belonging to Arnold Bjerkhoel, of that city, damaging Mr. Backe's car very badly. Fortunately no one was injured.

L. S. Kolden and family, of Nielsville, were visitors in this city last week.

P. A. Von Wold, of Thief River Falls, was a caller in this city last Monday. Mr Von Wold will take a trip to Canada this week to look over the country with the view of taking a homestead.

Mrs. H. Poppenhagen and children of Thief River Falls, are visitors at P. O. Reierson's this week.

Mrs. Arne Moe arrived from N. D. this week for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. O. Reierson.

West Center Dance Company held their dance at Otto Johnson's place last Saturday night. All reported a good time.

The 4th of July Celebration at Holt this year will be a dandy.

Miss Martha Mortenson, of Warren, is a visitor at the B. L. Backe home this week.

C. L. Heinze brought in a fine sample of "Red Top" raised on his farm near town. See the display window of the Holt Realty Co.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Docken and E. M. Silbaugh autoed to T. R. Falls last Wednesday.

Mr. & Mrs. John Alkenbrack, Mr. Culver and P. L. Anderson attended the dance at Newfolden last Saturday night, going over in Mr. Anderson's car.

In Church Circles.

The Free Mission Young People's Society will meet at B. L. Backe's residence Sunday, June 28th. Everybody welcome.

The Ladies Aid of Free Church, T. R. Falls, R. F. D. 2, will have a picnic for the benefit of the Norwegian school at Soren Moe's place the Fourth of July. Program starts at 10 o'clock A. M. Everybody come.

Wedding Bells.

Announcements are out of the marriage of Martin Olson, of Holt, to Petra Storholm, on July 21st, 1914, at the home of the bride, in Crookston, Minn.

The bridegroom is one of our popular young men, and the bride is also well known here, having resided at Holt for the past year, with her sister, Mrs. Sam Mickelson. They will be at home after July 1, 1914, 206 Nelson St., Crookston, Minn. They have our best wishes for a bright and happy future.

Special School Meeting.

Notice is hereby given that a Special Meeting in School District No. 35 in Marshall County, Minnesota, will be held at the School House on the 27th day of June, 1914, at 7:30 o'clock, p. m., for the following purposes:

To decide on moving the school site to south of the Creamery, moving the old building or build a new two room School Building, to be either consolidated or semi-graded and rebond the district for $4,000.00 for the purpose of either build or repair.

Dated this 17th day of June, 1914.

D. Payne, District Clerk.

A Jolly Outing.

Five auto loads of jolly Holt people made a trip to Warren last Sunday, by way of Newfolden and Argyle. They left at 10 o'clock in the morning and arrived at Argyle at noon where a rest was taken and an attack made on the well filled lunch baskets and a delicious lunch was partaken of by the merrymakers. The journey was then continued on towards Warren. When out of Argyle a few miles they witnessed an accident which might have resulted in the loss of life, when a Ford car, driven by a party altogether to much under the influence of "firewater" was trying to cut the figure "8" around some of the Holt cars, and finally completely upsetting into the ditch and smashing the car very badly. As luck would have it no one was injured, except for being badly shaken up.

The journey was continued and Warren was reached about 3:30 in the afternoon, where a stop of about one hour was made, visiting the park and other places of amusement. They also paid a visit to the hospital where Norman Newton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Newton, of Holt, is confined with blood poisoning of the leg, and who they found quite improved.

About 4:30 they started on their return trip arriving home about 7 o'clock in the evening. The trip was made without a mishap and was thoroughly enjoyed by all concerned. Among those making the trip were Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Silbaugh, Earnest Silbaugh, Arvid Carlson, Tony Carlson, Misses Clara and Belle Sollom, Mrs. A. H. MINE DEATH LIST 205; FEW RESCUED

182 STILL ENTOMBED IN ALBERTA COLLIERY WHERE GREAT BLAST WRECKED MINE.

LARGE RESCUE FORCE BUSY

Twenty Taken Out Alive, However—Mine Superintendent Among the Unfortunate Men Underground.

Hillcrest, Alta., June 22.—The probable death list in the Hillcrest colliery explosion is officially placed at 205.

About 225 men entered the mine as the day shift, 20 were rescued alive and 23 bodies have been taken out, leaving 182 still entombed and probably dead.

A Mighty Explosion.

Lethbridge, Alta.—A mighty explosion, coming without a moment's warning, entombed 250 miners employed in Mine No. 20 of the Hillcrest Collieries, Ltd. Of the 43 rescued, only 20 were living. Despite the efforts of the two score mine experts laboring amid the death dealing gases and debris, hope of rescuing alive the 182 men yet in the mine is past.

At dusk silent groups of white-faced wives and mothers stood at the mouth of the mine, which had been closed by the explosion, still hopeful that the moans for help that issued from the inner workings earlier, might be repeated and aid the scientifically equipped experts in their efforts at rescue. As the night wore on, many of the women, their heads bowed, turned sadly homeward, their action expressing the general feeling that hope was lost.

Blast Shook Country.

The explosion shook the countryside for miles around, lifed the roofs from many miners' cabins and demolished numerous small buildings. A moment after the explosion a score of panic-stricken surface workers rushed from the mine, followed by a dense cloud of smoke and poisonous fumes.

Appeals for help were dispatched to many towns and in the meantime residents organized an emergency crew and turned feeble and ineffective efforts toward the work of rescue.

When the first rescue crew arrived a large force of men set about to clear the shaft, turning desperately from one point to another as the moans of the enfeebled men came feebly from the bowels of the mine. The moans became fainter and fainter and finally ceased. Thousands of tons of rock have fallen into the mine and it is feared that the men even had they escaped death from the poisonous fumes, probably were crushed to death by the falling debris.

No Cause Ascertained.

No information as to what caused the explosion has been given, but it is generally believed it was due to the forming of gases.

Thomas Quigley, superintendent of the mine, is among those entombed.

Two trains filled with expert mine workers, doctors, nurses and officials of railways arrived at the scene of the disaster and the work of rescue was begun in a systematic manner. As the experts entered the mine they found, jumbled in a chaotic mass, horses, timbers, wagons and mining paraphernalia, the scene being indicative of the force of the explosion.

Fire broke out soon after the explosion but almost immediately died out, although the gas fumes made it impossible for the men to work effectively for several hours. The explosion tore out both ends of the pit and incidentally blocked up the interior of the workings.

Most of the miners were working about 400 feet inside the mine.

A majority of the men are foreign-born, but a large number of them were English speaking.

Hillcrest a Productive Mine.

Winnipeg, Man.—The Hillcrest mine is a well known and very productive colliery. It is situated on the Crows Nest branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway, 193 miles west of Medicine Hat and is one of that group of mines which have been worked for the past ten or fifteen years and which include Frank, Blairmore, Coleman and Lundbrek. It is two miles from Frank and three from Blairmore.

200 Trapped in Belgium Mine.

Liege, Belgium, June 20.—Two hundred coal miners were entombed in the Vieille Marihaye colliery near here, when fire broke out today. Two hundred of their comrades escaped when the alarm was given. The fire was still raging late today and every effort was still being made to rescue the miners left in the pits.

Business Reported Good.

Washington, June 20.—Business conditions and their effect on the administration trust program were taken up at the cabinet meeting, Secretary Redfield of the department of commerce told the president reports received from many sources indicated that business was unusually good for this time of the year and that prospects were that it would grow better. The president was much encouraged by the reports and it was said his determination to push the trust bills had been strengthened.

LAUNCH CAPSIZES; 12 DROWN

BUT SEVEN SAVED AFTER OSWEGO CANAL ACCIDENT.

Boat Hits Stump as It Is Returning Loaded With Picnickers—Women and Children Die.

Syracuse, N. Y., June 22.—Twelve persons, most of them women and children, were drowned in the Oswego canal when a launch upon which they were riding struck a submerged log and capsized.

The dead are: Mrs. George H. Adams, 26, Syracuse; three girl children of Mrs. Adams, 1, 4 and 5 years old; Mrs. Harry Welsh, 25, Syracuse; Katherine Welsh, aged 1 year; John Mogg, 38, Syracuse; Florence Dainer, 12, Syracuse; Earl Dainer, 10; Charles Shultz, 22, Syracuse; Miss Mabel Tibbets, 26, Syracuse; Howard Crane, aged 3, Liverpool.

The disaster occurred south of Mud lock, near Onondaga lake, in an isolated section in the environs of Syracuse. There were 19 passengers on the little vessel and seven of these reached the canal bank safely. They were on their way home after a day spent at the lake resorts.

It was 10:30 o'clock, just 10 minutes after the launch had left the lock, when the craft capsized. Lewis Dainer, owner and navigator of the launch, said rescue work was made extremely difficult by the intense darkness.

"I had just started on my journey and was less than a quarter of a mile from the lock when the launch struck a stump," he said. "Before I knew what had happened the boat tipped over.

"I had life preservers aboard, but there was no chance to use them. There was no opportunity to rescue the women or children. It was every one for himself in the darkness."

For seven years the launch had been plying between the two points on the canal. It was a 25-foot craft.

HINDUS CONTROL JAP SHIP

Denied Admission Into Canada 376 Immigrants Mutiny—Crew Helpless.

Vancouver, B. C., June 22.—Captain Yamoto of the Japanese steamer Komagata Maru, which brought 376 Hindus to Vancouver and whose vessel with all its passengers aboard is still anchored in the Harbor, will confer with officers of two visiting Japanese warships, Asama and Adzuma.

It is planned by owners of the Komagata Maru to place a guard of white men aboard the steamship and tow her out beyond the three-mile limit off the British Columbia coast. Outside territorial waters, it is expected the Japanese cruisers will provide an armed guard to assist the crew in taking the vessel back across the Pacific.

At present the Hindus, who have been denied admission to Canada, are in absoute control of the ship and the 30 members of the crew can do nothing with them.

They will not allow the boiler room crew to get up steam and declare they will fight rather than allow the anchor to be raised.

Norwegian Bark Is Burned.

Gulf Port, Miss., June 22.—Loss at sea of the Norwegian bark Ingebjorg, which sailed from this port for Rosario, Argentina, two months ago, has been reported here. The storm-battered vessel was set on fire after Captain Hansen and the crew had been taken off by the British steamer Hawkhead, westbound for San Francisco.

Lassen Again Active.

San Francisco, June 22. — Another eruption of Mount Lassen is reported here. It was said to have features distinguishing it from other disturbances which have occurred every few days this month.

Big Excursion Boat Sinks.

St. Louis, June 22.—The river steamer Majestic, the largest excursion boat on the Mississippi river, struck the cribbing of a waterworks tower near here and sank in ten minutes. Of the thirty-three persons on board at the time of the accident, only one is unaccounted for. The collision occurred Saturday. The steamer, an hour before, had discharged 900 excursionists at Alton, Ill., and was headed down stream for St. Louis, twenty-seven miles below.

FIFTEEN GENERALS SIDE WITH VILLA

SIGN NOTE RENOUNCING CARRANZA AS "FIRST CHIEF" OF REBELS.

BREACH IS NOT YET HEALED

Reported Settlement Denied by Late Arrivals From Constitutionalist Cities—Cause May Be Injured as Result.

Larendo, Tex., June 22. — Fifteen generals of the Constitutionalist army, commanding a combined force estimated at 30,000 men renounced General Carranza as "first chief" of the Constitutionalists' movement in a note sent to his headquarters at the time General Villa resigned. Villa, however, did not sign the communication. This and other details, suppressed by a rigid censorship at Saltillo became known at the border with the arrival of travelers from Saltillo and Monterey.

Subject Only to Villa.

The communication, it was authoritatively said, informed the man who has been the leader of the Constitutionalist movement since its inception that the generals would continue to fight against Huerta, but would hold themselves subject only to General Villa's orders and would not recognize Carranza.

Before the travelers left Saltillo the breach had not been healed by the compromises since announced and leaders in the Constitutionalist movement, fearing disintegration of the force which they had built up had summoned every available man of influence to bring the factions together.

Some doubt of the effect of the dissension on the course of the Constitutionalist movement was expressed by men closely in touch with revolutionary affairs in Northern Mexico, even though the breach apparently is healed and both sides have agreed to continue against a common enemy.

The plan of Guadaloupe, on which the Constitutionalist campaigns have been based, provides that the first chief of the Constitutionalist army shall remain at the head of the movement as provisional president after Huerta has been eliminated and until an election has been held and the result voiced. Hitherto Carranza has been undisputed first chief.

To Ignore Incident.

What effect on the future of the movement the fact that the commanding officers of the largest and most powerful single unit of that army have denied him that title and authority will have cannot yet be learned, according to the travelers. They said the Carranza forces apparently planned to go ahead as though the incident never had happened.

Pablo Gonzales, it is said, will attack San Luis Potosi immediately while Villa is taking Zacatecas and then move southward according to the original plan with Villa advancing from the center and Obregon from the west.

Eagle Pass.—The naming of a Constitutionalist cabinet by General Carranza is eagerly awaited by Constitutionalists as a possible means of healing the breach between General Carranza and General Villa, according Monterey. There was a general impression at those points, according to the travelers, that General Carranza would name his official family within two or three days.

A hurried call, it is said, has been sent out from Carranza's headquarters for representative men, thoroughly conversant with the undercurrent of Constitutionalist politics, to come to Saltillo to confer concerning cabinet choices. It is well known, according to border arrivals, that considerable opposition has arisen on the part of Villa and his friends to certain men close to Carranza.

Russian Lawyers Sentenced.

St. Petersburg, June 22.—The trial of 25 lawyers on a charge of insulting the ministry of justice during the trial of Mendel Beiliss ended in the conviction of all the defendants. M. Sokoloff and M. Kereuski were sentenced to eight months imprisonment and the others to six months each. At the trial of Beiliss the lawyers alleged the ministry of justice and the court were inspired by racial and national enmity. The sentences imposed on the lawyers deprives them of their political rights.

SHANGHAIED; LOSES IDENTITY

SAILOR DRUGGED IN JAPAN AND SENT TO U. S. AS FORGER.

Thrust in Irons and Incarcerated in San Quentin for Crime He Knows Nothing About.

San Francisco, June 20. — Shanghaied on the waterfront of Nagasaki, in faraway Japan, carried in irons across the Pacific on the United States army transport Sheridan and thrust into San Quentin penitentiary to serve three years under a name he could not pronounce and for a crime he never had heard of Albert Johansen, a roundeyed, puzzled Scandinavian sailor, has been given his liberty by the United States circuit court with the cordial concurrence of the United States attorney and the warden of San Quentin.

On June 27 he must appear again for the return of a writ of habeas corpus application which was filed in his behalf but in the meantime he is free without bail.

The prisoner said he was drinking one night last month in a waterfront saloon at Nagasaki. Three strangers offered to stand him a treat. He accepted. The next morning he found himself at sea, a prisoner on the army transport Sheridan. No one understood him when he tried to make himself understood and he was duly delivered at San Quentin as James Rogers, alias Peter Grimes, to serve three years for a sentence imposed by the treaty court at Shanghai, for a forgery. His cell mate chanced to be a fellow countryman and through him he got a hearing.

Thursday Johansen was given the album of prison portraits and asked if he could find anybody in it he remembered. As soon as he came on Rogers' portrait he said:

"That's one of the men I drank with in Nagasaki."

The real Rogers served a year in San Quentin for forgery. When released he won the interest of Captain Robert Dollar, a leading merchant of San Francisco in the China trade, who sent him to China in a clerical position on one of his vessels. Soon Rogers was posing as Captain Dollar's son. He began to pass bad checks, was caught and convicted, and sentenced to three years in San Quentin. An officer of the court was to have taken him to Nagasaki where he was turned over to the Sheridan.

The belief of federal officials is that Rogers got his guardian drunk, slipped a stupifying drug into Johansen's drink and personally delivered him late at night on board the Sheridan, turning over to a petty officer of the ship the papers he had stolen from the drunken deputy and receiving in person the acknowledgement for his own delivery.

INSANITY IS ON INCREASE

Number of Demented to 100,000 Trebled in United States Within Forty Years.

New York, June 22.—Dr. A. J. Ransanoff of Kings Park hospital for the insane, in a paper read at the second annual conference of the Eugenics Research association at the Columbia university, asserted that the number of insane persons in the institutions of the United States has nearly trebled during the last 40 years.

The average per 100,000, according to Dr. Rasanoff's figures, has increased from 86.5 to 232. The most fortunate state, the physician said, was Oklahoma, in which only 67 per 100,000 of the total population are in the insane category. Massachusetts, he asserted, is in the worst condition, having 413.4 per 100,000.

Belgian Miners Rescued.

Liege, Belgium, June 20.—Two hundred coal miners had a narrow escape from death in the Vielle Marihaye colliery near here when fire broke out and penned them inside for several hours.

To Postpone Elections.

Mexico City, June 22.—The minister of the interior presented to the chamber of deputies at its session preliminary to the opening of the extraordinary session of congress a bill calling for the postponement of the presidential election, which it was intended to hold the first Sunday in July. The reason given by the minister of the interior for his proposed action is that no elections could take place before the termination of the peace negotiations at Niagara Falls.

MEDIATORS CHANGE COURSE OF ACTION

NEW PLAN DEVISED AT NIAGARA FALLS ENCOURAGES ALL.

REBELS MAY BE CONSULTED

Will Probably Confer With American Delegates Informally Without Necessity of An Armistice.

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 23.—The mediators have proposed a new course of action which not only will prolong the proceedings, but may eventually work out a solution of the Mexican problem.

Plan Closely Guarded.

The nature of the plan which is designed to prevent the deadlock between the American and Mexican delegates, from abruptly ending the conference has been more closely guarded than anything which has transpired at the conferences.

It has become known, however, that another effort is being made to bring the Constitutionalists into close touch with the purposes of mediation without formally admitting them.

The suggestion contemplates separate conferences between the American delegates and representatives of the Constitutionalists. Justice Lamar and Frederick W. Lehmann would continue their dealings with Huerta delegates through the mediation board.

No Armistice Necessary.

In this way all elements in the Mexican situation would be drawn together and there would be no necessity for the declaration of an armistice until some agreement was reached and approved by the Constitutionalists.

The plan was said to be a result of the visit of Minister Naon of Argentina to Washington, where President Wilson is understood to have emphasized the written statement of Justice Lamar that any agreement reached by the mediation board, which was not approved by the Constitutionalists would be a "paper agreement," and would not accomplish the sole purpose of the United States, which is the pacification of Mexico.

It is reported that the Washington government already has extended an invitation to General Carranza to send his representatives to Niagara Falls, N. Y., to confer with the American delegates, but confirmation is lacking.

Mediators Are Silent.

Beyond saying that a definite step has been taken, which has raised their hope the mediators are silent.

It is also said that the three diplomats have revised their original plan for the pacification of Mexico, which had been approved by the Mexicans, but which was objected to in part by the American delegates.

Optimism prevails generally in American quarters while Dr. Naon reiterates that he has a feeling of genuine hopefulness.

There is a general impression that if Constitutionalist representatives are to be received by the American delegates, the discussion of names may be taken up anew, the generalities about types being abandoned for actual consideration of individuals.

91 BODIES ARE RECOVERED

Jury Views Dead Miners at Hillcrest, Alta., and Adjourns Till July.

Hillcrest, Alta, June 23.—Although a large force of workmen continue clearing away the debris in Mine No. 20, Hillcrest Colliers, Ltd., where 195 miners were entombed by an explosion, no additional bodies have been recovered.

Ninety-one bodies, according to corrected figures have been removed. Hope of rescuing alive any of the 104 miners still in the mine, has been abandoned completely.

The jury summoned by Coroner Proctor viewed the bodies of victims and then adjourned the inquest until early in July.

A number of dead were buried Sunday. The scarcity of coffins here made necessary the ordering of a supply from Winnipeg.

Effort to Settle Strike.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 23.—A committee of the 12,000 strikers of the Westinghouse industries held a conference with H. T. Herr, vice president of the Westinghouse Machine company, in an effort to settle the trouble at that plant.

Crew of Lost Ship Arrive.

Ports Eads, La., June 23.—Captain Charles Lawrence and a crew of 12 of the schooner J. R. Allison, which foundered at sea Monday, June 15, were brought here on the pilot boat Jennie Wilson.

Exports of Gold Large.

New York, June 22.—The crest of the greatest gold movement in recent years was believed to have been reached when gold exports from the United States to Europe since Jan. 1 reached an approximate total of $75,000,000. The last of an unprecedented government consignment of $43,000,000 in gold was placed today in the New York subtreasury. New York bankers were notified that beginning today, $5,000,000 of this $43,000,000 will be available daily.

MONARCH'S ACT SURPRISES

Old Lady Thought It Undignified That British Monarch Should Blow His Own Nose.

When King George of Great Britain came to the throne there were wild rumors that he took so little interest in horse-racing that the turf would suffer. This year, however, his majesty has attended a number of the big race meetings.

One recalls the story told of an earlier royal visit to Doncaster. An old Yorkshire woman had gone on the course for the sole purpose of seeing royalty, and she called out excitedly: "Which is the king? Which is the king?"

"There he is," said some one near. "That's him with the handkerchief in his hand."

"Ah!" gasped the old lady, a touch of reverent awe in her tone.

Just then his majesty, who had a cold in the head, performed a commonplace little operation.

"Goodness me!" the old lady exclaimed aghast. "He—he blows his own nose!"

ERUPTION DISFIGURED FACE

Lock Box 35, Maurice, Ia.—"In the spring of 1911 our little daughter, age five years, had a breaking out on her lip and part of her cheek that we took for ringworm. It resembled a large ringworm, only it differed in that it was covered with watery blisters that itched and burned terribly, made worse by her scratching it. Then the blisters would break through and let out a watery substance. She was very cross and fretful while she had it and had very little rest at night. When the eruption was at its worst the teacher of the school sent her home and would not allow her to attend until the disfigurement of her face was gone.

"I wrote and received a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, which we used according to directions, and they gave instant relief, so we bought some more. It gradually grew better. We kept on using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in three or four months the child was entirely cured." (Signed) Mr. Henry Prins, Oct. 22, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."—Adv.

1913 RECORD Magnificent Crops in all Western Canada

All parts of the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, have produced wonderful yields of Wheat, Oats, Barley and Flax. Wheat graded from Contract to No. 1 Hard, weighed heavy and yielded from 20 to 45 bushels per acre; 22 bushels was about the total average. Mixed Farming may be considered fully as profitable an industry as grain raising. The excellent grasses full of nutrition, are the only food required either for beef or dairy purposes. In 1912, and again in 1913, at Chicago, Manitoba carried off the Championship for beef steer. Good schools, markets convenient, climate excellent. For the homesteader, the man who wishes to farm extensively, or the investor, Canada offers the biggest opportunity of any place on the continent.

BUSINESS AND THE TARIFF

Secretary McAdoo Tells a Little Story to Illustrate What He Thinks Effect Will Be.

Since both the tariff and the currency bills came within the scope of the treasury department, it is natural that newspaper men should go there to query the chiefs with questions about their probable effect on business.

"Boys," said Secretary McAdoo recently, "there's nothing to it. The country has been subjected to revisions before, and always has survived them successfully. Generally speaking, the attitude of business is of receptive indifference toward the changes that have been made, because business men have made up their minds not to let such things interfere with their business. It is just like Freddy. Do you know about him?

"One day Freddy's mother said: 'Freddy, if you are not a good boy tonight you'll go to bed without your dinner.'

"'Ma,' shouted businesslike Freddy, 'what we goin' to have for dinner?'"—The Sunday Magazine.

Recompense.

The Nomad chieftain gloomily contemplated the dreary Syrian landscape.

The wedding guests were long departed. He had but a moment since beheld his bride of a few hours remove her teeth and put them in a cup of water to soak.

"Dismiss from thy heart, good my lord," the damsel murmured, "thy vain regrets."

Upon the word the pious Moslem extended his clasped hands toward the heavens.

"Allah be praised!" he cried. "If I mistake not, her old man must ere this have discovered that the horse I gave him in exchange for his daughter is balky."

Tears of joy welled unheeded from his eyes as he gave thanks.

No More.

Mrs. Nelson O'Shaughnessy's daring presence at the wedding of Huerta's son is only another proof of a brave woman's pluck.

Mrs. O'Shaughnessy, at the Colony club in New York, derided one day the idea that woman was weak, or cowardly, or that she need ever play a limited part in the world's affairs.

"Well," said a lady of the old school, "I know one thing woman can't do. She can't reform a man after marriage."

"No?" Mrs. O'Shaughnessy said. "No? And yet I know many a married man who in his bachelor days smoked 25-cent cigars."

A Gentle Hint.

State News of General Interest

STATE IS CLEARING LAND FOR SETTLERS

TRACT WILL BE PUT ON MARKET WHEN READY FOR PLOW.

BEING DONE AS EXPERIMENT

Actual Cost Will Be Kept and Data Compiled—Hoped Plan Will Aid in Settlement of Timber Land.

Grand Rapids.—The land department of the state auditors office is employing a crew of men in clearing 20 acres on three different forties about nine miles to the southeast of this town. The land is at the eastern end of Pokegama lake and will be placed on the market.

Keep Actual Cost.

The work is in charge of Superintendent A. J. McGuire of the Northeast experiment station, who is keeping account of the actual cost and will embody his findings in a report in order that farmers generally may form an idea of the expense involved in this kind of work. A power stump-puller, teams and dynamite are being used and the cost of each noted.

Last year one forty was thus reclaimed by the state. In this instance it was found that the increase in the cost of the land amounted to $17.50 an acre, the tract bringing $22.50 when sold, $5 being the appraised price of the land itself without improvements. The tracts being cleared now are so situated that a purchaser may secure eighty acres adjoining the cleared portion, and this, according to Mr. McGuire, is as much as any man should attempt to farm.

Gives Buyer Cleared Price.

These reclaimed pieces are sold to the highest bidder under the same conditions that wild lands are acquired. It is believed here the system will do more to settle the northern part of the state than anything heretofore attempted. It gives a man with a family a sizable piece of prepared ground upon which to begin raising crops for the maintenance of his family and stock.

ODD FELLOWS MAKE PLANS

Decide to Visit Minneapolis for Annual Encampment and Grand Lodge in 1915.

Northfield.—Minneapolis will entertain the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs of Minnesota at their annual encampment and grand lodge next year, according to a decision reached here. With the largest and most flourishing camps and lodges of the order in Minneapolis, the universal sentiment of the delegates favored the Mill City.

Reports from the several institutions owned by the Odd Fellows and other general business for the good of the order occupied the attention of the grand lodge. A closing session saw the installation of officers elected last winter as the last feature of an eventful three days' convention.

Among the grand lodge delegates were Mayor Wallace G. Nye of Minneapolis and Mayor Winn Powers of St. Paul, and Rev. Thomas Neville, deputy grandmaster of the province of Manitoba.

The Rebekah assembly received reports of committees and proceeded to the election of officers before adjournment. The annual memorial ceremony was held for past noble grands who have died the present year.

An honor guest of the Rebekahs was Mrs. Hattie Borland of Madison, S. D., grand secretary of the Rebekah assembly of South Dakota.

HALF OF WHEAT OF NATION

11,506,000 Bushels of 1913 Crop Lie in Minneapolis Storehouses.

Minneapolis.—Minneapolis holds in the great terminal elevators that fringe the city almost half of the visible supply of wheat in the United States. To be exact, the 11,506,000 bushels in store here is 48.71 per cent of the total amount of the 1913 harvest in the country.

Duluth, the other great spring wheat primary market, has 11.46 per cent of the 23,412,000 bushels in sight, making the total holdings of the Northwestern terminal elevators 60.17 per cent of the wheat available at the present time for consumption.

Exonerated for Killing Husband.

Hibbing.—Mrs. Augustus Boyaski, who resides at Aurora, was found not guilty after a deliberation of three hours by the jury. She was charged with the murder of her husband on the night of May 31. She claimed that she had been attacked by her husband and that in wrestling the gun from him, she had killed him. She gave herself up to the authorities and was taken to the Duluth jail. Trial lasted by three days, her plea of self-defense convincing the jurors.

AGED MINNESOTAN GIVES RULES FOR LONGEVITY

Hastings.—John Morey, an 1856 pioneer of Minnesota, has a philosophy of life which has carried him along in health and contentment for eighty-nine years and which he believes assures him of strength and happiness for many years to come. At the recent celebration of his natal day he counseled his friends to:

Sleep eight hours in every twenty-four.

Eat when hungry.

Abstain from intoxicants.

And not to worry.

Mr. Morey was born May 22, 1825, at Mount Bethel, Pa. In 1856 he came to Minnesota and built the first house in the Cottage Grove country. He has never been sick and still reads ordinary print without glasses. He believes in equal suffrage and says it will soon be here.

UNITED OPPOSITION DID IT

Defeat of Eberhart Due to That As He Got 20,000 More Votes Than Two Years Ago.

St. Paul.—While Governor Eberhart did much better this year as a vote getter than he did at the first state primary on September 17, 1912, he was defeated because he was opposed by one man instead of having the opposition split five ways, as it was two years ago.

In that campaign the Eberhart primary vote was 62,402, while William E. Lee, successful this year, got 40,571; Edward T. Young had 30,208; L. C. Spooner, 12,233; S. Y. Gordon, 11,927, and M. F. Falk, 6,536. The opposition totaled 101,865.

It was one of Lee's campaign arguments that two years ago the Governor was a minority candidate, and he tried to show that had the opposition been united the executive would have been snowed under. He said that with but one man in the field this year, it would work out that way, and his contention seems to have been correct.

Governor Eberhart, however, made a gain of about 20,000 over his vote two years ago, but there were more votes cast for the Republican ticket this year, the total, it is estimated, being somewhere near 175,000. This is accounted for by the fact that although the vote, generally speaking, was light, the minority parties, not having any contests, got their candidates on the ticket for the fall election without the formality of having a primary ballot under the new law and members voted the Republican ticket.

Irving A. Caswell, clerk of the Supreme Court, will have the honor of leading the ticket this year. His majority over G. D. McCubrey will approximate 60,000.

800 ENDEAVORERS ATTEND

State Convention Draws Four Hundred Delegates From Twin Cities Alone at Hastings.

Hastings.—Delegates from all parts of Minnesota gathered here to attend the Christian Endeavor union convention. About 400 delegates attended from the Twin Cities, arriving on the steamer Hiawatha.

The convention was opened formally with an address by Rev. John Pollock of Belfast, Ireland, president of the European Christian Endeavor union. His subject was "Grow," taken from the third chapter of St. John, thirtieth verse. "He must increase, but I must increase."

About 800 persons, in all, attended the sessions.

Rochester to Stage Big Rally.

Winona.—The Southern Minnesota Better Development league, the Commercial club of Rochester and the farmers' clubs of Olmsted county have become jointly responsible for the success of the midsummer meeting of the development league and the annual picnic of the farmers of Olmsted county, and the first annual picnic dinner of the people of Rochester at Mayo park, Rochester, on June 25. The development league meeting is for the counties of Wabasha, Dodge, Winona, Houston, Olmsted, Fillmore and Mower.

Mattson Chosen President.

Brainerd.—The Lutheran Free Churches of America, in convention here, elected officers as follows: President, Rev. John Mattson, Ellendale, Minn.; vice president, Rev. E. Berlie, Dalton, Minn.; secretary, Rev. E. Berntsen, Fargo, N. D. The constitution was revised to permit the reelection of the president of a standing committee.

Dentists Meet and Elect.

Rochester.—The annual meeting of the first district association of the Minnesota State Dental society was held in this city. "Local Anesthesia" was the principal theme for discussion, Dr. W. H. McNeil of Minneapolis making an address on the subject. The following officers were elected: B. A. Herrick, Red Wing, president; A. A. Thorson, Rochester, vice president; C. G. Giltam, Austin, secretary; A. P. Cox, Faribault, treasurer; B. Featherstone, Red Wing, delegate to the state society.

RUN STOLEN AUTO INTO DITCH

Two Escaped Jail-Breakers Captured by Posse After Mishap to Car.

Fergus Falls.—Clarence Bolden, James Murphy and William Paul were brought over from Bluffton and placed in the county jail here on the charge of having stolen an automobile from the livery barn of Henry Stootz there.

The trio were first arrested at Staples last Saturday on complaint of a Northern Pacific detective, who accused them of entering cars and stealing carburetors and other valuable parts from automobiles in transit and selling the parts to city dealers.

While in jail there, they saw an ax lying on a desk a few feet from their cell door. Making a cord with some material from their bedding and fashioning a hook by bending a poker, they threw the hook with the cord attached through the bars, hooked the desk and drew it over until it was within reach, took hold of the ax, and in three minutes chopped their way through the door to liberty.

They took to the woods and swamps and made their way to Bluffton, entering that village in the dead of night. Feeling that automobile traveling would be an improvement on foot travel, they stole a machine from the barn, but had gone only a short distance when they ran into a ditch and were unable to get out. A posse was organized and they were surrounded and captured, and have been bound over.

NEW WARDEN FOR PRISON

St. Cloud Reformatory Head to Succeed Henry Wolfer at Stillwater.

St. Paul.—Charles S. Reed, superintendent of the St. Cloud reformatory, will become warden of the Minnesota state penitentiary at Stillwater November 1. Henry K. W. Scott, former warden of the New Hampshire state penitentiary at Concord, will become superintendent of the St. Cloud reformatory July 1.

The resignation of Henry Wolfer as warden of the prison at Stillwater has just reached the board of control.

The resulting changes elevate to the highest position in the penal institutions of the state, a man who in less than a year's service at St. Cloud has made a strong impression with the board; bring to Minnesota another who has a record of advanced reformatory methods, and retire on his own initiative, the man who is dean of all prison wardens of the United States.

Warden Wolfer some months ago told the board of control he would resign when the new state penitentiary was completed in detail. His formal retirement was not expected till 1915.

The new warden, Mr. Reed, will go to Stillwater, July 1, to familiarize himself with the institution. Mr. Scott leaves Concord for St. Cloud Monday.

MISSING HEIR IS DEMENTED

Fortune Would Have Reverted to State Shortly Had He Not Made His Appearance.

Rochester.—William Convay, for whom a small-sized fortune has been in the hands of the clerk of court for this county, and which would in a few weeks have reverted to the state of Minnesota if unclaimed, startled courthouse officials when he stepped into the courthouse building, apparently insane. Convay immediately was placed in custody to await an examination.

Convay was one of the heirs of a good-sized estate probated five years ago, but his whereabouts were unknown until he wandered into the courthouse. Five years ago a farm belonging to the estate was sold, and the money divided among the heirs, Convay's share amounting to $1,739.58, being turned over to the clerk of court to keep in trust until he was located.

Convay inquired for the county auditor, who was out at the time, but he continued his search in the building until he reached the judge of probate's office, where the actions of the man aroused suspicion, and he was placed in the charge of the sheriff, to whom he declared he was William Convay.

Windom Tangoes Over Success.

Windom.—The last three years of prosperity have started a building boom in Windom. The business portion of the town is developing. A $15,000 garage was dedicated by a benefit dance for the Windom band. All Windom tangoed. A new theater and Odd Fellows hall and many residences are under construction.

Counties to Build Sanatorium.

Pipestone.—A meeting of county commissioners from southwestern Minnesota was held here and further steps taken to arrange for the establishment of a joint county sanatorium in this corner of the state. Representatives of Lyon, Cottonwood, Nobles, Murray and Pipestone counties were present to confer with Dr. Robinson Bosworth of St. Paul, secretary of the state sanatorium commissioners. A permanent organization was perfected, H. F Seiter of Lyon county being named president.

THOUGHT HER A FOREIGNER

Mrs. Petrowsky Was Unused to Words Employed by Volunteer Social Worker.

The trained social worker was "breaking in" a volunteer, and so she escorted her on her first round of visits.

"Ask questions about their husbands and children," she prompted, outside of Mrs. Petrowsky's door. "They can understand those, and they like to answer, and we get the information we need at the same time."

So, as soon as the preliminaries were over, the volunteer turned to the lady of the house with her best society smile.

"Has your husband regular employment at present, Mrs. Petrowsky?" she inquired.

Mrs. Petrowsky looked blank. The volunteer raised her voice, and spoke more slowly:

"Has your—husband—regular—employment—at present?" she reiterated.

"Huh?" asked Mrs. Petrowsky, stupidly.

"Has—your—husband—" began the volunteer for the third time, still more loudly.

The social worker interrupted with a friendly smile. "The lady wants to know," she explained, quietly, "has your old man got a steady job?"

Mrs. Petrowsky beamed with delight. "Oh, ya! Oh, ya!" she assented, with many nods of relief. "Steady job by railroad, ya. What land she come off, her?"—Youth's Companion.

Sitting in the Dark.

"Moving pictures now, eh?" It used to be orchestra seats at $2 a throw."

MRS. WINN'S ADVICE TO WOMEN

Take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and be Restored to Health.

Kansas City, Mo.—"The doctors told me I would never be a mother. Every month the pains were so bad that I could not bear my weight on one foot. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and had not finished the first bottle when I felt greatly relieved and I took it until it made me sound and well, and I now have two fine baby girls. I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound too highly for what it has done for me. I always speak a word in favor of your medicine to other women who suffer when I have an opportunity."—Mrs. H. T. WINN, 1225 Freemont Ave., Kansas City, Mo.

Read What Another Woman says:

Cumming, Ga.—"I tell some suffering woman every day of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it has done for me. I could not eat or sleep, had a bad stomach and was in misery all the time. I could not do my housework or walk any distance without suffering great pain. I tried doctors' medicines and different patent medicines but failed to get relief. My husband brought home your Vegetable Compound and in two weeks I could eat anything, could sleep like a healthy baby, and walk a long distance without feeling tired. I can highly recommend your Vegetable Compound to women who suffer as I did, and you are at liberty to use this letter."—Mrs. CHARLIE BAGLEY, R. 3, Cumming, Ga.

Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have PAREGORIC or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and a FEW DROPS TOO MANY will produce the SLEEP FROM WHICH THERE IS NO WAKING. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labelling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician know of what it is composed. CASTORIA DOES NOT CONTAIN NARCOTICS, if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas H. Fletcher

Valuable Land in Egypt.

The presence in this country of Sir William Willcocks, of Assouan dam fame, and now engaged on the flood control of the Tigris-Euphrates river, is an event of more than ordinary significance, because of its bearing upon the question of the control of flood water, says the Wall Street Journal. The Nile valley irrigation works, according to Sir William, has enabled 11,000,000 people to live on 6,000,000 acres. Land, he says, in the vicinity of the Assouan dam is worth from $750 to $1,000 an acre, and they raise five hundredweight of cotton on it, which is worth $100. His view of our methods of controlling the Mississippi is of much value because of his experience in Asia and Africa. No foreigner has more studiously read the reports of our river and harbor engineers. His main suggestions are that the levees be made wider and that relief channels be provided to mitigate the strain when waters at their maximum might be carried off as a means of safety.

Nothing Left Behind.

"Are you afraid to go away and leave your windows unlocked?"

"Not at all. What is there to be afraid of?"

"I should think you'd be afraid that thieves would get in and steal your valuables."

"Oh, no. We don't own more jewelry than my wife can wear."

Married Men Outlive Bachelors.

The latest statistics issued by the city of Berlin show, among other things, that married men there live considerably longer on the average than bachelors. The percentage of deaths among wives, on the other hand, is greater than among spinsters, owing principally to mortality attending childbirth.—New York Times.

Conditions of Crops Great

The latter part of June finds general crop conditions in the Minnesota Red river valley in the best condition since 1895. The grain all went into the ground under ideal conditions, the fields were in the best shape they had ever been as the result of better cultivation and a better prepared seed bed. Copious showers at intervals resulted in the grain sprouting in a wonderful manner and from the time the grain peeped through the ground the fields have resembled great lawns. The weather has been ideal, sufficiently cool at start to prevent too rank a growth resulting in a deep rooting.

The grain has stooled wonderfully and has covered the ground so thickly that a splendid crop is assured even if there should not be another drop of rainfall between now and harvest time. With just the average rainfall from this time on the grain crop will be a real "bumper."

But not only the small grain but the corn crop, potato crop, etc., are showing a magnificent growth. No where in the valley has there been too much rain, with the exception of a small area in Clay county which has damaged the potato crop in a portion of the townships quite seriously. However, some of the farmers planted their potatoes over again in this comparatively small district and as the farmers in that region are all wealthy, business conditions locally will not be affected. In the north half of Clay county and, in the east portion the crops are all excellent and throughout the entire valley there is at the present time the promises of one of the most bountiful crops in the past 20 years.

Most notable of all the crops this year is the luxurious standing of alfalfa and clover. The acreage is more than tubbed this year and the catch has been wonderful. The stand of alfalfa sown last year has attracted widespread attention and the acreage is now generally scattered as it is on many farms in every township. In the ten counties, the alfalfa will in the future be regarded as one of the very important and successful crops of the Minnesota Red river valley, share equally in the attention which has been paid to corn the past few years, which is now going to be regarded as a staple crop.

Increased business activities is noted all along the line and the inquiries for valley land from the substantial farmers of Iowa, Indiana, Illinois and other corn states was never so brisk as the present time with the promises of more high class farmers locating in this section this year than for many years past.

The Making and Feeding of Silage.

Silage during the last three decades has come into general use throughout the United States, especially in those regions where the dairy industry has reached its greatest development. Silage is universally recognized as a good and cheap feed for farm stock, and particularly so for cattle and sheep, are the observations made in Farmers' Bulletin 578.

Silage is the best and cheapest form in which a succulent feed can be provided for winter use, continues the bulletin. An acre of grain can be placed in the silo at a cost not exceeding that of shocking, husking, grinding, and shredding. Crops can be put in the silo during weather that can not be used in making hay or curing fodder, which is an important consideration in some localities.

A given amount of corn in the form of silage will produce more milk than the same amount when shocked and dried. There is less waste in feeding silage than in feeding fodder. Good silage properly fed is all consumed, and in addition very palatable. Like other succulent feeds it has a benefical effect upon the digestive organs, and some stock can be kept on a given area of land when it is the basis of the ration.

On account of the smaller cost for labor, silage can be used for supplementing pastures more economically than can soiling crops, unless only a small amount of supplementary feed is required. Converting the corn crop into silage clears the land sooner than if the corn crop is shocked and husked, and because of these advantages silage, in the general opinion of dairy farmers, has increased milk production per cow and has increased the profits per acre.

GATZKE.

Rev. Jgerde and Mr. John Larson left recently for Norway, where they expect to spend the summer.

The dance given at J. B. Groby's last Saturday night was well attended and a jolly good time is reported by all.

John Narseth of Warren was here visiting his uncle, Halvor Narseth. He and Chester made a business trip to Grygla on Friday.

W. H. Hoag of Thief River came out to Rollis Tuesday to look over some proposed ditches which are to be done by team work.

Prof. R. R. Narseth of Dacora, was here last week to visit his brother, H. C. Narseth. They had not seen each other for twenty years.

Miss Pear Stuvrud and Mr. Richard Chapel of Lolma, Montana, were married at the bride's home one mile west of Gatzke last week. Rev. Jgerda officiating.

They left for their home in Montana soon after the ceremony.

J. H. Mundhenke is treating his buildings to a coat of paint these days. The School house is to receive the same treatment in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. and Oliver Skindrud were welcome callors at the E. E. Peelie home last Sunday.

There was a couple of deer in the vicinity of Section 12 last Thursday morning. If they had been "dears," the bachelors would of been out. If it had been in season I know one man who would have raised the old carbine.

There was a base ball game between the bachelors and the married men. Of course the bachelors won, but, just wait 'til the women get their "rights," we will show them.

Chas. Holmgren made a trip to Thief River Falls Friday, returning Saturday.

Edwin C. Johnson is building an addition to his house.

There will be a picnic at Tyson's the Fourth.

F. A. Gilbert is digging some ditches.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Olson are the proud parents of a fine girl, who arrived at their home last Monday.

GOLDEN VALLEY

Miss Rankins of Tennessee is visiting with the Melvin Olson family this week.

Chas. Parg, W. E. Patten and Mr. Erbe returned from Thief River Falls last Saturday.

The 4th of July Celebration at Holt this year will be a dandy.

Tony Carlson made a quick trip to Minneapolis this week, to attend his brother's wedding.

Lydia Risberg returned from home last week, after several weeks stay in Thief River Falls.

Notice is hereby given that those who owe M. T. Strom for services as instructor in the religious school held in Holt, may pay same at Holt State Bank.

Mrs. Carl Anderson returned Tuesday from a visit at Minneapolis and other points.

P. A. Risberg made a business trip to Warren on Monday, returning the next day.

H. B. Young of Ionia, Iowa came Wednesday to look after business interests. Mr. Young expresses himself as being much pleased with the country and the people.

Begin now, and plan to spend the 4th of July in Holt.

To Study Road Conditions In 100 Counties.

Detailed studies of local road building systems in 100 counties are now being carried on by the department in cooperation with the State highway departments and local road authorities.

The purpose of this study is to discover the points of excellence and defects in existing local methods of building and maintaining roads which will aid the State authorities to put local road management on a systematized basis. The cooperating State authorities have been asked to designate counties that present typical and exceptional features as to topography, character of road materials, methods of construction and maintenance, administrative organization, methods of road financing, and traffic conditions. From these lists 100 counties will be selected, and in these counties the Division of Road Economies will make intensive studies.

This investigation is prompted by the fact that there is at present very little knowledge as to the most effective and economical methods by which a county can develop its roads. At present the methods of financing local road improvements vary from calling on farmers for a certain number of days' labor in lieu of a road tax, or the use of county prisoners in road construction, to bond issues or maintenance of roads from dramshop license funds.

The department will study all of these systems with the view to determining what system or combination of systems works best in actual practice.

There is, moreover, at present no standard system of keeping accounts for road building and maintenance and as a result, while some counties know to a penny the purpose for which money was spent, others have no definite check or reporting system. Among various counties with the same conditions cost for excavation or other labor is anything but uniform and many counties, because of the absence of definite knowledge, fail to use local and cheap materials, and construct roads which are unnecessarily expensive for their purpose, or which will wear out before the bond issues are redeemed. The investigation will include a careful study of the use of convict labor in road construction.

In connection with the scientific study, the department's highway engineers will advise freely with local officials as to improvements, and thus give each county visited the advantage of direct cooperation in engineering supervision and assistance.

In Church Circles.

Nazareth Ladies' Aid met at B. L. Backe's residence July 1st at 2 o'clock. A large crowd were in attendance. Mrs. B. L. Backe and Adolph Solum served.

There will be services in Holt Nazareth Lutheran Church Sunday July 5th at 10:45 a. m. and Ringbo St. Peters congregation at 3:30 p. m.

M. B. ORDAHL

One of the big things to be had at the Fourth of July Celebration at Holt will be a wrestling match between Harry Norlund, of Lancaster, and Ludwig Monson, of Holt. This promises to be one of the best matches ever pulled off in this part of the country as Mr. Norlund has thrown all comers in his class and Mr. Monson is in the best of trim ready to pin him to the mat two out of three.

Carlson-Surmo Nuptials.

Miss Alma Carlson and Carl Surmo were married last Thursday, June 25th, at the home of the bride in East Valley. The Rev. M. B. Ordahl officiated.

The bride wore a white silk dress and flowers. Misses Christine Saastad and Carrie Peterson were bridesmaids. The groom was attended by Willie Warner and Fred Peterson.

The bridal couple left the same day for a short wedding trip returning the following Saturday. They will make their future home on the grooms farm in East Valley.

Both the bride and bridegroom have resided here for the past years and have a large circle of friends who wish them unbounded future happiness and prosperity.

FLOOD CAUSES GREAT DAMAGE

Months of Work Are Swept Away In Half Hour on Government Dam

(Hearst Special Service.)

Minneapolis, Minn., June 30. With the water rushing in a mighty torrent through the gap made by the washing away of a part of the coffer dam late yesterday and the Mississippi still rising, government engineers today were unable even to speculate as to the exact amount of damage done to the government high dam near the Soldiers' home, or how long it would take to replace the destroyed sections of the coffer dam, a temporary structure erected to protect the work on the permanent dam.

That the labor of [illegible] of many men had been swept away in a short 30 minutes, all were agreed, but Capt. George W. Freeman, the federal engineer in charge of the work, is still confident that much of the superstructure below the water level is left and will remain safe.

From reports received today from up the river towns the federal engineers expect the river will rise probably twelve additional inches before the high level is reached.

AUSTRIAN HEIR AND WIFE SLAIN WHILE ON TOUR

Royal Couple Escape Bomb Only to be Shot Shortly Afterwards--Both Assassins Are Youthful Servians.

Sarajevo, June 30.—Archduke Francis Ferdinand, heir to the Austro-Hungarian throne, and his morganatic wife, the Duchess of Hohenberg, were assassinated while driving through the streets of Serajevo, the Bosnian capital.

Student Fired Shots.

A youthful Servian student fired the shots which added another to the long list of tragedies that has darkened the reign of Emperor Francis Joseph.

The archduke and his wife were victims of the second attempt in the same day against their lives. First a bomb was thrown at the automobile in which they were driving to the town hall. Forewarned, however, of a possible attempt against his life, the archduke was watchful and struck the missile aside with his arm. It fell under an automobile which carried members of his suite, wounding Count Van Boos-Waldeck and Colonel Merizzo.

Both Mortally Wounded.

On their return from the town hall the archduke and the duchess were driving to the hospital when the Servian, Gavrio Prinzip, darted at the car and fired a volley at the occupants. His aim was true, for the archduke and his wife were mortally wounded. With them at the time was the governor of the city, who escaped injury.

The bodies of his murdered companions collapsed across him and protected him from stray bullets.

The governor shouted to the chauffeur to rush to the palace at top speed. Physicians were in prompt attendance, but their services were useless as the archduke and his wife were dead before the palace was reached.

Bomb Filled With Nails.

The bomb was filled with nails and lead filings and the explosion was violent.

The iron shutters on many shops were pierced by flying fragments and iron railings were shattered. About a score of persons were injured, several of them being women and children.

The murders occurred with such rapidity that many persons near the scene did not even hear the shots. The street is very narrow and assassin was able to fire at close range.

The first attempt against the archduke occurred just outside the girls' high school. His car had started after a brief pause for an inspection of the building when Gabrinovics hurled the bomb. This was so successfully warded off by the archduke that it fell directly beneath the following car, the occupants of which, Count von Boos-Waldeck and Colonel Merizzo, were struck by slivers of iron.

Archduke Proceeds On.

Archduke Francis Ferdinand stopped his car and after making inquiries as to their injuries and lending what aid he could, continued his journey to the town hall. There the burgomaster began the customary address, but the archduke sharply interrupted and snapped out:

"Herr Burgomaster, we have come here to pay you a visit and bombs have been thrown at us. This is altogether an amazing indignity."

After a pause, the archduke said:

"Now, you may speak."

On leaving the hall the archduke and his wife announced their intention of visiting the wounded members of their suite at the hospital on their way back to the palace. They were actually bound on their mission of mercy, when, at the corner of Rudolf strasse and Frantz Josef strasse, Prinzip opened fire.

Couple Both Shot.

A bullet struck the archduke in the face. The duchess was wounded in the abdomen and another bullet struck her in the throat, severing an artery. She fell unconscious across her husband's knee. At the same moment the archduke sank to the floor of the car.

The assassins were interrogated by the police and both seemed to glory in their exploit. Prinzip said he had studied for a time at Belgrade. He declared he had long intended to kill some eminent person from Nationalist motives. He was awaiting the archduke at a point where he knew the automobile would slacken speed, turning into Franz Josef strasse. The presence of the duchess in the car caused him to hesitate, but only for a moment. Then his nerve returned and he emptied his pistol at the imperial pair. He denied that he had any accomplices.

Both Assassins Young.

Prinzip is 18 years old. Nedeljo Gabrinovics is 21. He told the police he had obtained the bomb from anarchists at Belgrade, whose names he did not know. He denied also that he had accomplices and treated the tragedy with cynical indifference.

Anti-Servian demonstrations followed. The crowds knelt in the streets and sang the national anthem. The mayor of Serajevo issued a proclamation to the residents of the city, denouncing the crime and declaring that by the confession of the assassin it was shown beyond all doubt that the bomb thrown at the archduke's car came from Belgrade.

It is said that after the attempt with the bomb near the Girls' high school the duchess tried to dissuade the archduke from venturing into the motor car again. To allay her fears, M. Potiorek, governor of Bosnia, said:

"It's all over now. We have not more than one murderer in Serajevo."

Whereupon the archduke decided to go on.

News Overwhelms Emperor.

Vienna.—When news of the assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand was imparted to the aged emperor he exclaimed: "Terrible! Terrible! I am spared nothing."

Austrian opinion regards the tragedy the result of a well-prepared conspiracy. It is asserted that when it became known at the Servian legation here that the archduke intended to go to Bosnia he was advised not to undertake the journey, as certain Servian desperadoes were planning an attempt against his life.

Archduke Disregards Warning.

The archduke disregarded the warning and approached to Serajevo. He took up his residence at a watering place near the Bosnian capital and attended various fetes as well as army maneuvers which ended Saturday. He issued an army order expressing great satisfaction at the maneuvers.

Telegrams have been received from all parts of the kingdom announcing the immense sensation caused by the crime. All public festivities have been cancelled.

Anti-Servian demonstrations occurred outside the Servian legation and stones were thrown at the residences of prominent Servians. Troops were ordered out to suppress the disorders.

It is reported here that several Bosnians and Serbs have been arrested at Serajevo for complicity in the plot, which is said to have wide ramifications. The newspapers have issued special editions with black borders expressing abhorrence of the crime.

Ever since the publication of an imperial rescript, on Oct. 7, 1908, proclaiming the annexation of Bosnia-Herzegovina to Austria, strong opposition to Austrian rule has been displayed by the Serb and Moslem residents of those provinces.

Former in Turkish Territory.

Bosnia and Herzegovina were formerly included in European Turkey, but the Austro-Hungarian occupation was authorized in 1878 by the treaty of Berlin. The treaty, however, contemplated the evacuation of the occupied provinces after the restoration of order. In 1908 there was a reform movement in Turkey which might mean the revival of Ottoman power, and Russia, after her war with Japan, showed weakness. Events in the near East seemed propitious and, with small formality, the Austrian government added the two provinces to its territory. In this act Archduke Francis Ferdinand is said to have played an important part.

Servia was so incensed at Austria's action that she threatened war, but after several months of negotiations among the powers, capitulated and accepted the situation.

It is feared that the Serajevo tragedy will still further embitter the none too friendly relations between Austria and Servia.

Born in 1863.

Vienna, June 29.—The assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand not only complicated already troubled Austro-Hungarian succession, but also removed from the stage of international affairs one of its most secretive and romantic figures.

Born at Gratz, Styria, on Dec. 18, 1863, the son of the late Archduke Charles Louis and Princess Annunciata, daughter of King Ferdinand of the two Sicilies, his succession to the throne seemed remote. The heir apparent was Crown Prince Rudolph, son of Emperor Francis Joseph.

When Francis Ferdinand was but 8 years old his mother died, and his father gave him into the hands of Jesuit teachers, with instructions that he be brought up untainted by the wickedness of the nineteenth century. Consequently the nephew of the present ruler was not educated as a future wearer of the crown. But when the tragic end of the crown prince in 1889 brought him to the steps of the throne he began assiduously to prepare himself for the high position which seemed destined to be his.

Dissipated Early in Life.

His early youth was clouded with dissipations which threatened to result in his undoing. In fact an episode, the exact nature of which has never been disclosed, resulted in his banishment from Austria, only to be recalled after the sudden death of the crown prince.

Though various archduchesses and princesses were suggested as proper objects for the attractions of the new heir apparent, he persistently refused to act in accordance with them, and in 1900 he horrified court circles by announcing his intention to marry—not an archduchess, but a simple lady-in-waiting to an archduchess, the Countess Sophie Chotek, daughter of a diplomatist of an ancient but far from royal house.

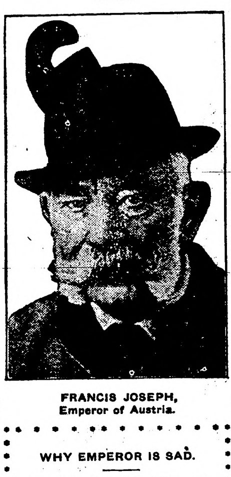
But under the law such a marriage between a member of the royal house and a subject, while binding between man and wife, was morganatic—which means that it would require the archduke formally to renounce all possible claims of his wife to royal rights and of his children to possible succession to the throne.

Francis Joseph Displeased

Francis Joseph, however, was displeased with his nephew's conduct, but he gave his imperial consent to the marriage upon condition that the archduke strictly observe the Hapsburg laws and never attempt to place his morganatic wife upon the throne or establish the right of succession for his children.

The real significance of the whole matter, however, lies in that the tragic death of the archduke and his wife before the former's ascension to the throne leaves the heir apparent to the throne, not the elder of the archduke's two sons, but his nephew, Archduke Karl Francis Joseph, son of the late Archduke Otto, brother of Francis Ferdinand.

Oldest European Ruler is Saddest Monarch of All



FRANCIS JOSEPH, Emperor of Austria.

WHY EMPEROR IS SAD.

Many family tragedies have made Francis Joseph known as "the saddest of monarchs." A list of tragedies marking his rule is as follows:

His wife, "the good Elizabeth," was assassinated in Switzerland by an anarchist.

His brother, Mixmilian, was executed in Mexico.

His only son, Rudolph, was a suicide.

His sister-in-law, the Duchess d'Alencon, was burned to death at a charity bazaar in Paris.

His favorite grandchild married against his wishes and her love ended in the shooting of her rival.

His nephew and heir-apparent, Archduke Francis Ferdinand, and his morganatic wife were assassinated.

"Equal Suffrage Sure"—Clark.

Washington, June 29. Speaker Clark told a delegation of women from the National Woman's Suffrage association that "woman suffrage is as inevitable as the rising of tomorrow's sun." "For 6,000 years," said the speaker, "men have been trying to run the world and some think they have made a bad mess of it. I hope that when you women run it you'll improve on it. The only question you folks have to consider is how most expeditiously to get what you are after.

Emperor Is Very Sad.

Vienna, June 29.—Francis Joseph is today the most lonely monarch of Europe. The tragedy which robbed him of a nephew and niece, the former his heir was only one of many that have saddened his life. Assassinations and suicides have taken from him those who were nearest and most dear. A strange fatality has pursued the house of Hapsburg and misfortunes have come in quick succession. Only the emperor himself has seemed immune.

Fletcher Home on Furlough

Washington, June 29.—After serving in Mexican waters more than a year, during which he directed the occupation of Vera Cruz, Rear Admiral Frank P. Fletcher has reached Washington aboard the dispatch boat Dolphin Secretary Daniels has chosen Rear Admiral Fletcher to succeed Rear Admiral Badger as commander in chief of the Atlantic fleet and it is expected the recommendation for the promotion will be made to the president during the officer's furlough in Washington.

WILSON PREDICTS BOOM FOLLOWING TRUST LEGISLATION

PRESIDENT DETERMINED ON ACTION AND DECLARES RESULT WILL PLEASE COUNTRY IN THE END.

WILL STOP GUESSING WHICH IS VERY FATAL

Calls the Measure "New Constitution of Freedom" for Business—Cites Fear of Enacted Legislation to Prove Nothing Harmful Will Result.

Washington, June 27. — Under a "new constitution of freedom" for business given by anti-trust legislation soon to be passed by congress, President Wilson promises the country the greatest business boom in its history.

Wilson's Final Answer.

This was the president's final answer to the opponents of trust legislation at this session of congress, and to prophets of evil times, delivered with determined expression and every word emphasized with a clenched fist.

"We know what we are doing," said Mr. Wilson, "We purpose to do it under advice, for we have been fortunate enough to obtain the advice of men who understand the business of the country; and we know that the effect is going to be exactly what the effect of the currency reform was, a sense of relief and security."

Editors Are Addressed.

The president spoke to a group of Virginia editors in the east room of the White House, but his assurances were intended for the country. A military aide in full dress uniform stood beside him and there was every indication that the speech was meant to be one of the most important of the administration. News of the failure of the H. B. Claffin company in New York had reached the White House earlier, but the president did not mention the incident. The speech in part follows:

"I think it is appropriate in receiving you, to say just a word or two in assistance of your judgment about the existing conditions. You are largely responsible for the state of public opinion. You furnish the public with information and in your editorials you furnish it with the interpretation of that information. We are in the presence of a business situation which is variously interpreted. Here in Washington, through the bureau of commerce and other instrumentalities that are at our disposal, and through a correspondence which comes to us from all parts of the nation, we are perhaps in a position to judge of the actual condition of business better than those can judge who are at any other single point in the country; and I want to say to you that as a matter of fact the signs of a very strong business revival are becoming more and more evident from day to day.

Feverish for Long Time.

"I want to suggest this to you. Business has been in a feverish and apprehensive condition in this country for more than ten years. Business men have acted as some men do who fear they will have to undergo an operation and who are not sure that when they get on the table the operation will not be a capital operation. As a matter of fact, as the diagnosis has progressed, it has become more and more evident that no capital operation was necessary; that at the most a minor operation was necessary to remove admitted distempers and evils.

"There is nothing more fatal to business than to be kept guessing

"First, there was the tariff, and business shivered. Then came the currency reform.

Dread of Trust Program.

"Then we advanced to the trust program and again the same dread, the same hesitation, the same urgency that the thing should be postponed. It will not be postponed; and it will not be postponed because we are the friends of business.

"Because, when the program is finished it is finished: the interrogation points are rubbed off the slate; business is given its constitution of freedom, and is bidden go forward under that constitution. And just so soon it gets that leave and freedom there will be a boom of business in this country such as we have never witnessed in the United States."

New High Record Temperatures.

Washington, June 26.—Terrific heat that established new June records in several cities has spread over practically all of the country eastward and southward from the Ohio valley. In Augusta and Savannah, Ga., the mercury reached 102 degrees. Other new records for June were established at Louisville and Jacksonville with temperatures of 100, and in New Orleans where the official temperature showed 98 degrees. Denver had a temperature of 92. New York was comparatively cool at 84.

GEN. FELIPE ANGELES

General Angeles, formerly secretary of war in Carranza's cabinet, is Villa's chief artillery commander and, according to reports, is also that commander's choice for the position of provisional president.

U. S. AND MEXICO SETTLE DISPUTES

LATEST PROTOCOL SIGNED AT NIAGARA FALLS RESTS ON INTERNAL PACIFICATION.

FORMAL CONFERENCES AT END

Informal Meetings Between Rebels and Federal Representatives Expected to Pick Head of New Government.

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 26.—Terms for composing all international differences between the United States and Mexico have been concluded. The conditions under which diplomatic relations will be resumed have been embodied in a protocol which has been signed by the ambassador from Brazil, the ministers of Chile and Argentina and the American and Huerta delegates.

Rebels Expected to Concur.

The character of the settlement is not expected to arouse opposition from the Constitutionalists, who will participate in and to a large degree mould the adjustment of all internal disputes.

When a new provisional government is established to succeed that headed by General Huerta the result of mediation—recognized as a triumph for Pan-American diplomacy—will become effective.

Coincidentally with the action taken, it was announced that the selection of a provisional president and the organization of a new government, which is considered a purely internal problem, will be left to an informal conference of representatives of the Constitutionalists—Dr. Luis Cabrera, Rafael Zubaran and Jose Vasconcelos—and the delegates sent by General Huerta to the mediation conference.

Mediation Sessions Over.

No formal adjournment of the mediation will be taken but there will be no sessions while the representatives of the two warring factions in Mexico endeavor to arrive at an agreement on the personnel of the new government, the agrarian and educational reforms and other internal problems.

The single outstanding provision in the protocol is that the international problem shall be declared adjusted on the establishment of the new provisional government. The protocol sets forth:

Provisions of Protocol.

That the United States and Argentina, Brazil and Chile, the mediating countries, shall recognize the new provisional government and that thenceforth diplomatic relations between the United States and Mexico shall be resumed.

That the United States demands no indemnity and does not further exact satisfaction for any of the incidents connected with the patrol of Mexican waters and invasion of the country.

That a commission shall be appointed to adjust private claims growing out of the revolution and international incidents.

Word came from President Wilson and Secretary Bryan authorizing the American delegates to sign it. The Mexican delegation had not expected so prompt a response.

The result of the mediators' work places the issue now squarely before the representatives of the two warring factions On them will rest the responsibility for failure or success of the peace plans as a whole. The mediators and American delegates will stand by to lend a helping hand and give their counsel when sought.

1 Killed, 7 Hurt in Storm.

Redwood Falls, Minn., June 25.—One man was killed and seven injured in the cyclonic gale which visited this city Tuesday night. The property loss is also heavy.

SALEM HOMELESS ARE PROVIDED FOR MILITARY PRECISION MARKS HANDLING OF RELIEF MEASURE FOLLOWING FIRE.

LOSS ESTIMATED $12,000,000

Total Insurance Estimated at $10,000,000—Four Are Dead—Plans for Rebuilding City Are Already Being Made.

Salem, Mass., June 29.—Measures for the relief of 18,000 persons made homeless in this city's conflagration have proceeded with military precision. More than 3,500 are directly dependent upon the relief committee for shelter while 4,500 wait patiently in various bread lines for food which has streamed into the city in abundance.

Poorer Class in Tents.

Those cared for in the tent camps are of the poorer class, mostly foreigners. Nearly all the well to do have found refuge with friends and relatives elsewhere.

An insurance adjuster who went over the devastated district carefully estimated the loss at $12,000,000 of which $10,000,000 was covered by insurance. This insurance, it was stated, was well distributed, the heaviest American interest falling on any one company being $400,000.

Greatest Individual Loser.

The Naumkeg Steam Cotton company was the heaviest individual loser. The loss on its great plant was placed at $3,500,000.

Fifteen hundred employes were thrown out of work by the destruction of these mills. The total number added by the firm to the ranks of the unemployed was estimated at 9,000.

Hand in hand with the measures for relief went preparations for rebuilding the city. The Naumkeg company and some of the other large firms that were burned out announced that they would begin construction of new and better plants as quickly as possible. In the meantime the unemployed will be given work in the rehabilitation of the city or will be provided with jobs in nearby places.

Militia Directs Relief.

The active work of relief has been temporarily in the hands of the state militia, directed by Adjutant General Cole, who commanded 750 men from the Eighth and Ninth regiments. The strictest sanitary precautions are being taken. A few cases of measles and two of scarlet fever were reported and were immediately isolated.

Property holders answering inquiries of friends, announce their losses in most instances with a smile and a shrug and begin to talk of rebuilding.

One of the saddest places in the city is about the quarters of the domestic affairs department of the relief committee. Early the committee had the names of 200 men, women and children who had become separated from their families. This number has been greatly reduced.

Relief Committee Busy.

A relief committee of seven, appointed by Gov. Walsh, had a long conference with Mayor Hurley and the local relief committee.

After a survey of the situation, the committee announced:

"The principal need is money, not food or clothing. The people who were burned out managed to save all the necessary clothing and there is on hand a supply of food enough to last a week or possibly longer."

Miss Mabel T. Boardman, national relief secretary of the American Red Cross society, arrived and offered the services of the organization she represents.

So many maternity cases were reported that a number of women prominent in the wealthy North Shore summer colony organized a hospital for them in the North Church.

The list of dead as a direct result of the fire is placed at four.

The identified dead are Mrs. Jennie Cunningham and Samuel P. Withey, a Grand Army veteran.

Congress Cutting Mileage Pay.

Washington, June 27.—Five cents a mile instead of 20 cents is what the house decided members of the senate should receive for their expenses to and from Washington to attend sessions of congress. An amendment proposing the reduction was added to the legislative appropriation bill by a vote of 129 to 94. It goes back to conferences between the two houses for final action. The house mileage provision was not reached, but it is expected that it will be similarly reduced.

Great Dry Goods Firm Fails.

New York, June 26. The great dry goods house of the H. B. Claflin company has failed with liabilities of $35,000,000. The assets are estimated at $40,000,000. Two proceedings—friendly and unfriendly—threw the firm into bankruptcy and two receivers were named under bonds of $500,000 each. The shifting of the business center is given as the main cause. The failure is perhaps the most important in the history of the dry goods trade in this country.

35 BUSHELS PER ACRE was the yield of WHEAT

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

on many farms in Western Canada in 1913, some yields being reported as high as 50 bushels per acre. As high as 100 bushels were recorded in some districts for oats, 50 bushels for barley and from 10 to 20 bus. for flax.

J. Keys arrived in the country 5 years ago from Denmark with very little means. He homesteaded, worked hard, is now the owner of 320 acres of land, in 1913 had a crop of 200 acres, which will realize him about $4,000. His wheat weighed 68 lbs. to the bushel and averaged over 35 bushels to the acre.

Thousands of similar instances might be related of the homesteaders in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The crop of 1913 was an abundant one everywhere in Western Canada.

FRENCH LEGION OF HONOR

Highly-Prized Decoration Which Every Son of France Has the Ambition to Receive.

The first decorations of the Legion of Honor, the famous French order of merit, were conferred in 1802 upon military and civil officers who had distinguished themselves under the consulate. The order was founded May 19, 1902, by Napoleon, when he was first consul. It consisted of various grades, as grand crosses, grand officers, commanding officers and legionaries, and was a reward for services of merit. The order was confirmed by Louis XVIII when the Bourbons were returned to the throne a century ago, and it has been continued, with necessary changes in the constitution, through the reigns of Charles X, Louis Philippe, Napoleon III, and the second and third republics. Many Americans and British subjects and other foreigners have received the decorations of the Legion of Honor.

ECZEMA ITCHED AND BURNED

R. F. D. No. 2, Seymour, Mo.—"My scalp broke out with fine pimples at the start. They itched and burned so much that I was compelled to scratch them and they would fester and come to a head and break out again. The trouble was attended by such burning and itching I could not sleep, also when I sweat it burned the same. My hair fell out gradually and the scalp kept rough and dry with itching and burning. After about two years the pimples broke out between my shoulders. My clothing irritated them. I was troubled with that eczema five or six years.

Origin of Visiting Cards.

Some authorities hold that the origin of the visiting card lay in the circumstance that, when Pericles first laid siege to the heart of Aspasia, he sent her a bouquet to which, fearful lest she might not guess from whom the compliment proceeded, he caused to be attached a strip of wood wherein his name was cut.

According to Bertarelli, who, among others, has been at much pains to compile the history of the card, it is difficult to say whether it was first used in Greece or in China. However that may be, it seems to be an ascertained fact that the visiting card did not really obtain to any extent in Europe until the time of Louis.

And the Clerk Smiled

There recently went into a fashionable shoe shop the daughter of a man whose wealth has been acquired within very recent years. The young woman was disposed to patronize the clerk and rejected a number of "classy" slippers he produced for her approval. Finally she said: "I think, perhaps, I shall take these two pairs But Louis XV heels are too high for me Give me a size lower or, stay, perhaps Louis XIII will be high enough."

SPANISH CITIES GAY

Madrid Well-Nigh as Fashionable as Paris.

Seville, Cordova, Granada, Barcelona, Valencia, Malaga and Many Other Places of Kingdom Can Boast an Up-to-Date Equipment.

London.—For the average tourist who is in search of familiar comforts in unfamiliar surroundings the great Spanish cities of today offer every inducement. Madrid today is well-nigh as gay and as fashionable as Paris. Seville, Cordova, Granada, Barcelona, Valencia, Malaga and many another city can boast an up-to-date equipment. The food is Spanish, but the cooking can be French on request. Off the main roads the comforts show a very rapidly descending scale; but against this must be put the absolute security. The Spanish brigand no longer haunts the Sierra Morena or the Guadaramas; he has become a hotelkeeper. The old-time smuggler no longer risks his life as aforetime; he considers he is defying the law sufficiently if he grows a few tobacco plants on the sly, or does a little poaching in the state forests that the guardamontes do their best to patrol.

Education is still little more than a name in Spain, but it is the most eloquent country in Europe, and many a man can make the speech he cannot read. The Spaniard takes the latest and most advanced ideas of government, accepts the most amazing theories of life and law, but, given reasonable conditions of life and fair treatment, is not hard to handle. Among the people speech tends to usurp the place of action. For the Spanish woman the outlook is not quite clear. It is said in Spain that the hold of the church upon woman's life is not as strong as it was only a few years ago, and Spanish women are beginning to think for themselves.

They are the most prolific mothers in Europe, and have the highest infant mortality. It may be symptomatic of their new state that they are tending to discard the mantilla, to regard national dress as a fancy costume, and to look to Paris for their fashions. This refers to the women of the thriving cities, the comfortable classes of Madrid, Barcelona, Seville. Spain tends to become self-conscious, to respond too freely to commercial enterprise and Paris. She is, of course, very much better off as a result of the development. The Spanish exhibition may well show a Spain that was, and that is the Spain of yesterday and today, not the Spain of tomorrow That will hardly be worth exhibiting.

WESTERN CANADA'S NATURAL RESOURCES

PETROLEUM, NATURAL GAS, COAL AND FARM LANDS.

The developments that have taken place recently in the oil and gas fields of Western Canada have but added another to the many previous evidences that have been produced, showing the great wealth that has been an unknown asset for so many generations.

The latest reports from the oilfields at Calgary show that there is a production there that would appear to equal the best paying fields on the continent. Experts have been on the ground for some time. It is said that one of the wells is able to produce 2,000 gallons an hour. If this is so there are but about a dozen wells in the world of greater production. During the past week discoveries of surface indications have been made which show that oil exists over a considerable portion of Alberta and Saskatchewan, while in Manitoba there have also been showings. At Battleford, Saskatchewan, a few days ago discoveries were made which led to the filing for leases on twenty thousand acres of land, all having strong surface indications. Companies were formed to carry on immediate work, and in a couple of months, or probably less, the story will be told whether oil exists in paying quantities.

But there are also the coal deposits and the natural gas deposits that are helping to make of Western Canada one of the wealthiest portions of the continent.

With the grain fields covering these hidden riches it is no wonder that a continued range of optimism is to be seen everywhere. Early reports of seeding of all grains being successfully completed all over the country are followed by reports of excellent and strong growth everywhere. During the first week in June most of the wheat had reached a growth of from twelve to twenty inches, with the most even appearance, almost universally, that has been seen for years. Oats appeared equally well, and covered the ground in a way that brought the broadest kind of a grin to overspread the farmer's countenance.

Barley, a favorite with the hog raisers, had taken good root, and was crowding oats for a first place, as to length of shoot. Cultivated fodder grasses are getting great attention, as a consequence of the inclination to go more largely into mixed farming, and the raising of hogs, cattle and horses. The weather is reported fine, just what is needed, and if present favorable conditions continue, the grain crop of Western Canada for 1914 will be the largest average in the history of the country.—Advertisement.

FAMOUS OLD MEXICAN CITY

Sightseers Look Upon Mitla as One of the Chief Points of Interest in the Country.

Among the many ruined cities of Mexico dating back to antiquity, is Mitla, of unusual interest to the sightseer. The name is a contraction or corruption of the Word Mictlan, meaning "the place of death." The modern village and the ancient ruins occupy the center of an arid plain or valley, surrounded on all sides by equally arid hills, on the highest summit of which are the well-preserved remains of a great fortress, whose walls are of a rough construction and without ornament of any kind. Nearly in the center of the plain five great groups of buildings stand out completely exposed. Many of them are now nearly shapeless mounds and masses of ruins. Two great groups, however, are in comparatively perfect preservation, a third is incorporated with an old church, and a fourth, the great sacrificial mound, is surmounted by the ruins of a very ancient church. The principal buildings are of stone masonry.

The Flea.

Speaking of fleas—and they are a common topic of conversation in some parts of the United States—as common a subject as mosquitoes in New Jersey or flies in other places—certain British and other scientists have lately discovered that a flea becomes old and infirm within twenty days after its birth, although some fleas have been known to live to be ninety days old when especially well-fed. Up to the fifteenth day of its career the flea is able to do a considerable amount of execution. After that length of time it becomes rather sluggish and indifferent. These are important additions to the literature of the flea. It has long been known that the flea is no respecter of persons, is, in fact, very promiscuous in its associations; that it is extremely agile; that a settlement of fleas anywhere soon becomes overcrowded; that fleas thrive on most poisons; that they can easily distract one's attention from the most important topics, and that they are meaner, much meaner than flies in their manners—are, in fact, the most impolite of insects.

Bathing Popular in Baltimore.

Nearly one hundred thousand baths were taken during May at the various indoor and outdoor stations controlled by the public bath commission, according to a report compiled by Robert F G. Kelly, acting secretary to the commission. It beat the record for May, 1913, by about twenty-five thousand.

Of the baths last month, 10,662 were taken at the three outdoor stations. At the eight indoor stations 87,530 were taken.—Baltimore Sun.

WOMEN CAN HARDLY BELIEVE

How Mrs. Hurley Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Eldon, Mo. — "I was troubled with displacement, inflammation and female weakness. For two years I could not stand on my feet long at a time and I could not walk two blocks without enduring cutting and drawing pains down my right side which increased every month. I have been at that time purple in the face and would walk the floor. I could not lie down or sit still sometimes for a day and a night at a time. I was nervous, and had very little appetite, no ambition, melancholy, and often felt as though I had not a friend in the world. After I had tried most every female remedy without success, my mother-in-law advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and gained in strength every day. I have now no trouble in any way and highly praise your medicine. It advertises itself."—Mrs. S. T. HURLEY, Eldon, Missouri.

Remember, the remedy which did this was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For sale everywhere.

It has helped thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means have failed. Why don't you try it? Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

HOLT CELEBRATED

The "Glorious Fourth" IN GRAND STYLE

Commencing with the big noise at sunrise one of the largest and most successful Fourth of July celebrations was pulled off at the little busy town of Holt. The biggest gathering ever seen at Holt was in attendance, there being between one thousands and twelve hundred people present.

The town was decorated in grand style and judging from the comments from the people they were both pleased and surprised at the interest taken and the ingenuity displayed by the committees in charge.

From our neighboring town, Middle River, we had a big attendance and we will surely remember them next year if they celebrate. We are very thankful to the Middle River Pioneer for their great assistance through that paper. From Thief River Falls and Newfolden we also had a large attendance.

Mr. H. O. Kjomme of Thief River Falls was the speaker of the day. He is a very able and eloquent speaker and soon had his audience completely captured by his appropriate and fluent address.

The Boys' Band from Thief River Falls furnished music for the occasion and was greatly appreciated by many.

Mr. Chas. W. Latta had charge of the program which he handled in very satisfactory manner. The program was as follows: Horse race, trot or pace, E. E. Pechie 1st $500; running race, Chas. Schwartz 1st prize $.500; Oscar Knutson 2nd $3.00; Girls' potato race, Ida Kjelgren 1st, Emma Garfve 2nd; Boys' potato race, Herman Peterson 1st, Tony Gullickson 2nd; Men's 100 yard dash, G. Tessum 1st, Andrew Williams 2nd; Flour contest, Lawrence Tobiason; Siamese race, G. Tessum and C. Lindahl 1st, Herb and Elof Severson 2nd; Egg and Spoon race, Bernard Sundahl 1st, Clem Ellinger 2nd; Wrestling match, Munson won in two straight falls, 1st by a body hold in 26:40, on second fall Norlund had injured left shoulder and gave up when Munson secured a dangerous toe hold, time 9:32. Geo. Larson referee; Chas. W. Latta time-keeper.

A tug of war was pulled off between the town giants and the country lions which proved the greatset feat of the day. The farmers, however, were to strong for the town weaklings and took the rope at a walk-away gait as if there were nothing on the other end.

The police job was taken care of in a very satisfactory manner by the Messrs. Ole Backlund, Carl Newton and T. A. Tobiason. Although the crowd was orderly and well-behaved they still stuck to their beat.

The fireworks in the evening was a grand spectacle and thoroughly enjoyed by the audience.

The big bowery dance was sure a success there being about a hundred couple in attendance. The management was under the leader-ship of P. L. Anderson and he kept the things going until the wee hours of the morning and still the crowd wasn't played out dancing to the music of Thief River Falls famous orchestra.

FOUR ARE KILLED IN ANARCHISTS' DEN

NEW YORK POLICE BELIEVE BOMB PLANT HAS BEEN DESTROYED.

THINK EXPLOSION ACCIDENTAL

Friends of Victims Charge Murder, However—Much Inflammatory Literature Gives Officers Clew to Work on.

New York, July 7.—In the ruins of the Lexington avenue tenement house, wrecked Saturday by the premature explosion of a powerful bomb which killed Arthur Caron and three other persons, the authorities have found evidence that Caron's apartment was a center for the distribution of inflammatory literature which was printed there and that at the time of the explosion it was apparently a bomb factory, filled with the ingredients of death dealing missles. A small printing press, revolutionary pamphlets and circulars, an electric dynamo, two electric batteries, cartridges and bits of steel, were among the articles uncovered which tend, in the opinion of the police, to show an anarchistic plot at assassination.

Theory of Police.

That a demonstration, halted by the bungling of some one who was preparing an infernal machine for its mission, was planned against the Rockefeller family in Tarrytown, is the theory upon which the authorities are working.

Two of those killed in the wrecked apartment were prominent agitators who were to be placed on trial at Tarrytown today on charges of disorderly conduct in connection with the campaign of demonstration inaugurated against John D. Rockefeller, Jr., as a protest against his attitude in the Colorado coal mine strike.

The body of the fourth victim of the explosion has just been found. It is that of Chas. Berger, known in I. W. W. circles as "the big Swede," an associate of Caron. The other victims were Chas. Hanson and Mary Claves.

The woman lived in an apartment next to the one occupied by Caron and his associates.

Identification of Berger's body was made by Louise Berger, step-sister of Hanson, who lived in the flat where the explosion occurred.

Not An I. W. W.

Equally as interesting as the discovery of anarchistic literature and electrical machinery in the ruins of Caron's room, was the assertion by I. W. W. leaders that Caron was not a member of that organization, having recently been refused admission.

They declared that the I. W. W. had nothing to do with the explosion. Why Caron was denied a place among the workers was a point they did not make clear.

A gruesome but suggestive piece of evidence was a severed hand which clutched two small pieces of wire made ready for connections. The authorities believe that the owner of this hand was in the act of making an electric connection for one of the bombs and a battery when the explosion occurred and he was blown to pieces.

Attack on Christianity.

The search for papers and notes was minute and some note books with the names of several anarchists were found, but the police would not say any of them was important as documentary evidence of a plot. There were also pamphlets which had been sold at I. W. W. meetings. One poem, a vitriolic attack on Christianity is believed to have been on the little press.

Louise Berger declared that the three men who died in the explosion were murdered. She made this statement as she was being taken from the morgue, where she had identified Berg's body, to a police station for further questioning.

"Those boys were murdered, I know they were," she said.

Asked if she would continue her membership in the anti-militarist association, she replied:

"Why, of course. Why shouldn't I. Do they think that by killing some of our members they can destroy our organization. Well, they can't, nor will I rest until I have run down the murderers of my brother and the other boys."

Aged Woman Kills Robber.

Yorkville, Ill., July 6.—A dramatic story of a fight to the death in the dark with a masked robber who invaded their home, was told here by Mr. and Mrs Joseph Grimwood, an old couple who live on a farm two miles east of here. The robber died as she was throttling him, Mrs. Grimwood said, after he had been thrown to the floor by her husband. She is a large and powerful woman, although 65 years old.

Hunting for Revolver Used.

Freeport, N. Y., July 6.—While Mrs. Edwin Carman was in Hempstead viewing the body of Mrs. Louise Bailey, the Long Island matron killed by a shot fired through a window in Dr. Carman's office here last Tuesday night, detectives under instructions of District Attorney Smith were pumping out a cess pool and a well in the rear of the physician's residence and a cess pool in the cellar. In one of these three places the detectives expected to find a 38-calibre revolver containing one exploded shell.

YEAR JUST ENDING SHOWS A SURPLUS

WILSON REGIME MAKES GOOD FINANCIAL SHOWING WHEN REVENUES ARE ALL IN.

$33,784,452 ABOVE EXPENSES

Nearly $33,500,000 Pours in on Last Day, Turning What Looked Like a Deficit Into a Handsome Surplus—The Figures.

Washington, July 3.—Treasury figures, just completed, show that the federal government went through its first fiscal year under the Wilson administration with its income exceeding ordinary expenses by $33,784,452.07.

Last Day Turns Tide.

Nearly $33,500,000 poured into the treasury Tuesday, the last day of the year, and brought the total receipts for the year up to $734,343,700.20, a million and a half above Secretary McAdoo's original estimate. What had promised the day before to be a substantial deficit turned into a surplus.

Corporation and income tax payments furnished the stream of gold at the finish. From this source came $26,161,782.82 between the opening and closing of the treasury year, and Secretary McAdoo and other administration officials are pointing proudly to the total figures as proof of their promises as to what would be accomplished under the new tariff.

Panama Canal Cost.

The treasury surplus this year, at least would be wiped out by the Panama canal expenditures, which have been paid from the general fund. During the 12 months $34,826,941 has been spent on the canal, and when this has been charged off there will be a deficit for the year of $1,010,058.81 on the books. Last year the canal expenditure amounted to $41,741,258 and the final deficit was $400,733. Last year's total receipts were only $691,140,000, but, on the other hand, the ordinary expenditures were only $654,805,000, or $45,754,248 below last year's total.

Secretary McAdoo estimates that approximately 3,500,000 in scheduled income and corporation taxes, assessments not paid in June because penalty did not accrue against these assessments until July 1 would have been a clear surplus for the year of approximately $2,500,000.

KILLS TWO IN KILLING SELF

Poquonock, Conn., July 6.—Three members of a fishing party of four men were drowned in the Farmington river here, when their boat was capsized.

According to the survivor, the tragedy was due to the determination of one of the mn to commit suicde. He leaped into the water, but was dragged back into the boat. He jumped a second time, however, and in doing so overturned the boat.

The drowned men were: Michael Mitelenonus, aged 35; John Watyusky, 22; and William Zatazatzki, 37.

Unionist Peers to Yield.

London, July 6.—The debate in the house of lords on the bill to amend the Irish home rule bill was characterized by general recognition on the part of the Unionist peers that some means of settlement must be found and that the amending bill found the only solution. The Marquis of Lansdowne, Unionist leader, already had announced that it was necessary to find a way out of the calamity which threatened, and that therefore the Unionists would give the amending bill a second reading.

VOTE SUPPORTS GEN. HUERTA

RETURNS INDICATE RE-ELECTION OF LEGISLATORS.

Mexico Faces Crisis, Says Report. Huerta-Zapata Alliance Is Rumored.

Mexico City, Mex., July 7.—President Huerta is reported to have received a virtually unanimous vote of confidence in elections held Sunday and senators, in that portion of the republic controlled by Huerta. Early indications showed him to be the favorite candidate for the presidency.

The largest vote in many years was cast both in the capital and nearby towns. The incomplete returns indicate the re-election of practically all the members of the chamber of deputies and senate.

Huerta-Zapata Alliance.

Vera Cruz.—It is rumored here that an alliance between Provisional President Huerta and Emiliano Zapata, the revolutionary leader, is to be formed soon.

Both here and in the capital the conviction exists that a crisis is imminent but only vague reasons are offered for the fear that the next few days will see a development.

Recent statements by Huerta have not been such as to indicate that he contemplated abandoning his power.

Mexicans prominent in the political, commercial and social life of the capital, have been joining in increasing strength, the army of fugitives.

Several foreigners other than British have taken the advice of Sir Lionel Carden, the British minister, to get out of what he regards as dangerous territory.

One of the theories suggested for any alliance Huerta may be able to make with Zapata is that, with the support of this chieftain, he may be able to hold back for many months the Constitutionalists from the north.

ONLY ONE PROPELLER NEEDED

Glenn Curtiss Demonstrates the Stability of America Single Motor-Carrying Tests.

Hammondsport, N. Y., July 6.—Glenn Curtiss made a test flight in the trans-Atlantic flying boat America with only one motor running. The machine flew steadily and little adjustment of the rudder and aileron was required to offset the torque of the single propeller.

It had been held by many that should one motor stop while the machine was in flight it would be necessary immediately to shut down the other in order to avoid overturning the craft, but Mr. Curtiss flew with first one propeller stopped and then the other without affecting the machine's balance enough to be noticed by the crowd watching the flight.

"She will fly strong with the pilots and 12 hours fuel," said Curtiss after the flight.

The load carried was approximately 1,500 pounds, which is equal to nearly 20 hours' fuel and the pilots.

Cup Comes to America

Henley on Thames, July 6.—The coveted Grand Challenge cup comes to the United States with the defeat of the crews of Great Britian by the Union Boat Club of Boston and the second crew of Harvard University.

"America" Carries 5,000 Pounds.

Hammondsport, N. Y., July 6.—The America, the flying boat built for Rodman Wanamaker, made several flights piloted by Glenn H. Curtiss, carrying the heaviest loads with which she has so far been burdened. The gross weight of the machine on one flight was more than 5,000 pounds. The weight of the so-called "useful load" was estimated at more than 2,100 pounds. On this flight Curtiss carried seven passengers. Dr. A. F. Zahm of the Smithsonian institution was among those given a ride.

ST. PAUL IS HOST TO N. E. A. THRONGS

CONVENTION MET SATURDAY BUT REGULAR SESSIONS BEGIN TODAY.

TO DISCUSS MANY PROBLEMS

Educators of Entire Country Bending Their Energies Towards Improving Conditions Throughout the United States—Closes July 11.

St. Paul, July 6.—Hundreds of teachers, representing every state in the union are here attending the fifty-second annual convention of the National Education association. The throngs which had poured in up to Sunday night were greatly added to today, when the regular session opened. The convention closes July 11.

The meeting of the national council took place Saturday. Educational Sunday was observed yesterday.

Convention Is Divided.

The convention is divided into departments of kindergarten, elementary education, secondary education, higher education, normal school, business education, physical education, science education, special education, school patrons and classroom teachers.

Dr. Joseph Swain, president of Swarthmore college and of the National Education association, explained what the program will include and the important question to come up.

Session for Women.

Tonight the discussion at the general session will be "The Status of Woman." In all the history of the N. E. A., Dr. Swain said, there has never been a session devoted specifically to the interests of woman. This time such problems as the training of women for social responsibilities, the social waste of sex discrimination, the humanities old and new and the preparation of women for Twentieth century life, will be discussed by four women high in educational circles.

Mrs. Lois Kimball Mathews, dean of women at the University of Wisconsin; Sophonsiba Preston Breckenridge, assistant professor of social economy in the University of Chicago; Emma M. Perkins, professor of Latin at the Western Reserve university, and Mary E. Wooley, president of Mount Holyoke college, will be the speakers.

Topic For Tuesday.

The topic of teachers' salaries and pensions will be taken up at the session Tuesday afternoon. This session will be addressed by Margaret A. Haley, business representative of the Chicago Teachers' federation, on the topic, "Present Salaries of Teachers;" Charles W. Dabney, president of the University of Cincinnati, will talk on "Salaries of College Teachers." Grace C. Strachan, district superintendent of schools, Brooklyn, N. Y., will speak on "Salaries Based on the Position and Not on the Sex of Incumbent," and Walter I. Hamilton agent for the Massachusetts board of education, will talk on "Teachers' Pensions."

Normal Temperatures This Week.

Washington, July 6.—Temperatures averaging near normal over the entire country, with local rains fairly well distributed, are forecasted by the weather bureau for this week. "A disturbance that is now over the Northwest," the bulletin adds, "will move slowly eastward, crossing the eastern states about Wednesday, attended by rising temperatures and local showers and thunder storms. This will be followed by a change to cooler weather over the Northern states east of the Rocky mountains."

HOME RULE MAY YET CAUSE WAR

ORANGEMEN AWAIT ACTION OF PARLIAMENT AND SUSPENSE GROWS TENSE.

FIGHTING FORCES REVIEWED

Leaders of Covenanters Claim National Movement Not Serious, as Volunteer Companies Are Disorganized.

London, July 7.—With every week of suspense in the settlement of the future government of Ireland the menace of the military preparations by the Ulster and the home rule volunteers increases. The present tendency among the volunteers of the south is to accept leadership by the Nationalist party which John Redmond offered them.

Hostile Armed Camps.

Thus led, there would be a clear division of the home rulers and anti-home rule men into hostile armed camps. The very dangers of a bitter civil war which such a prospect presents, furnishes the best safeguard for peace.

Correspondents of the Associated Press at Dublin and Belfast have written of the situation from the Nationalist and Ulster points of view respectively.

An Interesting Development.

The most interesting development is the plan, hitherto unpublished, of the Orangemen under Sir Edward Carson for taking charge of affairs by force if a provisional government is set up, and the fact that the commercial men of Belfast have used their influence in Ulster councils to postpone radical action until a home rule parliament has been established in Dublin. The great question which confronts the Nationalist volunteers is how far their American sympathizers are likely to come forward with funds for their arms and equipment.

Volunteer Estimates Vary.

Dublin.—Estimates of the number of the Irish Nationalist volunteers vary between 80,000, which is the Dublin Castle figure compiled by the police, and 250,000, which is the estimate given in platform speeches. Careful inquiry shows that there are 50,000 in Leinster, which takes the lead, about 45,000 in Ulster (increasing rapidly), 35,000 in Munster and 25,000 in Connaught.

The difficulty of exact estimate arises from the fact that the movement is not organized from the center. Forces have sprung up spontaneously in every parish, and so far are only loosely connected with the provisional central body. There has been a complete wiping out of all class distinctions, and the rank and file include every grade—farmers, laborers, shop assistants, clerks, doctors, lawyers, and country gentlemen. There is a very strong leaven of time-expired soldiers—old Connaught Rangers, Dublin Fusiliers and Munster Fusiliers, and their experience is proving useful in the drill.

No Central Organization.

Belfast.—The leaders of the Covenanters in Ulster profess to consider the Nationalist volunteer movement as something not to be taken seriously. These Nationalist bands in the Ulster counties drill spasmodically and are not connected with any central organization. All the local leaders act entirely on their own initiative. In some districts the volunteers are split into factions under opposing leaders, who carry on a newspaper warfare.

The Ulster leaders say that the Nationalist volunteers must fail through the impossibility of getting arms. They claim to have many letters from America showing that the Irish there are tired of contributing to home rule, and now that they consider an Irish parliament assured, they propose to let those in Ireland settle their internal questions without help. Even if American sympathizers should refill the war chest the present government measures to suppress gun running in all ports would checkmate them.

"We have two years start in the matter of arming and we mean to keep it," an official of the Ulster Unionist council said to The Associated Press.

10,000 Visit Baths Sunday.

Minneapolis.—With a temperature of 90 degrees at 4 p. m. Sunday and the mercury well above 80 degrees the greater part of the day, the coolness of Calhoun Beach waters was the Minneapolis popular spot. It was the biggest day in the history of the baths. There was a long waiting line most of the day. From 10 a. m. the beach was crowded. Various estimates place the crowd at between 10,000 and 12,000 nearly doubling the July 4 crowd.

Dramatic Author Passes Away.

London, July 6.—Sydney Grundy, the dramatic author, is dead. He was born at Manchester in 1848.

Roosevelt Locks His Gate.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 6.—The gate leading to Sagamore Hill was barred for the first time in years and Colonel Roosevelt was inaccessible from the outer world. It was learned that he cherishes the hope as strongly as he expressed it in 1912, of breaking up "the solid South" through the Progressive party. Although he has given up his trip to the Pacific coast on account of the condition of his health and has cancelled several other engagements, he agreed to go to New Orleans next month to make a speech.

A Stitch in Time

Colds, fevers, congestion and germ diseases are pretty sure to overwork the kidneys and leave them weak. In convalescence, in fact at any time when suspicion is aroused by a lame, aching back, rheumatic pains, headache, dizziness or disordered urine, the use of Doan's Kidney Pills is a stitch in time that may avoid serious kidney disease.

Doan's Kidney Pills command confidence, for no other remedy is so widely used, so freely recommended or so generally successful.

Why Have Coroners?

What good is a coroner? This frequently recurring question is again justified by the news that a wound has been found in the skull of Ella Winter, the Baltimore girl whose body was found in Curtis bay a week ago last Thursday. The coroner's inquest had dismissed the case with a verdict of death by drowning. Whether the girl was murdered or not the circumstances of her death were such as to call for careful investigation. The coroner's notion of such an investigation seems to have been characteristic of his tribe. Was she found in the water? Yes. Very well, then she was drowned. At some time, perhaps, we shall become sensible enough to abolish an office which once served a useful purpose, but has become an anachronism.—New York Times.

LARGE BALD PATCH ON HEAD

Longmont, Colo.—"About one year ago our little girl was bothered greatly with what seemed a very bad case of dandruff. Her beautiful hair got dry and dead and flew in all directions. One morning I noticed a large bald patch on her head, larger than a dollar, covered with tiny blisters surrounded with an angry red ring. They finally began running. They itched and she never rested at night.

"It was pronounced a bad case of eczema. I was given a prescription which I continued to use till my baby's head was entirely covered with sores and she had lost all her hair. She was compelled to wear a silk cap and I thought she was disfigured for life. A visitor in our neighborhood recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used the Ointment at night and gave her a shampoo in the morning with the Cuticura Soap. In less than three months my girl was entirely healed." (Signed) Mrs. G. E. Dilts, Apr. 8, 1914.

Beauty Rules for Summer.

Avoid heavy and very rich meals; light and digestible fare is required, consisting chiefly of fish, eggs, poultry, salads, cheese and fruit, sweets made with milk, cream and eggs, and so on, mostly cold, though too many ices should not be taken. They are responsible for most summer maladies. Iced drinks should also be taken in moderation; and the refreshing lemonade or "cups" made with light wines, hock, moselle or with light sirups, are best. If spirits are taken at all it should be infrequently.

The face should only be washed with soap and water last thing at night, but it is very refreshing to spray it and the back frequently with rose or elder-flower water to which simple tincture of benzoin has been added, drop by drop, in the proportion of one teaspoonful of the tincture to a half pint of rose water. Dry with a soft handkerchief, then apply a little non-fatty face cream, smooth this off with the handkerchief and dust on a little good powder. The face wash mentioned is wonderfully cleansing, and, with the cream, provides a great protection against freckles and sunburn.

HIT THE SPOT.

Postum Knocked Out Coffee Ails.

There's a good deal of satisfaction and comfort in hitting upon the right thing to rid one of the varied and constant ailments caused by coffee drinking.

"Ever since I can remember," writes an Ind. woman, "my father has been a lover of his coffee, but the continued use of it so affected his stomach that he could scarcely eat at times.

"Mother had coffee headache and dizziness, and if I drank coffee for breakfast I would taste it all day and usually go to bed with a headache.

"One day father brought home a pkg. of Postum recommended by our grocer. Mother made it according to directions on the box and it just "hit the spot." It has a dark, seal-brown color, changing to golden brown when cream is added, and a snappy taste similar to mild, high-grade coffee, and we found that its continued use speedily put an end to all our coffee ills.

"That was at least ten years ago and Postum has, from that day to this, been a standing order of father's grocery bill.

"When I married, my husband was a great coffee drinker, although he admitted that it hurt him. When I mentioned Postum he said he did not like the taste of it. I told him I could make it taste all right. He smiled and said, try it. The result was a success, he won't have anything but Postum."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum now comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be well boiled—15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. Made in the cup with hot water—no boiling—30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

MAIMED BODY FOUND IN LAKE

RAILWAY CLERK EVIDENTLY KILLED SEVERAL DAYS AGO.

Bullet Wound Through Lungs and Battered Head Give Evidence of Struggle—Robbery Possibly the Cause.

Minneapolis.—With an ugly bullet wound through the lungs and the head battered and crushed, the body of Alfred Moore, 50 years old, chief clerk of the freight department of the Dan Patch railroad, was found in Lake of the Isles, off West Twenty-first street.

Coroner Seashore conducted an autopsy at the county morgue, reserved his verdict and indicated that an inquest would be held later. City detectives working on the case report little progress.

The skull was fractured over the left ear, teeth on the lower left jaw were knocked out, front teeth of the upper jaw were loosened, and the nose and left eye were discolored and bruised. A bullet wound in the left breast would have been sufficient to cause death, Dr. Seashore said. There were no powder marks near the wound.

Moore came to Minneapolis a year ago from England, leaving his wife there until he was sure of success in this country.

Moore was last seen alive by friends Saturday noon when he left the company's offices to attend a picnic at Antlers park, given by employes of the road. He did not appear at the picnic. Relatives and friends became alarmed Monday and notified the police.

A watch found in the dead man's clothing stopped at 10:25. Mrs. E. E. Easthagen told Charles S. Barnard, police sergeant, she heard cries for help coming from the lake Saturday night.

Patrolman W. L. Hartley of the park police found Moore's purse in a vest pocket, torn almost in two, and empty. Eleven cents were in a trousers pocket. Oscar Moore said his brother had considerable money on his person.

Detectives searched for a revolver in the lake near the body, but found none. They have tried to trace Moore's movements after he left his office Saturday, but have accomplished little.

RINES ALLEGES COUNT ERROR

Prepares Petition for Recount of Votes Cast in Primary for State Auditor.

Mora.—Petition for a recount of the vote for the republican nomination for state auditor has been prepared by Henry Rines and filed in district court before Judge P. H. Stolberg.

The papers include an order to Julius A. Schmahl, secretary of state, and J. A. O. Preus, certified as the nominee, to show cause why the vote should not be recounted. Judge Stolberg is to fix a date for the hearing.

Mr. Rines alleges that there were numerous errors in the official count, particularly with regard to the second choice, that many first choice votes placed in the second choice column were not counted as they should have been and that second choice votes were incorrectly tabulated.

Mr Rines has gone to the Twin Cities to make further inquiries into the vote.

SORTER HEADS DEMOCRATS

Harmony at Conference That Selects Minneapolis Man as Chairman.

St. Paul.—Harmony was the predominating feature of the Democratic state conference at the state capitol.

A. L. Sorter of Minneapolis was made chairman. Martin O'Brien was named vice chairman and R. A. Hartigan of St. Paul secretary. Former State Senator S. D. Works was named treasurer. Senator Works was active in the harmony program, which was a feature of the gathering.

Certain trouble in the Democratic ranks was early dispersed when Chairman Sorter was introduced by Martin O'Brien. Mr. Sorter, in a happy talk of 10 minutes paid his compliments to the nominee and predicted success to the state ticket. Mr. Sorter, who in a way is unknown in state politics, surprised the gathering with his telling and happy speech.

Ask Treaty Enforcement.

Bemidji.—Thirty business and professional men organized an 1855 Treaty Enforcement league, with J. J. Opsahl president and Harry Reynolds, secretary and treasurer. Funds are being raised to carry on a campaign for the enforcement of the treaty. Petitions signed by 400 residents ask that saloons be closed. These have been forwarded to the Indian department. Many women are working for the success of the movement.

Freeborn County Crop Outlook.

Albert Lea.—Weather Observer Edward Cary of this city reports that more than [illegible] inches of rainfall was recorded last month, nearly twice the amount that usually falls. In spite of this excessive rainfall the crops all over the county are looking fine. Small grain is standing well. Some of the corn has been lodged by heavy wind, but it is thought most of it will straighten up again. The potato crop, of which there is a larger acreage this season, is looking exceptionally well. Few bugs are reported.

STATE ASKS "FIRE BREAK"

Great Northern Requested to Provide Safeguard for Forests on Fosston Branch.

Minneapolis.—Following the lead of the federal government in requiring railroads to establish a "fire break" of 250 feet along their rights of way through national forests, the state forestry board will make an effort to obtain similar protective measures in the timber belt of Minnesota. The first attempt will be made on the Fosston branch of the Great Northern road to induce that line to emulate the Soo through the Minnesota national forest.

Before the Soo Line was permitted to construct its Duluth-Red Lake Falls short line through the national forest about Cass Lake, the road was required to provide a "fire break" 250 feet in width through the entire reserve.

The "break" consists of a strip of 100 feet on each side of the track kept entirely bare of trees and undergrowth and beyond this zone a strip of plowed ground on each side twenty-five feet in width.

The federal government is not in position to enforce this plan with reference to the Great Northern, which also runs through the forest as the latter road had a right of way before the national forest was created.

Although the United States is helpless, Minnesota will endeavor by moral suasion and otherwise to place the Great Northern on equality with the Soo in the matter of protecting the forest.

PASTORS OUSTED BY COURT

T. J. and H. J. Strand Will Appeal to Supreme Court, However, in Effort to Resist Dismissal.

Albert Lea.—The adjourned term of the district court was called in this city by Judge Kingsley of Austin and one of the church cases involving Rev. T. J. Strand is up for hearing.

An action to determine who were the legally elected trustees of the West Freeborn Norwegian congregation commonly known as the Manchester church, was tried last March. The court decided that the so-called anti-Strand forces constituted the congregation and that their trustees were the legally elected ones. A stay of proceedings, however, was granted until July 1. Under this stay T. J. Strand and his followers have remained in possession of the church, burial ground and parsonage.

An application was made a few days ago to extend the stay pending an appeal to the supreme court. This motion was heard. The court refused to extend the stay and judgment will now be entered ousting the Strand trustees and seating the legally elected trustees of the congregation. This ends the cases, so far as the district court is concerned, against the two brothers, T. J. Strand and H. J. Strand, pastors of the five Freeborn county churches, as both have now been ousted by the court decisions. Steps are being taken by the Strand forces to appeal.

Home Folks Honor Lee.

Long Prairie.—A sport program, addresses of congratulation and a dance concluded the celebration tendered William E. Lee, Republican gubernatorial nominee, by home folks. Addresses were made by Fred Sherman, state immigration commissioner, Charles Kroonze, Long Prairie; J. W. McKellip, Round Prairie; R. H. Gardner, Staples; E. V. Moore, Eagle Bend; ; Fred Moosman, Birchdale township. W. O. Clure, one of Lee's managers. Mr. Lee's response assured the voters of a business administration, if elected. Special trains brought large crowds to the celebration.

Eberhart on Lecture Tour.

St. Paul.—Minnesota will be without a governor at the capitol during this month and August. Governor A. O. Eberhart has accepted the offer of the Redpath-Vawter bureau to fill the Chautauqua dates arranged for former Governor Joseph D. Folk of Missouri. He will receive $3,000 for the lectures. Attorney General Lyndon A. Smith is studying the law to determine just what authority J. A. A. Burnquist, lieutenant governor, will have in the interregnum. The constitution says that the lieutenant governor becomes the chief executive of the state in the event of a vacancy.

Ortonville Crops Flourishing.

Ortonville.—The prospect for a big crop of small grain in this section, especially in Big Stone, Lac qui Parle, Swift and Stevens counties was never better. The lowlands are partially covered with water, but the acreage which will suffer will be very small. Corn will be a good crop. Rye, wheat and barley are heading out. Alfalfa, timothy and clover fields are flourishing far beyond expectation.

Old Plainsman Takes Bride.

Minneapolis.—Captain Jack Hart, former plainsman, government scout and secret service agent, is married. His bride is Miss Raye Thomas of Chicago. The ceremony was performed at the home of a Baptist minister whose name Captain Jack has forgotten. The couple began their honeymoon with a trip to a cottage on Phelps island, Lake Minnetonka. Captain Hart is 67 years old. His bride is near the same age. They have known each other for five years and have been engaged for one year.

BRAINERD CITY CLERK ROBBED

Three Desperadoes Beat Official and Rob Vault of $1,388—Search Is General.

Brainerd.—Three desperadoes who beat V. N. Roderick, city clerk of Brainerd to unconsciousness and then robbed the city vault of $1,388, are being sought by squads of police at many points throughout the state. The bandits are believed to have boarded a train for Minneapolis immediately after the crime.

Roderick was alone in the office at 10 p. m. Monday, when the robbers entered and attacked him. One man turned out the lights and the others beat him with a club.

He was stunned and knocked to the floor. He had opened the vault doors and the robbers had no difficulty in getting the cash, which was in a money drawer. Checks were thrown away.

The bandits searched Roderick's clothing, but did not take the small change they found there.

As the bandits fled from the building, Roderick regained consciousness for a few moments. He called the police and told of the robbery and then fell unconscious to the floor. The telephone operator who answered his call heard him fall.

Posses were immediately organized. Five suspects were arrested within a few hours, but none of them is believed to be of the bandit trio. Shortly after the robbery two men were seen riding on a switch engine toward the roundhouse and shops on the outskirts of the city. There the men are believed to have boarded an outgoing train for Minneapolis.

Of the amount stolen $1,130 was in bills, $220 in gold and the remainder in silver.

DAN PATCH LINE EXTENDED

Lease From Chicago Great Western Gives Electric Road 87 Miles of Additional Track.

Northfield.—The Dan Patch line is in possession today of the 50-year operating rights over the Chicago Great Western road from Northfield to Mankato and Randolph. The 40-mile length of road that the Dan Patch management operated last year, with gross receipts of $4,615 a mile, or total gross earnings of $190,000, was increased by leases to 127 miles. As rapidly as possible, new operating schedules will be perfected.

The Dan Patch line proper, on its own mileage, operates from Fifty-fourth street, Minneapolis, to Northfield, and on Great Western mileage beyond Northfield to Faribault. Its entry last year into Faribault increased its traffic materially.

The Chicago Great Western road strikes south with its main line through Randolph, which is 10 miles east of Northfield. Its line from Randolph eastward to Red Wing and the Mississippi river is not affected, but from Randolph westward, through Northfield, it has 67 miles of road to Mankato which is the portion of the Great Western system that the Dan Patch has leased.

Posts Letter, Calls Firemen.

St. Paul.—It's quite proper for any person to insert a letter in a mail box, but when some one attempts to insert a letter in a fire alarm box something is sure to be doing. Firemen had visions of a battle with flames yesterday when they sped to Fourth and Sibley streets. They found an embarrassed man near Patrolman McCormick. The man had tried to mail a letter in the alarm box.

The Finns believe it is a warning of the second coming of Christ. Many residents firmly believe it appeared.

NOT A CASE OF CHARITY

Secretary of Millionaire Was Just an Extreme of the Graduate of 1914 Style.

Jerome S. McWade, at a tea in Duluth, was talking about the girl graduate.

"I called on an old millionaire concerning an investment the other day," he said, "and, as I took leave, I drew the old boy out into the hall and said:

"'George, my boy—about that private secretary of yours. Excuse me, George, if I seem to overstep the bounds of decorum; but I'm a friend of yours, and—er—

"'In short, George,' I struggled on, 'I know she's a pretty girl, and too young to mean any real harm, and so forth—but there's a terribly long slit in her skirt, George; and at three o'clock the other morning she was tangoing and smoking cigarettes and drinking champagne at the Chat Mort in one of those transparent revelation gowns from Paris, and she bathed Sunday with Jaggers in a tight boy's suit like Annette Kellerman wears—skin tight and no stockings, you know, George—and so, really, since she's so young and pretty, I'm half afraid she'll break up your home. And, oh, George, what a sad, sad thing that would be for a man of your age. I guess you only employ her out of charity, yet—'

"But here the old fellow gave me a nasty laugh and interrupted me.

"'No,' he said. 'No, I don't employ her out of charity, McWade. You see, she's my daughter, just graduated from college.'"—New York World.

For Bad Burns.

Don't thrust a burned foot or hand into cold water. It relieves for a moment, only to be followed by an increase of pain, peeling off of the cuticle, and very frequently by ulceration of the wound. Don't tie up in a dry cloth; all woven material is porous and admits air. Don't drag off the clothing. Don't rub or cut off the hanging skin. Your object when called upon to treat a burn is at once to exclude air. For this purpose nothing is better than oil of some sort. Paraffin is not a bad thing, or vaseline, or common olive oil, or lard and butter, if both be entirely without salt.—First Aid for Everyday Accidents.

RESINOL CURED AWFUL ITCHING IN ONE NIGHT

New York, April 26.—"The skin on my hand got red and rough. It itched and I began to scratch it. It itched so that sometimes I could not sleep all night. I was suffering very much. I used — salve and — —, but they did not seem to help me. This went on for six or seven months. Then I tried resinol ointment and resinol soap. I used them one night. In the morning to my surprise, my hand was all well and the trouble has never returned. This is the absolute truth." (Signed) Miss Celia Kleinman, 61 Columbia St.

Nothing we can say of resinol equals what others such as Miss Kleinman say of it. It does its work quickly, easily and at little cost. Resinol ointment and resinol soap are sold by all druggists.—Adv.

How She Wronged Him.

"Your husband, madam, is suffering from voluntary inertia." "Poor fellow! And here I've been telling him he's just lazy."

I Want Some of THE BLACK SHELLS

THE BLACK SHELLS are the modern, different ammunition that will give you a 5% better score at the traps and a 10% better bag in the field.

Why? First, our priming charge contains no fulminate of mercury mixed with ground glass. To get an even mixture in a pasty batch of heavy mercury and light glass is uncertain business. Also, glass absorbs heat (about one-sixth of the total), whereas our materials are combustible and so increase heat.

The Black Shells Primer is a strictly chemical composition, and our double size flash passage brings the whole fiercely hot primer flame directly into the main charge. Hence The Black Shells act with wonderful speed and deadly uniformity. The shot pattern is regular and bird proof. The penetration is phenomenal.

With no brass-eating mercury in the primer mixture, we escape the necessity of weak copper caps. Brass primers don't puncture and endanger your eyes.

The Black Shells are completely waterproof and crimped hard and even. They won't swell in foggy, rainy weather—always eject smoothly and "work" like a charm in a pump or automatic gun.

There are three Black Shells, Romax for black powder, Climax and Ajax for smokeless powder. All are loaded with the celebrated Tatham shot.

Rollis Rumbles

Born to Mr. and Mrs. John Jensen Thursday evening, a baby girl.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson and family of Thief River Falls autoed out to spend the Fourth with Peter Kolden, Mrs. A. is Mrs. K. sister. They returned Sunday.

A 15 lb. boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Ole Christopherson last Thursday. No wonder Ole was out to the Shamrock Farm picnic to celebrate with a happy smile.

The town of Whiteford is putting in a fine grade along the west section line of 36. The people are very glad for it was almost impossible to get out with a load before. This road will join the main grade. S't. Groshon is supervising the work.

A lot of young people drove to T. Sunday June 28 for a picnic in honor of Miss Wasser, who returns to work at the hospital Tuesday. They report a fine day and lots of fun, especially on the way home, when it rained in torrents. They turned the wagon box on edge and got under it.

Note: The celebration is crowded this week, but we will try to print it in our next issue.

Dr. Henney of T. R. Falls was in town Wednesday.

S. S. Kolden Co. unloaded a car of machinery Tuesday.

Andrew Bjerk has just returned from a trip to Canada

Account of picnic at O. Johnson's too late, will be printed next week

Mrs. Moe of Glandive, N. D., has been visiting at Sollom's.

Services were held by Rev. Ordahl last Sunday, in the Nazareth Luth. church.

Mr. Seinen of Middle River stopped in town, Wednesday, enroute to Thief River Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Strom and family from T. R. Falls, were 4th of July visitors at Holt.

Clarence Christenson has just completed a dandy good well on his place at a depth of 103 feet.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Semingson of Beltrami, came Tuesday to look after their claim and visit friends.

About 25 or 30 Holt Boosters, armed with shovels and spades, made a raid Thursday evening on the roads, which are now much better and will encourage said boosters to go out again.

Notice of Annual School Meeting

Notice is hereby given that the Annual Meeting in District No. 35 in Marshall County, Minnesota, for the Election of Officers and the transaction of other business required by law at the Annual Meeting, will be held at the School House on the 18th day of July 1914, at 7 to 8 o' clock P. M. To decide the question of changeing the School House site of the above district from the present site to the following described premises; to wit: Commencing from a point situated 461 feet due west from the N. W. corner of Block 8, Townsite of Holt, Sec. 33-156-43 thence North to South 290.4 feet, thence East to West 300 feet, thence South to North 290.4 feet, thence west to starting point 300 feet, containing two acres, the whole thereof being situated in the N. E. 1-4 of the S. E. 1-4 Sec. 32-156-43.

To provide for the building of a new two room School House thereon

To authorize the School Board to Advertise for bids and sell the School Buildings now located on the present School site.

To authorize the School Board to issue the Bonds of said School Dist. in the sum of four thousand dollars for the purpose of building a new two room school building on the proposed site.

That the bonds to be payable in such amounts and at such time as the legal voters of said district at such meeting shall determine.

To authorize and direct the School Board with the requirements as to School Houses, equipment, teachers, etc., that is required to a Consolidated District in order to get State Aid and that the School Board make application for such State Aid.

Dated this Eighth day of July 1914.
D. PAYNE, District Clerk.

Workmen took down the bowery Wednesday. The lumber will be sold.

John Torrison spent Saturday and Sunday at T. R. Falls, returning on Monday.

C. F. Nielson, of Mud Lake, has a flowing well, obtained at a depth of 110 feet.

P. A. Riesberg was a visitor at T. R. Falls last Sunday, returning the same day.

Christ Ythre had the pleasure of looking for his horses last Sunday, they finally being found at Rosewood Monday morning. It cost him $5.00 to redeem same.

The Zion Ladies Aid had a Fourth of July picnic at Ole B. Johnson's. A good crowd were present and all enjoyed themselves. Mrs. Olaus Eggum won first prize and Mis Inga Johnson second, in the sack race.

P. A. Von Wold, former resident of Holt, now of T. R. Falls and John Stanley of Holt, returned Sunday from an over country tour through Canada. They seemed to be very disappointed with the land and outlook of that country and are more than glad to return to the good old "U. S. A."

BRYAN DEFENDS PROPOSED TREATY

SECRETARY OF STATE ISSUES STATEMENT DISCUSSING COLOMBIA.

SAYS $25,000,000 IS JUST

Declares Southern Neighbor Is Out Several Millions in Excess of This Sum by Our Act. Replies to Critics.

Washington, July 14. — Secretary Bryan issued a statement defending the proposed treaty to settle the differences between the United States and Colombia over the separation of Panama. The treaty has met vigorous opposition in the senate, and former President Roosevelt has attacked it as a vehicle for the payment of "blackmail."

Says Loss Exceeds $25,000,000.

Mr. Bryan declared that it was necessary to discuss only the fact that an estrangement exists, and not the events which gave rise to the differences; and that regardless of whether Colombia has a just grievance against her more powerful neighbor, no one would deny that the former country sustained great financial loss, considerably more than the $25,000,000 which the United States would pay under the treaty, through the separation of Panama.

As to the expression of regret on the part of American government, to which opponents of the pending convention offer their bitterest objection, the secretary said this was almost identical with a similar expression in the Du Bois memorandum on the basis of which the Taft administration unsuccessfully sought to placate Colombia.

The Statement, in Part.

The statement, in part, follows:

"The present administration found an estrangement existing between the United States and Colombia, an estrangement that has continued for nearly 13 years. As the normal relation between nations is one for friendship, it is desirable that differences shall be adjusted and cordial relations resumed. It is not necessary to discuss the events which gave rise to this estrangement, because it does not matter which party was at fault. The estrangement exists, and this is the fact that must be dealt with.

"Colombia has all along insisted upon arbitration. If this nation were willing to arbitrate it would not be necessary to discuss terms of settlement because in the case of arbitration the parties accept the finding of the arbitrators and settle their differences according to the terms prescribed. It is not the policy of nations, however, to settle by arbitration questions like those arising between the United States and Colombia, and as arbitration is not resorted to, the settlement must be made by direct negotiations. Our nation, being much the larger nation, and having refused to arbitrate, takes upon itself the responsibility of doing justice to Colombia.

Has Sustained Loss.

"Colombia feels that she has been aggrieved, and whatever may be said as to whether or not this feeling is justified, no one will deny that she has sustained financial loss in the separation of Panama from her. Before the separation took place this government offered Colombia $10,000,000 for canal route and $250,000 a year for 100 years. This annuity might be capitalized at about $7,500,000, so that this government's estimate of the loss suffered by Colombia could not be less than about $17,500,000. But that estimate was made upon the supposition that Colombia would retain the state or department of Panama. The retention of Panama would have given to Colombia not only the value of Panama, but the incidental benefits to be derived from proximity to the canal. We cannot deny, therefore, that the actual loss to Colombia was considerably more than $25,000,000.

Negotiations of Du Bois.

"There is no doubt that Mr. Du Bois was authorized to make known to Colombia that the United States would offer as the basis of a treaty if assured of acceptance by Colombia, $10,000,000 for the Atrato river canal route and arbitration of the reversionary interest of Colombia in the railroad. This reversionary interest was valued at about $16,000,000, which would have been the sum awarded to Colombia if the arbitration was decided in her favor. The $10,000,000 for the Atrato route and the $10,000,000 was evidently intended more as liquidated damages than as the price of the canal route, together with the value of the reversionary interest in the railroad would amount to $26,000,000.

"If cordial relations are to be restored with Colombia they must be restored on a basis that is satisfactory to Colombia. Friendships cannot rest upon force; neither can they rest upon acquiescence in the power of might even if Colombia, under protest and against the judgment of her people, accepted a less sum than that we offer, it would not restore the relations that ought to exist. We must satisfy their sense of justice, although a less sum might satisfy our sense of justice. In every settlement there must be concessions.

READY FOR THEIR FLIGHT ACROSS THE ATLANTIC

FOUNDATIONS GET TWO HARD KNOCKS

N. E. A. TAKES FLING AT ROCKEFELLER AND CARNEGIE DONATIONS.

OAKLAND, CAL., FOR '15 MEET

Officers Elected and Women Gain Recognition With Five of Eleven Vice Presidents—Jordan President.

St. Paul, July 10.—Two hard knocks at the Rockefeller and Carnegie foundations were delivered by the National Education Association and its auxiliary body, the department of normal schools.

The association resolved that all official investigations of public education should be made through the United Sttaes bureau of education.

The normal school department "viewed with alarm the activities of the Carnegie and Rockefeller foundations in their effort to control the policies of the state educational institutions."

Jordan Unanimously Elected.

As was predicted David Starr Jordan, chancellor of Leland Stanford university, California, was unanimously elected president of the association for 1915 at the business session.

Dr. Jordan will therefore preside at the convention held in connection with the Panama-Pacific exposition. Oakland, Cal., was chosen as the place of meeting. The time is in August.

The threatened revolt of the women delegates against male domination in the convention did not materialize in the matter of nominations. A purpose to placate the women is indicated in the election of five women to vice presidencies, of which there are 11 in all.

List of Vice Presidents.

The list of vice presidents follow: Joseph Swain, Swathmore, Pa.; Miss Grace Strachan, of Brooklyn; Mrs. Helen Hefferman, Illinois; Miss Isabelle Williams, St. Paul; Mrs. Josephine Preston, Washington; Mrs. Cora G. Lewis, Kansas; Walter R. Seivers, Idaho; J. W. Brister, Tennessee; R. C. Stearns, Virginia; J. G. Collicott, Indiana; F. S. Cook, South Dakota.

The following Northwest directors were named: Minnesota, Agnes C. Doherty, of St. Paul (re-elected); North Dakota, C. C. Root; South Dakota, Oliver O. Young; Wisconsin, Milton C. Potter; Iowa, E. C. Bishop; Montana, J. K. Williams; Michigan, E. E. Scribner.

In the resolution the convention body unanimously reindorsed equal suffrage, its first indorsement having been given two years ago; and indorsed the moral self-respect and conduct of President Wilson in handling the Mexican situation. This was cheered vehemently.

The equal suffrage subject was embodied in the report of the committee on teachers' salaries, tenure and pensions. When it was presented, W. N. Sheats, superintendent of schools, Tallahassee, Fla., arose to say, sarcastically, that he didn't understand what the term political equality meant.

First Woman Commissioner.

San Francisco, July 13.—The first woman commissioner from a state to the Panama Pacific exposition, Mrs. Fred E. Sutton, of Oklahoma, has arrived here. She will attend a meeting of the Oklahoma Society of California, when plans for the ground breaking on the site of the Oklahoma pavilion will be arranged.

New Locomotives to Move Crops.

Milwaukee, July 13.—The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad has placed an order with the American Locomotive company for five of the giant super heater mikado type of locomotives designed for heavy work both in the mountains and also on the plains. The locomotives will be used in an effort to handle the bumper wheat crops of the northwest. The contract for the new machines specifies early delivery so that the railroad will do its part to help the farmers get their grain to market.

BATTLE ROYAL IS PROMISED

SENATE FACTIONS READY FOR RESERVE BOARD FIGHT.

Democrats Supporting Wilson for Jones' Confirmation—Warburg Refuses to Be Questioned.

Washington, July 13.—Democratic senators who propose to stand by President Wilson in his fight for confirmation of the nomination of Thomas D. Jones of Chicago as a member of the federal reserve board are engaged in preparation for the contest when it reaches the senate through the unfavorable recommendation voted by the banking and currency committee. It is conceded that a battle royal is ahead, in which the president will be forced to clash with some members of his own party.

As to the action of the committee in deciding to postpone further consideration of the nomination of Paul M. Warburg of New York, unless he changes his mind and decides to accept the committee's invitation to appear before it and submit to questioning, there were few actual developments. At the White House it was evident that the president had determined to champion Mr. Warburg's nomination to the end, the New York banker having agreed to let his name stand should the committee not insist on his appearance. The action last week, however, is taken as an indication that the committee proposes to insist upon his appearance and to do nothing further with regard to his nomination until he is heard from. There was a suggestion current about the capitol that an understanding might be reached as to what the committee wants to know from Mr. Warburg, and that the banker was informed that there is no desire to pry into personal affairs to an extent that might be embarrassing to his clients, but the committee merely wished to satisfy itself that there were no present obstructions to his qualification. Upon such a basis some senators thought Mr. Warburg might consent to appear.

The committee will meet again, after which Senator Hitchcock, the acting chairman, expects to submit to the senate the adverse report on the nomination of Mr. Jones. A favorable minority report will be made by Senators Lee of Maryland, Hollis, Pomerene and Shafroth. In connection with the majority report an effort may be made to introduce the testimony of Mr. Jones relating to his connection with the so-called harvester and zinc trusts, which formed the basis for opposition to his confirmation. The first test of strength may come over such an effort.

FREEPORT CASE IS POSTPONED

Mrs. Carman's Examination Not to Be Held Until July 21—Prosecutor Wants More Evidence.

Mineola, N. Y., July 13.—It will be ten days at least before Mrs. Florence Conklin Carman, accused of the murder of Mrs. Louise Bailey, can hope to leave the Nassau county jail here according to an agreement reached between her counsel, George M. Levy, and District Attorney Louis J. Smith.

Mrs. Carman's examination before a justice of the peace, set for Monday, when she would go free, she had hoped because of lack of evidence against her, has been deferred until July 21. This change was asked for by the prosecutor with two ends in view: that he might present the case before a grand jury and also have more time to seek corroborative and stronger evidence. Mr. Smith said he would go before the grand jury Tuesday.

Fashion Decree for Men.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 13.—All men who profess to follow fashion's decree will wear suits of the English or form fitting models this fall and winter according to the standards approved at the opening session of the National Association of Manufacturing Clothing Designers convention. The decision of the delegates was unanimous and their decrees are accepted without question. Overcoats will have the "French" back and will be of the double-breasted, button through variety.

STORSTAD BLAMED FOR SHIP DISASTER

INVESTIGATORS FIX RESPONSIBILITY FOR WRECKING OF EMPRESS OF IRELAND.

DECLARE OFFICER NEGLIGENT

Inquiry Board Ends Probe of Disaster of May 29 in Which 1,032 Perished in St. Lawrence River.

Quebec, July 13.—The collier Storstad was held to blame in the findings reported following the investigation into the sinking of the steamship Empress of Ireland on the morning of May 29 when 1,032 lost their lives.

The Empress of Ireland was rammed by the Storstad and sank almost immediately. The report found responsibility divided on some points.

The Findings.

The board of inquiry in its report submitted by Lord Mersey found that the Storstad ported her helm and thus brought about the collision. The opinion is expressed that Captain Kendall's action in stopping his ship was good seamanship, but the suggestion is made that his failure to give a wider berth formed a contributory cause of the accident.

The inquiry into the disaster was begun in Quebec, June 16, by a commission composed of Lord Mersey, formerly presiding justice of the British admiralty court; Sir Adolpho Routhier, of Quebec, and Chief Justice McLeod, of New Brunswick. The commissioners were assisted in their work by Commander F. W. Caborne of the British Royal Naval reserve, Professor John Welsh, of Newcastle, Eng., Captain Demers, of the dominion wreck commission and Engineer Commander Howe, of the Canadian naval service.

Third Officer Held Responsible.

The colliers' third officer found responsible is Alfred Toftenes. He was on the bridge when the crash occurred.

"We regret," says the finding, "to have to impute the blame to anyone in connection with this lamentable disaster. We can, however, come to no other conclusion than that Mr. Toftenes was wrong and negligent in altering his course in the fog as he undoubtedly did and that he was wrong and negligent in keeping the navigation of the vessel in his own hands and failing to call the captain when he saw the fog."

REBEL GENERALS NOT BARRED

Efforts Made to Do So Failed, It Is Now Learned.

[illegible] Mexico, July 13.—At the Carranza-Villa conciliation conference at Torreon an effort to prevent General Carranza or any of the military leaders of the revolution from becoming candidates for the presidency or vice presidency failed of adoption, according to a lengthy official statement just issued.

The motion was made by the Villa delegates. A motion passed, however, demanding that the first chief, as president ad interim at the triumph of the revolution, should call a convention composed of delegates representing the rebel army, every 1,000 soldiers to be represented by one delegate, selected by a committee of military chiefs to be approved by the general of the division which would fix the date and arrange for the election.

Ulsterites Recapture Arms.

London, July 13.—The Londonderry correspondent of the Daily Express sends a sensational story of how 100 Ulster volunteers recaptured at the Enniskillen station a consignment of arms and ammunition which had been seized at Londonderry by the customs authorities. The consignment was being conveyed from Londonderry to Dublin under an armed guard of 10 policemen. The volunteers surrounded the guard with drawn revolvers, swiftly removed the cases and placed them in motor boats.

CARBAJAL TO TAKE HUERTA'S PLACE

DICTATOR TO QUIT THIS WEEK, SAYS MEXICAN FOREIGN AFFAIRS AGENT.

TO EMULATE PORFIRIO DIAZ

Would Save the Country From Further Bloodshed—Esteva-Ruiz Gives Out Story When Leaving Country Like Other Officials.

Vera Cruz, July 14.—To save his country from the horrors of further civil war and his capital from capture and perhaps sack by a victorious army, General Huerta intends to resign the presidency and leave Mexico.

Statement by Sub-Secretary.

This statement is made by Roberto Esteva-Ruiz, Mexican sub-secretary of foreign affairs, who reached Vera Cruz from Mexico City on his way to Europe. Huerta, he said, will surrender the government to Francisco Carbajal, the new minister of foreign affairs, who in turn will step aside when the time comes, for some provisional president acceptable to the Constitutionalists.

Just when the change will come, Esteva-Ruiz said he did not know.

"The president did not make me his confidant," he declared, "nor did I have much time to talk with him after it was determined that I should leave the cabinet."

Expects Resignation Immediately.

He was convinced, however, that Huerta would lay down his power during the coming week and it would not surprise him, he said, if his resignation were announced immediately.

Carbajal, he added, was suggested as provisional president by the American delegation at the Niagara Falls mediation conference and agreed to by Huerta's delegates and the South American mediators, while the Constitutionalists indirectly had conveyed the idea that he would be acceptable to Carranza.

"That is," explained the Mexican sub-secretary, "Carbajal would be a more provisional president than the real provisional president to be named later."

Explains Situation.

When the suggestion was first made Villa had not indicated his willingness to accept Carbajal, Esteva-Ruiz went on, and he doubted Villa's willingness to accept him now. As for Zapata he had no idea that the southern leader would recognize any provisional presidency until demands for the redistribution of lands had been complied with, and he intimated that objections to such a solution of Mexico's problem might come from certain parts of the northern states.

Unless something occurs to disarrange the present plan, Esteva-Ruiz is convinced that fighting between Federals and Constitutionalists is over. This, he said, was indicated by the evacuation of Guadalajara.

Like Porfirio Diaz, who fled from his country in the hope that his going might avert a long and costly civil war, Huerta, according to Esteva Ruiz, has decided to yield to superior numbers. Both Huerta and General Blanquet, his minister of war, know that longer resistence is futile and would mean nothing more than the slaughter of thousands and perhaps the sacking of the capital itself, with horrors perpetrated by a victorious army joined by mad mobs from the slums of the city.

Blanquet to Leave, Also.

He expected Blanquet would leave Mexico City when Huerta fled, if not before. Enrique Gorostieta, minister of justice, had offered his resignation, so he had heard, but he was not sure the report was true. He assumed, however, that Gorostieta would resign and all the old cabinet as well.

Like Adolfo De La Lama, the Mexican minister of finance, who arrived here Saturday also in flight to Europe, the sub-secretary of foreign affairs professed still to maintain his connection with the government. With his family he will sail from Vera Cruz on the steamer Alfonso XIII for Spain.

Carranza May Bar.

Laredo, [illegible] Reports from usually reliable [illegible] were current in Nuevo Laredo that General Venustiano Carranza, interrogated by Huerta agents regarding acceptability of Francisco Carbajal as provisional president of Mexico, replied he would not recognize Huerta or any one chosen in this way to succeed him.

Ship On Rocks, All Safe.

St. John's, N. F., July 13.—All the passengers on the coastal steamer Invermore, which struck on the rocks near Brig Harbor Point on the Labrador coast were landed safely.

Dies at Alfonso's Table.

Madrid, Spain, July 14.—Major Montes, a royal aide, died suddenly at King Alfonso's lunch table, aboard the royal yacht Giralda. Major Montes was an old friend of the king and Alfonso was deeply affected by his death.

Irish Clash; Shots Fired.

London, July 14.—A Belfast dispatch to the Daily Mail says shots were exchanged in a fight between Nationalists and Unionists at Kilrea, county Derry. The police succeeded in preventing serious disturbances.

JUST MATTER OF DIPLOMACY

Father's Quick Thought Saved Baby Daughter From Being Afflicted With Fantastic Name.

Some time ago a pretty little baby girl arrived at a happy suburban home and immediately the entire family, including aunts, cousins and mothers-in-law, were busy selecting an appropriate name. "Harry," joyously cried mother, when the father returned home one evening, "I have decided on a name for a baby. We will call her Gwendolyn." For a moment the father did a hard piece of thinking. The name Gwendolyn sounded to him like a fire whistle out of tune, but he knew better than openly to oppose mother. Therefore he grew foxy. "Gwendolyn! Gwendolyn!" he musingly replied. "I like that a whole lot, dear. Long before I met you I had a girl named Gwendolyn, and she—" "Who said anything about Gwendolyn?" icily interjected wifey. "Your hearing must be defective. I said we will call the baby Mary, after my mother."

High Price for Dickens' Work.

Lovers of Dickens will be pleased to hear that a copy of "Pickwick" has just been sold in the English market for $2,475. This was a first edition, which Messrs. Sotheby put up the other day from the late Capt. R. J. H. Douglas' property. The highest previous record for a similar edition was obtained in New York, where the bidding reached $1,400. No Dickensian seems to doubt that the copy sold is the finest copy extant. It has all the points which appeal to a collector: all the parts are the earliest issue, and contains all the advertisements; all the covers of the parts are dated 1836; the plates by Seymour, Buss, and "Phiz" are all in the earliest state. Four parts contain the "addresses" by the author, and three the "addresses" by the publishers. In fact, there is not a flaw to be found. The present possessor of the edition is Mr. Robson.

What He Feared.

He was watching his neighbor's troublesome boy climb a tree, and he had a look of painful anxiety on his countenance.

"Are you afraid the lad will fall?" he was asked.

"No," he replied, "I'm afraid he won't."

GOING IN SAME DIRECTION

One Fact Doctor Was Willing to Admit to Hypochondriac Patient Who Had Become a Bore.

Once there was a hypochondriac who used to think that he was dying about three times a week. One day he was driving out in his automobile, and one of these spells came over him. On the road ahead of him he happened to see his family doctor speeding along in his roadster. He felt so sick that he applied all his power in order to catch up with the doctor as soon as possible.

But the doctor saw him coming and he used all the gas he had to get away from him. For about three miles they had a close race. Finally, however, the doctor had some tire trouble, and the hypochondriac drew up alongside.

"Doctor," he shouted, "stop a minute! I am dying. Darn it all! I'm dying!"

"You must be," grunted the physician. "I never saw anybody going so fast as you are!"

DON'T SUFFER WITH ITCHING

My, what relief!—The moment resinol ointment touches any itching skin, the itching stops and healing begins. With the aid of resinol soap, it quickly removes all trace of eczema, rash, tetter, ringworm, pimples or other ugly, tormenting eruption, and leaves the skin clear and healthy. It is equally effective for sunburn, insect bites, sores, boils, burns, red, rough hands, dandruff and falling hair.

You need never hesitate to use resinol. It is a doctor's prescription that has been used by other physicians for the past 19 years in the treatment of most sorts of skin affections. Unlike many other remedies, it contains absolutely nothing that could injure the tenderest skin. Resinol ointment and resinol soap are sold by all druggists. Look out for worthless imitations.—Adv.

Abe Martin on Spring Fever.

Abe Martin, the famous Indiana funny man, writes an amusing piece about spring fever. Following is an extract:

"When a feller gits spring fever he don't rush t' a doctor. He knows what t' do. He knows he needs rest an' quiet. He don't pay somebuddy t' tell him t' cut coffee and terbacker, an' he don't take t' his bed. He takes t' a settee or a bread box. Spring fever don't require no dietin' an' ther' hain't no habits t' eliminate but workin'. If ther's urgent plowin' t' be done th' patient has th' cool hours before th' sun rounds th' K. of P. hall an' after it sinks majestic'ly behind th' tile mill.

"In a little town where you don't have t' pay $60 for a cotton an' wool fiber business suit an' $50 per month fer one-half o' a double house, with your choice o' any three-cent wallpaper, a feller kin afford t' take advantage of spring fever."—American Magazine.

Affairs Reversed.

An Irish tenant farmer, returning from a somewhat distant market late one afternoon, missed his way and got into a bog hole, where he stuck fast. His landlord, who knew the locality, chancing to pass shortly afterward on horseback, noticed his tenant's dilemma, and smilingly shouted out.

"Hello, Pat! You've got fixity of tenure now!"

"Yes, begorra!" ejaculated Pat. "And I'd be moighty obliged if yer honor wud evict me."

Certainly.

"Does your wife believe everything other people tell her about you?"

"Always, unless it happens to be complimentary."

WRONG BREAKFAST

Change Gave Rugged Health.

Many persons think that for strength they must begin the day with a breakfast of meat and other heavy foods. This is a mistake as anyone can easily discover for himself.

A W. Va. carpenter's experience may benefit others. He writes:

"I used to be a very heavy breakfast eater but finally indigestion caused me such distress, I became afraid to eat anything.

"My wife suggested a trial of Grape-Nuts and as I had to eat something or starve I concluded to take her advice. She fixed me up a dish and I remarked at the time that the quality was all right, but the quantity was too small—I wanted a saucerful.

"But she said a small amount of Grape-Nuts went a long way and that I must eat it according to directions. So I started in with Grape-Nuts and cream, two soft boiled eggs and some crisp toast for breakfast.

"I cut out meats and a lot of other stuff I had been used to eating all my life and was gratified to see that I was getting better right along. I concluded I had struck the right thing and stuck to it. I had not only been eating improper food, but too much.

"I was working at the carpenter's trade at that time and thought that unless I had a hearty breakfast with plenty of meat, I would play out before dinner. But after a few days of my "new breakfast" I found I could do more work, felt better in every way, and now I am not bothered with indigestion."

TRACTION CAR HIT; 17 HURT

ELECTRIC MOTOR AND STEAM LOCOMOTIVE COLLIDE.

But Three of Dan Patch Line Passengers in Accident at Faribault Seriously Injured.

Faribault.—Seventeen persons were injured, three of them very seriously, in a head-on collision here Wednesday afternoon between a passenger motor and a freight train on the Dan Patch line.

The seriously injured are: Charles Eberhart, St. Paul, cut about face and internally injured, condition critical; Frank Newcomber, motorman, Minneapolis, head and face cut, internal injuries; Adolf Brazie, Plainview, Minn., face badly cut.

Those only slightly injured are as follows: H. R. Hauser, traveling salesman, H. K. Mulford Drug Co., Minneapolis, face cut; Mrs. Frank Stirley, Minneapolis, face cut; John Luxem, Minneapolis, leg hurt; Joseph Bradbury, conductor of motor, Minneapolis, arm fractured, head cut; Dr. Harvey Bachrach, Minneapolis, one rib broken, face and tongue cut; W. E. Ross, St. Paul, head cut; Emma Huettner, Northfield, face cut; Fred Albers, farmer near Northfield, head cut; Mrs. Guy O. Miller, Faribault, head cut; Mrs. Fred Seith, Northfield, back cut; Herbert Schirmacher, 8 years old, Faribault, slightly cut; A. A. Culver, Mantonville, face cut; Arthur Koenig, Sioux Falls, S. D., slightly cut; son of Arthur Koenig, slightly hurt.

Every seat in the motor was torn loose; every window broken. The steel car got a big dent in its nose. The steam locomotive was badly battered, its tender crumpled up. That there were no deaths is considered directly attributable to the fact that the electric motor was all-steel. It did not leave the track. Neither did the locomotive nor any of the 20 freight cars behind it.

Injuries Fatal to Eberhardt.

Faribault.—Charles Eberhardt, 46 years old, died from injuries received in the Dan Patch line wreck Wednesday. The body was taken to St. Paul for burial.

INDIANS CROWD CASS LAKE

Catholic Indian Congress Attracts Multitude—Bishop Confirms Big Class.

Cass Lake.—More Indians were in Cass Lake last week than ever gathered here before. The occasion was the Catholic Chippewa congress, which began Wednesday evening and continued until Sunday evening.

The congress was opened with a sermon by Father Chrysostom, O. S. B., of Bayfield, Wis., who is the oldest missionary among the Chippewas. He preached in both the Chippewa and English languages. Benediction of the most blessed sacrament and the usual solemn ceremonies were given by Father Gordon of Hayward, Wis., and Father Felix of Ponsford, Minn.

Father Gordon, who is a full blood Indian priest, read solemn high mass, with Father Felix assisting as deacon and Father Thomas as sub deacon. The sermon in both the Chippewa and English languages was preached by Father Chrysostom.

Bishop McGolrick of Duluth arrived to administer the sacrament of confirmation to a large class of Indian and white children.

Head of Navigation Change.

Minneapolis.—Minneapolis will be the head of navigation for Mississippi river steamers next spring, despite the recent collapse of the cofferdam last month, according to Captain George W. Freeman, engineer in charge of the high dam, who said that the work of opening navigation to Minneapolis would be completed in the spring of 1915 as scheduled. When the cofferdam went out, June 30, it was believed that the work would be delayed many months.

TO PROHIBIT BOTTLE TRADE

Liquor Dealers in "Indian Country" Hope to Stay Closing Order in This Way.

Grand Rapids.—Concerted action is to be made by liquor dealers to have the authorities of cities and villages in Indian territory affected by the recent supreme court decision pass ordinances preventing the sale of intoxicants in any other manner than by the glass and over the bar.

This means that all bottle trade would be strictly prohibited, particularly in strong spirits. Whether or not beer is to be included in the list that must be drank on the premises is not yet decided.

The move is made with the idea of heading off the closing clause in the court's decision, declaring this territory dry, it being contended that nowhere are Indians permitted to drink over the bar and that by thus prohibiting bottle trade there would be no opportunity for the red man to secure whisky.

An ordinance making this prohibition has already been passed by the city of Bemidji and the village of Park Rapids. The matter was taken up at Deer River and those having the movement in hand conferred with local saloon men.

AIR CRAFT FALLS ON AUTO

No One Badly Hurt as Result of Peculiar Accident at Mankato, However.

Mankato.—Because he forced his engine beyond its normal speed in trying to make an ascent at the fair grounds, George Carlstrom, a Canadian aviator, fell with his machine to the ground after crushing the top of an automobile and smashing through the race track fence.

The air craft was badly damaged but Carlstrom was not much hurt. Had the automobile top not been up, some of the occupants of the car might have been killed. Carlstrom laid his misfortune to the fact that the ground was too rough to make a good start.

Woman Bather Drowns.

Bemidji, Minn., July 10.—Mrs. [illegible] of Ten Strike stepped from a sand bar into a deep hole in Gall lake while bathing and drowned. Her screams attracted two sons of Henry Strehman, who rowed toward the woman. When they were almost there an oar broke and the boys were unable to reach her before she went down for the last time.

Condemn Money Donations.

St. Paul, July 9.—Proposed condemnation of alleged efforts of certain private corporations to influence by money grants the conduct of the educational institutions of the United States, presented to the N. E. A. in a resolution today, is causing much vigorous comment among the delegates.

Theft Charged at Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids.—William Hensel and William Murphy, said to hail from Minneapolis, were bound over here to the grand jury on a charge of robbery. The complaining witness was Harry Armstrong, a woodsman, who said the men robbed him of $65.

English Heir Is Missing.

Duluth.—Edward La Rose, of England, is in the city trying to locate his brother Ernest, who came to Duluth a short time ago, and who is believed to be in northern Minnesota. He is joint heir with others to a large fortune left by an uncle who died in England only a few weeks ago and Edward wants to get in touch with him. The young men and their parents came to America not very long ago, and while the parents remained in New York the young men started out to see the west.

AFTER RIVER FREIGHT RATES

BARGE COMING UP RIVER MAY REVIVE STEAMBOATING.

Experts Will Measure Every Phase of Journey From New Orleans to St. Paul.

New Orleans, La., July 8.—Barge No. 5 of the Inland Navigation company has sailed from New Orleans to blaze the trail for the revival of steamboat business on the Father of Waters.

One thousand tons of freight was loaded on the barge and on board are experienced river pilots, marine engineers, army engineers, river transportation experts and newspaper men. The vessel has been chartered from the owners by John H. Barnhard and is operated by him as a personal venture.

The destination of the craft is St. Paul, which it is expected to reach in about three weeks. There a full cargo of flour will be loaded for New Orleans.

In 200 years of navigation of the Mississippi, the first attempt to derive through scientific calculation, the costs of operating craft and carriage freight will be made by the experts who are accompanying Barge No. 5. Their findings are expected to upset many established theories and practices now in use and throw into the discard a lot of obsolete methods still clung to by steamboat masters.

The cost finding experts will carefully note all of the items of expense in hauling a ton of freight from New Orleans to St. Louis or St. Paul or down stream. The resistance of the current, time consumed, fuel used, labor costs, pilotage, wharfage charges, wear and tear on the vessel itself, all will be calculated in a dollars and cents fashion.

The barge, which is built wholly of steel, with powerful engines, using a cheap grade of fuel and drawing about five feet of water under load, is of a type designed to cut freight carrying costs down to a minimum.

The cargo to be carried out of New Orleans consists of sugar, rice, cotton seed and by-products and molasses. A stop will be made at Jeffries, La., to load lumber for St. Louis. Stops on the north journey will be made at St. Louis, Keokuk, Clinton, Burlington, Dubuque, Davenport, Rock Island and St. Paul.

To Welcome River Barge.

Winona, Minn., July 9.—When the 1,000-ton Barnhard barge reaches here this month on a trip from New Orleans to the Twin Cities, the purpose of which is to demonstrate that the Mississippi is navigable the entire distance, a delegation of Winona men will meet with the officers in charge to indicate their willingness to co-operate in any movement that might have for its purpose the revival of the river traffic. There is a feeling of deep interest among the manufacturers and jobbers here.

WANT SERBS TO QUIT STATE

Farm, House and Wife Offered by Servia to Natives Who Return to Country

Duluth.—Tinto Urban[illegible], said to be an envoy of the Servian government, has been visiting Serbs working at the steel plant at New Duluth and Gary, lately in an effort to have them return to their native land.

The Servian government, it is said, is offering all Serbs who will return a piece of land and a house, with the addition of a wife to single men who will return. A meeting of Serbs residing here was held a few days ago but what they decided to do was not given out. The agent is now working in the range towns.

Thousands of Serbs are in this part of the country and many of them have left their families on the other side until they can get located or earn enough money to establish themselves at home. Men who have been in this country several years are especially sought by the home government, for it is believed that what they have learned here will be valuable to the Servian nation.

14,000 Persons at Chautauqua.

St. Peter.—It is estimated that 14,000 persons attended the second annual St. Peter Chautauqua. In spite of poor roads and several days of stormy weather, all of the sessions were well attended and the programs gave general satisfaction. A year ago, when the Chautauqua was tried for the first time, there was a small deficit. William Mallgren, the local platform manager, engaged better attractions this season, and the association not only will be able to repay the 1913 shortage, but will have a substantial sum in its treasury.

River Party Visits Winona.

Winona.—The [illegible] and barge Markatana, owned by William Butterworth of the Deere Plow company at Moline, Ill., passed through Winona on its way to St. Paul on a pleasure trip. The guests on the trip were Mr. and Mrs. Nicholson of London, England, and Miss Carpenter of Minneapolis, two Winona boys and their college chums and Miss Mc[illegible] of St. Paul. The boat left Moline July 3 and will return to Moline about July 14.

GREAT AID TO GOOD WORK

Sale of Red Cross Christmas Seals Net Much Money for Anti-Tuberculosis Campaign.

More than 44,000,000 Red Cross Christmas seals were sold last December, according to a report issued by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis and the American Red Cross. In this way $440,000 is netted for anti-tuberculosis work in various parts of the United States.

The sale in 1913 is a gain of 4,000,000 seals over 1912, or 10 per cent. It is hoped that this year the 50,000,000 mark will be reached. The seal design for 1914 has been selected and orders for the printing of 100,000,000 seals have been placed. Plans for the organization of a larger sale this year than ever before have been perfected.

New York led the country last year with a sale of over 10,500,000 seals, or one for each man, woman and child in the state. Of this number, more than 6,825,000 were sold outside of New York city. Pennsylvania came next with a sale of 3,125,000. Ohio was third with 2,800,000, Wisconsin fourth, 2,700,000, and Illinois fifth with 2,500,000. Hawaii sold the most seals per capita, the total sale being somewhat over two for each inhabitant. Rhode Island came second with a sale of two per person.

Beginning with a sale of 13,500,000 in 1908, in six seasons the revenue which these little holiday seals have brought to the anti-tuberculosis campaign has more than tripled an aggregate for the period of over $1,800,000 or 180,000,000 seals.

ITCHING SALT RHEUM

Oxford, Mont.—"My salt rheum started with little white pimples. When I scratched they would burn and itch and later on they would fill up, break and spread and get red all around. It came on my thigh. When the pimples broke, just enough fluid ran out to form scales. It seemed to enlarge the sores and they felt like saw-teeth when my clothing rubbed over them. I underwent a treatment for quite a while but I got no relief. In fact I got worse. I was getting so that it troubled me very much, as it got so I hated to move my limb for fear to crack open the sores which covered my left limb from my hip to my ankle. The sores were from the size of a pea to the size of a silver dollar.

"I got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. The very first treatment gave me ease and from then on with every treatment I could see a change. Four weeks from the time I started with the Cuticura Soap and Ointment I was entirely well without a scar." (Signed) F. L. Layton, Apr. 30, 1914.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."—Adv.

Evidently Something Wrong.

Little Arthur and his mother were taking a walk along a country road. There were some ducks running back and forth across the road and Arthur lagged behind his mother watching them. He became greatly interested and a puzzled look crept over his face. After a while he ran up to his mother and pointing back to the ducks, exclaimed.

"Mamma, those ducks aren't made right!"

"Why, yes, dear, why not," his mother answered.

"Well, they've got their eyes on the sides of their heads and mine are in front."

What Did He Mean.

Dr. Stanley Coulter says that the best and sweetest introduction he ever had to an audience was by a student at Cornell university. Said this young man concisely: "I do not have to speak many words to introduce Doctor Coulter, for he is too well known already."

"I never could make out just what that student meant," said Doctor Coulter.—Indianapolis News.

COULD NOT STAND ON FEET

Mrs. Baker So Weak—Could Not Do Her Work—Found Relief In Novel Way.

Adrian, Mich. — "I suffered terribly with female weakness and backache and got so weak that I could hardly do my work. When I washed my dishes I had to sit down and when I would sweep the floor I would get so weak that I would have to get a drink every few minutes, and before I did my dusting I would have to lie down. I got so poorly that my folks thought I was going into consumption. One day I found a piece of paper blowing around the yard and I picked it up and read it. It said 'Saved from the Grave,' and told what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for women. I showed it to my husband and he said, 'Why don't you try it?' So I did, and after I had taken two bottles I felt better and I said to my husband, 'I don't need any more,' and he said 'You had better take it a little longer anyway.' So I took it for three months and got well and strong." — Mrs. ALONZO E. BAKER, 9 Tecumseh St., Adrian, Mich.

Not Well Enough to Work.

In these words is hidden the tragedy of many a woman, housekeeper or wage earner who supports herself and is often helping to support a family, on meagre wages. Whether in house, office, factory, shop, store or kitchen, woman should remember that there is one tried and true remedy for the ills to which all women are prone, and that is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It promotes that vigor which makes work easy. The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Training in Shooting.

"Live targets," an English invention by which one may shoot at kinematograph reproductions of human beings and animals, are to be introduced into the German army and navy in consequence of experiments just carried out at Doberitz camp by the kaiser. The newspapers state that the apparatus is to be installed at the military schools and naval training ships for the purpose of improving the marksmanship of cadets. The kaiser, fascinated by the "sport," spent half an hour at the "range" fitted up at Doberitz. His majesty particularly enjoyed "shooting" deer, seals, and men and women on the tops of omnibuses and elsewhere. He said that the scheme was undoubtedly valuable for military purposes.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent., or more than one third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Rollis Rumbles

The Fourth was celebrated in a very pleasant and unique way at the "Shamrock Farm," two miles south of Rollis, owned by D. C. Tyson. During the forenoon the people gathered and visited and rested until noon, then gathered around a table that Mr. Tyson had made for the purpose; to partake of a bountiful repast. Others gathered under the trees, in groups, for an old fashion picnic dinner.

During the afternoon the men had a ball game, the score was 5 to 7 in favor of Robinson's team.

As evening came many of the older people went home, but others came for the ball which was given in the barn, a building 32x48. It was decorated with flags and national colors and the floor was well waxed. There was a stand in the corner where the dancers could get ice cream, lemonade, and lots of other good things. Mrs. Tyson also served a midnights supper. Dahl's orchestra furnished the music, which was first class. And so everybody had a good time except a very few whose thirst lemonade could not satisfy. However we appreciate the fact that Mr. Tyson did not allow any thing which might mar the pleasure of his guests and the thirsty ones sought other society. And so the celebration ended as pleasantly as it began.

CESSATION OF HOSTILITIES NOW SEEMS TO BE ASSURED

Union of Various Factions in Mexico Now Being Attempted---Carbajal Asks Only Amnesty for Prisoners.

Washington, July 21.—While government officials here feel that the Mexican problem is rapidly shaping itself for solution and that the Constitutionalists and the Carbajal government soon will reach an agreement for the establishment of a new administration, much apprehension is manifested over the possible operations of the Zapatista forces.

Threaten Mexico City.

Dispatches from Mexico City and Vera Cruz, which declared that the followers of Zapata were dangerously near the capital are confirmed by advices to the state department. Officials here for some time have been cognizant of the strength of the Zapata troops, but the American government has been able to exert its influence with Zapata to prevent an attack on Mexico City.

Emissaries from General Carranza are now in communication with Zapata and it is hoped through these parleys to bring the military operations of the revolution under one head.

Hurry To Set Up Government

Constitutionalist forces are being hurried southward to help maintain order at the capital. The efforts of the American government are directed toward influencing a quick settlement between Carranza and Carbajal so that a stable government may be set up without loss of time.

The Constitutionalist agency here has delivered to the mediators a note rejecting the invitation for representatives of General Carranza and General Huerta to meet in peace conferences.

It was written by Carranza before Huerta resigned, but delivery was delayed.

See Union of Factions.

Washington, July 20.—Every influence and diplomatic agency at the disposal of the United States government are working for immediate peace in Mexico.

The Washington administration is convinced that with the elimination of Huerta, for which it has been steadily pressing for more than a year, the various factions in Mexico will be drawn together quickly.

To aid in this and to assure restoration of normal conditions without further bloodshed, officials here are exerting themselves to smooth the way for a new and stable administration in Mexico which shall be recognized by the powers of the world.

Efforts Bring Results.

Already the fruits of the American effort to bring Carranza and Carbajal together are apparent. Carranza, according to Silliman's reports, has revealed a spirit of friendliness to the United States and a readiness to discuss peace with Carbajal and prevent further fighting.

Amnesty for political offenders and guarantees that the lives and property of the territory controlled by the federal government be conserved, are practically the only terms Carbajal asks.

Generally, Washington officials are highly optimistic over the favorable turn of events. Already they are predicting complete peace in Mexico in another fortnight. They were encouraged, for instance, by a telegram from General Obregon, commander of one of the three big divisions of the Constitutionalist army, saying Americans and foreigners could return to Guadalajara with assurances of safety. Obregon gave these assurances to American Consul Hostetter.

Huerta Off to Jamaica.

Puerto Mexico, Mexico.—General Huerta departed from this port on board the German cruiser Dresden for Jamaica, General Blanquet alone accompanying him. According to present plans Huerta will sail from Jamaica for Paris, where he will make his future home.

U. S. Counsels Zapata.

Not only is the American government at this moment counseling General Carranza, the Constitutionalist chief, to arrange with Francisco Carbajal, Huerta's successor, for the peaceful transfer of the government at Mexico City to the Constitutionalists without further fighting, but it became known that the administration is directly in communication with Emiliana Zapata, commander in southern Mexico.

Zapata, according to reliable reports to the state department, has 24,000 men, and though most of them are poorly equipped they would constitute a serious menace to a new government at Mexico City if they remain in revolution. Zapata, who demands agrarian reforms immediately, made common cause with the Constitutionalists and obtained supplies from them with which to fight the Huerta government. It is not known whether he will lay down his arms in favor of Carranza.

Carranza has been informed that he must conduct his triumph temperately, that there must be no excesses and no revenges when the army takes control of Mexico City and other important centers.

Wants General Amnesty.

Washington, July 18.—Francisco Carbajal, successor to General Huerta as provisional president of Mexico, to succeed General Huerta, resigned, advised the United States government informally that he intended to retire in favor of General Carranza, the Constitutionalist chief.

© HARRIS & EWING

VENUSTIANO CARRANZA.

Mr. Carbajal wishes only that a general amnesty be proclaimed and protection given to the property of those who opposed the Constitutionalists.

This statement of the attitude of Huerta's successor together with the announcement from Monterey that Carranza was willing to enter into negotiations with Carbajal relative to the transfer of authority at Mexico City was regarded here as practically assuring a cessation of hostilities and the restoring of peace in Mexico.

The views of Mr. Carbajal were expressed in detail to Secretary Bryan by Jose Castellot, former member of the Mexican senate, who called at the state department with a personal telegram which he had received through the Mexican embassy. It was the first communication between the American government and the Carbajal administration.

The message incidentally revealed that Generals Huerta and Blanquet are planning to go to Europe. The communication addressed to Mr. Castellot, a personal friend of the new president, was as follows:

Carbajal Letter Follows.

"I have just taken the oath of office as president of the republic. Generals Huerta and Blanquet have departed for Europe. I desire to make it known with emphasis that my only purpose is to facilitate a solution of the grave problems which weigh upon our country. I have not the slightest ambition for myself and merely wish to terminate the internal conflict of our country. Please give me your impressions of the situation in Washington.

"FRANCISCO CARBAJAL."

This message, Mr. Castellot explained, meant that Mr. Carbajal had taken office only as a means of bridging the gap from the Huerta regime to the Constitutionalists and that the new president had no desire to remain in office.

Secretary Bryan thanked Mr. Castellot for the information he brought and told him that while recognition would not be accorded Carbajal, the United States was amicably disposed toward him and would applaud his patriotic efforts to bring about peace in President Resumes Work.

Washington, July 20.—President Wilson has completely recovered from his recent attack of indigestion. He has resumed his usual round of work and interviewed several business men, including S. R. Bertron, a banker, discussing business conditions and anti-trust legislation. Expecting a definite outcome of the fight on the nomination of Thomas D. Jones, as a member of the federal reserve board this week, Mr. Wilson is preparing to take up the case of Paul Warburg.

Two Machines Are Demolished.

Duluth, July 20.—Five persons almost miraculously escaped death, three were injured and two automobiles were demolished, one of them plunging over a ten-foot embankment. The autos, owned by D. Butler, proprietor of a Marble hotel, and A. Scanlon, a Marble liveryman, collided head on between Coleraine, Minn., and Marble. The impact was terrific and the cries of the passengers of the two cars were plainly audible some distance away.

TANGO AS A CAUSE OF CRIME

Brooklyn Judge Blames Theft by Two Youths to Nights Given to Modern Dance.

In suspending sentence in the cases of two youths who had pleaded guilty to attempted grand larceny, County Judge Fawcett in Brooklyn listed "white lights and tango nights" in the catalogue of incentives to crime.

"You can't expect to dance all night," he said, "and lie abed half the day, yet always have money for your carousals, unless you steal it. And let me tell you, our jails and penitentiaries are full of people with just such ideas. If your family had given you good beatings instead of money to spend, it would have been better for you."

The boys, John Colver, twenty years old, of 487 Hancock street, and Carlton Chapman, sixteen, of 362 Jefferson avenue, had been indicted for stealing money and jewelry from Adelaide Wiston, keeper of a furnished room house, where they lived for a time. They belong to respectable families of moderate means. Both promised the judge to go home and begin again. Chapman to return to school and Colver to work. Both wore tango pumps and silk shirts when arraigned.—New York Sun.

RASH ON FACE SPREAD

Granton, Wis.—"My sister had a very bad, deep, wet, running sore on the side of her face and it ran up to her ear. It commenced with a small blotch of pimples which turned into a kind of rash and spread rapidly. It itched and looked red and sore for some time and slightly swelled. A thin fluid dripped and ran from the sores which looked like water. Then the swelling would go down and it would keep on spreading. It bothered her during sleep and she would be restless. It was a kind of eczema.

"She treated for some time and it did not help her. It kept spreading larger and deeper. Having always used Cuticura Soap we told her to try it so she got some Cuticura Soap and Ointment and used them. It was two months when it was gone." (Signed) Miss Emma Retzloff, Apr. 7, 1914.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."—Adv.

The First Speaker.

The first speaker of the house of representatives of the United States was Frederick A. Muhlenberg of Pennsylvania, who was born in Trappe, Pa., in 1750, and died in Lancaster, Pa., in 1801. Muhlenberg was succeeded by Jonathan Trumbull of Connecticut, but was returned to the speaker's chair in the third congress. Among his famous successors was Henry Clay, who was speaker of six congresses; James K. Polk, Robert C. Winthrop, Schuyler Colfax, James G. Blaine, John G. Carlisle, Thomas B. Reed, David B. Henderson, Joseph G. Cannon and Champ Clark. Only one speaker of the house—James K. Polk—has ever reached the White House, defeating Henry Clay, ex-speaker.

Responsibilities.

"Didn't you ask me why I paid rent instead of owning my own home?" asked Mr. Crossiots.

"I made that inquiry?" replied the real estate man.

"Well, I'll tell you. When the roof leaks or a shutter drops off it's mighty handy to be able to ask your wife not to bother you, but to go and tell her troubles to the landlord."

His Tricks.

"I went out motoring with that popular amateur magician, and what transformation trick do you think he pulled off before we had gone any distance?"

"What was that?"

"He made the automobile turn turtle."

GOOD CHANGE.
Coffee to Postum.

The large army of persons who have found relief from many chronic ailments by changing from coffee to Postum as a daily beverage, is growing each day.

It is only a simple question of trying it for oneself in order to know the joy of returning health as realized by an Ills. young lady. She writes:

"I had been a coffee drinker nearly all my life and it affected my stomach—caused insomnia and I was seldom without a headache. I had heard about Postum and how beneficial it was, so concluded to quit coffee and try it.

"I was delighted with the change. I can now sleep well and seldom ever have headache. My stomach has gotten strong and I can eat without suffering afterwards. I think my whole system greatly benefited by Postum.

"My brother also suffered from stomach trouble while he drank coffee, but now, since using Postum, he feels so much better he would not go back to coffee for anything."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be well boiled—15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly—30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

"There's a Reason" for Postum.

CONGRESS WILL BE BUSY UNTIL FALL

MEMBERS SETTLE THEMSELVES TO WORK OF COMPLETING PROGRAM.

MUCH WORK TO BE FINISHED

Trust Measures Expected to Occupy Six Weeks at Least—One Predicts Work Till December.

Washington, July 21.—Members of congress who are standing valiantly by the administration in the effort to complete its legislative program despite the approaching campaign, while admitting they are weary of legislative duties and anxious to get home to their districts, have resigned themselves to the conclusion that there is little hope for adjournment before fall.

Trouble in Both Houses.

Both houses of congress are having trouble in rallying a quorum for the transaction of business, but the party whips are keeping constantly at work bringing members who have left town back to Washington and they hope to expedite what business remains as rapidly as possible. Some senators and representatives are permitted to go home from time to time to look after their political fences, but it is the aim of the Democratic leaders to keep a quorum present at all times.

Again this week the chief business of the senate will be to press the anti-trust bills, with a hope of getting a real start in the general debate on the intertrade commission bill and to complete the revision of the Clayton bill and the Rayburn securities measure in committee so that they may be submitted to the senate.

6 Weeks for Trust Bills.

At least six weeks of discussion in the senate on these trust measures is contemplated, although some Republican senators insist that it will be much longer than that before all can be passed.

There remains the probability that the three bills will be consolidated. If that is done the legislative task may not be so prolonged.

One thing that promises to delay the trust program is the difficulties which have arisen over the nominations of Thomas D. Jones of Chicago and Paul M. Warburg of New York as members of the federal reserve board.

President Wilson's desire to have the 20 new Bryan peace treaties ratified before adjournment is another matter that may prolong the session.

May Last Till December.

All these things together with uncompleted appropriations legislation serve to convince many members that congress can not get away for a long time. One Democratic senator asserted that the session would continue until the week session in December.

The Adamson general dam bill involving the government policy toward the development of water power and the improvement of navigation is the big pending business in the house this week.

The dam bill would authorize federal permits for construction of dams, or dams and locks for development of hydraulic power for service to the communities along navigable streams, the permits to run for 50 years with provision for government acquisition of the dams after that period if desirable.

New York, July 20.—Colonel William P. Clough, chairman of the board of directors of the Northern Pacific railway company, has left for the West for a week's visit.

Waterways Commission On Trip.

Winnipeg, July 20.—Members of the international waterways commission, including A. Powell of the Canadian and Senator Gardner of the American commission with A. Peters of the irrigation branch of the Canadian department of agriculture and H. Savage of the United States reclamation service, completed an exploration of the St. Mary's river country in Southern Alberta. The trip was made to get data upon which to divide the waters of the St. Mary's and Milk rivers on an equitable international basis.

HINDUS FIGHT POLICE; WIN

HURL COAL AND OTHER MISSILES AT OFFICERS.

Scores Injured by Infuriated Orientals Who Refuse Proffered Provisions.

Vancouver, B. C., July 21.—Scores among a party of 175 policemen and constables were injured, several seriously, in a battle with several hundred Hindus on board the Japanese steamer Komagata Maru in the harbor here. Showers of coal and other missiles rained from the ship on the official force which attempted to board the steamer from a tug. In the face of the fire the attacking party retreated and the attempt to board the steamer temporarily was abandoned.

The Hindus braved the stream from a big hose which the tug turned on them and mercilessly pelted the men on the decks of the tug with lumps of coals. Fire bricks and pieces of iron from what is believed to have been the wreckage of the engine room on the steamer followed. No shot were fired on either side.

Th battle grew out of an attempt to rid the harbor of the Japanese steamer on which 350 Hindus came to this port three months ago only to have the Canadian immigration officials refuse them admission to the country. Their claim of a right to land as British subjects was overruled by the courts and the steamer was ordered to sail with them on board. The Hindus had been rebellious and several times attempted to land, but were prevented.

As the steamer was without provisions the Canadian authorities a day or two ago decided to put sufficient stores on board for the voyage to the Orient, whence the Komagata Maru came. Plans were carefully matured and the tug Sea Lion put out with the provisions and what was deemed to be a sufficient boarding force to overcome any opposition. The 125 city policemen had revolvers and the special constables rifles.

The party in the tug was at the mercy of the Hindus above, as they had no orders to use their fire arms.

URGE JONES TO MAKE REPLY

Supporters of Reserve Board Nominee Want Him to Answer Charges—Caucus Possible.

Washington, July 20.—Democrats of the senate banking and currency committee who favor confirmation of Thomas D. Jones of Chicago, as a member of the federal reserve board have telegraphed Mr. Jones, urging him to answer the report of the majority of the committee, which opposed his confirmation on the ground that he is a director of the International Harvester company, which is under indictment for violation of the Sherman act.

Senators Hollis, Shafroth, Lee and Pomerene, who voted to recommend Mr. Jones' confirmation, sent the telegram and forwarded a copy of the majority report, though it has not been released by the senate. In the meantime the minority report will be delayed and this will postpone any action by the senate on the nomination. It is believed, however, that general discussion on the confirmation will begin Tuesday.

There is considerable informal talk among senators of the advisability of a Democratic caucus of the Jones case.

Mrs. Pankhurst Released From Jail.

London, July 20.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the militant suffragette leader, has again been released from Holloway jail.

Live Stock Law Violated.

Chicago, July 20.—Eight railroads were fined an aggregate of $30,000 by Federal Judge Landis for violation of the law providing that live stock in transit must be fed and watered at least once every 24 hours. The roads penalized were the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, the Chicago & Northwestern, Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, Illinois Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Chicago-Great Western, Grand Trunk and the Chicago & Alton. The government brought 115 suits against these roads.

I Want Some
U.S. CARTRIDGES

Rifle ammunition must act uniformly. If one cartridge goes off quicker than another the velocity will vary and accurate shooting becomes a thing of chance and luck.

The primer is what insures uniformity of explosion. Primers made of fulminate of mercury and ground glass are uncertain because in the mixing of heavy mercury and light glass the force of gravitation is always operating against a perfect mixture.

The U.S. Primer is a strictly chemical combination—not a physical mixture, and it fires with the precision and uniformity of a watch's tick.

The superior uniformity of the non-mercuric primer has led the Government to make only cartridges with this type of primer.

Another thing—mercury eats brass—renders it brittle and unstable. The U.S. primer has no action on brass—does not affect it and is not affected by it. It does not foul a gun barrel.

All these primer advantages give greater accuracy of bullet flight. Practically every important test in recent years open to American ammunition has been won by the U.S. Cartridges.

When you begin to use U.S. Ammunition you may expect a quick improvement in your marksmanship.

Marble Windows.

Remarkably beautiful effects are secured by the use of marble instead of glass. This has been accomplished by a new process which has been devised by an engineer of Hamburg, W. Engle. He has succeeded in making plates of marble no more than three millimetres in thickness and for the use designated it is available up to 20 millimetres thick. The suitability of marble for this purpose was realized some time ago, but the difficulty encountered was that of securing the marble in slabs of sufficient thinness. These plates permit of the passage of a greater amount of light than frosted glass does, and at the same time imparts to the rays a much pleasanter color. Most opal glass imparts to the light an undesirable greenish tinge, while the light which passes through the marble has a reddish violet which is much pleasanter. After the marble has been ground down to the desired thickness it is subjected to an immersion in oil under high pressure, and the effects secured in this manner are said to be superior to those of stained glass.

FACE COVERED WITH PIMPLES—RESINOL CURED

Atlanta, Ga., April 24.—"My face was covered with pimples which defied creams, soaps and cosmetics. They were a source of constant humiliation to me. By the time I had finished a cake of resinol soap and half a jar of resinol ointment, my skin was soft as velvet, and as smooth. My friends were stunned, and everyone asked me what I had done. When I told them, I think they hardly believed it, for the transformation was simply wonderful. Since then I have been using resinol soap and shall never be without it again, for I have learned the delights of a clear, soft, beautiful complexion that may be attained by its constant use." Women's Times of Danger

Women suffer a great deal from kidney diseases. Their indoor life, tight clothing and trying work all tend to weaken the kidneys. Woman's life also includes times of danger that are apt to leave the kidneys weak and to start attacks of backache, headache, dizziness, nervousness and urinary ills.

Prompt treatment, however will avert the danger of dropsy, gravel, or fatal Bright's disease.

Take Doan's Kidney Pills, the best recommended, special kidney remedy. Doan's are used successfully throughout the civilized world—have brought new life and new strength to thousands of tired, discouraged women.

"Every Picture Tells a Story."

A North Dakota Case

Mrs. C. J. Tyler, Cando, N. D., says: "I suffered for years from kidney ailments. My feet and limbs were swollen. I couldn't sleep well and felt tired and weak. My back was lame and any quick move sent sharp pains through me. Doan's Kidney Pills rid me of all these ailments and made my health much better. I am certainly grateful."

BRYAN OUT FOR WOMAN SUFFRAGE; HIS STATEMENT

SECRETARY OF STATE FORMALLY DECLARES HIS POSITION FAVORING FRANCHISE FOR WOMEN.

MEETS MANY ARGUMENTS OFFERED BY OPPOSITION

Nebraskan Would Ask No Political Right Not Given His Wife and Asserts Woman Has Proved Herself Equal to Every Task Imposed Thus Far.

Washington, July 18.—Secretary Bryan, in a formal statement came out for woman suffrage. He declared he would ask no political right for himself that he was not willing to grant his wife, and announced his intention of supporting the proposed state constitutional amendment extending the franchise to women to be voted upon in Nebraska next November.

Woman Proves Herself Capable.

Woman, Mr. Bryan said, has proved herself equal to every responsibility imposed upon her, and would not fail society in this emergency. Above all other arguments in favor of giving her the ballot he placed the right of the mother to a voice in the moulding of the environment of her children.

"The mother," the secretary said, can justly claim the right to employ every weapon which can be made effective for the protection of those whose interests she guards and the ballot will put within her reach all of the instrumentalities of government, including the police power."

Bryan's Argument.

The statement follows in part:

"As man and woman are co-tenants of the earth and must work out their destiny together, the presumption is on the side of equality of treatment in all that pertains to their joint life and its opportunities. The burden of proof is on those who claim for one an advantage over the other in determining the conditions under which both shall live. This claim has not been established in the matter of suffrage.

"The first objection which I remember to have heard was that as woman cannot bear arms she should not have a voice in deciding questions that might lead to war, or in enacting laws that might require an army for their enforcement. This argument is seldom offered now, for the reason that as civilization advances laws are obeyed because they are an expression of public opinion, not merely because they have power behind them.

Might Relieve Monotony.

"Second, it is urged by some that woman's life is already full of care and that the addition of suffrage would either overburden her or turn her attention away from the duties of the home. The answer made to this is that the exercise of the franchise might result in a change of thought and occupation that would relieve the monotony.

"Third, many well meaning men and women affirm that suffrage would work a harm to women by lessening the respect in which she is held. This argument would have more weight had it not been employed against every proposition advanced in favor of the enlargement of woman's sphere. This objection was once raised to the higher education of woman, but it is no longer heard.

Fears Proved Groundless

"These objections, however, honestly advanced, have proven impotent to retard woman's progress. May not the fears sincerely entertained by the opponents of woman suffrage be found to be as groundless as those that once forced the widow in eastern India to ascend the funeral pyre or as those that exclude Mohammedan women from the social benefits and responsibilities which the woman of the Christian world shares?

"And are not the second and third objections above stated refuted, to some extent, at least, by the fact that in the states which have adopted woman suffrage (and in the other nations that have adopted it) there is no agitation for a return to the system under which man has a monopoly of the right to vote? Is it not fair to assume that an effort would be made to correct the mistake if woman suffrage had really failed to give satisfaction to the people where it has been tried?

Rights of Mother Supreme

"The mother can justly claim the right to employ every weapon which can be made effective for the protection of those whose interests she guards, and the ballot will put within her reach all the instrumentalities of government, including the police power.

"Politics will not suffer by woman's entrance into it. If the political world has grown more pure in spite of the evil influences that have operated to debase it, it will not be polluted by the presence and participation of woman.

TRYING TO AVERT RAIL STRIKE

CONTENTIONS OF WESTERN ENGINE CREWS BEING HEARD.

Federal Board of Mediation Investigating Both Sides in Chicago—98 Western Roads Concerned.

Chicago, July 21.—Hearings by the federal board of mediation, conciliation and arbitration to settle the differences between the ninety-eight western railroads and their engine crews have begun here. William L. Chambers, chairman of the board, Federal Judge Martin A. Knapp and G. W. W. Hanger, assistant commissioner, are here using their good offices to obtain the consent of the carriers and their employes to arbitration.

"If the mediators are able to bring about an agreement to arbitrate, I think we can speedily adjust our differences," asserted A. W. Trenholm, chairman of the committee of general managers of the roads. "The managers are hopeful of a settlement without a strike and are willing to do everything in their power to bring it about."

Acceptance of the assistance of the federal board by the employes was to show their willingness to prevent a strike, according to their leaders. They asserted they had no intention to bind themselves in an agreement which would affect future efforts to obtain increased wages.

If the conference with the mediators develops willingness on the part of the railroads to make concessions, it is possible the men will submit the matter to arbitration, one of their officers declared. He asserted action would be taken on the strike vote unless some sort of action favorable to the employes occurs this week.

A member of the railroad managers' committee said the roads would be willing to open negotiations with the men a year from now, when, it was hoped, the carriers would be better off financially. The men replied by declaring the railroads of the west are as prosperous as those of the east, which have given engine crews increased wages and better hours.

STORM WRECKS FIVE SHIPS

All on Coast of Nova Scotia in Storm, No Lives Are Lost, However.

Halifax, N. S., July 21.—Two steamers, two large schooners and a barkentine were wrecked on the Nova Scotia coast in a violent storm which began Saturday and continued Sunday, rain, fog, thunder and lightning accompanying the gale. There was no loss of life, but it is unlikely that any of the wrecked vessels will be saved.

The Cuban steamer Cienfuegos, from Gulfport, with a cargo of hard pine for Sorel and Montreal, struck on Scattarie island on the Cape Breton coast.

The steamer Ragna of Norwegian registry, was wrecked at Balene near Louisburg, C. B. She was bound from Chester, Pa., for St. Anns, C. B., and is supposed to have missed her bearings.

The four-masted schooner, Clarence H. Venner, hailing from Dennis, Mass., went on the rocks near Cape Sable and the American schooner Harold C. Beecher, from New York for Sydney, C. B., struck on the rocks of Scatterie.

GETS THE BETTER OF I. W. W.

Demonstration Well in Hand and Police Deport Rioters—600 Are Intercepted From Entering.

Aberdeen, S. D., July 21.—Police here now have the I. W. W. demonstration well in hand and the rioters are being deported. A large force of men have been busy driving the unemployed out of the city and into the country where they are needed.

Meanwhile the agitators are held in jail and prevented from endeavoring to conduct more street meetings.

The greater number of the men are merely harvesters who have come here for work but have been stirred up to the danger point by agitators. Late Sunday afternoon the train from the south carrying close to 600 men was stopped by a force of policemen two miles out of the city and all of them made to about face and retrace their steps. Batches of twenty are being herded together and dispatched on every train leaving the city. An extra number of deputies were sworn in and the members of the local militia company were summoned to the armory, but were not called out.

Another Has Bubonic Plague.

New Orleans, July 21.—The seventh case of bubonic plague was announced here after health authorities had diagnosed the illness of Philomene Glapoin, a 15 year old girl. She had been employed by a paper company in Front street, within the original focus of the disease. Her home was several blocks away. The girl's condition was said to be serious.

French Balloon Falls; 2 Hurt.

Paris, July 21.—The balloon [illegible], a contestant in the grand prix race, organized by the Aero club of France, crashed into the trees of the Tuileries garden, injuring the pilot. Georges Blanchet, and his aid Duval and causing a panic among thousands of spectators who had gathered in the Place de la Concorde to witness the start. Several persons were slightly injured in the crush; many women fainted, and others were overcome by escaping gas. Duval was injured internally and may die.

KING TAKES HAND IN HOME RULE FIGHT

ENGLISH RULER CALLS PARTY LEADERS FOR DISCUSSION OF SUBJECT.

ALL FACTIONS TO BE PRESENT

Leaders of Opposition Accept Command and But One Warring Note Is Interjected—Conference May Start Today.

London, July 21.—Premier Asquith announces that King George, "in view of the grave political situation, has considered it right to summon a conference of the representatives of the political parties, both British and Irish, to discuss the outstanding points of the problem of Irish government."

The premier added that James Lowther, speaker of the house of commons, would, at his majesty's request, preside over the conferences.

Conference May Begin Today.

The invitations to the conference have been accepted by two representatives each of the regular oppositions, of the Ulster unionists, of the Irish nationalists and of the government.

Premier Asquith said he hoped the meetings of the conference would begin late today.

Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the opposition, on its behalf, remarked that it had "loyally accepted the command of His Majesty."

John Redmond, leader of the Irish nationalists, scarcely appeared to regard the proposed conference as attractive. He said:

"My colleagues and myself take no responsibility for the policy of calling this convention, and I do not think I am called on to express an opinion as to whether the result will prove useful or the contrary. The invitation came to John Dillon and myself in the form of a command from the king and as such we at once obeyed it."

Warring Note Interjected.

Lowrence Gillen, a nationalist member, interjected a warring note into the otherwise peaceful interlude by asking if there was any precedent for the premier advising the king to "place himself at the head of a conspiracy to defeat the wishes of the House."

The question was ignored and the house then proceeded with other business.

The king curtailed his visit to Spithead and returned quickly to London, after reviewing the fleet. He went at once to Bickinham place for the conference.

Ball Players May Strike.

New York, July 21.—Drastic action, possibly a strike or walkout of base-ball players in the American and National leagues, is contemplated by the Baseball Players' fraternity, according to a statement by President Fultz, in case the national commission refuses to accede to the terms of an ultimatum sent it by the fraternity in the case of Player Kraft of the Newark Internationals. Ban Johnson, president of the American league, asserted that if a strike order is obeyed by the players every American league ball park will close its gates, all players' salaries will be stopped and the striking players will be punished

Prohibition Worker Gone Again

Rib Lake, Wis., July 21.—Rev. Louis R. Patmont left here accompanied by Rev. C. L. Milton, of Milwaukee, but their destination will be kept a secret for the present, according to Rev. A. C. Stone, of this place, who volunteered the information. Patmont tells a story of being pursued, hounded and his life threatened while in Detroit, according to Mr. Stone. The reward of $1,000 is claimed by the postmaster of Rib Lake and a newspaper man, who claim to have identified the missing man at the same moment.

Twin City Newspaper Man Disappears.

Butte, July 21.—Chief of Police Jerry Murphy and the newspaper men of this city have been asked to aid in the search for F. C. Faude, a well known newspaper man of Minneapolis who disappeared last Friday evening while with Harry L. Knappen, formerly a Minneapolis newspaper man and former managing editor of the Sentinel of Missoula. Faude and Knappen were waitink to take a southbound Oregon Short Line train for Melrose Mont., for an outing.

Body Not Catherine Winters'.

Chicago, July 21.—Another supposed solution tot he mysterious disappearance of Catherine Winters, 9 years old, daughter of Dr. William A. Winters, of Newcastle, Ind., apparently failed when a body exhumed in the potters' field at Urbana, Ill., was identified by Nicholas Larry as his child.

GET WIRELESS BY BEDSPRING

Eastern Amateur Experiments With a Novel Form of Antennae and Is Successful.

Cyrus H. Fladreaux of Peekskill, N. Y., gives the following interesting account of his experiments with a novel form of antennae for wireless telegraphy:

"There are many things used as antennae to catch the mysterious electric waves which carry our wireless messages through space, and I find that the springs of my bed serve as very efficient antennae. My room is on the second story of my house, and by using these springs as antennae I can easily read the signals sent out every night by the wireless station at Sayville, L. I., although they are not by any means so loud as when I use my outdoor antennae, which are 40 feet above ground, 60 feet long and consists of four wires on spreaders, the wires being two feet apart.

"The bedspring antennae are best for use with nearby high power stations. Sayville, L. I., is about fifty miles from Peekskill. With my outdoor antennae I continually hear the Arlington (Va.) naval station when it sends out the corrected time signals at 11:55 a. m. and at 9:55 p. m.; also the weather reports, Brooklyn navy yard; New London, Conn.; Cape Cod and others, including amateur stations too numerous to mention.

"I have an all-'round good apparatus. I hold a station license and an operator's license, both issued by the United States government. My official call is 2 V U."

One Hundred Years Ago.

The curious modes which women affect now began as far back as 1798, which is a period we should hardly wish to copy in most respects. A dance not at all unlike the tango was in vogue at that time, and had many exponents, who danced in loose bodices opening in a V shape from the shoulders almost to the waist. Skirts were slit and were often made of transparent gauze.

We may return to the gowns of that period, which were without waists, having simply a girdle to the bust, with skirts caught up rather short in front and slightly trained at the back. In 1800 women wore sandals and bare feet. Corset belts were only about two inches wide. Some gowns were caught up to the knee with large cameos. Soon fashion overreached itself and then came crinolines, pointed footgear and unnaturally small waists. Are we coming to this?

Died With Fortune Near.

That Benjamin Vance, prospector, whose body was found in a gully at the base of a 500-foot cliff near Palo Rito pass recently, was killed after locating a rich mineral vein is the belief of S. J. Vance of Tekemah, Neb., his brother. In the prospector's cabin were a number of high-grade ore samples, cached in a secret passageway.—Crestone (Colo.) Dispatch to Denver Post.

THOUGHT SHE COULD NOT LIVE

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Unionville, Mo.—"I suffered from a female trouble and I got so weak that I could hardly walk across the floor without holding on to something. I had nervous spells and my fingers would cramp and my face would draw, and I could not speak, nor sleep to do any good, had no appetite, and everyone thought I would not live. Some one advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had taken so much medicine and my doctor said he could do me no good so I told my husband he might get me a bottle and I would try it. By the time I had taken it I felt better. I continued its use, and now I am well and strong.

"I have always recommended your medicine ever since I was so wonderfully benefitted by it and I hope this letter will be the means of saving some other poor woman from suffering."—Mrs. MARTHA SEAVEY, Box 1144, Unionville, Missouri.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as that above — they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger — it has stood the test for years.

If there are any complications you do not understand write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

London Has Ambulances.

London, which has never yet had an ambulance, has at last ordered six of them, and expects them to do all the work for the entire city. In case of past accidents the policemen have had to commandeer the nearest wagon, depending on the generosity of the driver, as they were not able to offer him anything.

Lots of people would rather send a dollar to the heathen than give the poor at home a pleasant look.

Beachy To fly at Pennington County Fair, August 6 7.

The officers of the county fair have made arrangements with Lincoln Beachy the worlds greatest living birdman, for two areoplane flights daily at the county fair grounds on the last two days of the fair, August 6 and 7.

Beacoy at one time retired from flying and it was not until Pergault the French aviator, startled the world by looping the loop in an areoplane that Beachy re-entered the game and outrivaled the Frenchman by his dardevil up side down flying. His appearance at this years county fair will be without question, one of the greatest fair attractions ever staged in the north west,

The fair grounds have been wired and electric lighted and will be as light as electricity can make it for the after supper entertainment. From now until the opening of the fair a man will be kept busy leveling and surfacing the race track inorder to have it in perfect condition.

All attractions or stands of any kind will be kept inside of the fair grounds inclosure and the streets of the city will be kept entirely free from oestacles during the entire three days.—Thief River Falls News Press

PENNINGTON COUNTY FAIR

At Thief RiverFalls, Aug. 5, 6 and 7th. Four Areoplane Flights.

The Pennington County Fair will be held at Thief River Falls Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week. The management is putting considerable more money into premiums, purses and attractions, than ever before and the fair will this year be one of the best in the state.

The attraction of two daily flights by Beachy in his Wright areoplane should be worth many times the price of admission. Beachy proved to be the chief attraction at the Winnepeg Fair a week ago, and tho he was not engaged for the last day the management paid $1,800.00 to have him remain as they feared the final day would be a failure without him.

The officials of the Penneington County fair have followed in the footsteps of the Minnesota State fair and have designated the first day of the fair, Wednesday, August, 5th, as "Childrens Day. On that day all children between the ages of 6 and 15 years, if accompanied by parents will be admitted to the grounds free.

Thursday, August 6th, has been designated as Thief River Falls Day, and Friday as Salesmen's Day. In order to made the closing day fully as good as the two previous days special automobile and horse races have been arranged for and a base ball game between Warren and Thief River Falls.

SQUATTING ON MUD LAKE

Lake Bottom Blossoms into Settlement in a Single Day.

Local Lumberman Has Plutarchic Air Since Tuesday's Business.

The sun rose on schedule time Tuesday but thot it must surely be several hours late when it took a look at the town. Instead of the scene of peaceful restfulness he expected he gazed upon a chaos. A seething turbulent mob surrounded Paynes lumber yard and Dave himself, covered with what part of his regular apparel he had managed to don between his domicile and the lumber yard looked on with a satisfied smile Book and pencil in hand he stood and as one after the other would break away from the crowd and with a couple of scantlings and a board or two on his rig head eastward, Dave would make a charge of material for "One Lake Residence" and hurriedly turn a leaf to catch the next.

By the usual rising time the town and "Goldsmith's Deserted Village" looked off the boards and the highway leading to Mud Lake would lead one to think there was a repetition of the Oklahoma land rush.

Banker merchant, hotelman, and drayman, they all had the fever and each armed with hammer, saw and a pocket full of nails hurried eastward. By sunset the wilderness of [illegible] had become a settlement. Tis maybe true that some of the structures would look somewhat out of place on Lowry Hill but the proud erectors of same would assure you of their good intentions.

The cause of it all; last fall the goverment had the Lake surveyed and the first of the week filed the plat at the Crookston Land office. This caused the report to be cirulated that it would be thrown open for settlement as free homestead and that squatters would have previous fileing privelege, thus the stampede.

The settlers along the shore had been claiming the lake bottom and had taken the matter into District Court to obtain title. When the survey was made some of the settlers found that there were instances where the actual lake shore line and the meandering line run by the surveyor did not coincide and as a result their buildings were out in the lake according to Uncle Sam As a result some of the squatters find themselves possessed for the present with land already containing buildings and fields of ripening grain. This will undoubtedly mean work for the court and lawyers for some time to come. In the mean time the squatters are at work trying to make their structures look habitable

One prospective lake bottom farmer had posted his notices and returned for building material, but when he got back found his future farm taken possession of by a young lady who sat there under a parasol with a rifle across her lap He was going to argue the matter but she impressed him with her determination to stay and he retired.

Mrs. C. L Heinze returned last Friday from Norway after several Months absence. She reports a very enjoyable visit.

John Stanley arrived from Thief River Falls to assist J B Alkenbrack in the erection of his dwelling house on his land adjoining the townsite.

Mr. and Mrs. Kolden, P. L. Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Backe took in the Ringling Bros. circus at Grand Forks last Saturday making the trip in Backe's car

Henry Oien, Ludvig Munson Ed Davidson and E. M. Silbaugh autoed to Thief River Falls last Friday. Oien and Munson went down to look up some fixtures for their new meat market which they intend to open up in the near future.

Axel Nelson and S. J. Svenkeson returned from Mud Lake Tuesday for a few days layoff, as they could not stand the excitement now raging on the Mud Lake Bottom.

Hog cholera made its first appearance in this vicinity this week at Wandt's, Erickson's and W. A. Silbaugh. It was reported to the State Veterinary who promised relief at once.

AUSTRIA BEGINS WAR ON SERVIA; POWERS ANXIOUS

FIRST BLOW BELIEVED STRUCK WITHOUT FORMAL DECLARATION BEING ISSUED.

FEARED MANY NATIONS MAY BECOME INVOLVED

Iron-Clad Censorship Causes Secrecy About All Movements—Developments Are Regarded as Very Grave—Possibility of General Conflict.

London, July 28.—Late developments appear to furnish new proofs that Austria is fully determined to make war on Servia and the possibilities of a general European war seem greater than have ever confronted the present generation. The Servian reply to the Austro-Hungarian ultimatum was an acceptance of almost all the imperious demands, except that Austrian officials shall participate in the investigation and fix the responsibility for the anti-Austrian propaganda.

Servia Proposes Hague.

Servia proposed an appeal to the powers at The Hague for the settlement of that feature. Notwithstanding this humiliating surrender, which was more than Europe expected of the proud little nation, the Austrian government gave the Servian minister his passports which may be construed as a virtual declaration of war. Austria committed an act of war by arresting the chief of Servian general staff, General Putnik, near Budapest, but he was soon released by the emperor's direct command.

A formal declaration of war is not expected because Servia is not a party to The Hague convention, which requires this. The suspension of all parliamentary and judicial institutions has been decreed in Austria and an iron-clad censorship has drawn a cordon of secrecy around the country, so that the outside world is in complete ignorance of everything happening there, except what the government wants the world to know.

War Even Now?

Even now the Austrian armies may be closed in upon Servia and launching a sudden blow, as Japan did when she sent her fleet against the Russian ships without warning.

While Austria announces "a part mobilization" the Austrian ambassador at London has issued a significant notice to all Austrians liable for military service to return home. The only possibility of averting war at the eleventh hour, which Austria recognizes is that Servia shall reconsider her reply to the Austrian note and bow to all the demands. Even then Austria proposes to exact payment for all her expenses in connection with her military measures.

Russia Is Looked To.

The question as to whether Russia will take up arms to save her Slav protege from a crushing blow is the crucial feature of the situation on which the peace of all Europe hinges.

The same degree of secrecy which Austria has imposed has been established in Russia, also, therefore it cannot be known what military preparations are in progress there. The Russian government has permitted messages to go forth quoting the St. Petersburg papers as considering intervention inevitable and demanded by the popular sentiment.

Germany has informed the other powers that she considers that the Austro-Servian quarrel concerns those nations alone. If any other power takes it up she declares, serious consequences must follow.

FRENCH DISCUSS WAR STAND

Paris, July 28.—The French cabinet took under consideration the Austro-Servian trouble, several of the 12 members present having been summoned by telegraph from the country. Prior to the meeting, the war minister, Adolphe Messimy, conferred with General Joffre, chief of the general staff, General Michel, military governor of Paris and the minister of the interior, Louis Malvy.

The war will be looked upon, if it comes, as a terrible day for hundreds of thousands of men. It is not now known whether they will receive the order for mobilization.

The question of war is the principal topic of discussion in the boulevard cafes and all classes of Parisians are taking an absorbing interest in developments.

Caillaux Trial Is Stirring.

Paris, July 27.—The chief judge challenging on of his colleagues to a duel, the reading of the "mysterious" letters which were supposed to affect the case so profoundly, and the physical collapse in court of Mme. Caillaux were the three incidents which Saturday stirred the emotions in connection with the trial of Mme. Caillaux for the murderof Gaston Calmette. A peculiarly French atmosphere was lent to the affair by the quarrel of the judges. The exact cause has not been ascertained.

COLONEL BEGINS TO PREPARE DEFENSE

ENGAGES LAW FIRM TO CONDUCT HIS CAUSE IN $50,000 LIBEL SUIT.

ALSO RENEWS HIS ATTACKS

Roosevelt's Statement on Which Complaint Is Based—Allegation of Political Leader.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 27.—Theodore Roosevelt, after renewing his attack on William Barnes, Republican state chairman, has begun the work of preparing his legal defense in the $50,000 libel suit begun against him by Mr. Barnes, as a result of the colonel's recent statement alluding to the chairman and Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany hall.

Calls It "Boss Rule."

In that statement the former president attacked so-called "boss rule," in state politics and favored the candidacy of former State Senator Harvey D. Hinman for governor.

Col. Roosevelt engaged to defend him the New York law firm, Bowers and Sands, which acted for him in the trial last year of his libel suit against the Michigan publisher who charged him with being an inebriate.

Colonel Makes Statement.

Colonel Roosevelt said he regarded the action of Mr. Barnes as the most striking proof that could be given that the bosses recognize in him personally the one enemy that the type of machine government for which they stand has to fear.

Part of Colonel Roosevelt's statement on which Mr. Barnes bases his complaint, is as follows:

"In this campaign I have a duty to the Progressives of the nation and a duty also to the state of New York. In national politics, insofar as I am able, I shall endeavor to strive for the success of the principles embodied in the Progressive national platform. Therefore I shall oppose the policies of the present administration, which I regard as deeply injurious alike to the honor and the interest of the American people.

Duty in State.

"But in this state the prime duty is a good citizens' movement—a union movement to save the state from the bipartizan control of Messrs. Barnes and Murphy, precisely like the good citizens' movement last year, when by union the city was saved from the domination of Mr. Murphy. I hope with all my heart that all independent citizens, whether Progressives, Republicans or Democrats in their national affiliations, will stand shoulder to shoulder for clean non-partizan government in the state at large this fall.

"In New York state we see at its worst the development of the state of bipartizan boss rule. The outcome of this system is necessarily that invisible government which the Progressive party was in large part founded to oppose. It is impossible to secure the economic, social and industrial reforms to which we are pledged until this invisible government of the party bosses, working through the alliance between crooked business and crooked politics, is rooted out of our government system. In New York state the two political machines are completely dominated, the one by Mr. Barnes, the other by Mr. Murphy. The state government is rotten throughout in almost all of its departments; and this is directly due to the domination in politics of Mr. Murphy and his sub-bosses, acting through such entirely subservient agents as Governors Dix and Glynn, aided and abetted when necessary by Mr. Barnes and the sub-bosses of Mr. Barnes.

Calls Two Alike.

"Mr. Murphy and Mr. Barnes are of exactly the same moral and political type. Not one shadow of good comes from substituting one for the other in the control of our government. Not one shadow of good comes from perpetuating a government seesaw with first one of them and then the other at the upper end of the plank while the function of the people of the state is limited to serving as a trestle across which the plank is laid.

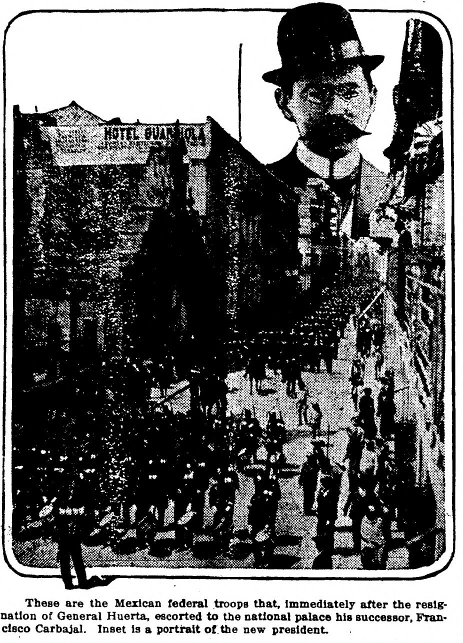
"The interests of Mr. Barnes and Mr. Murphy are fundamentally identical, and when the issue between popular rights and corrupt and machine ruled government is clearly drawn, the two bosses always will be found fighting on the same side openly or covertly, giving each other such support as can with safety be rendered. These bosses do not hold public office themselves. They act through the holders of public office whom they control. Yet they really form the all powerful invisible government which is responsible for the maladministration and corruption in the public offices of the state."

The Barnes' Complaint.

Mr. Barnes' complaint asserts the references to the plaintiff contained in the statement were libelous, false and untrue.

"The defendant published said statement maliciously, and with intent thereby to injure the plaintiff, and without lawful cause, and for the purpose of defaming and injuring the legitimate political influence and activity of the plaintiff in the performance of his duty of citizenship," the complaint adds. "By reason thereof plaintiff has been damaged in the sum of $50,000.

HUERTA QUITS, CARBAJAL IS PRESIDENT



These are the Mexican federal troops that, immediately after the resignation of General Huerta, escorted to the national palace his successor, Francisco Carbajal. Inset is a portrait of the new president.

ORDER IN MEXICO IS ASSURED

FOUR IMPORTANT LEADERS BEING BROUGHT INTO HARMONY.

Encouraging Messages Are Received by Washington of Progress Already Made.

Washington, July 27.—Official advices reveal that the Washington administration is meeting with success in bringing Provisional President Carbajal, General Carranza, General Villa and General Zapata into harmony for the restoration of peace in Mexico.

From these four leaders—representing all the factions concerned in the establishment of a stable government—came encouraging messages in answer to the counsel and advice which the United States has been lending through its numerous consular and diplomatic agents to smooth the way to a complete agreement.

General Zapata, about whom little has been known hitherto, answered a communication sent indirectly to him, promising to co-operate with the Constitutionalists in the work of pacification. It became known also that two emissaries from General Carranza to General Zapata were due in Vera Cruz and would explain to the southern military leader the concessions and reforms planned by the Constitutionalist chief.

Officials were confident an amicable understanding would be reached and did not attribute any significance to the activity of the roving Zapatista bands in the vicinity of Mexico City.

General Carranza, through the American consuls accompanying him, sent renewed assurances of his friendliness for the United States and indicated that he would make satisfactory arrangements concerning the amnesty and guarantees desired by the Carbajal government.

HINDUS ARE AGAIN IN REVOLT

Seize Vessel, Drown Crew and Hold Immigration Officers Hostages.

Vancouver, B. C., July 21.—There are rumors afloat that the Hindus have again taken possession of steamer Komagata Maru, that they have gotten rid of the crew and that four members of the crew have been drowned. Up to the present there had been no means of verifying these statements.

It is further stated that two immigration officials are aboard the Komagata Maru, whose names cannot be ascertained and that they are being held as hostages.

The Sixth Regiment has been called out and is now patrolling the wharves, while the inlet is being patrolled and search lights played around on the waters.

Huerta Now in Jamaica.

Kingston, Jamaica, July 25.—General Huerta and the party of fugitives from Mexico accompanying him, arrived here on board the German cruiser Dresden, from Puerto Mexico.

Roosevelt Will Hurry Suit.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 25.—The reply of Colonel Roosevelt to the $50,000 libel suit of William Barnes was an attack on the Republican state chairman and a promise to help the suit forward. Colonel Roosevelt said he would not be deterred from attacking Mr. Barnes by the suit, but on the contrary would assail him the harder. He expressed the hope that he would have the opportunity to take the stand against Mr. Barnes before election.

"I'll do all I can to help hurry it," he said.

4 KILLED, 60 HURT IN DUBLIN AFFRAY

SEVEN MORE WILL DIE AS RESULT OF SOLDIERS FIRING INTO CROWD.

ARMS SHIPMENT IS CAUSE

Regulars Sent to Intercept Consignment of Munitions—Meet With Resistance—Bottles and Stones Hurled By Mob—Nationalists Are Wildly Excited.

Dublin, July 27.—Three men and one woman are dead and more than 60 persons are in the hospital, wounded as the result of a battalion of the King's Own Scottish oBrderers firing into a mob in the streets of Dublin. Seven of the wounded are expected to die. Among them are three women and a boy of ten.

Cause of Affray.

The affray was the result of a gun running exploit of the Nationalist volunteers who were being aided by a mob composed largely of women and youths. A consignment of rifles, said to number 10,000 rifles, was landed at Howth, nine miles from Dublin, from a private yacht.

The Nationalist volunteers cut the telegraph wires and stopped travel on the Dublin roads and, according to reports, sent away most of the rifles, together with 70,000 rounds of ammunition in motor cars.

Ordered to Capture Arms.

A battalion of the King's Own Scottish Borderers was ordered to capture the arms when the authorities heard the volunteers were bringing them into the city.

The soldiers encountered a detachment of volunteers at Clonmell bridge and an outbreak resulted, but there was no shooting. Soon a great crowd collected and followed the troops jeering them and cheering for John Redmond, the Nationalist leader, and home rule.

Finally the mob began throwing bottles and stones, injuring several soldiers. To this attack the battalion replied with a scattered fusillade. In an instant the street was covered with wounded, while terrified men, women and children ran in all directions.

Battle Near Hospital.

St. Juras hospital is situated only 200 yards from the scene of the affray and the wounded were quickly taken there, where four of them died. The soldiers and police seized 100 rifles from the volunteers.

Excited crowds filled the streets of Dublin, some of the men carrying rifles. The Borderers are confined to barracks to prevent the people from attacking them.

Prominent Man Hurt.

Among those seriously wounded is M. J. Judge, a prominent officer of the Nationalist volunteers.

Won't Recognize S. D. Law.

Washington, July 25.—The Richards primary law, designed by the South Dakota legislature to "let the people rule," and select their own postmasters, will not be recognized by Postmaster General Burleson. At the White House today the postoffice head said that he did not consider the law anything other than an experiment and that he could not recognize its provisions. The appeal made to the president by the South Dakota postmasters has been forwarded to the postmaster general.

SAME AS DECLARATION OF WAR

SERB MINISTER ASKED TO QUIT VIENNA.

Russian Ambassador to Act Instead—First Encounter Near Semendria.

Vienna, July 28.—No declaration of war has been issued and it is believed that none will be since Servia never subscribed to The Hague convention.

Equivalent to Declaration.

The sending of his passports to the Servian minister, M. Jovanovitch, by the Austrian foreign office, however, is deemed equivalent to a declaration of war. This action was taken Sunday the report that the Servian minister had left Vienna Saturday having been incorrect.

M. Jovanovitch left immediately. In his absence the Russian ambassador will take charge of Servian interests.

There were patriotic demonstrations throughout the day, although a heavy rain was falling.

Great crowds gathered in front of the war office and cheered the officers who appeared. Processions with flags flying, filled the streets.

A general mobilization in Montenegro is reported.

Italy Makes Announcement.

Italy has informed Austria that in event of armed conflict with Servia she will adopt a friendly attitude in accordance with her relations with the triple alliance.

Proclamations have been posted ordering partial mobilization.

The Austro-Hungarian bank has raised the bank rate from 4 to 5 per cent and the committee of the bourse has decided to close the bourse today. The committee explains that its decision was actuated by regard for the public interests, to prevent an unwarranted disturbance of industrial interests and to counteract disquieting reports.

The Neue Freie Presse says the minister of finance will raise $6,000,000 for the government's immediate requirements and adds that negotiations between the powers for the localizing of the conflict will continue.

Imperial Decree.

The imperial decree issued Saturday gives the government enormous powers to ensure the secrecy of its measures. The authorities are entitled to open all letters. Only telegrams approved by the censor can be dispatched to any point.

Newspapers publishing details of military preparations or movements can be suppressed. All the railways are guarded by sentries with orders to use their arms on any person who fails to stop when commanded.

The prospect of war is not regarded here as child's play. The Servians put 400,000 men into the field during the Balkan wars. Both officers and men are passionately patriotic.

According to a Semlin rumor the first encounter between Austria and Servia has occurred near Semendria on the Danube, 24 miles southeast of Belgrade.

Some vessels conveying Austrian infantry were said to have been fired on from the Servian side of the Danube and to have returned the fire.

MOBILIZE RESERVISTS IN U. S.

Austrian Envoy Thinks 200,000 Countrymen Here Will Respond to Call to Colors.

Manchester, Mass., July 28.—Dr. Constantin Theodor Dumba, ambassador from Austria-Hungary, to the United States, yesterday instructed consuls in this country to order all Austro-Hungarian reservists whose whereabouts are known, to prepare to return to the army, in event war is declared with Servia. The ambassador, who is at his summer home here, expressed the opinion that war was imminent.

To Order Mobilization.

"I am now expecting official notice," he said, "that war has been declared. When this comes I shall order a general mobilization of all my countrymen up to the age of 42 in the United States for their return to Austria. I think there are about 200,000 Austrians and Hungarians in the United States.

"The only instructions I have received were that Servia's answer to our demands was unsatisfactory and that diplomatic relations had been severed."

5,000 Mile Burro Trip.

Mitchell, S. D., July 27.—On a trip de luxe on the hurricane deck of a Mexican burro, W. E. Barnard, afflicted with tuberculosis, of Fullerton, Cal., is expected to reach his former home in Mitchell in May or June of next year. "Barney," as he is better known in both his native city of Mitchell and his California home, is making a 5,000 mile journey. It will be camp life for him for the next 13 or 14 months.

Lake Steamer Strikes Rock.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., July 27.—From meagre dispatches received here it is learned that the steamer Huron, plying during the tourist season between Toledo, Ohio, and Sault Ste. Marie, by way of the Georgian bay route, struck a rock near Little Current, and is slowly sinking. Her passenger list was full this trip, but all were safely put ashore. Arrangements are being made to transfer them by rail to Sault Ste. Marie and thence by steamer to Lake Erie. The Huron left the Soo Thursday night.

With hot weather comes the worst skin suffering for some folks. Eczema, hives, heat-rash, insect-bites, poison oak or ivy, sunburn, chafing, and a dozen other troubles make life unendurable. But YOU needn't worry. That soothing, antiseptic resinol ointment stops itching and burning instantly, allays inflammation, and soon restores the skin to perfect health, even in severe, stubborn cases. Doctors have prescribed resinol ointment for 19 years. At all druggists'.—Adv.

His Wife the Hand Laundry.

The hungry tramp told his tale. It touched the kind heart of the lady of the house. He ate the food she gave him and started wearily on his way.

"And how," said she, sympathetically, "did the hand laundry you were managing come to fail on you?"

He glanced around, it might be as if he suspected the dog were within call. Then passing out and closing the gate, he said: "She quit and went home to her mother."—Kansas City Star.

In Lunnon.

Mr. Dennis Drew, a well-known actor-barytone, was telling the other day a story of the Wells-Carpentier fight, which, it will be remembered, lasted exactly 73 seconds.

Two "nuts" met at the club. Said one: "Were you at the fight last night?"

"Oh, yes," drawled the other, "but I was rather bored, and I did not stay to the end."

Kerosene for the Hands.

Kerosene will clean your hands better than anything else after blacking a range or stove. Pour a little in the water, wash your hands in it, then wash them in tepid water, and finally with plenty of soap and a stiff nail brush in hot water. Finish up by rubbing the hands with lemon juice, rosewater or glycerine.

WOULD BREAK PASTOR'S WILL

Action Started in Scott and Rock Counties—Undue Influence Is Charged.

Belle Plaine.—Action has been started in Scott and Rock county courts to break the will of Monsignor Thomas C. Kennedy, pastor of the Church of the Sacred Heart at Belle Plaine, for forty-five years.

The estate of the priest, valued at $350,000, is bequeathed to his brother-in-law, Dr. Gerald R. Meloney, who, for forty years, was a practising physician at Belle Plaine.

The only other bequests are:

The House of the Good Shepherd, St. Paul, $1,000.

Little Sisters of the Poor, St. Paul, $500.

Little Sisters of the Poor, Minneapolis, $500.

Trustees of St. Benedict academy, Stearns county, $500.

St. Thomas college, $1,000.

The complainants are Frank and Kate Kennedy, Luverne; Bridget Loughman, Hollyford, Ireland; Margaret and George Voyer, Louise Kennedy, Ellen and C. R. Bancroft, Anaconda, Mont.; Mary and Francis Harper and Hannah Kennedy, Tinley Park, Ill.; Frank and Ellen Kennedy, Los Angeles; Thomas and Lena Kennedy, San Francisco and several other heirs living in Ireland.

The charge is that undue influence was exercised by the doctor upon Monsignor Kennedy.

A RECORD FOR ATTENDANCE

Miss Julia Rue of Rushford Hasn't Missed Day at School in 14 Years.

Rushford.—Miss Julia Rue has made a remarkable record for school attendance, and one believed to be without an equal, not only in Minnesota, but in the United States.

Miss Rue commenced school when 6 years of age, being at that time unable to speak a word of English. She went through all the grades, the high school here, and then took up work at the Winona normal for two years, afterwards teaching two years at Warren, Minn., and in all that time, fourteen years, has never missed a day.

It has been said that she had never been tardy during the fourteen years; however, Miss Rue explains that this is not the case. She admits, even glories in having been tardy once or twice during that time. Miss Rue is now 20 years of age. She is an instructor in the Warren school.

Miss Rue holds the record, so far as can be ascertained, for school attendance. Miss Ethel Wicks of Waukegan, Ill., was a few years ago proclaimed as the champion student, attending school through the grades and high school and never missing a day, but Miss Rue goes her "a few better," having a fourteen-year record.

KILLED WITH STONE; NO CLUE

Unidentified Man Is Found Murdered in Field Near Town of Melrose.

Melrose.—A dead man was found in a pasture two and a half miles west of Melrose. The body bore evidence of foul play. The skull was crushed. A bloody stone nearby is supposed to have been the weapon used. It was the only clue found.

The murder is believed to have been committed several days before. There was nothing on the body to identify the murdered man. He was about 40 years of age wore a blue suit, gray cap, was 5 feet 2 inches tall and had black hair. He is supposed to have been a man seeking work in the harvest fields.

A piece of expensive toilet soap wrapped in a Sunday magazine was the only thing found on his person. The body was buried immediately following the coroner's inquest.

MINNESOTA LABOR MEN ELECT

Federation Also Adopts Resolution Against Prohibition and County Option.

Duluth, Minn., July 24.—E. G. Hall of Minneapolis was re-elected president of the Minnesota State Federation of Labor at the closing session of the annual convention here last night.

G. W. Lawson, Duluth, was elected secretary treasurer and Winona was chosen as the next meeting place.

The resolution against prohibition, which was returned to the committee for reconsideration after a stormy debate, was introduced again, still retaining the stand against national and state prohibition and county option. It was passed by a decisive majority, the big fight expected on it failing to materialize.

Gophers Take Many Prizes.

Fargo.—Minnesotans shared generously in the live stock awards at the North Dakota state fair. Lewis Hansen of Kragness, Minn., took third place for stallions four years or more. With twenty-two Berkshires on exhibition, the Farmer farm of Farmington, Minn., captured five firsts, five seconds, four thirds and four fourths. H. A. Berenthal of Wyckoff, Minn., had thirty-six head of Chester Whites on exhibit, and his entries took twelve firsts, eight seconds, four thirds and two champion ribbons.

POPULATION OF STATES GIVEN

Federal Department of Commerce Says 109,021,922 People are Living Under Flag.

Washington.—The population of Minnesota July 1 is estimated at 2,213,919; that of North Dakota, 686,986; Wisconsin, 2,446,716; Montana, 432,614; Iowa, 2,221,755; South Dakota, 661,583.

The above information is in a bulletin of the United States department of commerce just issued. This is a gain of 138,211 since the federal census of 1910 or nearly 6.3 per cent.

There were 109,021,922 persons living within the territory embraced by the United States on July 1, 1914, the bulletin states.

The population of the United States in 1910 was 101,748,269, so there has been a gain in population estimated at more than 7,000,000 in the last four years.

The population of the forty-eight states of the union and the District of Columbia in 1914 is given as 98,781,324, whereas in 1910 it was 91,972,266.

The estimated population of northwestern states on July 1, 1914, and the population on April 15, 1910, are given in this table:

	Population estimated July 1, 1914	Census Apr. 15, 1910
Idaho	395,407	325,594
Iowa	2,221,755	2,224,771
Michigan	2,876,030	2,810,173

SHIPS TURN ASIDE; SAVE DOG

Three Lake Superior Steamers Go Out of Course to Rescue Pet From Drowning.

Duluth.—Scott Worden is the master of the lake steamer W. K. Bixby, and his dog, a pedigreed bull terrier, came up for a trip on the voyage ending here Wednesday. On the steamer was the owner, Maurice McMillan and his wife, and the dog, named Tige, was a prime favorite. While the Bixby was in White Fish Bay, headed for Duluth, Tige fell overboard. Before the swiftly moving vessel could be turned it had forged two miles ahead, but came around and headed back to the rescue.

Some distance behind the Bixby was the steamer T. F. Cole, also upbound, and fearing that the Cole might run the dog down, Captain Worden signalled the Cole to swing out, which she did, going away to the south.

A Northern Navigation company's passenger steamer, headed down, was also signalled to turn and she went north. The passengers thought that a man had fallen overboard and crowded the rail to see the rescue.

The Bixby presently sighted Tige, swimming bravely but nearly exhausted. A boat was lowered and sailors lifted the fighting dog to safety. Then the steamers tooted and proceeded.

FAIR FREE TO OLD SOLDIERS

G. A. R. Buttons or Badges Will Admit Them to State Show.

Hamline.—A G. A. R. button or a badge will admit free at any gate and any day at the coming Minnesota State Fair. The officers of this Association have so decided.

Thursday, Sept. 10, will be "Grand Army" and "Old Settlers' Day." The 27th annual reunion of the State Veteran Association will occur at this time in the Art building at 2 p. m. A roster will be kept at the Old Log Cabin," where veterans will register. Comrades from other states are welcome.

BOLT KILLS UNKNOWN MAN

Severe Bemidji Electrical Storm Does Considerable Property Damage.

Bemidji.—At the height of one of the severest electrical rain storms ever experienced here, an unidentified young man who sought shelter in the lake dock bandstand, was struck by lightning and killed Wednesday. On his body was found a notebook bearing the name "James Dale."

The rainfall in three hours' time amounted to 4.15 inches. The storm crippled the electric light plant.

The house of Andrew Dahl on the lake shore was struck and plastering was torn off and other damage done.

Spreader Crushes Out Child's Life.

Redwood Falls.—Florence Olsen, 7-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Olsen of this city, fell beneath the wheels of a manure spreader which Chris Peterson, a farm hand was driving. Her head was crushed and she died instantly.

SON KILLED AS WAS FATHER

Mahnomen Man Struck by Lightning as Was Sire Two Years Ago.

Mahnomen.—John Flicek, 25 years old, was killed by lightning while working on the road.

One of his horses was knocked down and the shoes torn from its feet, but neither horse was injured.

Flicek's father was killed by lightning at New Prague two years ago.

CELEBRATE NEW DIRECT LINE

Minneapolis Business Men Get Acquainted With Those Along Dan Patch Extension to Mankato.

Mankato.—That the business men of Minneapolis, Mankato and intermediate towns might become better acquainted, and at the same time celebrate the establishment of a thorough and direct line of communication between Minneapolis and those cities, an excursion to Mankato was made Thursday, under the auspices of the trade extension committee of the Minneapolis Civic and Commerce association over the Dan Patch line.

Up until July 1, when the Dan Patch line took a lease of the tracks of the Great Western railway from Faribault to Mankato, there was no direct route to this city, the fourth largest in the state, Madison Lake, Elysian, Waterville and Morristown except via St. Paul. As a result of this, freight rates from Minneapolis to the points named, were from nine-tenths of 1 cent to 3 cents per hundred pounds higher than the rates from St. Paul to the same destinations, by reason of the longer haul. The rates are now on a parity with those of St. Paul.

It was to celebrate the opening of this new artery of trade that the excursion was made.

Committees in Northfield, Faribault, Madison Lake, Elysian, Waterville, Morristown and Mankato entertained and welcomed the visitors.

SUFFRAGISTS WILL ADVERTISE

Movies Will Be Novel Method at State Fair for Booming Cause.

Hamline.—Motion pictures are to be called into service by suffragists of Minnesota to advertise their cause and raise funds for advancing its interests. They will install and conduct a movie show on the pike at the Minnesota State Fair here in September.

The Women's Welfare League of St. Paul will assist the Minnesota Woman Suffrage association in the venture.

The State Fair board has given the space for the show, with the understanding that 35 per cent of the gross receipts will be given to the fair. It will cost $400 to open and operate the "votes for women" entertainment.

The program will include a suffrage play, "What Eighty Million Women Want," the only film story in which Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst has ever appeared, based on a story of New York politics; moving pictures of the St. Paul and Minneapolis suffrage demonstrations on May 2 and one other woman's rights play.

The women will distribute literature in the audiences, get signed memberships for organizations, and signatures for a petition to be presented to the legislature.

Women in automobiles with megaphones will tour the grounds, advertising their attraction.

GAME PROTECTION DISTRICTS

Commission Divides the State for Supervision Purposes—Forty-Five Wardens Appointed.

St. Paul.—Minnesota is now divided into five game protection districts, each district in charge of a member of the state game and fish commission. The object of the new plan is to bring the commissioners into more intimate touch with the actual work of their body and to exercise more careful supervision of the activities of the game wardens.

The commission, at its meeting yesterday appointed forty-five game wardens, who will be placed on the payroll Aug. 1. The funds of the commission are exhausted, but an appropriation of $80,000 will be available.

The monthly payroll of the wardens amounts to $3,150.

TAXES SHOW BIG DECREASE

Drop in Returns Shown by Winona County Rolls in Spite of New Statute.

Winona.—Definite figures are not available, but at the Winona county auditor's office assessments have been so far reviewed that it is certain there will be heavy decreases in both real and personal tax returns.

The personal property assessment outside the city of Winona increased $17,000, as compared with last year, but this will be wiped away with the personal returns from the city, which will show a decrease of $160,000. In the city the decrease on real estate is $170,000, as compared with 1913.

In the townships and villages the decrease also will be heavy.

Minnesota Congressman Sails.

Washington.—As a national delegate to the international interparliamentary union, to be held at Stockholm, Sweden, on Aug. 19, Representative Steenerson of Minnesota, accompanied by his wife, has just sailed from New York on the steamer Celtic. As a member of the committee on postoffices of the house, Mr. Steenerson may conclude to go to Madrid, Spain, in September, to attend the session of the Universal Postal union, before he returns to this country.

U. S. AGAIN TO AID IN CROP MOVEMENT

$34,000,000 IS FEDERAL FUND SET ASIDE FOR THIS PURPOSE.

MORE IF DEEMED NECESSARY

Money Will Be Deposited in Country's National Banks This Fall—Replies Received Show Promise of Business Improvement.

Washington, July 28.—Money from the federal treasury will be deposited in National banks throughout the country again this fall to facilitate the movement of crops and promote business generally.

McAdoo Makes Announcement.

Secretary McAdoo announces that he will put out approximately $34,000,000 and that he stands ready to increase the amount to any extent necessary to meet the country's needs.

The secretary's estimate of what will be needed is based upon replies from five thousand National banks to a recent treasury department circular asking whether any unusual demand for money was expected this year and for what purposes.

Inaugurated Last Year.

Last year the department inaugurated the custom of distributing funds in the crop handling centers, depositing about $35,000,000 of the $50,000,000 Secretary McAdoo had decided to use for the purpose.

A statement from the department says, in part:

"These replies (from the national banks) have been carefully analyzed and fully confirm the optimistic bulletins of the prospects for unusually large crops. They also indicate a decided promise of greatly improved business conditions and enlarged business activities throughout the country.

Consensus of Opinion.

The consensus of opinion of the bankers is that it will be of great benefit to the crop movement and to business generally if the secretary will deposit government funds in the leading cities of the country as was done last year.

"The replies indicate that government funds will not be needed in the New England and Eastern states and in certain states in the West and Northwest and in California.

Bankers in the following cities expressed the opinion that no government deposits will be needed in their localities during the crop moving season:

Won't Need Funds.

"Cleveland, Columbus and Cincinnati, Ohio; Indianapolis, Ind.; Minneapolis and Duluth, Minn.; Milwaukee, Wis.; Portland, Ore.; San Francisco and Los Angeles, Cal.; Tacoma, Wash.; Salt Lake Cit, Utah; Jacksonville and Tampa, Fla., and Mobile, Ala.

"Some of these cities asked for and received crop moving allotments last year. If it should develop later that they, or any of them, require deposits, their applications will be given consideration.

"Interest at the rate of two per cent per annum will be charged and the government will accept as security government bonds at par, state, municipal, railroad and other bonds, acceptable to the secretary at 75 per cent of the market value; approved commercial paper, acceptable to the secretary, at 75 per cent of its value.

Change From Last Year.

"The secretary will not require as he did last year, that 10 per cent of the deposits shall be secured by government bonds.

"All collateral offered as security must be approved by a local committee appointed by the clearing house in each city and by a representative of the government chosen by the secretary. In sub-treasury cities the assistant treasurer of the United States, in addition to the government's special representative will be a member of the local committee.

"In apportioning the funds among the banks in each city consideration will be given to the character of business done by the applicant bank and the extent to which it is lending money to its country correspondent banks. Particular consideration will be given to the willingness of the banks receiving government deposits to lend to their country correspondent banks at reasonable rates of interest."

Boy Stole Stamps; Imprisoned.

Washington, July 28.—An Illinois committee consisting of Senator Niels Jnuls, George S. Wilson and Judge Henry Neil, has startled Washington by discovering that a 14-year-old lad, Charles Perry, of Five Oaks, Va., is serving a sentence of five years at the national training school at Bladensburg, Md., for stealing a two-cent postage stamp.

U. S. Will Not Interfere.

Washington, July 28.—President Wilson said in answer to inquiries whether the United States would try to bring about peace in Europe, that he had not considered the subject, but that the traditional policy of the United States was not to mix in European affairs. The gravity of the European situation was reflected in an official dispatch from St. Petersburg saying the Russian minister of war had said he considered war between Russia and Austria almost inevitable.

LITTLE MOTHER WORRIED

Problem Confronting Her Was One That Might Have Puzzled a Much Older Head.

She was the smallest and youngest of the daily parade of those who take baby out for an airing on Washington Heights, a novice among perambulator propellers, relates the New York Evening Post. The pram itself was a fair give-away, unspecked by use, newer even than baby. A first airing beyond a doubt.

She stopped and marched around in front of the pram, the better to get a view of him or her. It was asleep. You could tell it by the mother's smile. But a cloud of worriment chased the smile from her face and worriment grew. It was the misery of doubt and inexperience. Presently she struggled with tears.

There was baby lying, asleep, mouth wide open like an O, sucking in the breezes from the river. The motherly and experienced one came by just as the mother's anguish welled over.

"Oh," she exclaimed in tears, "I'm dreadfully afraid of germs! And—" pointed to the open mouth—"oughtn't I to close it?"

ECZEMA ITCHED AND BURNED

R. F. D. No. 4, Box 55, Holland, Mich.—"My child's trouble began by getting red and sore around her neck, and her face, behind her ears, under her arms, and different parts of her body were affected. The eczema appeared in a rash first. It was wet and looked as if it was sweaty. It seemed to itch and burn so that she could not sleep or rest. It got so bad at last that behind her ears was one crust or sore so that I had to cut her hair. There was a hard crust covering her neck. She could not have her clothes buttoned at all. I could hardly change her clothes. It caused an awful difigurement for the time. She would cry when I had to wash her.

"We had her treated for some time but without success. I got one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment and I had not used more than half of what I bought when she was all cured." (Signed) Mrs. G. C. Riemersma, Mar. 21, 1914.

Berlin a Seaport.

Germany proceeds steadily with the development of her canal system, and in the near future a number of important extensions will be open for traffic. The Berlin-Oder canal is a noteworthy engineering feat. It starts on the west side of Berlin and runs in a rough semi-circle to Olderberg, where it falls into the river. It is about six miles long, and has cost something over £2,000,000 to build. It connects the capital of the empire with the greatest Prussian port; it binds Berlin and Stettin. Berlin and Oder have, of course, been united for some considerable time by the Finow canal, but that waterway, with its score of old-fashioned locks, and the fault of narrowness, has long been out of date. The new canal will carry cargo vessels of 600 tons, and that vessels of such size will now go direct from Stettin to Berlin really means the opening of a new epoch in German internal traffic development. It makes Berlin virtually a seaport.

What's in a Name.

"What is the name of your automobile?"

"I don't know."

"You don't know? What do your folks call it?"

"Oh, as to that, father always says 'The Mortgage;' brother Tom call it 'The Fake;' mother, 'My Limousine;' sister, 'Our Car;' grandma, 'That Peril,' the chauffeur, 'Some Freak,' and our neighbors, 'The Limit.'"—Life.

The devil always gets the most active recruits from the great army of the unoccupied.

PRIZE FOOD.

Palatable, Economical, Nourishing.

A Nebr. woman has outlined the prize food in a few words, and that from personal experience. She writes:

"After our long experience with Grape-Nuts, I cannot say enough in its favor. We have used this food almost continually for seven years.

"We sometimes tried other advertised breakfast foods but we invariably returned to Grape-Nuts as the most palatable, economical and nourishing of all.

"When I quit tea and coffee and began to use Postum and Grape-Nuts, I was almost a nervous wreck. I was so irritable I could not sleep nights, had no interest in life.

"After using Grape-Nuts a short time I began to improve and all these ailments have disappeared and now I am a well woman. My two children have been almost raised on Grape-Nuts, which they eat three times a day.

"They are pictures of health and have never had the least symptom of stomach trouble, even through the most severe siege of whooping cough they could retain Grape-Nuts when all else failed.

"Grape-Nuts food has saved doctor bills, and has been, therefore, a most economical food for us."

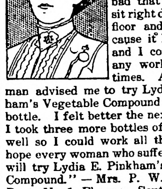
IN SUCH PAIN WOMAN CRIED

Suffered Everything Until Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Florence, So. Dakota.—"I used to be very sick every month with bearing down pains and backache, and had headache a good deal of the time and very little appetite. The pains were so bad that I used to sit right down on the floor and cry, because it hurt me so and I could not do any work at those times. An old woman advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I got a bottle. I felt better the next month so I took three more bottles of it and got well so I could work all the time. I hope every woman who suffers like I did will try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." — Mrs. P. W. LANSENG, Route No. 1, Florence, South Dakota.



Why will women continue to suffer day in and day out or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Those New Gowns.

Gaby Desleys said in New York of the 1914 fashions in gowns:

"These revelation gowns, evil as they are—for everybody says they're evil, so it must be true—these revelation gowns on a beautiful woman are, alas, unquestionably becoming.

"But they're unhandy things, too. A bootmaker showed me the other day a slipper with a tiny purse-pocket hidden in the heel.

"'An absolute necessity,' he said, 'for the present-day gown affords no chance for the purse's concealment on any other part of the person.'"

GERMANY DECLARES WAR AGAINST RUSSIA; TROOPS INVADING FRANCE

KAISER'S FORCES MARCHING TOWARD FRENCH CAPITAL

PLAN TO VANGUISH FRANCE IN INTERVAL BEFORE RUSSIA CAN CREATE SERIOUS TROUBLE ON NORTHERN FRONTIER.

GERMANS ARE REPULSED AT CIREY WITH HEAVY LOSSES

Movement Made Without Formal Declaration of War—Kaiser Unable to Answer England as to Respecting Belgium's Neutrality.

London, Aug. 4.—German forces have begun the invasion of France without so far as is known, a declaration of war having been made. Two German detachments entered French territory moving in the direction of Paris.

Army Crosses Frontier.

One German force crossed the French frontier near the village of Cirey, between Nancy and Strassburg, and another German detachment, probably the Twenty-ninth infantry, Saturday night, invaded the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg, neutral territory between Belgium and Germany, and continued its march on the French fortified town of Longwy. A dispatch from Brussels said there was good reason to believe that this force, later in the day, entered France.

Germans Are Repulsed.

The German force which came into France near Cirey, which is 40 miles from Nancy, is reported to have been repulsed with heavy losses, but this has not yet been confirmed.

Apparently the Germany army is duplicating the first movement of the Franco-Prussian war. It was on Aug. 2, 1870, that the French and Germans clashed in the first battle of that war at Saarbrucken where the Prince Imperial, under the orders of the emperor, received his famous "Baptism of fire."

It appears that Germany is taking the fullest possible advantage of her supposed superiority in rapid mobilization over France.

The plan of the German emperor, according to military observers here, is to vanguish or attempt to vanguish France in the interval before Russia will be able to create serious trouble on her northern frontier. It is supposed that Russian mobilization will take about three weeks.

All telegraphic and telephonic communication between Brussels and Luxemburg has been severed.

Invade Neutral Territory.

By the treaty of London, signed in 1867, the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg was declared neutral territory. Its integrity and independence were guaranteed.

Longwy is a fortified town of France on the Belgium frontier, 40 miles northwest of Metz in Germany.

A train full of German soldiers arrived at the station at Luxemburg during the night. The troops seized the station and the bridges on the Treves and Trois Vierges line in order to insure the regular passage of military trains across the Grand Duchy.

Encounter French Forces.

According to an evening newspaper published at Liege, 20,000 German troops crossed the French frontier this morning near Nancy. They encountered French forces and were repulsed with heavy losses. This news, however, lacks confirmation.

A telephone dispatch from Brussels says it was reported that Germany had declared war on France and that the French ambassador, Jules Cambon, had left the German capital. This report could not be confirmed.

France Issues Statement.

The French embassy yesterday issued the following statement:

"French territory has been invaded at Cirey and German troops are marching on the fort at Cirey. This act has been committed without a declaration of war. The German ambassador is at present in Paris."

Germany declared today that she was unable to answer the question put by the British ambassador at Berlin as to whether she is prepared to respect the neutrality of Belgium.

This statement appeared in a communication issued by the French embassy.

The neutrality of Belgium has been guaranteed by Great Britain and she is bound to protect Belgium for her own safety as Belgium under German rule would be a never ending menace to England.

War Was Result Expected.

London, Aug. 4.—Events in the European crisis developed with startling rapidity. The German ultimatum to Russia, demanding that Russia cease the mobilization of her army, expired and a few hours later the German emperor signed a mobilization order.

The German ambassador at St. Petersburg, Count Von Pourtales, delivered a declaration of war in the name of his government to the Russian government and the entire staff of the embassy immediately left St. Petersburg.

After the warlike speeches delivered by the German emperor and the imperial chancellor at Berlin, no other result could be expected. Hopes that the dreaded event might be averted had been raised by the intervention of King George in St. Petersburg and the fact that the German reichstag was not to be convened until Tuesday. Hence the actual declaration of war had not been expected for another day or two.

Now the die is cast and Europe is to be plunged into a general war which has been the apprehension of European statesmen for generations.

Placards were posted in Paris calling for general mobilization and the German ambassador, although he had not been handed his passports, was preparing to leave the French capital.

Germans and Russians Clash.

The first shots in the Russo-German war were exchanged between patrols yesterday afternoon near Prostken, 120 miles to the southeast of Konigsberg.

The only redeeming feature of the darkest prospect with which Europe has been faced for half a century, is that Italy has declared her neutrality. But how long that neutrality can be maintained is an exceedingly debatable question.

Great Britain's position already has been defined by Premier Asquith in the British parliament. He declared that she is under no formal obligation to go to the assistance of France in the event of an European war.

American Tourists Trapped.

London, Aug. 4.—Hundreds of marooned Americans are arriving tonight from the continent. All are anxious to get home, but few have been able to secure accommodations. They report hundreds of Americans still in France and Germany and absolutely unable to get away from these nations. According to the stories told by the Americans arriving here the Europeans have taken advantage of their plight to gouge out of them every possible dollar.

Barbaric Warfare in Servia.

Washington, Aug. 4.—If the experience of the recent past is any guide to the immediate future, the war between Austria-Hungary and Servia will produce revolting scenes of barbarity and savagery. During the Balkan wars the Carnegie Peace endowment sent an international commission to the countries engaged in conflict. This commission's report pictured ghastly conditions and condemned the conduct of Bulgarians, Greeks and Servians, to say nothing of the Turks.

Bankers Would Avert War.

London, Aug. 3.—That the powerful financial interests both here and on the continent, are bringing into play every possible line of persuasion to prevent the general war, has developed.

England Mobilizing Forces.

Washington, Aug. 4.—Official dispatches received here report England mobilizing forces along the North Sea.

GENERAL WAR CRISIS.

One hundred thousand German troops cross the duchy of Luxemburg and are concentrating on the frontier of France. Twenty-five thousand Germans are engaged in constructing earthworks at the concentration point.

* * *

Four European powers, Austro-Hungary, Russia, Germany and France are now actually engaged in warfare. Germany and France appear to be trying to throw the onus and responsibility for a formal declaration of war on each other.

* * *

Great Britain's policy in the crisis will be announced by Premier Asquith today. In the meantime all England is undergoing the greatest suspense it has known in a century.

Two squadrons of Cossacks are moving toward the frontier of East Prussia.

HOLLAND MOBILIZING ARMY

Queen Wilhelmina's Order Arouses Dutch Cities—Signs of Military Preparations on All Sides.

Amsterdam, Aug. 4.—That Holland is in the midst of war is evident here. On all sides there are signs of military preparation.

The mobilization ordered by Queen Wilhelmina was so readily answered that the operation was soon completed. The peaceful streets of the sleepy Dutch cities presented an unwonted aspect. Troops are constantly moving and are being lodged in the public buildings.

The mobilization decree caused a panic among the poorer classes. There was a frantic run on savings banks; crows beseiged the shops for food supplies and the excitement increased when the postoffice, railways and commercial houses refused to give coin for notes.

A bill has been presented to parliament authorizing the mayors in the various towns to seize supplies and sell them to the public and thus avoid their being held up and prices raised.

AMERICAN BANKS PREPARED

Secretary McAdoo Plans to Minimize Financial Burdens Caused by European War.

Washington, Aug. 4.—The machinery of the federal government has been turned toward fortifying the American banking system so that this nation's share in the financial burden of European war will be distributed on many shoulders and its direct effects minimized.

Conferences at the White House and treasury department, culminated late yesterday in the departure for New York of Secretary McAdoo and Comptroller of the Currency Williams. These two men have authority to put in operation the plan which congress designed years ago for such situations as the present by which the national banks of the country can obtain $500,000,000 in currency under the Aldrich-Vreeland act with which to face any condition and meet any obligation.

Other Steamers Suspend Service.

New York, Aug. 3.—The transatlantic service between New York and continental Europe was suspended by the Cunard line and the International Mercantile Marine Company, which controls the White Star, Red Star, American, Leyland, Dominion and Atlantic transport lines. Sailings for British ports via these lines were not interrupted. Hundreds of persons had engaged passage via these lines for Mediterranean and Sandinavian ports.

Chicago 'Change Stays Open.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—Armour's millions rescued the wheat trade from panic. Instead of chaos resulting from a settlement day in the midst of a war market, with possibly scores of firms embarrassed, and a virtual certainty that bankruptcies, few or many, would ensue, the Chicago Board of Trade was enabled to maintain the record of never having closed. The chief reason was that 75 entangled firms and individuals on 'change were freely given aid by Armour & Co.

Want Wilson to Settle War.

Brussels, Aug. 3.—The international bureau of peace sent an appeal to President Wilson to offer his mediation in the European conflict. The bureau also asked the German emperor to use his efforts to settle the controversy, reminding him that the twenty-fifth anniversary of his reign had been celebrated amid peace. President Poincare of France, Emperor Nicholas of Russia and Pope Pius were among others appealed to in the interest of peace.

LONDON REMAINS CALM IN FACE OF IMPENDING WAR

DECISION OF BRITISH CABINET IN INTERNATIONAL CRISIS IS ANXIOUSLY AWAITED BY GREAT CROWD.

POSITION OF THE COUNTRY WILL BE ANNOUNCED TODAY

That War Party Is Now in the Ascendency Is the General Opinion—Throngs Wonder Whether Great Britain Will "Fight or Flunk."

London, Aug. 4.—The Daily Chronicle publishes a rumor that Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria has been assassinated. This has not been confirmed.

London, Aug. 3.—London is maintaining her calm to the last moment. A great crowd assembled around the government offices at Whitehall awaiting the decision of the cabinet as to whether Great Britain would take part in the war, but when it was found no statement was to be made, the crowd melted away, only a few groups remaining to discuss whether the cabinet, as some put it, "had decided to flunk or fight."

To Announce Position Today.

Premier Asquith will announce Great Britain's position in the house of commons today. Prior to this announcement another cabinet meeting will be held.

The general impression is that the war party in the cabinet is in the ascendency, but not a ward was allowed to leak out of the cabinet chamber concerning the proceedings. It was said that Viscount Morley, lord president of council and Viscount Haldane, lord high chancellor, led the peace party and that Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, threatened to resign if the government did not stand by its unwritten agreement to support France against German attack.

t is known that the Lancashire Liberals are putting strong pressure on the government to keep out of the conflict at all costs, and it is said that Premier Asquith is somewhat influenced by this. But the average Englishman is saying that the government has no alternative, after the neutrality of Luxemburg has been disregarded by Germany and after Germany's refusal to say what her attitude would be with regard to Belgium.

Socialists Are Protesting.

The Socialists held a big meeting in Trafalgar square last night to protest against war. James Keir Hardie, independent labor and Socialist member of parliament, who was the chief speaker, declared that Italy, although bound by treaty, remained neutral and there was no reason why Great Britain should not do likewise. He announced his intention of calling a national strike against the war.

The railway stations are crowded with German, French and other reservists returning to their respective countries.

The board of agriculture has issued a statement that there is sufficient wheat in the country to supply the whole population for four months, allowing for normal consumption, irrespective of imports.

Many Americans in London.

Not even at the height of the tourist season were there more Americans in London than last night. In addition to those who are spending a holiday here and the crowds coming from the continent to get away from the inconveniences of war, there is another contingent which arrived yesterday, consisting of tourists who, armed with passports from the American embassy, started for the continent in the last few days but found it impossible to get further than Calais, Dieppe and other coast towns. As a consequence steamers from France and Belgium are crowded with what might be termed refugees.

A dispatch from Amsterdam says a report has reached there that the Russian ambassador to Berlin has demanded his passports.

Fleeing From Paris.

The flight from Paris has become almost a panic. One of the Americans who arrived from the French capital yesterday said the train which left Paris at 9 o'clock Saturday night was jammed with Americans. Many of them went to the station as early as 3 o'clock in the afternoon and stood for hours waiting for a chance to get aboard. The heat was intense and there was much suffering among the women and children, but nobody would give up his place.

When the train was drawn up there was a frantic rush for the cars and what is described as almost a pitched battle took place, the strongest gaining the victory and climbing into the cars. Baggage was abandoned in the rush and some of the passengers arrived in London without even a change of linen.

To Postpone Cup Race.

London, Aug. 3.—Sir Thomas Lipton declared he had definitely decided not to race at Sandy Hook next September for the America's cup if England becomes engaged in war.

HOPES TO AVERT RAIL STRIKE

PRESIDENT BRINGING ENGINEMEN AND MANAGERS TOGETHER.

Latter Are Warned of Calamity That Walkout Might Bring to the Nation.

Washington, Aug. 3.—Unofficial reports that the managers of the 98 western railroads involved in the threatened strike of 55,000 engineers and firemen will heed President Wilson's plea for peace are current among men in close touch with the situation. The president is understood to be confident that a strike will be unnecessary.

Appeals to Managers.

The committee of managers to whom the president appealed is to tell Mr. Wilson whether they will accept the settlement proposed by the federal board of mediation, which suggested the arbitration of wage differences.

The president called in Charles P. Neill, former commissioner of labor, and had him take a message to the railroad managers again urging on them the necessity for adopting the proposed plan of settlement.

Might Bring Great Calamity.

The railroad managers were asked to remember that a great calamity might come to the country if a strike is declared by the engineers and firemen, thus holding up the movement of the crops of the West.

DISCUSS POSITION OF JAPAN

Washington Diplomats Talk Over Possibilities of Such a Move.

Washington, Aug. 1.—The possibility that Japan might become involved in a general war should her ally, England, be drawn into the threatened vortex in Europe, was discussed in diplomatic circles here. The treaty of alliance between Great Britain and Japan, signed in 1905 and renewed in 1911, provides that the countries shall support each other in the event of an attack or aggressive action against either in eastern Asia or India by another power.

From time to time there have been rumors of secret clauses, greatly extending the scope of the convention and making it apply to hostilities conducted outside of the Far East, but the existence of any such extra provisions is unknown to the state department or to the Japanese embassy here.

Japan's being drawn into any war that might involve Great Britain with Germany or Austria or Italy is believed to hinge entirely upon naval developments in the Far East.

HALF MILLION SEATTLE FIRE

Grand Trunk Pacific Pier and Coleman Dock Destroyed in Heart of Water Front.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 1.—Fire destroyed the Grand Trunk Pacific pier and damaged the Coleman dock, two of the largest passenger wharves in the heart of the Seattle water front, causing a loss estimated at $500,000, mostly covered by insurance. Eight persons were injured, four seriously, but all will recover.

The greatest loss was sustained by the Grand Trunk Pacific Steamship company, owners of the Grand Trunk pier, which was valued at $350,000. The damage to the Coleman dock is estimated at $50,000. The rest of the loss is distributed among occupants of the Grand Trunk pier and included several hundred tons of freight stored in the warehouse.

NOTED SOCIALIST CHIEF SHOT

Jean Leon Jaures Is Assassinated in Paris While Seated at Table in Restaurant.

Paris, Aug. 3.—Jean Leon Jaures, the noted Socialist leader, was assassinated while dining in a small restaurant near the Bourse. The assassin was arrested, but refused to disclose his identity.

Later he was identified as Raoul Villan, 29 years old, and said to be the son of a clerk of the civil court at Rheims.

The minister of the interior, Louis Malvy, on learning of the crime, left the meeting of the council and ordered precautions to be taken to prevent demonstrations.

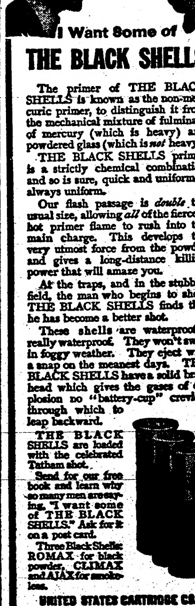
The reports of the shots startled the diners and passersby and the assassin was seized. In his pocket was another loaded revolver. The police rescued him from the crowd, which shouted, "Assassin—Death to the assassin!" The body of the noted deputy was placed in a city conveyance which, surrounded by weeping comrades and friends, proceeded to his home, followed by a detachment of Republican guards.

Odessa Bourse Is Closed.

Odessa, Aug. 1.—The bourse has been closed for three days. The greatest activity prevails in the corn market.

Carranza And Carvajal Agreeing.

Washington, July 30.—General Carranza and Provisional President Carbajal have agreed on a base for the arrangement of peace in Mexico, according to a message receivd here by Jose Castellot, personal representative of Carbajal. With respect to amnesty and guarantees, General Carranza, it is understood, will promise immunity to all except those directly responsible for the overthrow of Madero. Practically all those said to be guilty fled Mexico, and that exception will not be opposed.



I Want Some of THE BLACK SHELLS

The primer of THE BLACK SHELLS is known as the non-mercuric primer, to distinguish it from the mechanical mixture of fulminate of mercury (which is heavy) and powdered glass (which is not heavy).

THE BLACK SHELLS primer is a strictly chemical combination and so is sure, quick and uniform—always uniform.

Our flash passage is double the usual size, allowing all of the fiercely hot primer flame to rush into the main charge. This develops the very utmost force from the powder and gives a long-distance killing power that will amaze you.

At the traps, and in the stubble-field, the man who begins to shoot THE BLACK SHELLS finds that he has become a better shot.

These shells are waterproof—really waterproof. They won't swell in foggy weather. They eject with a snap on the meanest days. THE BLACK SHELLS have a solid brass head which gives the gases of explosion no "battery-cup" crevices through which to leap backward.

THE BLACK SHELLS are loaded with the celebrated Tatham shot.

Send for our free book and learn why so many men are saying, "I want some of THE BLACK SHELLS." Ask for it on a post card.

Three Black Shells: ROMAX for black powder, CLIMAX and AJAX for smokeless.

Good That He Returned.

"Boy, watch my horse till I come back!" called a man to a boy lounging around the station, as he hastened to bid farewell to a departing friend.

"Sure!" said the boy, taking the reins.

Just then the locomotive whistled and the horse rearing suddenly, started at full speed up the road.

The boy started after the fleeing animal, and, as the owner appeared, exclaimed with relief:

"It's a good thing you came now, sir, for I couldn't have watched him much longer."

DON'T ITCH! USE RESINOL

Just put on a little of that soothing, antiseptic resinol ointment and the itching and burning stop at once. Soon all trace of eczema, prickly heat, poison-ivy, poison-oak, or other tormenting skin trouble is gone. Every druggist sells resinol ointment and resinol soap. Prescribed by doctors for 19 years.—Adv.

An Ounce of Prevention

Most people who enjoy a frequent drink of beer or liquor fail to realize it's weakening effect on the kidneys.

Kidney weakness sets up backache, headache, rheumatic pain, nervousness, and disorders of the urine and if neglected leads to dropsy, gravel, and Bright's disease.

In the early stages kidney weakness can be corrected. Doan's Kidney Pills tone and strengthen weak kidneys and are used with success all over the civilized world. There's no other kidney remedy so well recommended.

A North Dakota Case

Robert W. English, farmer, Jamestown, N. D., says: "While pitching hay, I was taken with a severe pain in the small of my back and I couldn't stoop over. The kidney secretions became too frequent and painful in passage. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me in a short time and for several years I have had no further trouble. I am now in good health."

Paxtine

A soluble Antiseptic Powder to be dissolved in water as needed.

As a medicinal antiseptic for douches in treating catarrh, inflammation or ulceration of nose, throat, and that caused by feminine ills it has no equal. For ten years the Lydia E. BRIGHT SAYINGS OF CHILDREN

Little One Knew Who Were the Dwellers in the Garden of Eden—Grandpa in Heaven.

Sunday School Teacher—"Can you tell me who dwelt in the Garden of Eden?" Little Mary—"Yes, ma'am—the Adamses."

"What is an amateur, Bobby?" queried his small sister. "An amateur," replied Bobby, "is anything that isn't nature."

"Mamma," queried little Myra, "do you think grandpa has really gone to heaven?" "Yes, dear," was the reply. "Well," continued Myra, "I'll bet he sneaks outside once in a while to smoke his pipe."

In the lesson mention had been made of the cant hook that is used in rolling logs. "Can you tell me what a cant hook is, Tommy?" asked the teacher. "Sure," replied Tommy. "It's a cow that hasn't any horns."

ECZEMA LIKE HIVES

617 N. Gibbs St., Pomona, Cal.—"My eczema began when I was five years old. It started like hives all over my body and later it troubled me principally on my face and left ear. It was very rough and red and the itching and burning were so intense that I lost much sleep.

"I tried several kinds of salves and blood medicines but to no avail. I had been bothered with eczema for over eight years. Then I bought two cakes of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. When finished with them my cure was complete." (Signed) Miss Mildred Sweet, Mar. 6, 1914.

Faithful Unto Death.

"One of the bravest acts I witnessed during the whole war," said an officer of the Army of Northern Virginia, "was that of a young soldier, who was probably not over sixteen. We had thought of him as only a boy, although he went with the regiment on all of its marches, and lived with it in all its encampments.

"One day there was a fierce engagement. In the midst of it a bullet struck this boy in the breast, and he fell. Our colonel ordered his men to dismount, and as he himself sprang from his horse, the boy called out in a weak voice, 'I will hold your horse, colonel!'

"Stopping in the midst of the storm of bullets to gaze in pity on the white, boyish face, the colonel said, 'But you can't do that, lad—you are dying.'

"'I know I am, colonel,' the gallant boy replied. 'But I can hold the reins when I am dead.'

"The colonel placed the bridle in the trembling hands and went forward. When the fight was over, he hurried back, and found the boy lying dead, the bridle reins still wrapped tightly round his limp right hand."—Youth's Companion.

Is Positive Proof.

Some little uptown boys were playing "judge," a game invented by the daddy of two of the boys. They think it's lots of fun. One of the boys in the game impersonates a judge, another the district attorney, another a criminal, while others are the foreman of the jury, a policeman, a jailer and the attorney for the defense. Any that remain are jurymen. After one of the youngsters commits a "crime" he is arrested and brought to trial with all the legal formalities the children can remember.

This time one of the youngsters was supposed to have killed another, but he protested his innocence vigorously. Then up rose the "victim."

"Of course you did it!" he said. "Can't you see I'm dead?"—New York Tribune.

NEW IDEA
Helped Wisconsin Couple.

It doesn't pay to stick too closely to old notions of things. New ideas often lead to better health, success and happiness.

A Wis. couple examined an idea new to them and stepped up several rounds on the health ladder. The husband writes:

"Several years ago we suffered from coffee drinking, were sleepless, nervous, sallow, weak and irritable. My wife and I both loved coffee and thought it was a bracer." (Delusion.)

"Finally, after years of suffering, we read of Postum and the harmfulness of coffee, and believing that to grow we should give some attention to new ideas, we decided to test Postum.

"When we made it right we liked it and were free of ills caused by coffee. Our friends noticed the change—fresher skin, sturdier nerves, better temper, etc.

"These changes were not sudden, but increased as we continued to drink and enjoy Postum, and we lost the desire for coffee.

"Many of our friends did not like Postum at first, because they did not make it right. But when they made Postum according to directions on pkg., they liked it better than coffee and were benefited by the change."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum now comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. Made in the cup with hot water—no boiling. 30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

ALL GREAT EUROPEAN POWERS ARE MOBILIZING THEIR TROOPS

ENGLAND HAS NOT DECIDED WHAT ACTION TO TAKE IN PRESENT WAR—EARL EDWARD GREY ISSUES HIS STATEMENT OF SITUATION

GERMANY ATTEMPTING TO INDUCE ENGLAND TO REMAIN NEUTRAL, AND IN RETURN PROMISES TO KEEP AWAY FROM WEST COAST

Brussels, Aug. 3.—The Burgomaster of Antwerp announced tonight that the Germans had invaded Limburg, Holland, and that the province has been placed under martial law. Limburg has a population of nearly a quarter of a million.

Berlin, Aug. 3.—The German emperor sent orders tonight to the German ambassador in Paris to demand his passports.

Berlin, Aug. 3.—German border troops from Lublinitz, Silesia, today, after a short skirmish with the Russians, took possession of Czenstochowa, in Russial Poland. Bendzin and Kalisz, in Russian Poland, also are occupied by Germans. Czenstochowa is a city of 50,000 inhabitants. It is noted chiefly for its manufactures of woolen and cotton cloths and paper. Bendzin is a coal and zinc mining center, with a population of 20,000. Kalisz is the most westerly city in Russian Poland; its population is 20,000.

Melbourne, Australia, Aug. 3.—The government and the commonwealth of Australia today offered in the event of war, to furnish an expeditionary force of 20,000 men to go to any destination desired by the imperial government at the entire expense of the commonwealth.

New York, Aug. 3.—The Rochambeau, one of the largest of a French line's fleet of steamships, due here tonight from Havre, today was requisitioned by the French government. The French consul notified the agents of the line here that she is to be turned over to him immediately upon arrival. The Rochambeau has accommodation for 1,600 persons in the steerage, and 450 in the cabin. It is said the Rochambeau probably will be used to transport French reserves back to France.

Montreal, Aug. 3.—The port of Montreal is virtually closed tonight for the first time in history. Today a tug fleet patrolled the lower harbor and a force of 200 men was sworn in this evening to exclude all landsmen from the wharves. No vessel will be permitted to come into port or leave without an express writ being granted.

London, Aug. 3.—All European powers, except Italy, and most of the secondary powers, are mobilizing with all their energy.

Mobilization has not as yet reached the stage where any armies have met in battle. Italy, which declared her neutrality, will begin to mobilize officially tomorrow, although the process is probably well under way. Great Britain's mobilization is nearly completed, but she has not announced she will join in general war.

Tonight war officially existed between Austria and Germany, on one side and Russia, Servia and Montenegro on the other. There has been no official declaration of war between Germany and France on either side, but tonight the German ambassador in Paris received orders to demand his passports. The most important event in the past 24 hours was Germany's demand upon Belgium in the form of a 12-hour ultimatum, that German troops be permitted to cross Belgium to the French frontier, coupled with a promise that Belgian integrity would remain unimpaired to the end of the war and that Belgian is to be compensated. To this Belgium refused to accede on the grounds of her rights and honor.

Great Britain has mobilized her forces and awaits events. Today she is neither a belligerent power, nor a neutral one. The government has given France assurance that the British fleet will not permit the German fleet to attack the French coast. It has not yet pledged itself to contribute an army to a continental war.

The British government regards with deepest distrust Germany's violation of Belgium's neutrality, but makes no declaration regarding whether she considers that measure a provocation for war.

OVER $1,000,000,000 IN CURRENCY TO BE ADDED TO UNITED STATES' CIRCULATING MEDIUM

Washington, Aug. 3.—New York bankers have arranged with the state and treasury departments tonight to send $3,500,000 to Europe to relieve American tourists stranded there, unable to get cash for their checks and letters of credit.

The use of a United States warship to carry to Eurpoe $3,500,000 in gold for the relief of stranded American tourists, was proposed by New York bankers today. Benjamin Strong, Jr., president of the Bankers' Trust company, left for Washington to make the suggestion to President Wilson. The gold is now ready.

The financial position of this country in all appearances is appreciably better tonight than was the case 24 hours ago.

Washington, Aug. 3.—President Wilson and congress moved promptly today to afford relief to Americans stranded in the war zone of Europe, and to preserve the financial equilibrium of this country in view of the disorganization of the credit systems abroad.

In a special message early in the day, the president asked for $250,000 to care for Americans in Europe. Both houses promptly passed the appropriation and will vote more if necessary.

The house passed the bill suggested by the president, waiving the restrictions on American registry for foreign ships to assist in trans-Atlantic commerce. It will be acted upon by the senate tomorrow. The president appealed to the people of the country through Washington correspondents not to become alarmed over developments in Europe, is this country is well prepared to withstand any financial crisis.

Representatives of the Mercantile marine will discuss with Secretary Bryan tomorrow the question of obtaining ships for Americans to leave Europe in.

Americans abroad who have letters of credit, travelers checks and other forms of money credit will be assisted by the American embassies in having them cashed. Friends and relatives abroad can deposit with the state department any sum they choose and an embassy check for an equivalent amount will be issued in Europe.

Washington, Aug. 3.—Over a billion dollars in currency is to be added to the circulating medium in the United States by action of congress today, to meet the situation resulting from the European crisis. This new money, backed by the prime assets of national banks, may be issued under the modification of the bank law passed in both house and senate, then compromised in conference, and approved by the administration for final action in both houses tomorrow.

The treasury department continued to give its mental and physical support to the banks of the United states today. It responded to requests from National Currency associations in various parts of the country, put in the hands of Express companies, millions in Aldrich-Vreeland emergency currency. Shipments were made to several large cities in the middle west. As soon as possible all subtreasuries will be supplied with sufficient currency to meet the demands by banks in their territory.

Fine Dairy Cow Ration.

Late sweet corn puts forth many suckers which should be promptly jerked off to give the plants a better chance to grow, the detached suckers forming a fine ration for the dairy cow.

Combining Silage.

While silage is an excellent feed for dairy stock, it should be combined with some other leguminous feed, such as clover, cow peas, or alfalfa, owing to its insufficient productive quality.

The Millet Crop.

Millet has an advantage which should not be overlooked, as it is a most excellent smother crop and can be used with great advantage on land which it is desired to free of weeds and put in the best possible condition for seeding to grass or wheat in the fall.

Owning a Thoroughbred.

The satisfaction of owning a thoroughbred animal is worth something. Makes a man long for better things all around him.

ENTHUSIASM WENT TOO FAR

Managaing Editor's Bright Idea Might Have Displeased Some of His Irish Readers.

Charles Edward Russell in "These Shifting Scenes" tells many amusing anecdotes of a managing editor named Goodman to signalize the Pigott disclosures which defeated the case that the London Times and the English Tories had worked up against Parnell. Mr. Russell writes:

On the night when Parnell's vindication became overwhelming and complete, Mr. Goodman issued an order that every article and every item in the whole paper, big or little, should end with the exclamation: "A Great Day for Ireland!" It was tempting fate to do such a thing, and, of course, the inevitable happened.

"One Hennessey, the janitor of a public building in Brooklyn, playing on the top floor with his children, fell over the railing of the air well and was killed. 'A Great Day for Ireland!'"

"William Mulrooney, a Widely known philanthropist of the East side, choked to death on a chicken bone. 'A Great Day for Ireland!'"

The editor-in-chief Col. John A. Cockerill, saw the proofs in time to prevent a riot and extra compositors were called in to take out the offending lines.

Way the Moon Changes.

It was the tenth week after the honeymoon. The great round moon rolled up above the trees.

"Jack," she said, romantically, "do you remember how the moon used to affect you when you were calling on me? Why, every time it went under a cloud you used to kiss me. You don't do it now."

"No," yawned Jack, as he lit his pipe, "the moon affects the tides, but not the tieds. The honeymoon ends all moon nonsense."

And then she said he was the meanest man in town and went over to call on the neighbors.

FOR A TUBERCULOSIS CENSUS

Arrangements Made to Have It Taken in Churches Some Time During September.

A tuberculosis census of thousands of churches in various parts of the country will be taken in September, under the direction of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. The census will be part of the preparation for the fifth annual Tuberculosis day to be observed during the week of November 29.

The ministers of several thousand churches will be asked to report on the number of deaths from tuberculosis in the last year, the number of living cases in their parishes on September 1, the number of deaths from all causes, and the number of members or communicants. These figures will be made the basis of an educational campaign, which will culminate in the Tuberculosis day movement, for which occasion sermon and lecture outlines and other forms of tuberculosis literature will be distributed free to ministers.

Last year nearly 75,000 churches, schools and other bodies took part in the Tuberculosis day observance. The movement had the endorsement of leading church officials of every denomination. More than 1,200 anti-tuberculosis societies scattered all over the country will work this year to make Tuberculosis day a success.

AN INTERESTING SILAGE TRIP.

A Number of Clay County Farmers Take Interesting Trip Inspecting Silos.

"Can I afford to build a silo?" "What kind of silo shall I put up?" These and numerous other questions the farmers of one community of Clay county were asking and they were answered on the afternoon of July 7th, in a very unique method of studying the value of silage and the relative merit of various type of silos. Mr. P. E. Clement, county agent of Clay county invited the farmers of this section of the county who were interested in silos to join in an automobile tour and visit one each of the various kinds of silos in the locality.

Though corn cultivation needed to be done on every farm, thirty farmers joined in the excursion which proved to be more successful than was anticipated for not only did it help answer the questions of the men intending to build silos, but in getting the experience of each silo owner those who already owned silos learned better how to make and use silage. The tour simply made general the experiences of every owner in the community.

The first silo visited was a wood stave on the farm of L. S. Thom about two miles northeast of Moorhead. The passage way between the silo and the barn but held the crowd, and the men simply surrounded Mr. Thom, asked him about every conceivable question about his silo, and whether he knew it or not like every man visited, he made a splendid speech on the subject. His silo has been built two years, has never been damaged by the wind, and has given no trouble whatever. It is 14x36 feet and has a four foot pit, thus holding about 135 tons. Its cost complete was about $400 Mr. Thom stated he would build the same kind of silo again, and wouldn't be without it if he had to borrow the money to contruct it, as he believes a silo rapidly pays for itself. He now has twelve feet of silage and is feeding it regularly to his cows, horses, hogs and chickens. Some one questioned hogs eating silage, but Mr. Thom quickly had a shovelful, and in less than fifteen seconds about two dozen young shoats were making a very luscious sound chewing the juicy silage, and the chickens came running to help them.

Within fifteen minutes of travel the tourists were at the farm of Frank Kimm, who has a panel silo, 16x36 feet which will hold about 150 tons. This silo also has been up two years and has never been empty. Mr. Kimm likewise feeds silage to all kinds of stock. He considers he could not get along without a silo and believes so thoroughly in it that he would recommend a renter to put one up if he has a long lease and the permission to move it. He is now feeding silage two years old and finds it in good condition. Mr. Kimm expressed himself well satisfied with his silo and believes other types of silos quite serviceable too. Complete, his silo cost about $500. At his farm some fine Guernsey calves were seen and alfalfa seeded this spring with barley as a nurse crop stands a foot high.

On the way to the next silo to be visited a short stop was made at the farm of Theo. Skree, who won the cement stave silo offered on the sweepstakes corn exhibited at the Farm Crops show held at Crookston last winter. Mr. Skree is glad he is to soon have a silo. It is hardly necessary to say he is endeavoring to grow some more championship corn. He has some fine potatoes and his progressiveness is further evidenced by the fact that he is growing alfalfa. A very neat and attractive farmstead was seen here.

Mr. Skree's neighbor, Mr. Levi Thortvedt, a year ago put up a cement stave silo, 14x35 feet with a three foot pit having a capacity of about 125 tons. The cost of this silo was slightly over $400. Mr. Thortvedt also feeds silage to all kinds of live stock and is feeding now though he has considerable pasture. He cited a recent situation which well emphasizes one of the many points of value of a silo, namely the availibility of feed when for some reason there is a shortage. His farmstead is on the bank of the Buffalo river and for two weeks this spring the water was so high that his herd of cattle could not get to pasture, and there was only an acre and fraction on the side of the river with the buildings. During this time the cattle were well kept on nothing but silage.

The party journeyed for a few miles along the Buffalo river where with a rich sandy loam soil and good drainage immense crops of every kind were growing. Suddenly a halt was made at a forty acre alfalfa field of Mr. G. S. Barnes. One crop has already been taken off and the second was standing eight to ten inches high. Everyone was quickly examining the roots to find whether or not the plants were inoculated. Just across the road were the buildings of this farm among which was a large dairy barn containing about 80 head of pure bred Holstein and their ration included silage and alfalfa hay. Mr. Barnes has a wood stave silo similar to the first visited, constructed about four years ago.

Interest ran high as the party landed at the farm of E. C. Schroeder located at the station of Watts, a few miles east of Moorhead. Here an immense dairy barn houses a famous herd of nearly 100 head of pure bred Holstein cattle. Many individuals in the herd have extraordinary milk production records among which are world champions. There are twin silos of the panel type in connection each 16 by 40 feet with a seven foot pit having a combined capacity of practically 300 tons. These were built in 1911 though another type of silo was on the farm earlier. Silo filling machinery is owned by this farm alone and the silos are refilled and sometimes twice each year. Mr. Schroeder says if he were without cows, as his practice is not to pasture his animals, and to quote him he feeds silage "365 and 366 days each year." In his winter feeding some of his cows are fed from 45 to 65 pounds of silage per day. There were so many things of interest and value at this farm to see that it is difficult to leave on the schedule planned.

Many silos were passed on the trip of the same kind as had been visited but the party journeyed about five miles west to the farm of Arthur Souers where a cement block silo was inspected. Great care evidently had been taken in the construction of this silo as it presented a very attractive appearance. This silo is 14 by 32 feet and has six feet of foundation, thus holding practically 120 tons. It was built a year ago but Mr. Souers built another on a neighboring farm three years ago that is also giving very satisfactory service in every respect.

The last silo visited was Monolithic or solid wall concrete on the farm of E. Sanders. It is 16x42 feet with a two foot pit and will hold about 190 tons, and has been up two years. This man considers the silo the most important building on the farm, and when a neighbor who has just a shed barn talked of building a new one, Mr. Sanders induced him instead to erect a silo. On Mr. Sanders farm but little hay is made, so silage is fed instead to all stock, and he believes from his results that silage is practically equal ton for ton to good wild hay.

When the inspection of this silo was finished it was then after six o'clock but all were glad to stay longer and listen to Supt. A. D. Wilson of the State Agricultural Extension Division who in a short talk summed up the observations of the tour. As he stated everybody who has a silo believes in it and in feeding silage. Practically every man visited said he would build the same type of silo when building again, though there were five distinct types visited. Therefore what is the best kind of silo? Mr. Wilson's answer is: any kind of common type well built is good. The type of silo to build may be a matter of personal choice but the availability of material and mechanical help should be considered as these are factors of cost. The questions of neighborhood purchase of silos was urged to secure better prices and it als make possible co-operation in purchase of machinery and in silo filling.

The men visited were well agreed in their general experience in the making and using of silage, and they were ready with sensible and reliable answers for every question put to them. They all willingly told of some of their mistakes in early use of the silo. All of them have now learned to handle the matter of silage freezing, namely, keeping the top of the silo as tightly closed as possible, not leaving frozen silage about the walls and keeping the silage in the silo covered with a canvas in the severest wether.

As the party broke up, it was evident that those who had silos were more enthusiastic for the silo because of what they had learned from the men visited, and the men who did not have silos were no longer questioning as to whether they should build: they were talking about the kind they expected soon to build.

Special School Election A Success.

The special school election held last Friday to vote on moving the school site from its present location to south of Creamery was carried by a large majority. The district was bonded for $400 for the erection of a two room building. Work will commence as soon as possible on the erection of the new building in order to have it complete for the opening of school this fall.

Wild or Insane Man at Large.

Sheriff Forsberg was here Monday looking for a supposedly wild or insane man reported to be in this vicinity. Last Saturday while the boys of A. W. Thompson were working around the barn at their place this man approached within a couple of rods carrying a rifle and deliberately took aim and fired at one of them. The bullet just grazed the boy's cheek inflicting a small wound but he was not hurt very seriously. He is a small man, with quite heavy light colored mustache and grey beard, light hair, well clad, in dark clothes. According to the sheriff's version who questioned the boy very closely there seems to be no doubt that he is a dangerous character and is still at large. Last Sunday he was seen in the neighborhood of Hoel's but after that all trace of him seems to be lost.

Governor and Bishop of Province of Liege Are Held Prisoners by Invaders—British Admiralty Reports Cruiser Squadron Attacked by Germans.

London, Aug. 11.—The admiralty has announced that one of the cruiser squadrons of the main fleet was attacked by German submarines. None of the British ships was damaged. One German submarine was sunk. No details were given as to the place at which the fighting took place.

Brussels, Aug. 10.—Via London.—It was admitted here that the town of Liege had been occupied by the Germans.

Brussels, Via London, Aug. 11.—The following statement has been issued by the general staff:

"The position of the German troops has hardly changed since Saturday. Their advance detachments are retreating under the irresistible pressure of the French troops, who are in considerable force in all the country south of the Meuse, which they are clearing of German troops.

"The enemy's offensive movement has been completely stopped. The French and Belgian troops will take the offensive simultaneously, in accordance with concerted plans."

The Russian emperor has telegraphed to King Albert his congratulations and best wishes for the continued success of the Belgian arms.

German Troops Pushed Back.

An official dispatched issued by the Belgian general staff said the advanced German troops were being pushed back and that the German offensive movement had ceased.

A junction of Belgian, British and French troops in Belgium is reported to have been effected, and a clash between German and French cavalry south of Namur is said to have taken place.

Athens dispatches say large Turkish forces are being concentrated on Bulgarian territory by agreement with Bulgaria.

Emperor William is reported to have left for the Alsatian frontier to join the German general staff.

France has requested the Austrian ambassador to explain Austria's intentions in an alleged movement of Austrians across Germany to the French frontier.

Cholera is said to have broken out among the Austrian and Servian troops.

A cablegram from Pekin says serious "conversations" are proceeding between the Tokio and London governments concerning whether Japan will participate in an attack on the German colony of Tsing-Tau.

The French and Belgian governments have directed that the resources of the two countries shall be the common property of France and Belgium.

Wires to Berlin Open.

London, Aug. 10.—Notwithstanding the fact that freer communication was permitted over land wires and cables, very little actual news of the war trickled through. Communication was restored between Berlin and the outside world, but while this permitted the German capital to receive proffers of mediation from the president of the United States and protests against the forcible detention and harsh treatment of Americans and other noncombatants, and against indiscriminate floating of mines in localities where they may destroy peaceful merchant vessels and their heavy loads of refugees, nothing of importance relating to the great clash of arms came out of Berlin.

Germans Occupy Liege.

Admission finally comes from Brussels that the Germans have occupied Liege, although the forts are still intact. The city was entered through a comparatively safe path between the Exignee and Fleron forts, 10,000 German troops of various arms getting inside the city. General Emmich, the German commander, immediately issued a proclamation warning civilians not to fire on his soldiers, announcing that if such offenses were reported he would bombard the city. The burgomaster has cautioned civilians not to carry arms and not to provoke the invaders in any way.

Ammunition About Exhausted.

For several hours the populace remained in hiding, but yesterday they began to come out and mingle with the Germans. The latter have taken up quarters in the university and other public buildings. They have not intruded into private dwellings and are conducting themselves very peaceably, paying well for everything they can buy in the few shops that are open. Communication with Liege is so open that many persons who went from Brussels were able to return before midnight. The Germans admit their ammunition was about exhausted and that they had fought two days without food.

Austrians Shoot Down Czechs.

Paris, Aug. 10.—Many Czech soldiers were lined up and shot by Austrians because they refused to go to the front, it was officially announced at the war office here. The Czechs were attached to Bohemian regiments which were ordered to the Russian border. They attempted a mutiny and were shot down in front of their regiments.

GERMAN DREADNAUGHTS IN BATTLE FORMATION

July 26—Servian minister at Vienna given passports. Servian army mobilized. Czar sends warning to kaiser.

July 27—England proposes mediation by Germany at Vienna. Greece promises Servia aid.

July 28—Austria declares war against Servia and begins hostilities.

July 29—German troops massed at Russian frontier. Russians preparing to mobilize. Kaiser warns czar not to move troops. Austria invades Servia.

July 30—Kaiser sends czar proposal to mediate at Vienna.

July 31—Kaiser again demands Russian mobilization cease. Martial law throughout Germany. Czar replies it is "technically impossible" to suspend military operation.

August 1—Germany declares war on Russia. Italy declares neutrality. Kaiser mobilizes. France issues a decree of mobilization. Czar declares martial law.

August 2—Russians enter Germany. Germany sends troops through neutral Luxembourg to reach France.

August 3—Kaiser moves three German armies against France. Belgian king prepares to resist the German advance, refuses proffer of kaiser's protection and appeals to England. German troops take three Russian towns.

August 4—Great Britain sends ultimatum to kaiser. Germany declares war on France. France makes like declaration. Kaiser asks war appropriation of $1,250,000,000. German warship bombards French station in Algeria. England declares war on Germany.

August 5—Germans attack Fort Fleron, the chief defense of Liege.

August 6—Belgian reports of the battle between German and Belgian troops at Liege give the German casualties as 8,000 and those of the Belgians as relatively small.

August 8—Army of 100,000 Germans renews its attack on Liege with redoubled fury and takes two of the Belgians' outer forts. The Belgians are hard pressed, though fighting desperately.

Invasion of Lower Alsace by French Troops Under General Joseph Jaffro Arouses Enthusiasm —Battle Will Occur in German Territory.

London, Aug. 11.—A dispatch to the Times from Berne, Switzerland, says 40,000 Austrian troops have concentrated near Basel and that German and French troops also are near the Swiss frontier so that a big battle may occur at any moment.

The Daily Mail's Rome correspondent adds that according to dispatches from Basel, Switzerland, the Germans have evacuated Sankt Ludwig, in Alsace, four miles to the northwest of Basel and that a battle is imminent on the Franco-Swiss frontier.

The foreign office has received a telegram from the British vice consul at Venice, saying that the Austrian merchantman, Igzlad, which arrived at Venice Friday, reported a strong Austrian fleet off Pola, Austria, and that the lights in the lighthouse of the Austrian coast of the Adriatic had been extinguished.

Invasion Awakens Enthusiasm.

Paris, Aug. 11.—The invasion of lower Alsace by a French army under the command of Geenral Joseph Joffre, the French commander-in-chief, has awakened great enthusiasm throughout France.

French military authorities, while recognizing that the occupation of Altkirch and Muelhausen by the French troops is not of high strategical importance, believe that the successful advance of the French army far across the German frontier will have considerable moral effect. It is also unofficially reported that Kolmar, further to the north, has fallen into the hands of the French.

None of these three places was strongly fortified and all of them lie outside the line of real German defense, being regarded as outposts of the strongly fortified cities. Their German garrisons were numerically fairly strong, but it was understood that in case of attack they would merely have to hinder the French advance before falling back on to their supports.

Neu Breish, whither they are said to have retired, lies to the east of Kolmar and is strongly fortified, while Strassburg, situated some distance to the north, is the center of a great aggregation of German troops, is strongly fortified and supposed to be prepared for a long siege.

Official reports of the fighting between the French and German troops states that the French losses were "not excessive," while those of the Germans are declared by the French to have been "very severe."

The Alsatian inhabitants are said to have been so overjoyed at the appearance of the French army that they tore up the frontier posts.

Reports of the arrival of an Austrian army corps on the Swiss frontier, near Basel were the object of close attention by the French military authorities. It was said that several more Austrian army corps were being organized in the Tyrol whence they would later be sent toward the French frontier.

In view of this the French government asked the Austrian-Hungarian ambassador to France, who still remains at his post, to explain the intentions of Austria-Hungary in regard to France.

Before retreating from Muelhausen the German troops are said to have set fire to numerous buildings in that city, especially the warehouses where food and forage were stored and the forest of Hard, near Kolmar, is said to have been razed.

To Protect Canadian Ports.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 10.—The Grand Trunk Pacific steamship, Prince George, was requisitioned by the Canadian government as a transport and left Seattle for Vancouver to enter the government service. It is supposed she will carry troops to Prince Rupert and other northern British Columbia ports which might be attacked by a roving German cruiser. The Prince Rupert, of the same line, will arrive here and tie up until needed by the British government as a transport.

EUROPEAN WAR SPOTLIGHTS.

Official Belgian reports declare that 10,000 Germans entered the town of Liege Saturday morning but that the forts still hold out.

* * *

The Germans are said to be holding as hostages the bishop and governor of Liege province, declaring that they will be put to death if the forts resume firing. This is said to account for the cessation of hostilities for the past 24 hours.

The French troops continue their energetic campaign in the recapture after 44 years waiting of points in Alsace-Lorraine.

Cholera is reported to have broken out among Austrian and Servian troops.

French and British troops who have been rushing to the aid of the Belgians have now effected a junction with them at or near Liege.

War experts in London give several reasons why the present conflict must be of short duration. The experts claim that it will be impossible for Germany to withstand a long war as she will be unable to obtain foodstuffs and that her army and people will be literally starved out.

NO GREAT BATTLE SO FAR FOUGHT IN EUROPE'S BIG WAR

BOTH COMBATANTS CLAIM VICTORY AT LIEGE--BELGIANS HOLD FORTS--GERMANS IN CITY

Military Men Regard All Estimates of Belligerents as Great Exaggerations--North Sea Now Closed to Fishers

London, Aug. 11.—No great battle has yet been fought on land or sea in the war of the seven nations, unless the German assaults upon the fortresses at Liege eventually will assure proportions of a battle in history. Both combatants claim victory there, with the Belgians still holding the forts, and the Germans, occupying the city, the situation is unique. There is no confirmation to the Daily Mail's report that the French have engaged the Germans and cut off their retreat, inflicting a loss of 8,000. The Belgians assert they have taken 8,000 prisoners on Belgian soil but military men regard all estimates by the belligerents as great exaggerations.

Apart from Liege, the fighting of the first week, when resolved to a proper perspective eventually, doubtless will be considered insignificant.

Brussels, Aug. 10.—The commander of the forts at Liege, according to official announcement, reports that all the forts are intact. The soldiers manning them are in good health and spirits, amply supplied with provisions and munitions. There is no cause for alarm.

London, Aug. 11.—The North Sea again is closed to fishing fleets. The harbormaster at Scarborough received a message from the admiralty today instructing him to tell masters that fishing vessels shall not go out until further notice.

The Dutch steamer Alcor of 2,000 tons, has been sunk here. She was bound from Rotterdam for Cronstadt, Russia. There is nothing to show whether she truck a mine or was hit by shell.

German Crew Held

A hundred and twenty Germans among the crew of the Red Star steamer Lapland, anchored insolvent, were taken off the vessel by the government tug and transferred to Portsmouth. Fifty Belgians among the crew also left the steamer returning to Belgium.

One of the most important developments in the eyes of experts is the general testimony that the German infantry formation is obsolete and ineffective against the weapons of today, and means enormous slaughter if retained.

Germany Plans to Crush France

France and Austria finally are officially at war, the ambassadors having left their respective capitals. The French government broke off diplomatic relations with Austria on the grounds that Austrian troops are reinforcing the Germans. Austria appears to have abandoned her advance on Servia for the time being and is apparently cooperating with Germany in the supposed strategy of attempting to crush France before Russia can mobilize. Financial conditions in England are returning to normal.

French Advance on Alsace

The French are advancing on Alsace, but against what opposition is not known.

The Belgian official view on the situation at Liege is that it is quite satisfactory. Strong forces guard all approaches to Brussels.

The Austrians before Servia are still bombarding Belgrade, while part of the Servian army has taken to the offensive in Bosnia. But a small part of the army, however, is believed to be engaged in these quarters. The German cruiser Karlsruhe, which arrived at San Juan, Porto Rico, reported an engagement Friday night off Bahamas with four British and one French cruiser.

Suffragettes Released

The French government forbids the publication of the French casualties list, so the Germans may not know of the movement of the French troops.

As a result of the war King George has ordered the release of all militant suffragettes serving terms in prison for breaches of peace. This announcement was made in the house of commons.

Paris, Aug. 10.—It was officially announced tonight that France has broken off diplomatic relations with Austria-Hungary. The French ambassador at Vienna has left the Austrian capital, and the Austro-Hungarian ambassador at Paris has asked for his papers.

In announcing the severing of relations, the French foreign office stated:

"Contrary to assurances given by Austria to the French minister of foreign affairs that no Austrian troops are taking part in the Franco-German war, the French government has ascertained beyond any possible doubt, that certain Austrian troops at present are in Germany outside of the Austrian frontier. These troops, which set free certain German troops destined to be employed in fighting the French, ought indubitably defacto and dejure to be considered as acting against France. In these circumstances the French ambassador has been ordered to leave Vienna.

"The Austrian ambassador at Paris on being informed of France's decision, asked for his passports."

It is reported from Belfort, that in view of the execution of French subjects by the Germans, seven prominent residents of German towns just over the frontier, have been taken by French soldiers and are being held as hostages.

New York, Aug. 10.—While incoming ocean liners have brought confirmation that foreign warships are cruising off the American-Atlantic coast, the strict censorship over cables leading from Bermuda perhaps kept hidden from public knowledge the fate of the North German Lloyd steamer Kranprinz Wilhelm which took 6,000 tons of coal out of this port under cover of darkness last week before battleship Florida began its enforcement of the neutrality laws.

Kronprinz Wilhelm Taken

The British cruiser Essex has captured the Kronprinz Wilhelm, and is taking her as a prize of war into Hamilton, Bermuda, according to wireless messages, declared to have been overheard at sea.

Port authorities have put into effect a more rigid enforcement of the neutrality laws almost simultaneously with the arrival of the Atlantic transport liner Minnetonka with her story of a warship, nationality unlearned, which pursued her during the closing hours of her voyage to American waters.

An embargo has been placed on wireless apparatus on every foreign ship in New York harbor. This step was taken after the authorities began to suspect that foreign cruisers at sea might be communicating with ships of their nationality in port.

Washington, Aug. 10.—Americans in Europe have about stopped clamoring to return home, according to today's reports to the state department from Ambassador Page at London. The ambassador cabled that while the steamers sailing Saturday for the United States carried 5,000 Americans, since the treasure cruiser started across the Atlantic, banks have begun advancing cash on demand, and many of those who first besieged the embassy with appeals for transportation express a willingness to remain indefinitely.

Secretary Garrison tonight estimated that the number of Americans stranded in Europe and really desiring to return home has dropped to 30,000. Garrison now is doubtful that it will be necessary to send vessels as the commercial lines appear able to care for all.

BELGIUM COVERED WITH NETWORK OF GERMAN SPIES

Brussels, Aug. 10.—Belgium has been covered with a network of German spies. Six hundred already have been arrested; a hundred spies were shot today. Some of these were captured wearing uniforms of gendarmes, civic guards, soldiers and officers of the Belgian army. Many were armed with bombs and revolvers; some were riding in automobiles bearing false numbers.

The war minister has issued a proclamation that every German and Austrian not declaring himself within 24 hours, will be considered as a spy. Since the Flanders provinces were placed under martial law two days ago over two thousand spies have been arrested.

London, Aug. 10.—The French ambassador at Vienna has asked for his passports, according to the London Daily Telegraph.

Paris, Aug. 10.—The Austrian ambassador, Count Szecsen von Temerin, left Paris tonight.

War Riot at Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 8.—Roused to a pitch of enthusiasm by the parading of troops and warlike speeches of street orators, a mob composed principally of young men, stoned the German and Austrian consulates and the German club here, shattering windows and doing considerable damage to interior furnishings. Police were called out and a guard placed about the Austrian consulate, but the German consulate and German club were closed indefinitely late last night.

Germans Die in Amphion Disaster.

London, Aug. 8.—The admiralty has issued the following: "In the course of reconnoitering the cruiser Amphion struck a mine. The fore part of the British ship was shattered by the explosion, and practically all of the loss to the crew ensued from this cause. All not killed by the explosion were taken off by the boats of the destroyers before the Amphion went down. Twenty German prisoners of war who were confined in the fore part of the ship were killed."

Austrians Bombard Antivari.

Rome, Aug. 10.—Austrian cruisers bombarded Antivari, Montenegro, destroying the wireless station, according to advices brought to Bari, near Brindisi by steamer. Two Austrian cruiser, it was stated, were engaged in the bombardment and besides the wireless several factories and the port warehouse were destroyed. The cruisers also directed their fire at a mountain where Montenegrins had taken refuge. Later they departed toward Cattaro.

Canada Ousts German Consuls.

Ottawa, Ont., Aug 10.—As a means to prevent information of war preparations leaking out of the country, the Canadian government ordered German and Austrian consuls and aliens of their nationality to leave the dominion. German reservists in Canada are being placed under arrest. It is said they will be assembled under guard in a camp and held until the close of the war. Armed guards have been assigned for the protection of all the railroad bridges of the country.

Laredo, Tex., Aug. 10.—Carranza today left San Luis Potosi for Queratarc to take command of the entire constitutionalist army, according to a report from San Luis Potosi.

Mexico City, Aug. 10.—Indications today pointed to a speedy end to the anomalous situation in which Mexico has found herself since the enforced resignation of Huerta.

The reins of government, it is believed, will be peacefully transferred to the constitutionalist government, while the federal army of over 40,000 men march out of the capital to a southern city, there to await developments after offering their services to the new government in exchange for guarantees. If the latter is not forthcoming, federal army leaders insinuate they will combat the new administration.

To carry out the new plan, provisional President Carbajal will turn over the government to Eduardo Iturbide, governor of the federal district and head of the rurales.

WOMAN WEAK AND NERVOUS

Finds Health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Creston, Iowa.—"I suffered with female troubles from the time I came into womanhood until I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I would have pains if I overworked or lifted anything heavy, and I would be so weak and nervous and in so much misery that I would be prostrated. A friend told me what your medicine had done for her and I tried it. It made me strong and healthy and our home is now happy with a baby boy. I am very glad that I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and do all I can to recommend it."—Mrs. A. B. Boscamp, 504 E. Howard Street, Creston, Iowa.

Tons of Roots and Herbs are used annually in the manufacture of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is known from ocean to ocean as the standard remedy for female ills.

For forty years this famous root and herb medicine has been pre-eminently successful in controlling the diseases of women. Merit alone could have stood this test of time.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

HUBBY GOT THE GOODS, BUT—

It Was in the First Flush of the Honeymoon, and He Says "Never Again!"

"Never again," was the conclusion of a story told by a young bridegroom of a month, after he related his efforts to please his bride by fulfilling her every wish.

Sitting in his office a few days after the wedding he received a telephone call which was something like this: "Dearie, I do so hate to trouble you, but I have run out of lace for that dress I was making, and I can't finish it until I have another yard. Can't you stop at the store and get some as you come home—Oh, I can tell you what it is like—just four leaves, then a sprig, then four leaves, then a sprig, and so on—it's just two threads over an inch wide."

He hung up the receiver and mopped his brow. He walked by the store twice, finally entered and approached the lace counter. She was pretty, but he had been married only a week and was busy repeating in his mind: "four leaves, then a sprig."

"Well, after looking at 500 samples of lace, I got it, but—"—Indianapolis News.

The first war of the air is to be fought in Europe. The supremacy of Europe, perhaps of the entire world, may be decided for many years to come before the conflict ends, writes E. Percey Noel, editor of Aero and Hydro. In this the aeroplane and the dirigible will play spectacular parts. To say that, combined, they can swing victory into defeat, or defeat to victory, would probably not be too extravagant, yet the real value of aero equipment of the most complete and efficient kind available remains to be learned by actual service. Which nation's aerial forces will prove the strongest can only be guessed.

Numerically, France and Russia combined are stronger aerially than Austria and Germany united. The great air battles will, undoubtedly, be between these countries: France and Germany opposed, Russia opposed to Austria and Germany, with Servia's small equipment on the defense against Austria. Great Britain's aero-hydroplanes, land machines and dirigibles probably will not cross the channel for land fighting.

England to Be a Factor.

In the naval battles we shall see the aerohydros of France and England united against the smaller equipment of Germany and Austria, with Russia's principal hydro equipment close to her own shores on coast defense duty.

France is, undoubtedly, supreme as far as her numerical strength of land machines is concerned. She could, within a few months, add to her present quota of 745 land machines, 250 to 400 others and the pilots to man them. But Russia's equipment of 680 land machines could not be increased by privately owned planes, as aeroplane ownership in Russia is a government monopoly. Germany could add 200 machines and pilots to her total of 450 land machines within a short time; but little increase could be made in Austria's 130.

Total Strength of Three, 1,443.

The total strength of France, Russia and Servia combined in land machines is at the present 1,443. Germany's and Austria's is less than one-half as great—670. It must be borne in mind that these figures include all flyable machines owned by the government, and many of them are old rebuilt machines that were new from three to four years ago, but they are none the less serviceable for some purpose. There are more old machines in the French equipment than in any other country. Russia's equipment being the newest.

Germany's dirigible strength is the greatest, and Austria's is very important. Ten Zeppelins were recently ordered by the latter country, but have not been delivered. Combined the dirigible forces of Austria and Germany total at least 26. These include two Zeppelins in Austria and eight in Germany, varying in cubic meter capacity from 17,700 to 22,000.

French Dirigibles Fast.

France has an excellent fleet of dirigibles, however, some of them being exceedingly fast, and besides holding the dirigible speed record, French military dirigibles hold the world's duration record—35 hours and 19 minutes. This record was recently made by the 9,000 cubic meter L'Adjutant Vincenot, breaking the record of 34 hours 59 minutes previously held by a Zeppelin of 22,000 cubic meters' capacity.

But France lacks the weight carrying dirigibles of Germany, having but one of the Zeppelin type—the Spiess.

Just how powerful the combined airship fleet of Germany and Austria will prove can only be a matter of conjecture, but the first spectacular event of the war, the destruction of a Zeppelin by Roland Garros, the pilot who flew in Chicago in 1911, augurs ill for the success of these monster dirigible balloons in actual warfare.

Needless to say, no one knows—even nations whose spies are supposed to get the information—how many military machines of one form or another are now in commission for actual war service. The only really practical way to estimate the aero strength of nations is to follow the aero-military progress of each country as close as possible through every available source of information for three or four years, week to week and day to day.

It is impossible to give the figures baldly after a few days' research. And it is very amusing to read the various statements on this gripping subject, and to note the guesses made in various quarters.

If we sum up the qualities of the various aeroplane fleets, we will find that France has the largest, but that a number of old machines are included.

On the other hand we find in Germany an unusually high percentage of up-to-date machines in the aeroplane corps. The pilots are well trained, hardened men, if we are to judge them by their exploits and the tests that they must pass to obtain their brevets.

Russia has an equipment consisting of fully 90 per cent of machines, not more than two years old, and her daring officer-pilots fly like veritable Cossacks of the air.

Austrian aviators have recently distinguished themselves and won much credit for their excellent work, which previous to the Vienna meeting, was not highly appreciated. Yet Austria's pilots and aeroplane equipment are not considered to be of the highest class, but that they will prove potent in the present emergency is, however, certain.

Selfish American Woman Has $3,000 for Passage Home and Demands Conveyance.

Paris.—There has perhaps been no better indication of the unselfishness and charity with which Americans generally have accepted the hard lot imposed on them than the exceptonal conduct of one woman at the embassy and the retort which Major Henry felt himself justified in making to her.

The woman, of middle age and well dressed, stormed into the embassy and loudly demanded that some means be found immediately for her conveyance home. She announced that she had 15,000 francs in cash and insisted on it being used to insure her transportation.

"Very well," said Major Henry, "you can take your 15,000 francs and go outside and share it with those Americans who have not even the money to buy a piece of bread."

FIRST LADY OF THE LAND DIES AT WASHINGTON

END COMES TO MRS. WOODROW WILSON WHILE FAMILY SURROUNDS BEDSIDE LATE IN THE AFTERNOON.

PRESIDENT COMPLETELY UNNERVED BY THE SHOCK

All Washington Silenced and Wheels of Government Cease for Awhile —Both Branches of Congress Adjourn — First Death at Mansion in 20 Years.

Washington, Aug. 7.—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife of the president of the United States, died at the White House. Death came after a brave struggle of months against Bright's disease, with complications.

President's Grief Heartrending.

The president was completely unnerved by the shock and his grief was heartrending. He bore up well under the strain, however, and devoted himself to his daughters.

A Turn for the Worse.

The end came while Mrs. Wilson was unconscious. Her illness took a turn for the worse shortly before 1 o'clock in the afternoon and from then on she grew gradually weaker.

Kneeling at the bedside at the end were the president and their three daughters, Dr. Carey T. Grayson, U. S. N., and a nurse were in the room and just outside a door where Secretary McAdoo and Francis B. Sayre, Mr. Wilson's sons-in-law, and Mr. Tumulty, his secretary.

Houses of Congress Adjourn.

Both houses of congress adourned when Mrs. Wilson's death was announced and for a brief time the wheels of the government practically stopped while everyone paid respect to the loss of the president.

The beginning of the end came at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, when Dr. E. P. Davis of Philadelphia, who had been called in for consultation, realized that the time for hope had passed. He took the president into the Red room of the White House and there, in a broken voice, told him the truth. Mr. Wilson's face blanched, but he bore the shock well. He was informed the end was only a question of hours.

President Informs Family.

Mr. Wilson then took his daughters, Mrs. McAdoo, Mrs. Sayre and Miss Margaret Wilson, aside and told them of their mother's condition. Until then they had thought there was a chance for her recovery. From that time on the president and his daughters remained constantly at Mrs. Wilson's bedside. The president held his wife's hand and the three daughters were grouped nearby. Until she became unconscious, Mrs. Wilson frequently nodded to one or the other and smiled cheerfully.

"Promise me," she whispered faintly, "that if I go you will take care of my husband—" It was the same touch of devotion which she had so many times repeated—her constant anxiety having been that the president might not worry about her or be disturbed in his official tasks.

Many Telegraph Sympathy.

Three telegraph operators were kept busy at the White House last night receiving telegrams of sympathy from all parts of the country. The messages came from men prominent in politics, business and official life and from many who had no personal acquaintance with the president or Mrs. Wilson, but wanted to express their sorrow over his bereavement.

News Kept From Public.

The news of the seriousness of her illness was kept from the public until Wednesday when it was admitted that her chances of recovery were slight. Her condition continued to grow worse. Dr. Grayson gave out a statement in which he described her illness as "alarming."

Dr. Grayson gave out another statement in which he said that Mr. Wilson had had two sinking spells during the morning and that she was unconscious but growing weaker. This was the last word to come before her death.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson.

Missed It.

"So Jack is engaged, is he? And is Fanny the bride-to-be?"

"No. She's the tried-to-be."

DR. J. H. RINDLAUB (Specialist), Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat
Fargo, N. D.

Following Precedent.

Pat was servant of a farmer, and in his charge was a donkey which was kept to amuse his employer's children.

The donkey was following the farmer's wife round the yard one day, and the farmer, turning to Pat, said:

"I think that donkey is taking a liking to my wife."

"Och," said Pat, "shure and it's not the first donkey that's took a liking to her, sir."

Some Weather.

College boys who put money in their purses by toil in Kansas wheat fields will not be discouraged by this story: "I think I smell burning meat," said the farmer, as he paused for a moment in the harvest field to mop his brows. "You do," said the raw harvest hand, wearily, as he stooped to get a couple more sheaves of golden grain. "The burning meat you smell is my liver frying. It is overdone." And with that the young fellow spat on a grasshopper and scalded it to death."—Atlanta Constitution.

Found Task a Hard One.

Whether a boy's ears belong to his face or his neck has always been a matter of washing convenience to the boy. One of two boys on a street car evidently had been told to wash his face, for his companion remarked: "You're all dirty back of your ears."

"Aw, I ain't either," remonstrated the accused.

"Well, you don't have to believe me," said the other; "you just look and see."

"Can the contortions," growled the conductor; and the boys became as quiet as boys can be."

The Holt Weekly News
Successor to and Continuation of
The Northern Light
By The
Holt Publishing Company

Published every Friday at Holt, Marshall County, Minnesota.

Subscription Price: $1.00 per year, strictly in advance.

Entered as second-class matter Sept. 22, 1911, at the post office at Holt, Minnesota, under the act of March 3, 1879.

$4,700 Fine for Railroad.

For violations of the law that prohibits the confinement of live stock for more than 28 hours without unloading for feed, water, and rest one railroad has been fined $4,700. This total represents the penalties in 21 cases against the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railway Co. In addition, costs of $30.20 had to be paid by the railroad for two of the cases.

In addition to the above announcement, the Department of Agriculture has just issued notice of a total fine of $1,250 in six cases against the Pennsylvania Co. for violation of the same law. The total costs in the six cases were $29.70.

The Church Gaines on Booze.

In 1906, brewery and distillery activity was more than two and a half times as great as church building activity. In 1912 church building activity was five times as great as that of its rival. While in four months in 1913, ten times as much money went into new churches as into breweries. Let us thank God and take courage to press the fight to a finish.—The Minnesota White Ribbon.

And that's what we are doing in Mnnesota NOW, with the splendid White Ribboners leading the onslaught. The "Minnesota Dry NOW" slogan is setting the prairies afire with enthusiasm in the good old North Star state. On this issue, candidates for the legislature will be elected or defeated. The votes in November will tell the tale. If the people of Minnesota mean what they say when they shout for a dry state, they will have to prove it at the ballot box in votes for legislative candidates who will pass a statutory Prohibition bill. The Minnesota house and Senate will be the scenes of battle next winter on this issue.

When you finish looking over the paper this week and throw it down in disgust because there is nothing in it and then cuss the editor for his lack in furnishing you local news as he is supposed to do, just stop to think of the matters of interest you could have written about. Perhaps there are many interesting events transpiring the past week, but if there has been it is impossibible to find out about them. We have buttonholed every one we met and begged and pleaded for news items only to be told that "there's nothing doing." Farmers are to busy to come to town, merchants are sitting around rejoicing that the farmers are busy, knowing that it means good times in the fall and other citizens are busy trying to keep cool. There is only one birth to record and it is too hot for anybody to die or get married. Social activities are at a standstill and everything is so dull that a dog fight would be of interest.—Fairchild Observer.

We have been enjoying some very cool weather the past week.

P. C. Rosand of Mud Lake was a pleasant caller at this office, while in town, Tuesday.

We appreciate the money received on subscriptions and could use some more to advantage.

God must love the common people for He has made so many of them. —Abraham Lincoln.

Now is a good time to cut and pull the weeds that ornament our streets and alleys and a few of the highways leading into town.

Both elevators are fixing up and getting ready for the fall trade. Mr. Jones has also been doing some grading and other work in and around the lumber yard of Hanson & Barzen.

The young men of Holt will be hosts at an entertainment and luncheon to be held under the auspices of the Young Peoples Society, in the Free Evangelical Mission church on Sunday afternoon, August 16th, 1914. Everybody welcome, everybody come.

Rollis Rumbles

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert of Veldt visited the Warner's last Sunday.

A baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Micheal Leirn a week ago last Saturday.

The barley harvest has commenced and the shocks are so thick you can scarcely drive between them.

J. J. Kelley was a Grygla visitor last week. Billy Junior and C. Frisco are running an oil pull for him in that part of the country.

Misses Kelley, Warner and Batterson were out berrying with Mr. Glacken this week. They found lots of red raspberries but no blue berries.

The Owney Bros, who have contracted for the ditch between the towns of Mud Lake and Whiteford have completed the first half mile. They are moving their camp from Lewie Shagtum's to Robert Stilles' land this week. Jacob Anderson has contracted for one half mile of the above ditch.

The school board of Dist. No. 151 of Whitford let a contract to Charles Hanson for erecting a new school house. The consideration is $2045. It is to be built according to the state plan No. 2 and is to be ready for use by Oct. 1. The site was purchased of John Anderson aud Axel Thompson, and consists of two acres, one from each farm.

Southeast Of Holt.

Oscar and Arthur Gutterud visited with the Moe boys Sunday.

O. G. Olsen spent Sunday with his uncle, Christian Reichilt.

A number of young people spent Sunday evening at Larson's. They report an enjoyable time.

Miss Ida Dahlman of Alvarado has been visiting friends and relatives in this locality for a few days.

Several people are seen out berry-picking now-a-days. The cherries seem quite plentiful this year.

Bernhard Larson of Golden Valley is spending a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Larson.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Quindloy and daughters Helga and Agnes, John Chapman and his son L Grand spent Sunday at Gutterud's.

Harvesting is in full blast these days. During the warm weather the rust seems to have done quite a lot of damage to some of the grain.

Matilda Wendt called at Larson's Sunday.

Oscar Gutterud spent Sunday P. M. at Schuarts.

John Fasthouse called on Carl Gutterid Sunday afternoon.

Miss Olgo Larson made a business trip to T. R. Falls Monday.

Farmers in this locality are making preparations for the harvest season.

Mrs. Thomas Saastad and Lou Christian of Ringbo spent Sunday at Larson's.

Miss Ida Guttenid spent Sunday visiting her sister Alma at the Steven's dredge.

Mrs. S. Moe and children (Gunda, Marvel and Arthur) called at Gutterud's Sunday P. M.

The Ladies Aid of the Free church will meet at the Knute Ose home on Thursday Aug. 13th.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Hansen and children spent Sunday at the C. Larson home of Golden Valley.

The Misses Clara and Ragna Larson went to Golden Valley last Tuesday for a visit with relative.

Clarence Larson of Golden Valley passed through here enrout to Crookston on a business trip the last of the week.

The "squatting" on the Mud Lake bottom seems to be of great interest to people on Route No. 2. and vicinity.

Carl Christophersen has resigned his possession on the Steven's Dredge and is residing as one of the "squatters" on the Mud Lake bottom.

Free Mission Church Opening

Last Sunday Aug. 16th occurred an event which young and old have looked forward to with great anticipation, (The opening of the Free Mission Church.) After hard work and sacrifices on the part of young and old, their hopes have materialized in the form of a modest and commodious edifice for the preaching of the gospel. The day was a perfect one and people from Holt and vicinity responded to the invitation to come and enjoy the fruits of their labors. The services were opened by congregational singing, followed by prayer by M. T. Strom, afterwhich the choir rendered a fine selection. Rev. Larson preached in English from a text found in the gospel of St. John which he handled [illegible] After [illegible] services a short program was given by the young people consisting of selections by the choir, a solo by Mrs. Huseth, a reading by Miss C. Saastad and a song by six little girls, all of which was enjoyed and appreciated by every one present.

The congregation consisting of about 150 people were then conducted with chairs in hand to the basement of the church to partake of a repast, prepared by the young men and assisted by the young ladies of the town and vicinity. The menu consisted of two kinds of sandwichs several kinds of cake, coffee and ice cream. This was also enjoyed by all which not only satisfied the inner man but gave a heart satisfaction because of the fact that this little army of young people were desirous of promoting and maintaining an institution which stands for progress and righteousness. We hope this little church will grow and prosper, and it will as long as brotherly love and good will prevails.

Japan Ready to Declare War; Germany Still the Aggressor

JAP ULTIMATUM TO GERMANY TO RESULT IN WAR

KAISER TOLD TO EVACUATE FAR EAST BEFORE SUNDAY, AUGUST 23, OR ACTION WILL BE TAKEN TO ENFORCE DEMANDS.

"FORCED TO ACT" CONTENDS INSPIRED TOKIO REPORT

Position of Great Britain Is Upheld by Ally—Seizure of English Merchant Vessels in Seas of Eastern Asia by Germans Are Arguments Offered to Justify Action Taken.

Tokio, Aug. 18.—Japan has sent an ultimatum to Germany demanding the withdrawal of German warships from the Orient and the evacuation of Kiau-Chau and giving Germany until Sunday, Aug. 23, to comply with the demand. Otherwise, the ultimatum states, Japan will take action.

War Is Expected.

The general expectation here is that the ultimatum will be followed by war.

Takaaki Kato, the Japanese foreign minister, simultaneously with the dispatch of the ultimatum, conferred with George W. Guthrie, the American ambassador and made to him a broad statement calculated to assure the United States that American interests in the Far East would be safeguarded and the integrity of China upheld.

Sent by Six Channels.

Owing to doubts whether communications with Berlin were assured, Japan, in order to insure the arrival of the ultimatum, forwarded it to Berlin by six channels, including Washington, London and Stockholm. The government also notified Count Von Reed, German ambassador to Japan, and likewise retarded the time limit for a reply until Aug. 23.

Count Okuma, the Japanese premier, invited the peers, the newspaper men and the leading business men of Tokio to come to his office at noon, at four, and at six o'clock in the afternoon, respectively, when he might make known to them the terms of the ultimatum and announced that he would give out the negotiations in connection with the alliance.

The Ultimatum.

The ultimatum follows:

"We consider it highly important and necessary in the present situation to take measures to remove the causes of all disturbances of the peace in the Far East and so safeguard the general interests as contemplated by the agreement of alliance between Japan and Great Britain.

"In order to secure a firm and enduring peace in eastern Asia, the establishment of which is the aim of the said agreement, the imperial Japanese government sincerely believes it to be its duty to give the advice to the imperial German government to carry out the following two propositions:

"First—To withdraw immediately from Japanese and Chinese waters, German men-of-war and armed vessels of all kinds and to disarm at once those which cannot be so withdrawn.

"Second—To deliver on a date not later than Sept. 15. to the imperial Japanese authorities without condition or compensation the entire leased territory of Kiau-Chau with a view to the eventual restoration of the same to China.

August 23 Date Set.

"The imperial Japanese government announces at the same time that in the event of it not receiving by noon on Aug. 23, 1914, an answer from the imperial German government signifying its unconditional acceptance of the above advice offered by the imperial Japanese government, Japan will be compelled to take such action as she may deem necessary to meet the situation."

Inspired utterances express regret at the inability to maintain neutrality, but say that Great Britain, the ally of Japan, is compelled to defend herself against the aggressions of Germany. Moreover, it is pointed out that Germany is making preparations day and night at Kiau-Chau where it is storing provisions, while its warships are scouring the seas of eastern Asia to the great detriment of commerce and that its converted cruisers are seizing English merchant vessels.

Such actions, it is argued, are directly calculated to disturb the peace of eastern Asia and accordingly, after full and frank communication with Britain, Japan has found herself compelled to send an ultimatum to Germany.

FRENCH RESERVISTS LEAVE NEW YORK

Scene at New York as the liner La Lorraine sailed away with 1,100 French reservists. Above, some of the young men saying farewell to their sweethearts.

WAR SEEN IN BRIEF.

Japan sends ultimatum to Germany demanding that Germany withdraw her warships from the Orient and evacuate Kiau-Chau by August 23 or she will take action. War between these nations seems inevitable.

* * *

Japan assures the United States she has no desires for territorial aggrandizement and that American and Chinese interests will be safeguarded. Japan further proposes to return to China Tsing-Tau.

* * *

British troops in China have been instructed to hold themselves in readiness for transportation.

* * *

Diplomatic circles at Washington learn that the allies have given Japan practically a free hand to clear the Pacific and Far East of Germans.

* * *

Despite the repeated repulses which they have suffered, the German batallions continue to move forward on the great line of battle.

* * *

The invaders are sweeping along the valley of the Meuse, south of Namur and have reached Dinant, where part of a strong French force, which is established behind that town, took the offensive and defeated them.

* * *

Late dispatches report an offensive movement by the French from Luneville to Saareburg, but this is considered as yet merely an outpost affair.

* * *

Russia has demanded that Turkey grant unrestricted passage to her Black sea fleet through the Dardanelles. Passage through the Dardanelles has long been denied to the warships of any nation by treaty.

* * *

The Netherlands are determined to enforce strict neutrality.

* * *

The German government has tendered to the United States a Hamburg-American liner to fly the stars and stripes, to bring the American refugees now in Germany, home.

* * *

Reports reaching England of probable purchase by Americans of a great German fleet of merchant ships causes worry to the allies. It is said that citizens of the United States would solve the food problem for Germany.

* * *

A state of siege has been proclaimed in Bulgaria.

* * *

The United States cruisers Tennessee and North Carolina, bearing gold for the relief of Americans in Europe, have arrived at Falmouth.

* * *

The Dutch steamer Kinderijk collides with a British torpedo boat and is damaged. Some of her crew were hurt and others are reported missing.

JAPAN SENDS NOTE TO U. S.

ASSURES AMERICAN INTERESTS WILL BE SAFEGUARDED.

Promises "Eventual Restoration to China" of Kaiu Chau Territory—a Grave Development.

Washington, Aug. 18.—The Japanese ambassador, Baron Chinde, delivered to Secretary Bryan the written announcement of Japan that an ultimatum had been addressed to Germany requesting the latter's withdrawal from her field of activity in China.

At the same time he communicated the assurances of Japan to the United States that the utmost endeavor would be exercised to safeguard the interests of this country and all others not immediately concerned in the present operations.

The United States, it became known after Baron Chinda's call on Mr. Bryan, does not intend to be drawn in any way into the controversy, regarding it as a matter purely between Germany and Japan. The American government considers satisfactory the promise of Japan of "eventual restoration to China" of the territory of Kaiu Chau.

Baron Chinda's conference with the secretary of state was held at Mr. Bryan's residence. The ambassador presented a communication from the foreign office at Tokio, which embodied the substance of the ultimatum and added a strong statement concerning Japan's purposes of maintaining the territorial integrity of the Chinese Republic by restoring to her the territory of Kaiu Chau, originally taken from China by Germany as an act of reprisal for the killing of German missionaries.

While the statement made no direct reference to the United States, it gave assurance in general that the interests of all powers interested in maintaining the territorial status-quo in the Far East would be protected to the utmost.

The news of Japan's ultimatum to Germany was received by officials here as one of the gravest developments in the war situation, bringing for the first time the great military power of the Far East into a range of conflict heretofore held within Europe.

The situation in the Far East has, for several days, been regarded by officials as a delicate one.

BIG RUSSIAN BATTLE IS NEAR

London, Aug. 17.—Reports are coming in of fierce skirmishing on the Russo-German frontier. The Austrians are said to have been badly defeated in Northeastern Galicia.

These events indicate that the huge eastern armies of Germany and Austria will soon be at death grips with Russia's mighty forces.

The sooner the eastern conflict commences the better it will be for the allies in the West, where the main German advance is developing into a great flanking movement in Belgium, which, despite repeated repulses by the heroic defenders, would seem to threaten Antwerp and Brussels.

FRENCH VICTORY; GERMAN ARMY IS PUSHING AHEAD

REPORT OF BATTLE OF DINANT, BELGIUM, IS OFFICIALLY CONFIRMED BY PARIS AND LONDON DISPATCHES.

LOCATES FRENCH ALLIES FOR THE FIRST TIME

Kaiser's Forces on March in Valley of Meuse Prepare for Extensive Operations and Preliminary Skirmishing Continues—French Move Forward All Along Line.

Paris, Aug. 18.—An official note issued by the war office confirms the report of a battle Sunday at Dinant, Belgium. It says:

Report of Battle.

"A division of German cavalry, supported by some battalions of infantry attacked Dinant. The French cavalry repulsed the German troops, who retired in disorder.

"The French troops captured some hundreds of German cavalry horses which were immediately sent to the rear to serve as re-mounts, for the French cavalry.

"The high spirits of the French troops greatly encouraged the Belgians."

Discovers Exact Location.

The war office announces that the news of the victory for the French discovers for the first time the exact location of the French allies in Belgium.

Hundreds of the Uhlans horses were captured in the engagement which was marked by a display of brilliant courage on the part of the French.

The Bavarian forces, according to the same war office's statement, have been pushed back across the border to German territory, losing every position they had gained previously in this

Take Several Positions.

The French troops have taken several new positions notably in the vicinity of Demen and the upper Bruche valley. They have retaken others which they were forced to abandon, forcing the enemy to avacuate Blamont and Cirey.

As reported, they have reoccupied the town of Thann in upper Alsace, which is just before Muelhausen, which is certain to be soon reconquered, it is thought.

On the line from Thienville to Verdanville, near Luxemberg, the Germans still hold the region around Briey and Longwy.

German Prisoners in France.

An official announcement by the French war office says the French troops took over 500 German prisoners on Friday when they occupied several mountains around Donon, also known as Rougemont, on the border of German Lorraine.

Action of German Forces.

London, Aug. 17.—The German forces are pushing forward through the valley of the Meuse, and still more extensive operations are in progress along the Alsace-Lorraine frontier where the French and German armies are in contact.

A Reuter dispatch from Paris announces that it is officially stated that the offensive movement along the line from Sarrebourg on the Franco-German frontier at Luneville in the department of Meurthe-et-Moselle continues.

News of Dinant Victory.

Reuter's correspondent in Brussels telegraphs that the French legation there confirms the report of a victory by the French at Dinant. He says the German troops appeared in force with several quick-firing guns and attacked the French position.

A brisk fight ensued in the course of which the French artillery decimated the German troops. At the end of the fighting, the French occupied both banks of the river.

Forward Movement of French.

Paris.—The following official statement was issued:

"A forward movement developed all along the front from Reichscourt (Rixingen), in Lorraine, 11 miles southwest of Saarebourg, to Sainte Marie-Aux-Mines. We carried the latter and advanced into the region of Saint Blaise.

"The French troops who occupied Donan continue to advance, their progress being especially rapid in the Schiermeck valley. We have taken 1,000 prisoners in addition to the 500 on Friday. Large quantities of equipment had been admitted by the Germans. We also captured this. We pushed as far as Lorquin Height, capturing a convoy belonging to a cavalry division, consisting of 19 automobiles and lorries."

Reserve Board Active.

Washington, Aug. 12.—The federal reserve board, entrusted with control of the great banking system created by the new currency law, actually came into existence when the five members appointed by President Wilson took the oath of office at the treasury department. Plans for taking over the system set up by the organization committee and opening the reserve banks for business within the next few weeks, already are under way, though the first formal meeting of the board will not be held until Thursday.

CARRANZA IS NOW PRESIDENT

NAMED PROVISIONAL HEAD OF MEXICO IN AGREEMENT.

Constitutionalists to Fill Offices Until Election Is Held—Many Refugees in Vera Cruz.

Washington, Aug. 17.—Venustiano Carranza was named provisional president of Mexico in the agreement signed outside of Mexico City by General Obregon and representatives of Federal Governor Iturbide, according to an announcement by the Constitutionalist agency here.

The Federal garrison evacuating Mexico City, it was said, will form in groups of not over 5,000 along the railroad to be disbanded and disarmed by Constitutionalist commissioners while the Federal garrisons in certain towns near Mexico City and fronting the troops at Zapata remain at their posts until relieved by Constitutionalist forces. Garrisons in the southern states are to lay down their arms and the Federal navy is to be turned over to the provisional president.

Mexico City Quiet.

Mexico City, Aug. 15.—The capital passed an expectant but absolutely quiet day awaiting the incoming Constitutionalist army. The plan for the dissolution of the Federal army calls for the delivery of all arms and munitions to the Constitutionalists, which seemingly indicates that if it is complied with there will be no fear of a counter revolution on the part of the Federal army.

It is probable the cabinet of General Carranza will be as follows:

Foreign minister, Isidro Fabela; minister of the interior, General Alvero Obregon; minister of war, General Eduardo Hay; minister of public works, Alberto J. Bani.

Orders closing all Catholic churches were issued by the archbishop, who will not permit them to reopen until the new regime is established.

Many clergymen are leaving for Spain.

Flee to Vera Cruz.

Vera Cruz, Aug. 15.—Official estimates fix the number of refugees who have fled from Mexico City to Vera Cruz at 15,000. Several army officers, including General Gustava Maas, who defended Vera Cruz against the Americans, joined the refugees.

WILSON OBJECTS TO LOANS.

President Disapproves of Americans Furnishing Funds to Belligerent Countries.

Washington, Aug. 17.—President Wilon formally disaproved of the plan of American bankers floating loans in the United States for the benefit of belligerent countries of Europe, but expressed no objections to loan made to neutral countries.

Berlin Is Reported Quiet.

Washington, Aug. 15.—The American Association of Commerce and Trade of Berlin, through Ambassador Gerard, has requested the state department to make public the following telegram:

"We would ask the American Press and America in general to be careful in giving credence to war reports, now circulating in the United States, concerning conditions in Germany. The city of Berlin is perfectly quiet. Food prices are normal. Foreigners, especially Americans, are fully protected."

GERMANY OFFERS SHIP FOR U. S. USE

WILL AID IN GETTING AMERICANS OUT OF WAR-RIDDEN EMPIRE BY LOAN OF VESSEL.

OTHER NATIONS MAY FOLLOW

Washington Officials Are Optimistic and Believe Task of Rescuing Refugees May Be Simplified—Transports May Not Be Sent to Europe.

Washington, Aug. 18.—A new avenue of exit for Americans stranded in Europe was opened when the German government offered to place at the disposal of the United States a Hamburg-American line steamer which would fly the American flag to bring home refugees.

Will Accept Offer.

There is every indication that Secretary Garrison, chairman of the government board of relief, will accept the offer and the opinion is expressed that some of the other nations involved in the European conflict will divert liners for the transportation of the American refugees.

How many of the steamers of the nations at war will be available or offered for the refugee service has not been determined, but there are possibilities that sufficient facilities will be found so that the plan of sending United States transports abroad might be abandoned.

Transports for Work.

Several transports now are on their way to Newport News to be outfitted for that service.

A message from Secretary Garrison, asking if some of the German liners now lying idle at New York, could be used to bring home refugees evidently crossed the offer of a ship cabled by the German government. As there are 27 German vessels at New York, Mr. Garrison expresses belief that there will be no difficulty in bringing all Americans in Germany home with despatch. He thinks his request to other countries that refugee ships be regarded as neutral will promptly be granted.

Route Is Suggested.

While the Berlin government has suggested that any German ships employed sail around the north coast of Scotland for German ports, it appears probable that an attempt will be made to agree on a Mediterranean route that would take the ships to French and Italian ports, where the refugees might gather.

By that means all danger of encountering mines would be avoided. Mr. Garrison said the United States would preserve the strictest neutrality of all passenger ships. He asked the American embassies at Berlin and Vienna to determine the number of Americans in Austria and Germany who want to come home.

There are about 10,000 in Switzerland alone who seek transportation.

INVESTIGATE PRICE FIXING

President Wilson's Campaign Against Increase in Food Costs Bears Early Fruit.

Washington, Aug. 15. — President Wilson's campaign against "rapid and unwarranted increase in prices of foodstuffs upon the pretext of conditions in Europe," bore early fruit.

Preliminary reports from United States district attorneys and department of justice special agents, declaring many price increases speculative, unjustifiable and some bearing elements of illegal conspiracy subject to anti-trust law prosecution, began to pour in by telegraph upon the attorney general.

Within a week or ten days Attorney General McReynolds expects to be able to present the report requested in the president's letter whether immediate recourse to the courts shall be taken or a further investigation shall be made jointly by the departments of justice, commerce and agriculture.

A grand jury investigation of increased food prices in the District of Columbia was begun in the federal courts here, directed by the United States district attorney. Local heads of packing companies, the big central markets, wholesale grocers and hotel proprietors were subpoenaed.

To Issue No More Bulletins.

Brussels, Aug. 17. — (via Paris.)—The Belgian general staff states that there had been no engagement near Diest. The number of Germans in Limburg province is declared to have been exaggerated, and the general military situation is described as excellent but for the strategic reasons the general staff says it will issue no more bulletins.

Relief Boats Chartered.

Paris, Aug. 17.—American Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, on behalf of the United States government contracted with the French Compagne Generale Trans-Atlantique for the steamship Espagne to sail on Aug. 19 from Havre for the United States with 950 Americans aboard. Four hundred of these passengers were placed by the American relief committee. Mr. Herrick also arranged for the liner Rochambeau to leave Havre on Aug. 28 with 1,200 Americans.

Did Not Cause Big War.

London. Aug. 15.—The Exchange Telegraph Rome correspondent sends the outline of an official communication from the Vienna government to Rome notifying the Italian government of Great Britain's declaration of war on Austria. The Austrian note says: "Austria's war against Servia, an independent state, and for a cause which did not affect international politics, cannot be considered as the cause for the present European war."

French Driven From Germany.

Berlin, Aug. 14.—(By direct wireless from Nauen, Germany, to the Goldschmidt Wireless Company's station at Tuckerton, N. J.)—The German troops took 120 French officers and 1,110 French soldiers prisoners in the fighting at Muelhausen, Alsace. They also captured four French cannon.

Another 1,000 French officers and men were taken prisoners by the Germans in the fight near Longwy.

German soil is now entirely cleared of French troops.

Gifford Pinchot Married.

New York, Aug. 17.—Miss Cornelia E. Bryce, daughter of Lloyd Steven Bryce, former minister to the Netherlands, and Gifford Pinchot, former chief forester of the United States, were married in the Episcopal church at Roslyn, Long Island. On account of the illness of Mr. Pinchot's mother, only relatives and a few intimate friends were present. A reception followed at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Bryce at Roslyn.

I Want Some US CARTRIDGES

Test after test after test of ammunition has proved the value of the U. S. non-mercuric primer. No mercury in the primer means no harmful, corrosive fouling of the barrel, no destroying action on the brass cartridge case, no varying time of ignition. The U. S. primer is a strictly chemical compound that acts with perfect uniformity.

Where fulminate of mercury is used, ground glass is also used. Ground glass is difficult to mix with mercury and its effect is not only to wear down the rifling, but also to cool the primer flame by absorbing about 16% of the heat.

World's Championship Rifle Teams habitually use U. S. Cartridges.

ENTIRELY A PRIVATE AFFAIR

Group of Surveyors Really Had No Right to "Peck" at Couple Far Out on the Lake.

Far out on Lake Erie, nearly a mile from Edgewater park beach, there was a speck of black on the water.

Nearer shore there were other and larger specks. Close in the specks became boats, containing fishermen and other people. There must have been a hundred, all told.

On the hill that borders the park beach a party of city engineers were at work.

Resting for a moment, an engineer looked out over the lake. He saw the farthest tiny speck.

"I wonder what that boat is doing way out there," he mused. And he remarked to the others about him.

So they brought one of those things surveyors look through to ascertain distance and straighten a line. They trained it on the speck, and, taking turns at looking, they saw as plainly as if the boat rested only a few hundred feet away.

A man wearing a white shirt and a girl wearing a white waist were in that boat. They sat together on the center seat. An arm of each embraced the other.

A stir. The girl used her other arm to reach into the man's pocket. She extracted a cigarette, lighted it, and then blew smoke in the man's face.

"Oh, let's quit and be gentlemen," said the surveyors. "They wouldn't enjoy it at all if they knew somebody was looking."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"But, mother, dear," confided the child, solemnly, "they do one thing that is very dreadful! I hate to tell you about it, for it is really kind of cruel, and I'm afraid you won't let me go there again."

"Why, Lillian," urged the mother, in some alarm, "you must tell me, dear."

"Well, mother," replied the child, in a shocked whisper, "they use their own grandmother for a cook!"—Harper's Magazine.

Polo for Women.

Englishwomen were ever splendid horsewomen, so one wonders why it has been left to American women to be first in the field with polo for women. Many a hard match has been played in the United States during the last twelve months by mixed teams, sometimes consisting of three men, captained by one woman, and by women's teams. As one thinks of the wonderful pluck of our women here who ride to hounds, their dash and enthusiasm, it naturally occurs to one that they are born for polo if ever women were.—London Daily Mail.

Entry of Mikado's Nation Into European War Situation Commands Wide Attention—May Extend Conflict to Far East

London, Aug. 18.—(3:30 A. M.)—The Daily Express says: "There is little doubt that a great battle is now occurring between the Germans and the Belgian and French allies. Our correspondent, in a cryptic dispatch from Ghent, indicates that the Germans are advancing on the historic battleground of Waterloo, and that events of the greatest importance are in progress."

London, Aug. 18.—A Brussels dispatch to the Daily Mail says that sharp fighting has been in progress since Monday morning.

Washington, Aug. 18.—Japan's sudden entry into the European war situation as a factor that might quickly increase the range of the great conflict to the Far East, commanded wide attention, both among officials of the Washington government and diplomats generally.

The attitude of the United States, it became clear, will be one of non-interference in the controversy between Japan and Germany. This was reflected in the studied reticence of both the president and Secretary Bryan. The president refrained from expressing an opinion on the merits of the ultimatum or Japan's attitude. Published reports to the effect that the "president expressed himself as satisfied with Japan's course," was promptly denied by Secretary Tumulty tonight at the president's direction.

"The president feels it encumbent on himself," said Tumulty, "as the head of a neutral nation, to express no opinions whatsoever, on the attitude of Japan or any other country."

Washington, Aug. 18.—Further improvement in the facilities for the removal of American refugees from English ports was reported today to the government relief board, but the board still faces the problem of finding ships for the thousands of tourists unable to leave Germany, Austria, Switzerland and Italian ports.

The acceptance of Germany's offer to place at the disposal of the United States several liners to fly the American flag, has been deferred pending the result of exchanges with other governments over the recognition of neutrality of relief ships. Administration officials are confident, however, the government's offer will solve the problem.

Ambassador Page, at London, reported that all British steamship lines have been ordered to resume service with full compliment of vessels.

London, Aug. 18.—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Maine says the German emperor, accompanied by three of his sons, including Crown Prince Frederick William, has arrived there.

A Paris correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph learns that the Russian emperor will sign a proclamation soon, giving the Jews in his dominion equal civil and political rights with his other subjects.

Berlin, via Copenhagen and London, Aug. 18.—The German government in note to the Belgian government intimated the Belgians had so brilliantly proved their honor in arms that the German government, after taking Brussels, would be willing to conclude any arrangement compatible with the conflict between Germany and France and would evacuate Belgium as speedily as war conditions permitted. The Belgian government replied on Aug. 13, again refusing the German proposition.

London, Aug. 18.—(Tuesday)—A Brussels report indicates the Germans are forcing their way through Belgium. A British war counsel decided to exclude correspondents from the forces in the field and announced the French war department intends to take the same action. It is probable the war correspondents in Belgium will be ordered from the state.

The Brazilian government has instructed its minister at Berlin to ask for an explanation and the punishment of those guilty of an alleged attack by German soldiers on Bernardino Campos, ex-president of the state of Sao Paulo, and wife, who it is reported were beaten and forced across the Swiss frontier.

The British official news bureau says the French fleet in the Mediterranean has made a clean sweep up of the Adriatic as far as Cattaro. Four Austrian warships are reported sunk. British military and naval movements are still shrouded in mystery.

A Paris dispatch to the Daily Telegraph says: "It is reported an engagement between British and German warships occurred off the Canary Islands. It is stated a German cruiser has been sunk, also that a British cruiser captured a German ship collecting munitions of war."

The British official news bureau has no information concerning these reports.

A Reuter dispatch from Rennes, France, says: "Madame Guillon, a wealthy resident of Combourg, a town a short distance southeast of Saint Malo, has arrived here. She tells how her husband and baby were killed by a mob in Hanover, Germany. She says:

"'On arriving in Hanover my husband and myself were arrested as spies and stoned by a mob, despite the protective efforts of the police. My husband, unfortunately, lost his self-control and cried, "Long live France; long live England," whereupon he was shot.

"'Two friends who tried to intervene also were killed. Our baby, wearing a cap bearing the word 'France,' was torn from me, dashed to the ground and killed.'"

Paris, Aug. 18.—American Ambassador Herrick has accepted the offer by the government to supply free transportation on a special train leaving Annemasse, in the department of Haute Savoie, in order to permit Americans in Switzerland to reach French sailing ports.

The United States cruiser North Carolina is expected to reach Cherbourg Wednesday, bringing gold for the American refugees.

New York, Aug. 18.—The steamer Nieuw Amsterdam, of the Holland American line, arrived in quarantine this evening from Rotterdam and Plymouth with 2,000 Americans, who temporarily had been marooned abroad on account of the war.

Rio Janeiro, Aug. 18.—The British cruiser Glasgow has captured the Hamburg American steamship Santa Catharina which sailed from New York July 25 for South American ports. When the Santa Catharina left New York, she had a million dollar cargo. The ship is 350 feet long; it was built in 1907.

Rome, via London, Aug. 18.—Confirmation of a naval fight in the Adriatic sea is given in a dispatch from Cettinje to the Corriere d'Italia, which says the Austrian battleship Zrinyi, and three other ships, names unascertainable, were sunk by the French fleet. A great number of French and English warships are said to be patrolling the coast.

Proves Arctic Was Hot.

Corroborating the report of soundings in the Arctic sea made by the Karluk expedition that revealed the presence of coral is a recent note in science that the fossil flora of that icy climate show the presence of abundant and luxuriant ferns and palmlike plants produced by the tropical conditions of late paleozoic and middle cenozoic geologic time. F. H. Knowlton of the United States geological survey has published a description of such plants found about Cape Lisburne, 100 miles north of the arctic circle on the western coast of Alaska.

Coffee Ails Vanish Before Postum.

It seems almost too good to be true, the way headache, nervousness, insomnia, and many other obscure troubles vanish when coffee is dismissed and Postum used as the regular table beverage.

The reason is clear. Coffee contains a poisonous drug—caffeine—which causes the trouble, but Postum contains only the food elements in choice hard wheat with a little molasses.

A Phila. man grew enthusiastic and wrote as follows:

"Until 18 months ago I used coffee regularly every day and suffered from headache, bitter taste in my mouth, and indigestion; was gloomy and irritable, had variable or absent appetite, loss of flesh, depressed in spirits, etc.

"I attribute these things to coffee, because since I quit it and have drank Postum I feel better than I had for 20 years, am less susceptible to cold, have gained 20 lbs. and the symptoms have disappeared—vanished before Postum."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

Old Fable Revised.

The grasshopper knocked humbly at the door of the ant's prosperous-looking home.

"What do you want?" said the ant, in a thin, hard voice.

"A little food, and shelter from the cold winds," replied the grasshopper. "I can feel the icy hand of winter clutching at my throat."

"And, may I ask," said the unsympathetic ant, "how comes it that you have wasted the summer?"

"The sun shone bright. Everything was gay and I did naught but dance from morn till night."

"Why didn't you tell me that before?" said the ant, smiling her sweetest smile. "Come right in and make yourself at home. I've been too busy to learn the new dances, and, if you'll teach me, you can name your own price."—Puck.

Chinese Forest Reserves.

The Chinese national conservation bureau is considering reforestation at the headwaters of the Yellow river. The government report shows that this will ameliorate the torrents and cause a more regular flow from the now denuded uplands. It is acknowledged, however, that this reforestation may not have an appreciable effect within the lifetime of the present generation.—Popular Mechanics.

LONGEST PATROL ON RECORD

Three Thousand Three Hundred Miles Through the Far North Made by Mounted Police.

Six hundred and forty-nine officers and men compose the Royal Northwest Mounted police. The other day four of them—Inspector E. A. Pelletier, Corporal Joyce and Constables Walker and Conway—got off a train at Regina, their headquarters. It is a raw, unfinished prairie city about a hundred miles north of the border line.

These men, says the Wide World Magazine, had just completed the longest patrol on record—3,347 miles through the wildest and most desolate regions of the far north, a great part of which had never before been traversed by the foot of a white man. Yet there was no crowd to meet them to ride in.

They attracted no particular attention, though they had accomplished one of the most remarkable and daring journeys in the annals of travel and exploration, and had helped considerably to fill in the blank spaces on the map. They did not even receive a mention in the local newspapers, but what was regarded by them as far more gratifying than newspaper applause was the thanks of the prime minister.

When the next map is issued from Ottawa these men could, if their modesty would allow them, point out certain things which have never appeared before and say, "We discovered that—and that—and that."

"BUT WE CAN'T FIRE HIM."

"Well, we were scooped on that murder at Chico," thundered the news editor, as he sternly confronted the coast editor of a San Francisco morning paper.

"You see, it was like this," began the youth who presides over the coast desk, "our—"

"Cut that out," shouted the vigilant chief of the news department. "Fire the Chico correspondent by wire."

"But you can't fire him."

"Why?" demanded the news editor.

"Because the murdered man was our correspondent."

Strange as it may seem, this story is true.

HALF DOZEN BATTLES ARE BEING SIMULTANEOUSLY FOUGHT IN BELGIUM

EUROPE'S DESTINY NOW TREMBLING IN THE BALANCE

AT LEAST 2,000,000 MEN LINKED IN DEATH GRAPPLE IN BELGIUM AT THE PRESENT TIME.

FIGHTING LINE EXTENDS FROM MONS TO LUXEMBURG

Hundred Miles of Battle Front Makes Great Struggle far Surpass Any Recorded in History—Million Germans Face to Face With Great Army of Allies.

London, Aug. 25.—Along 100 miles of fighting line at least 2,000,000 men are linked in a death grapple in the first pitched battle of the war.

The struggle is being waged from Mans on the southern edge of Belgium to the Luxemburg frontier.

The British expeditionary force has at last emerged into the open and is fighting at the side of the French. One million Germans of the kaiser's army are face to face with the allied troops and with cavalry charge and cannonade and hand to hand encounter of the infantry, the destiny of Europe is trembling in the balance.

No Details Emerge.

No details of how the issue of the strife goes are permitted to emerge from behind the curtain that envelopes the scene. It will be days and may be weeks before a decisive result has been attained and the world is permitted to know.

Half a dozen battles are simultaneously being fought, any one of which dwarfs Gettysburg or Waterloo by comparison.

At Mons, at Givet, along both banks of the river Meuse, down at Neuf Chateau and along toward Arlon the embattled powers are struggling with varying successes.

Bloody Battle at Luttre.

At Luttre, in Hainsult province where Mons is also located, a bloody battle is in progress. One would say it was the left wing of the allies army that is here engaged, since Luttre is but 10 miles from Mons to the northeast and but five miles distance from Charleroi.

Again between Charleroi and Namur another great struggle is going forward with the French on the offensive, it is declared, and meeting with success.

Bombardment at Namur.

All the while a tremendous bombardment of the Namur fort is under way, the roar of the siege guns shaking the earth beneath the feet of the millions battling for supremacy.

From Namur to Charleroi is another 15 miles. Along this line the contest rages to halt the German advance toward Dinant, but six miles from the French frontier.

Apparently the Germans, having diverted their original plans for the sally north into Brussels, have now suddenly returned to the original plan of campaign and are pouring southward in two main columns converging on Mons, where a union will be made with the German forces which have advanced through Luxemburg.

The German lines are said to extend from Tamise near Antwerp southwest through Puere and Zele, and thence southeast to Gosselies and Charleroi.

Trap Was Laid.

If the adove deduction is correct, it was at Charleroi later in the day that the junction was made with the troops which advanced through Luxemburg, thus completing the battle line from Mons to the Luxemburg frontier, which is now raging.

It will remain for the developments of the next few days to determine whether the trap which the allies claim to have laid for the Germans has been effective.

Paris Official Announcement.

Paris, Aug. 24.—The following official announcement was issued last night:

"A great battle is now in progress along a vast line extending from Mons to the frontier of Luxemburg. Our troops in conjunction with the British have assumed everywhere the offensive. We are faced by almost the whole German army, both active and reserve.

"The ground, especially on our right, is thickly wooded and difficult. The battle is likely to last several days.

Forts at Liege Intact.

"The forts at Liege still hold. Fort Chandefontaine has been the scene of an act of heroism which affirms once more the brilliant valor of the Belgian army."

London, Aug. 24.—A News agency dispatch from Rome says it has been officially announced at Nish that in a battle at Shabatza the Austrian force alone was estimated at 300,000. The Servians were victorious everywhere. They turned the Austrian left wing and the losses of the latter were fully 20,000, whole regiments being wiped out and thousands taken prisoners.

ONE OF GERMANY'S COMMANDERS

Count von Haessler, field marshal of the German army.

AGED AUSTRIAN RULER REPORTED TO BE DYING

Condition of Francis Joseph Such as to Cause Great Alarm in Kingdom.

London, Aug. 25.—A Rome dispatch to the Exchange Telegram company, reports that Emperor Francis Joseph is in a grave condition and may die at any moment.

Paris Gets Report.

Paris.—A dispatch received here from Rome quotes the Messagero of that city to the effect that Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria is dying.

A dispatch to the Havas Agency from Rome says the correspondent has learned from an authoritative source that the Prince of Wied has not left Durazzo, Albania, but that two of his sons have departed.

Japan to Confine Activity.

Washington, Aug. 25.—Viscount Chinda, the Japanese ambassador here, has formally notified the United States that Japan had declared war on Germany. The American government was immediately asked to care for Japan's interest in Germany. Assurances recently given by the British government to the United States that Japan's activity would be confined to the China seas and Eastern Asia were repeated by Viscount Chinda. The position of the United States has met with the approval of Japan.

Details of Ship's Sinking.

London, Aug. 24.—Official news from Paris gives further details of the encounter in the Adriatic about a week ago, which resulted in the loss of the Austrian battleship Zrinyi, a vessel of over 14,000 tons, and a crew of 357 men. The Zrinyi was truck by a shell from a French warship. This projectile exploded in the magazine and damaged the warship so badly that it foundered in a few minutes.

EUROPEAN WAR SITUATION.

The French and British troops are facing the greater part of the German army along a battle line which extends from Mons to the Luxemburg frontier. The allied armies, which have been concentrating at strategic points for the past two weeks, are believed to be strongly entrenched, with powerful forts to lend them support in holding back the invaders.

* * *

Reports are current that Emperor Francis Joseph is dying. These reports have been denied, but they are being reiterated.

* * *

Japan formelly declares war on Germany when no reply is received to her ultimatum at expiration of the time limit. The Tokio government, following an imperial rescript, orders the opening of hostilities at once on land and sea.

* * *

The kaiser orders the governor of Kiao-Chow to defend the German possession to the utmost. The governor declares that preparations are complete for the reception of the invaders.

* * *

Ostend is again frightened about the entry into the city of the Germans.

Refugees in Ostend from Brussels say it took seven hours for the German troops to pass through Brussels. They estimate there were 35,000. The Germans are moving toward France. Antwerp is, for the present at least, being neglected.

The Germans are leaving the administration of Brussels to the civil authorities.

* * *

An open rupture in diplomatic relations between Italy and Austria is hourly expected. Paris and Malta reports even predict that Italy will declare war on Austria within a few days. Italy has ordered her troops mobilized by Aug. 27.

It is said Greece is sending troops to the assistance of Servia.

While the Liege forts are said to be holding, a telegram from the French government tells of the blowing up of Fort Chandefontaine by the Belgian commander, after it had been razed by the German guns.

* * *

The Servians are apparently driving out the Austrians.

* * *

Japan will confine activities to China seas and eastern Asia only.

* * *

Return of Kiao-Chow to China declared intention of the Japanese government.

* * *

Germans claimed to have checked Russian advance against the eastern frontier of the Fatherland.

* * *

Further accounts of the reported Servian victory over the Austrians say that in the fighting along the Drina river the Austrian casualties were between 20,000 and 25,000, while 10,000 prisoners were taken. The fighting lasted three days. The Servian artillery did effective work against the enemy. Nish declares officially that a part of the Servian army has invaded Bosnia and that another battle is expected soon.

* * *

Half a million Russians reported 20 miles within Germany. Teutons declared retreating before the advancing Cossacks.

* * *

A war tax of $40,000,000 is said to have been levied on the city of Brussels by the German commander.

JAPAN DECLARES WAR; HOSTILITIES BEGIN AT ONCE

OPERATIONS BOTH ON LAND AND SEA ORDERED BY MIKADO FOLLOWING DIPLOMATIC BREAK.

KAISER ORDERS DEFENSE OF FAR EAST HOLDINGS

Austrian Warship Hastily Leaves Kiao-Chow, Indicating That Country Will Not Participate in New Entanglement—Tokio Citizens Fired by War Spirit.

Tokio, Aug. 25.—The emperor of Japan has declared war upon Germany. This action was taken at the expiration of the time limit of Japan's ultimatum to Germany demanding the surrender of Kiao-Chow.

Operations Have Begun.

The Japanese government has ordered the beginning of operations on land and sea.

The imperial rescript declaring war was issued Sunday evening. It officially inaugurates hostilities in the Far East as a result of Germany's failure to the Japanese ultimatum.

People Are Thrilled.

The proclamation of the emperor sent a thrill through the country. Japan's entrance upon the fulfillment of her obligations to her ally, Great Britain, responds to the popular will from one end of the land to the other. Cheering crowds assembled before the buildings occupied by the department of foreign affairs and the administration of the navy. There were lantern processions through the streets Sunday night. The popular manifestations, however, do not approach the enthusiasm which preceded the war with Russia.

Count Von Reed, the German ambassador, has been handed his passports. George W. Guthrie, the American ambassador, will represent Germany.

Diet Is Convoked.

The diet has been convoked in special session for Sept. 3.

The Austrian cruiser Kaiserin Elizabeth, which latterly was at Tsing-Tau, the seaport of Kiao-Chow, is reported to have sailed. [illegible] port and disarm. It is believed this action will keep Austria out of the war in the Orient, although unforeseen circumstances may force Japan to change this policy. No action yet has been taken relative to Austria, and the foreign office has explained that Japan will remain friendly unless Austria adopts an attitude which it regards as offensive.

Wilson's Course Pleases Japs.

It is reported here that Germany has been trying to transfer the German railroad in Shantung, China, to America. Tokio believes, however, that the United States, pursuing the policy of neutrality outlined by President Wilson, will not accept. President Wilson's announcement of neutrality has greatly pleased the Japanese.

The newspapers express surprise at the extent of American suspicion regarding Japan's motives in issuing the ultimatum, but leading writers express a firm confidence that a better understanding will be had with the people of America.

Premier Okuma states that documentary evidence will show that England not only requested Japan's assistance, but approved of her entire program.

China Is Satisfied.

A dispatch from Pekin says the German minister and Chinese foreign office were about to sign an agreement regarding Tsing-Tau, when Japan's decision was announced, whereupon the Chinese foreign office decided not to proceed.

Other dispatches say President Yuan Shi Kai is satisfied with Japan's attitude and pledges.

Speaking at Karuizawa Kyu, Sauro Shimada, a member of the opposition in parliament, said he believed Japan had no desire to keep Kiao-Chow. He asserted that it was Japan's policy to prevent a stir up in China.

"The retaining of Kiao-Chow," he said, "would mean the danger of a revolution in China and incurring the ill-will of America. Japan is appreciative of Germany's contribution to Japanese civilization, but is resentful because the kaiser first raised the cry of 'Yellow peril' and Germany directed a combination to oust Japan from Port Arthur in 1895."

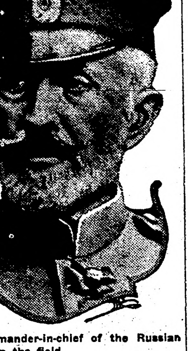
The German emperor sent a message to the governor on Aug. 19, ordering him to defend Tsing-Tau to the utmost.

Kaiser Orders Defense.

Tsing-Tau, China.—German preparation on the defense of Tsing-Tau and the territory of Kiao-Chow is complete. News of German victories in Europe has been circulated and has increased the confidence of the defending forces. The governor of Kiao-Chow, Meyer Waldeck, has issued a proclamation, saying:

"If the enemy wishes Tsing-Tau he must come and take it. He will find us at our post. We look confidently into the future and are well prepared to receive the enemy."

GRAND DUKE NICOLAS



Commander-in-chief of the Russian army in the field

WELCOME FOR GEN. CARRANZA

ENTERS MEXICO CITY AT HEAD OF HIS TROOPS.

Not Slightest Disorder Marks Event—Villa Remains in Northern Mexico With 40,000 Men.

Mexico City, Aug. 22.—General Venustiano Carranza, the supreme chief of the Mexican revolution, and now provisional president of the republic, has just entered the capital. He was given an enthusiastic reception by the crowds on the streets.

It is estimated that more than 150,000 persons crowded the line of march of the new president and his followers, which extended from the village of Atzcapotzalco to the national palace, a distance of six miles.

There was not the slightest disorder as General Carranza and his staff passed through the cheering crowds which showered them with flowers and confetti and from which came cries of "Long live Carranza; long live the Constitutional government."

General Carranza was mounted on a superb horse, and accompanied by his staff, and the generals of the northwest, the central and northeast divisions of the constitutionalist army, left Atzcopotzalco, escorted by a squadron of cavalry and the Fourth Sonora battalion of infantry, which acted as the guard of honor. On reaching the city limits the column was met by the mayor and the city council of the capital, who delivered to General Carranza the keys of the city.

After this ceremony the cavalcade proceeded to the historic Chapultepec castle, where two batteries of artillery fired a salute in honor of the new chief executive.

When the procession reached the national theater it halted that the chief executive might receive at the hands of the workmen the flag President Madero dropped at that very spot on the fateful ninth of February, 1913, the date of the Huerta-Diaz uprising.

The president promised a new era of real Constitutional government.

40,000 Men Under Villa.

Washington.—Official reports to the Washington government estimate the number of troops in command of General Villa in northern Mexico at no less than 40,000 men. This is a much larger number than had been supposed and is the result of several weeks of recruiting during the lull which followed Huerta's abdication.

Germans Sink British Ship.

New York, Aug. 24.—News was received in shipping circles that the crew of the British steamer, Hyades, had been landed at Rio Janeiro and had reported that the Hyades was sunk by the German cruiser, Dresden, after the warship's sailors had taken out all the coal aboard. The Hyades, 3,350 tons, placed between British and South American ports. Dispatches from Rio Janeiro also reported the capture of the German steamer Santa Katharina, en route from New York to Brazil, by the British cruiser Glasgow.

Rigid Japanese Censorship.

San Francisco, Aug. 24.—Evidence that Japan is imposing a rigid censorship on dispatches leaving the empire is contained in Honolulu newspapers reaching here.

British Loan Belgium $50,000,000.

London, Aug. 24.—Great Britain has decided to make a loan to Belgium of $50,000,000. The money will be raised by treasury bills, for which tenders have been called.

Says Philippines Are Safe.

London, Aug. 22.—Oscar Strauss, veteran American diplomat and member of the permanent court of arbitration at The Hague, discussing the situation in the far east, said: "Some Americans seem to be unduly excited about Japan's action concerning Kiao-Chow. I do not think the United States has anything to be apprehensive about. Japan has no designs on the Philippines and would not have them. They are not suited to her use. The climate is too hot for the Japanese."

ITALY MAY JOIN ALLIES; ARMY IS BEING MOBILIZED

OPEN BREAK WITH AUSTRIA IS NEAR—GREECE TROOPS GO TO AID OF SERVIANS, IS REPORT.

AUSTRIA QUITS SERVIAN CAMPAIGN TO AID GERMANY

Declared Cossacks Are Invading Kaiser's Domain to Such Extent That Further Defense Is Necessary Russian Victories Are Claimed.

Rome, Aug. 25.—Open rupture of the relations between Italy and Austria is hourly expected. Mobilization of Italy's army probably will be completed on Aug. 27.

Both Sides Active.

Austrian pressure to force Italy to support actively the two belligerent nations of the Triple Alliance is being redoubled and France in an effort to counteract Austria's solicitations have sent respectively Theophile Delcasse and Count Witte, their most distinguished diplomats, to Rome.

Dispatches received here report that a naval engagement has been fought in the Adriatic and that several Austrian warships have been lost.

Greek troops are reported to have entered Servia to fight the Austrians.

Influential Italians living at Malta are said to declare they have good reason to believe that Italian intervention in the war in favor of Great Britain, France and Russia is only a question of days.

Austria Hastens to Aid.

London.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Udine, Italy, says that at Vienna it is announced that the Austrian operations against Servia on the river Drina have been abandoned. The Austrians are uniting their effective forces with those of Germany in order to oppose Russia in the east.

Great Russian Victory.

St. Petersburg.—Grand Duke Nicholas, commander-in-chief of the Rusian army, issued the following statement:

"Battles in East Prussia on Aug. 17, 18, 19 and 20 were fought with the utmost desperation. The spirit of the troops is excellent. Our battle front extends for a distance of over 40 versts (about 26 miles).

Germans Routed, He Says.

"The Russian troops occupied Goldapp and Ayres. The retreat on Aug. 20th of the German army corps near Lyck resembled a rout. The money confiscated in the treasury amounts to 50,000 marks ($10,000). The enemy's troops are evacuating the frontier in the vicinity of Willenberg. The German population is abandoning the villages and fleeing northward.

"On the Austrian frontier up to Aug. 20 no serious condition occurred. The Russians forced an Austrian battalion to evacuate Burgade and Ravarusse.

"On Aug. 20 the Germans near Gumbinnen engaged three army corps and tried to envelop the Russian right wing where the fighting was intensely fierce. The Russians took the offensive in the center and captured many guns. The enemy demanded an armistice in order to bury their dead, but this demand was refused. On Aug. 21 victory crowned the efforts of the Russian army. The Germans, having suffered enormous losses, are falling back, pursued by the Russians.

Report Is Confirmed.

London.—A Times dispatch from St. Petersburg, confirming the report that the Russians have completely enveloped the remnants of the Germans, leaving the lake region and the line of the German retreat toward the river Angerapp, in East Prussia, and the Marus lakes in Russian hands, says that the Russians are even now sweeping the environs of Insterburg and have occupied Darkehmen, and thus the line between Thorn and Dansic is now within the sphere of Russian operations.

Ostend Again Frightened.

London, Aug. 24.—Ostend is again frightened about the entry into the city of the Germans, reports being current there that they are determined to capture all three wireless stations on the Belgian coast and cut off communication with England. John MacKenzie, an Englishman, who had been in Belgium for six weeks, came from Ostend to London and said of the situation there: "When I left Ostend at 11 o'clock this morning the populace was much frightened. The British consul had departed and tourists had been warned to leave."

To Indict Price Boosters.

Washington, Aug. 22.—Attorney General J. C. McReynolds expects several indictments to be returned within the next few days as the result of the investigation ordered by President Woodrow Wilson of the increase in food prices since the outbreak of the war in Europe. Mr. McReynolds has been in frequent communication with the White House since the investigation was started and expects to make his formal report soon. The president has directed that prosecutions be pressed

German Vessel Clears U. S.

Philadelphia, Aug. 24.—Loaded to the limit with coal and food supplies, the North German Lloyd steamship Brandenburg is steaming away bound for Bergen, Norway, according to its clearance papers. The captain says the journey will require about two months. Despite the protests of the British ambassador in Washington, who declared that the Brandenburg is an auxiliary cruiser of the German navy, local customs authorities granted the clearance papers.

Americans Abroad Get Money.

Washington, Aug. 24.—Arrangements have been virtually completed by the national board of relief to transfer to Americans in England the total of all funds deposited to their credit at the state and treasury departments. Negotiations by cable led to an announcement that the Bank of England will make payments in gold to Americans with proper credentials and that these payments will be drawn against deposits made with its branch in Canada.

Supply and Demand Blamed.

New York, Aug. 22.—Local representatives of Chicago beef packers, who testified before Chief Magistrate McAdoo in District Attorney Whitman's John Doe inquiry into the higher cost of food since the war in Europe, placed the blame for advance in meat prices on conditions of supply and demand. They say there was a shortage of beef on the hoof and that competition was keener than at any previous time.

MOTHER OF SCHOOL GIRL

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Daughter's Health.

Plover, Iowa.—"From a small child my 13 year old daughter had female weakness. I spoke to three doctors about it and they did not help her any. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had been of great benefit to me, so I decided to have her give it a trial. She has taken five bottles of the Vegetable Compound according to directions on the bottle and she is cured of this trouble. She was all run down when she started taking the Compound and her periods did not come right. She was so poorly and weak that I often had to help her dress herself, but now she is regular and is growing strong and healthy."—Mrs. MARTIN HELVIG, Plover, Iowa.

Hundreds of such letters expressing gratitude for the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished are constantly being received, proving the reliability of this grand old remedy.

If you are ill do not drag along and continue to suffer day in and day out but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a woman's remedy for woman's ills.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

SETTING THE CAPTAIN RIGHT

Wife Astonished That Husband Didn't Know That Osteopath Was Not a Fish.

When Mark Twain was at York Harbor, Me., an old fisherman, named Captain Brooks, became one of the humorist's best friends. One day Mark dropped in on the old tar and said: "Captain Brooks, do you know whether there is an osteopath at the harbor?"

"Wal," said the old captain, "the' mebbe, but I ain't never ketched one yet, and I've been fishin' here nigh onter 40 years."

"Well," said Mark, "I guess I'll go and inquire at the drug store."

That evening when Captain Brooks reached home, he told his wife about it, and she said:

"You're a bright one, Jed Brooks; that ain't no fish; it's a bird."

FACE FULL OF PIMPLES

4240 So. California Ave., Chicago, Ill. —"About a year ago my face was full of pimples and red spots. To sleep one night without itching was almost impossible. Some of the pimples would get big and red and if I touched them they would pain, while others would get white heads on them and when they broke open some matter came out. They would burn and itch and I scratched them so that sometimes they would break and bleed. That always caused them to be worse.

"I bought all kinds of salves and creams and I found out that they did me no good. I noticed the Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertisement and I sent for a free sample. I went to the drug store and bought a cake of Cuticura Soap and some Cuticura Ointment and I found the pimples were drying out. In two months I was well." (Signed) Chas. J. Peck, May 7, 1914.

PIUS X DEAD--WORLD MOURNS

Aged Pontiff Succumbs to Long Illness—Sketch of His Career.

Rome.—Following a long illness, Pope Pius X. gave up his battle with the grim reaper. Death came to the aged pontiff after many months of intense suffering.

The streets of Rome, usually gay and filled with clamoring throngs, are quiet. The noise of the market places is hushed. Everywhere eyes are turned respectfully toward the golden dome of St. Peter's, which appeared to have lost its glitter in the dark pall of grief that hangs over the eternal city.

Hundreds of visitors crowded the wide streets leading to the massive gates of the Vatican, where the papal guard stood on silent watch. With bared heads and eyes glistening with tears, the throng gazed at the place where lay the "peasant pope," as he was affestionately called by his Italian countrymen.

Has Reigned Nine Years.

The pontiff, for whom a world is mourning, passed away in his seventy-sixth year, in the ninth year of his reign. Although his rule was brief, his lovable personality made him one of the most illustrious occupants of the throne of St. Peter, and even the followers of the Socialist Mayor Nathan of Rome, by their presence before the Vatican, showed their desire to pay homage to the Catholic pontiff.

The quietness and fortitude, which have marked Pius' actions during his reign were never so evident as in the last hours before his death.

All that medical skill could do was enlisted to battle against the diseases which racked his frame, but the handicap of the pontiff's advanced age could not be overcome.

Drs. Petacci and Machiafava were in constant attendance upon his holiness and were assisted by Dr. Amici.

Couriers Carry Sad News.

The news of the papal sovereign's death spread through the city like the murmur of the wind through the forest. When the tidings were first breathed at the Vatican gates to the silent throng, anxiously awaiting word from the sick chamber within the stern walls, they stood for a moment as if transfixed.

Then, silently, they dispersed and within half an hour the news was on every lip in Rome. Men greeted each other with:

"Pius, the peasant pope, is dead."

Couriers and messengers mounted hastily to carry the news to the surrounding country, while the telegraph and cable offices clicked incessantly as the information was borne over Europe and beyond the seas.

Pius X. Was Born June 2, 1835.

Pope Pius X. was a native of the little village of Riese, in the Venitian province of Trevisco, which, in 1303, gave to the church a pontiff in Niccola Boccasini, who assumed the triple crown under the name of Benedict XI.

Born June 2, 1835, to a poor and humble family of the name of Sarto, Pius X. was christened Guiseppe (Joseph) and known throughout life by the dialect equivalent of Guiseppe, "Beppo."

On Sepetember 18, 1858, the young seminarist received his priest's orders in the Cathedral of Castel-France. That year was a memorable one for Italy. The question of Italian liberation had been forced to the front by the attempt of Orsini to assassinate Napoleon III.

The diplomats of nations assembled, but the youngest priest was not concerned in the movement. He turned his back on the world and took up his duties as curate in the village of Tombelo.

Became Parish Priest in 1867.

He was promoted as parish priest of Salzano in 1867, only a year after the cession of Venezia (Venice) to Italy.

The able discharge of his office recommended the pastor of Salzano to the notice of Monsignor Zinelli, at that time the bishop of the diocese, who nominated him to a canonry in the Cathedral of Treviso. This promotion was supplemented by bestowal of the deanery on Father Sarto and his appointment as Episcopal chancellor. To him also was confided the delicate and important charge of spiritual director of the Seminary of Trevisco, in which college he was likewise given a professor's chair and an examinership.

Nor did his activities end here, for he was chosen as a judge in the Capitular Ecclesiastical court, and finally was appointed vicar-general of the diocese.

After such an apprenticeship it was not surprising that when the important see of Mantuc became vacant, in 1884, Leo XIII. choose Guiseppe Sarto to fill the place.

Severe in personal taste, Signor Sarto showed himself zealous in maintaining the gorgeous ritual traditions of his church, and in 1886 the nine hundredth solemn centenary of St. Anselm was celebrated under his auspices, while in 1891 he presided at a like function in commemoration of St. Louis Gonzaga.

Two years later Pope Leo recognized Bishop Sarto's merits by raising him to the Sacred College, with the title of San Bernardo alle Temme, at a consistory held June 15, 1893.

At the same time he was chosen out of all the Venetian prelates to fill the patriarchate of Venice.

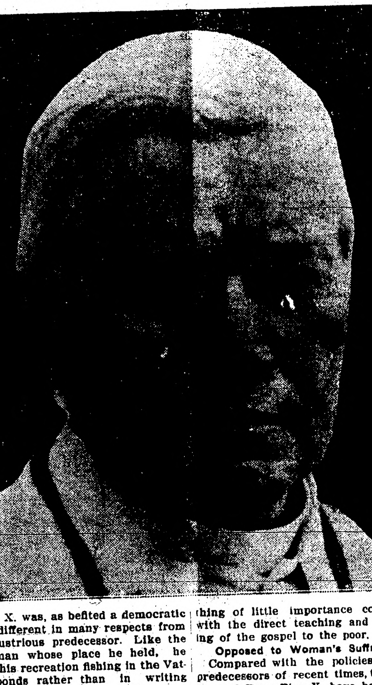
Won Support of the Radicals.

In his nine years' residence in the "seagirt" city the pope of the gondoliers was beloved and a familiar figure.

He gave proof of extraordinary tact in dealing with the civil authorities, and he succeeded in winning the support of radicals as well as clericals. Too, he became a favorite with King Victor Emanuel and Queen Helena when they visited Venice, and it is an open secret that the news of his election to the pontificate was joyfully received by the king.

It was no light inheritance to succeed such a pontiff as Leo XIII., for in many ways Leo symbolized the old order, incarnating, as he did, the aristocratic ideal of the scholar and the diplomat.

Elected as Compromise Candidate.



Pius X. was, as befited a democratic pope, different in many respects from his illustrious predecessor. Like the fisherman whose place he held, he found his recreation fishing in the Vatican ponds rather than in writing Latin verses. To his saintliness of character and moral worth, independently of all lesser and worldly consideration, memory doubtless will pay homage.

When balloting began to choose a successor to Pope Leo XIII., the name of Guiseppe Sarto was hardly considered at first. As balloting continued, however, the roll of votes in his favor increased. He was then regarded as a compromise candidate, and, finally, on the sixtieth ballot he was elected August 4, 1903, and five days later he was crowned in St. Peter's cathedral, Rome, with all the magnificence and brilliance of ceremonies that distinguishes the coronation of each successor to the apostolic throne.

From the post of spiritual head of gondoliers and peasants, a work that he loved, to the throne in the Vatican was the career of Guiseppe Sarto, Pope Pius X.

Loved the Simple Life.

And he never had been ambitious to be the head of the Catholic church and the successor of St. Peter. He loved the simple life among his friends, his relatives, and his proteges in the parish he first held. The grandeur, the pomp, the great power of the Vatican did not appeal to him.

Pope Pius' policy was the simplest His election resulted because a majority of the cardinals had wearied of diplomacy and its barren results, and longed for a pontiff who would build up the units of organization—that is, the dioceses they ruled by bishops. In France, Italy and Spain those units were either paralyzed or directed by the hostile or indifferent states.

There was a show of life, but not such teeming and varied life as is seen in the dioceses of America, Canada and Ireland. It was known that Pius would desert diplomacy and try to make all dioceses as they are in English-speaking countries.

That diplomacy found no place in Pius' mind was evidenced by many of his acts. His action toward the French government was perfect indifference. Therefore, France had all the the trouble and the pope was out of it.

Brought Church and State Together.

As to Italy, he increased the cordial understanding between church and state, which was not thought wise by Italian churchmen. However his action resulted in an uplifting of the church in Italy.

The dioceses had been in a most deplorable condition because of the long conflict between church and state.

There was evidence of miserable conditions existing in the Italian emigrants. They have little or no instruction in their religion and paid no attention to it in this country, on the supposition that the Catholic religion did not exist here.

The pope pursued this matter to the proper outcome.

When the trouble between the church and state broke out in France and the concordat was dropped, the world looked to the pope, speculating what course he would take. What he did seemed to be the only right thing according to the American idea. He ignored the nation.

One great reform Pope Pius accomplished, and it promises to be ever remembered in history. He proved that diplomacy in church matters is a thing of little importance compared with the direct teaching and preaching of the gospel to the poor.

Opposed to Woman's Suffrage.

Compared with the policies of his predecessors of recent times, the leanings of Pope Pius X. have been held to be ultra-orthodox in purely ecclesiastical principles and ultra-conservative in temporal relations.

An instance of his well-known uncompromising attitude against advanced tendencies was afforded in his opposition to woman suffrage as voiced by the pope upon the occasion of his reception of a delegation of Italian Catholic ladies.

His now famous Apostolic constitution was considered as embodying the most sweeping reform ever attempted by a Roman pontiff since the celebrated council of Trent.

By virtue of one of his documents, known as the "Sapienti Consillio," the congre composing the Roman Curia of the Catholic church have been completely reformed and the American hierarchy has been accorded a recognized voice in the government of the church. In fact, all Catholics outside Italy have been granted a new political standing by the order here under 200 bishops. 25,000 priests and 30,000,000 Catholic laymen in the English speaking countries will have their affairs examined and passed upon according to the general law of the church and by ten different congregations, instead of one, as heretofore.

Another reform was that effected by the papal bull requiring the return of sacred music in use by the Roman Catholic churches throughout the world to its aurtere and suave purity.

WERE EAGER FOR FIRST AID

Moving Picture Man With Knowledge of Medicine Suddenly Found His Hands Full

A touching incident of the visit to the Holy Land occurred during the course of the trip to the Sea of Galilee. Sickness and poverty are perhaps as common there today as in Bible times, and anyone who can give medical aid is implored to lend assistance. In the crowd of natives who pressed about to watch the operation of the moving picture machine one day was a man whose hand had been badly lacerated by cactus thorns. The moving picture operator, Mr. Hollister, who had a good knowledge of first aid to the injured, produced his medicine case and cleansed and bound up the wound. Instantly scores of sufferers from a variety of ills pressed forward imploring his attention. Meanwhile the news spread rapidly and the crowd of suppliants increased to a small mob. Soon the sheiks or head men appeared and explained through the interpreter that the "doctor" must remain to attend the sick in the town, there being no physicion. It was useless to argue. A conference was called and the moving picture apparatus was soon hastily packed up and the party left the town to escape the throngs of sufferers for whom they could do nothing.—Christian Herald.

HAD HAZY IDEA OF AMERICA

Irishman Evidently Imagined the Back Yard of New York and San Francisco Adjoined.

"I was strolling along a street of Killarney week before last," said a New Yorker. "As I passed a cobbler's shop an old man looked up from a bench near the door and smiled pleasantly.

"'The top o' the morning to ye, sorr,' he said. I returned his salutation in kind, and sat down to talk to him.

"'It's from Ameriky ye'll be, I take it, sorr,' he said. 'And from what part?'

"'From New York,' I replied.

"He nodded. Just then his wife came out and spoke to me.

"'It's a great counthry,' went on the cobbler, 'I have two b'hys over there. One's in a place called Worcester. I forget the name of the place where the other is, but it's near by the other.'

"''Tis San Francisco, Patrick,' the wife prompted.

"'Sure, and it is,' said the cobbler. 'I nivver could remember the name. but I knew it was near by!'"

Distinctly Suspicions.

It was during the maneuvers, a British weekly tells us, that a soldier was being tried for shooting a chicken on prohibted ground.

"Look here, my man," said the commanding officer to the farmer who brought the accusation, "are you quite certain that this man shot your bird? Will you swear to it?"

"No, I won't do that," replied the canny farmer, "but I will say he's the man I suspect of doing it."

"That's not enough to convict a man," retorted the officer, considerably nettled. "What raised your suspicions?"

"Well, sir, replied the sturdy farmer, as he slowly mopped his forehead with his bandanna, "I saw 'im on my property with a gun; then I heerd the gun go off; then I saw 'im putting the chicken into his knapsack; and it didn't seem sensible somehow to think the bird committed suicide."—Youth's Companion.

Had Enough of That Diet.

"I had my dyspepsia almost cured once," said Crabbe.

"But you couldn't stand the diet, eh?" asked Flabbe.

"Well, it was this way," explained Crabbe. "Doctor Pilter advised me to eat chopped oat cakes. I ordered a box, and after eating them for a week I felt fine. When Bridget said the cakes were gone I had her bring me in the box so that I could get the name and order more, but I never placed the order."

"Why not?" inquired Flabbe. "The cakes were helping you."

"I found," said Crabbe, looking sick at the recollection, "that I had been eating dog-biscuit."

Emerson as a Vocalist.

As a student at Harvard, Ralph Waldo Emerson did not give much promise of his future greatness. His dissertation was spoken of as "a very good one, but too long to give much pleasure to the hearers." He was class poet, but only after seven others had been successively elected, and had successively declined the honor. A story told by Mr. Arthur Stanwood Pier, in "The Story of Harvard," goes to show that Emerson's musical efforts were even less appreciated.

Singing in the yard was a popular diversion, and early in his freshman year, Emerson, wishing to have a share in the fun, went to the singing master, who said to him, "Chord."

"So I made some kind of a noise," said Emerson, "and the singing master aid, 'That will do, ir; you need not come again.'"—Youth' Companion.

HERE IS A GOOD WAY TO GET RID OF PIMPLES

Bathe your face for several minutes with resinol soap and hot water, then apply a little resinol ointment very gently. Let this stay on ten minutes, and wash off with resinol soap and more hot water, finishing with a dash of cold water to close the pores. Do this once or twice a day, and you will be astonished to find how quickly the healing, antiseptic resinol medication soothes and cleanses the pores, removes pimples and blackheads, and leaves the complexion clear and velvety. All druggists sell resinol soap and resinol ointment.—Adv.

"How was your tour of Egypt?"

"I enjoyed it immensely."

"I guess you saw the pyramids, the Sphinx and all the other sights?"

"Well, yes, but they didn't make much of an impression on me. I fell in with an old gentleman from Pine Bluff, Ark., who could tell such funny stories that I hardly knew whether I was touring Egypt or Arkansas."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Entered as second-class matter Sept. 22, 1911, at the post office at Holt, Minnesota, under the act of March 3, 1879.

Three hundred six thousand hogs died from disease, in this state, last year.

The chicken season opens Sept. 7th, but some can hardly wait that long.

Wm. E. Lee announces he has not changed his views on county option, as is being reported by some.

This state uses over two million cords of wood, annually, valued at more than ten million dollars.

In what way is a dogs tail like the heart of a tree? It is the fartherest from the bark, see?—Ex.

Thief River Falls is making a kick to the rail road commissioner about the G. N. station at that place.

Last week we advertised a space for sale and closed a deal for it in less then a day after the paper was out.

Thief River butchers are going to make their customers pay cash. Better kill a chicken either tame or wild.

We must give the people on the farm the same educational advantages for their children as the cities have.

There are fifty thousand bachelors in Minnesota and about as many widows. Let's see, when does leap year come again?

It was so rainy and chilly the first of the week that many of our people set up their stoves and got ready for autumn weather.

The meat producing animals of the U. S. have decreased over four million in the last year. No wonder meat is going up.

This office has been turning out "a good bit" of job work the past week for The Holt Realty Co., and The D. Payne Lumber Co. Who's next?

The farms of Minnesota employ 108,000 laborers and the average monthly compensation is $28.90 and board, or $41.00 if the man boards himself.

We would suggest that Marshall Co. be divided. Then perhaps this section would get some of the political and official plums they are entitled to.

Mattson Bros. started out early Monday morning with their rig, but the rain soon put a stop to all threshing, which otherwise would have commenced in earnest, the first of the week.

There are 847,000 horses on the farms of this State and they are valued at $105,875,000. There are 20,963,000 in the U. S., worth over two million dollars, an average of a little over $109 each.

We wish to correct a statement published in the Middle River Pioneer regarding one Pete Backland of Holt. There is no such man living here nor has he ever lived here according to our best knowledge.

Hard cash is what counts. If merchants want the trade that mail order houses are getting, they must do as others have done, keep a mail order catalog, meet their prices and advertise to that effect, everlastingly advertise.

LION NOT TO BE CHEATED

Captain Stigand Tells Story of Beast's Perseverance in Its Quest for a Meal.

At a village near Fort Mangoche, also in Nyasaland, a man was sitting one night at the door of his hut drumming, while his wife was cooking food inside. The hut was an isolated one, being several yards from the rest of the village.

Suddenly the woman heard the man cry out, "A lion has got me." She took a burning fagot from the fire, ran out and smacked the lion in the face. The astonished animal let go, and she dragged her husband into the hut and hastily put up the poles which form the door. The man died a few minutes after and the woman sat there with the dead body.

Presently the lion returned and scratched gently at the door. This he repeated several times till it got on the woman's nerves. At last she could stand it no longer, so she took another fagot from the fire, unbarred the door and fled to the village, leaving the dead man. The lion then walked into the hut and took him.—From Capt. C. H. Stigand's "Hunting the Elephant in Africa."

ALLIES WARN U. S. AGAINST BUYING GERMAN SHIPS

WILL LOOK WITH DISFAVOR ON ACQUISITION OF GERMAN STEAMERS TO BUILD UP MERCHANT MARINE

WOULD ESTABLISH A LARGE GOLD CREDIT WITH GERMANY

Germans Making Daily Advances Toward Paris, Though Right Wing Is Checked—Canadian, Indian Australian and South African Troops Hasten to Aid the British

Washington, Sept. 1.—Great Britain, France and Russia today advised the United States informally that they would look with disfavor on the purchase by this government of German merchant steamers to relieve conditions from the European war, and also to build up an American merchant marine. The chief objection is that the transaction would establish a large gold credit in the hands of Germany.

London, Sept. 1—Taken at its face value, the French official announcement this afternoon, which mentions the progress of the German right wing had forced the allies to yield further ground, seems to indicate that the Germans, notwithstanding repulses, are making daily advances toward Paris.

The statement Sunday by Field Marshall French, commander of the British troops, however, spoke of fighting on the French left, but this, according to one report, resulted in the German right being slightly turned.

If silence means there is nothing doing, French's statement Sunday that the British have not been molested since Wednesday, still holds good. Nothing is known by the public in London of new fighting either in northern or eastern France.

From Canada, India, Australia and South Africa, the British army soon will receive reinforcements. Some of these troops are reported already landed in France.

Paris, Sept. 1—An official statement tonight summarizes the war situation to date as follows:

"On our right after partial checks, we have taken the offensive and the enemy is retiring before us.

"In the center we have had alternative checks and successes, but a general action now is being fought.

"On our left by a series of circumstances which turned in favor of the Germans despite lucky counter attacks, the Anglo-French forces have been obliged to give way. As yet, our armies, notwithstanding a few incontestable checks, remain intact. The morale of our troops is excellent despite considerable losses which also are being rapidly filled from regimental depots."

London, Sept. 1—A long official statement by the French war office, reviewing the operations in Belgium, and on the French frontier, records a new retirement by the allied forces, while at the same time the statement is optimistic with reference to the opposition with reference to the opposition which the French and British are offering to the German advance.

No definite details are forthcoming regarding the general battle, which apparently is in progress all along the line.

Washington, Sept. 1.—The moving of the seat of government from Paris to Bordeaux is under consideration by France, official advices state. Neutral diplomats convey the information that 70,000 Britishers for three days checked 200,000 Germans. The place of the battle is not given.

Chartered by the American Red Cross, the steamer Hamburg of the Hamburg-American line, to be renamed "Red Cross," will sail for Europe Saturday.

New York, Sept. 1.—The British steamship Holmwood has been sunk by a German cruiser, off the coast of South America, according to a cablegram received here by the owner from the Katherin Park, which has the crew of the ship aboard. The cablegram, which is from Rio Janeiro, does not state the time nor the place of sinking, ror give the name of the German cruiser.

The Holmwood, a vessel of 4,223 tons gross register, was on her way from Newport, England, to Bahia Blanco, having left the latter port July 29.

Washington, Sept. 1. — Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, through the embassy at London, today requested the state department to transmit the following message to Grand Admiral von Tirpitz of the German navy through the American ambassador at Berlin:

"Your son has been saved and has not been wounded."

London, Sept. 1.—The correspondent of the Express at The Hague wires his paper that Emperor William has gone to the Russian front.

London, Aug. 31.—According to the Times St. Petersburg correspondent, Russia's appeal to the Poles to reunite against the common Teutonic foe, has had an extraordinary effect among the Slav soldiers in the German service.

Information received in St. Petersburg, it is stated, indicates that the Polish soldiers belonging to the Sixth Breslau army corps, serving on the western frontier, mutinied and killed their officers.

The Slav regiments in the Austrian service are also declared to be notoriously disaffected.

CANADA'S HUGE GRAIN BINS

Port Arthur Paper Is Peeved at the Mention of Kansas City Elevators.

From the Port Arthur (Canada) Evening Chronicle

Kansas City gains the attention of the New York Evening Post and is given five inches of space in that admirable newspaper by reason of increasing the capacity of a grain elevator there. The Evening Post says:

"When the additions and alterations to its huge grain elevator at Kansas City now under way are completed the Missouri Pacific-Iron Mountain railroad will have one of the largest plants of its kind in the world."

The present capacity of the Kansas City product is one million bushels. When it gains its promised stature and becomes "one of the largest in the world" it will have a capacity of 2,133,000 bushels.

At the mention of grain elevators the twin ports at the head of the lakes prick up their ears and take notice. The name of Lloyd-George at a Tory garden party, or of President Wilson at a bankers' convention catches attention no quicker than the word "elevator" in the hearing of a Port Arthur-Fort William man. Toronto prides itself on its churches; Pittsburgh specializes on millionaires; Chicago has its pork and Boston its pork and beans—as for us, we rise to fame on the bins of our elevators, and he who says "one of the largest" about any old two-million-bushel outfit in Missouri must withdraw the statement or name the place and weapons.

If the Evening Post had said "one of the largest in Missouri," or in the general but expressive American phrase had said "some elevator," we wouldn't have minded it so much, but when it describes this stunted Missouri receptacle as "one of the largest grain elevators in the world" then it is time to kick. Why, two-million-bushel elevators are so common hereabouts that the secretary of the board of trade does not point them out to distinguished visitors. Nothing could show clearer than that what we think of two-million-bushel elevators.

When we have pointed to the 9,500,000-bushel C. N. R. elevator and the 7,800,000-bushel C. P. R. elevator and the 6,500,000-bushel G. T. P. elevator; then to the 3,500,000-bushel Dominion Government elevator which is only the first unit of what is to be a 30-million-bushel plant, by that time the air is so full of millions that the listener would be annoyed if we bothered him with mention of a mere two-million-bushel affair. So we just lump the balance together and describe the grand total of 45-million-bushel capacity already standing at the head of the lakes.

Upon the basis upon which Kansas City got five inches of space in the Evening Post we claim a complimentary writeup of at least three columns and in the article we would state that in one respect we are like Kansas City—when it is a question of big elevators we also are from Missouri.

SISTER'S TRICK

But It All Came Out Right.

How a sister played a trick that brought rosy health to a coffee fiend is an interesting tale:

"I was a coffee fiend—a trembling, nervous, physical wreck, yet clinging to the poison that stole away my strength. I mocked at Postum and would have none of it.

"One day my sister substituted a cup of piping hot Postum for my morning cup of coffee but did not tell me what it was. I noticed the richness of it and remarked that the 'coffee' tasted fine but my sister did not tell me I was drinking Postum for fear I might not take any more.

"She kept the secret and kept giving me Postum instead of coffee until I grew stronger, more tireless, got a better color in my sallow cheeks and a clearness to my eyes, then she told me of the health-giving, nerve-strengthening life-saver she had given me in place of my morning coffee.

"From that time I became a disciple of Postum and no words can do justice in telling the good this cereal drink did me. I will not try to tell it, for only after having used it can one be convinced of its merits."

Ten days' trial shows Postum's power to rebuild what coffee has destroyed.

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

SITUATION VERY GRAVE AT BUTTE; MILITIA CALLED

CRISIS COMES AS RESULT OF DYNAMITING OF MINE EMPLOYMENT OFFICE—CITY THROWN INTO PANIC.

MINERS MAY ATTEMPT TO "CLEAN UP" STATE TROOPS

Business Men Striving to Get Aid From U. S. Government—Renewed Riots Are Anticipated and Bloodshed Can Hardly Be Avoided.

Butte, Mont., Sept. 1.—Mines of the Anaconda Copper Mining company and of other large companies operating in this district, were placed under guard as a result of the dynamiting Sunday of the employment office at the Parrot mine, operated by the Anaconda company.

No News of Mobilization.

News of Governor Samuel V. Stewart's order mobilizing at Helena the state troops for duty at Butte, was withheld from the local public, for fear the miners would attempt reprisals. The miners had heard rumors of the troops coming, but they have heard such reports before and do not consider the report of the militia mobilization at Helena is true. They based their confidence that this latest report was groundless upon the belief that Governor Stewart would not risk sending so small a force as 600 militiamen against the miners, who number, according to the roster of the Butte Mine Workers' union, 800. It is said upon apparently good authority, that many outside "gunmen" are in Butte.

State Troops Arrive.

The state troops are expected to arrive late today, but in the meantime, there is reported to be in the city a large number of peace officers from nearby cities. The guards at the stores have been strongly reinforced since the dynamiting.

Plans for the entry of the militia into Butte are being kept secret, as it is feared that if the approach of the trains containing soldiers becomes known, mines will be laid. Miners have long been open in their threats against the militia, whom they profess to believe they would have no trouble "in cleaning up."

Federal Troops Wanted.

Business men and the mining officials are making every effort to procure the presence of federal troops in Montana. Numerous telegrams were sent last night to Montana's delegation at Washington, urging that they prevail upon President Wilson to send regulars either to Fort Missoula or Fort Harrison at Helena, to be ready to cope with the situation in Butte.

The city has been quiet but the streets crowded. The feeling is tense.

Renewed Riots Anticipated.

The reopening of the miners' jurisdictional quarrel that involved the city in riots and bloodshed last June, has been anticipated since the Mine Workers' union, the organization that is seeking to overthrow the Western Federation of Miners in this district, made the announcement that only members of the new union may work underground. Sine the new organization began to enforce that decree, Butte has virtually experienced a reign of terror that culminated Sunday

Two Killed in Auto Mishap.

Minneapolis, Aug. 31.—Mrs. Robert Roberts and Raymond Speaker were killed, and three injured, one seriously, when an automobile driven by Robert Roberts, carrying five persons, plunged over a 15-foot embankment two miles north of Bush lake and four miles southwest of the city limits Sunday afternoon. The machine turned over in a swamp. The injured were Robert Roberts, said to be seriously hurt; Hazel Roberts, his daughter, cut and bruised and Gladys Speaker, sister of Raymond, slightly bruised. The party was traveling toward the city when their car skidded on a sharp sandy curve.

English Take German City

London, Aug. 31.—The official information bureau announced that Apia (a seaport of Upolu, Samoan islands and capital of the German part of the group), surrendered on the morning of Aug. 29 to a British force from New Zealand. Germany's Samoan territory has been considered her most strategic possession in the Picifis. Apia, seized by the British, is the commercial metropolis of the group, contains numerous fine churches, schools and residences.

Cities Reported Taken.

London.—Germans have occupied the French cities of Lille, Valencienens and Roubaix, according to a dispatch from Ostend, Belgium. The French war office denies that Lille has been occupied, however.

Try to Embroil Spain.

Madrid, Aug. 28.—Efforts of a certain portion of the political leaders to stir up sentiment that will force Spain to cast her lot with the allies against Germany are being sternly frowned on by the king.

Tires at Before-War Prices

Goodyear Prices

It is Folly Today to Pay More

30 x 3 Plain Tread	$11.70
30 x 3½ " "	15.75
34 x 4 " "	24.35
36 x 4½ " "	35.00
37 x 5 " "	41.95

There exists now a new, compelling reason for buying Goodyear tires. It results from War conditions.

These leading tires—built of extra-fine rubber, in the same way as always—are selling today at June prices.

You will find today a very wide difference between most tire prices and Goodyears.

Due to Quick Action

Early in August—when war began—the world's rubber markets seemed closed to us. Rubber prices doubled almost over night.

Men could see no way to pay for rubber abroad, and no way to bring it in. We, like others—in that panic—were forced to higher prices. But we have since gone back to prices we charged before the war, and this is how we did it:

We had men in London and Singapore when the war broke out. The larger part of the world's rubber supply comes through there. We cabled them to buy up the pick of the rubber. They bought—before the advance—1,500,000 pounds of the finest rubber there.

Nearly all this is now on the way to us. And it means practically all of the extra-grade rubber obtainable abroad.

Today we have our own men in Colombo, Singapore and Para. Those are the world's chief sources of rubber. So we are pretty well assured of a constant supply, and our pick of the best that's produced.

We were first on the ground. We were quickest in action. As a result, we shall soon have in storage an almost record supply of this extra grade of rubber.

And we paid about June prices.

Now Inferior Grades Cost Double

About the only crude rubber available now for many makers is inferior. In ordinary times, the best tire makers refuse it. Much of it had been rejected. But that "off rubber" now sells for much more than we paid for the best.

The results are these:

Tire prices in general are far in advance of Goodyears. And many tire makers, short of supplies, will be forced to use second-grade rubber.

Be Careful Now

In Goodyears we pledge you the same grade tire as always. And that grade won for Goodyears the top place in Tiredom—the largest sale in the world.

And, for the time being, our prices are the same as before the war. We shall try to keep them there.

We accept no excessive orders, but dealers will be kept supplied. And we charge them, until further notice, only ante-bellum prices.

That means that Goodyears—the best tires built—are selling way below other tires.

REWARDS OF VALOR

Crosses of Honor Will Be Won in the European War.

England, France and Germany Bestow These Testimonials of Deeds of Daring Performed by Officers or Privates.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

Washington.—Some of the soldiers of England, France and Germany in the present war unquestionably will win the crosses of honor which are the most coveted decorations which governments give for acts of conspicuous personal gallantry in the face of the enemy.

To Americans perhaps the French Cross of the Legion of Honor and the Victoria Cross of England are more familiarly known than are the decorations given by Germany. In the United States we have the Congressional Medal of Honor which is given by congress for individual deeds of daring in the field. The intrinsic value of any of these badges is about one cent, and yet for the privilege of wearing them soldiers seem always ready to tread Gray's "paths of glory."

The French decoration was first granted under Napoleon in the early part of the present century; the Victoria Cross was instituted during the Crimean war and the American medal of honor was first struck off to reward acts of heroism performed during the Civil war. The French cross may be won by civilians; the English and American crosses are pinned only upon the breasts of soldiers and sailors. In the armies of all three nations officer and private, peasant and prince, have equal chances of wearing that which nothing but attested bravery can buy.

The first Victoria Cross granted for bravery in the South African war was given to Col. Ian Hamilton of the Gordon Highlanders for conspicuous gallantry at the battle of Elandslaagte.

A perusal of the Gazette list which tells something of the deeds for which the Victoria Cross has been awarded shows that fully one-half of the most striking exhibitions of heroism have been shown by men whose shoulders bore no insignia of rank. One English publication states that with perhaps one exception the bravest thing ever done by a British soldier was the act of a drummer boy.

That drummer boy, if living, is now a man seventy-two years old, and for 57 years of that time he has been wearing the Victoria Cross, and has had the right to write V. C. after his name. This boy in the year 1857, amid a shower of shot and shells, fastened bags of gunpowder on the gates of Delhi. He carried death in his arms that day and met it in other forms all along his way. Others helped him and were killed; he lived and wore the cross.

It was another British drummer boy who, while acting as a field bugler for Lord Napier of Magdala in the Abyssinian war, left the general's side and dashed first into the stronghold of "Theodore the Tyrant."

BEYOND THE ORIENTAL MIND

Present Craze for Dancing Is Something Indians and Japanese Do Not Understand.

A feature of the London season is the revival in dancing; people are now interested not only in watching the professional stage dancer of either sex but in dancing themselves. Indians and Japanese alike express their astonishment at the European practice of rushing about in ballrooms.

To the Oriental mind dancing is something that should be done professionally, to amuse the host and guests looking on. They cannot comprehend men and women dancing together as partners, except as a scheme for flirting.

The Japanese artist Yoshio Markino recounts that he was frankly amazed when his host, who was "an old man of about sixty," told him that he was going to a ball, and that he was going because he loved dancing.

"And with whom do you dance," the Japanese inquired, "with your own wife or with some other old man?"

To which the English gentleman replied: "Not quite necessarily," and explained that he preferred dancing with girls, whereupon the Oriental comments:

"What a madly flirting nation they are, these English! They flirt until they die!"

Women are always ready to kiss and make up—but they usually make up before they kiss.

WOMEN WHO ARE ALWAYS TIRED

May Find Help in This Letter.

Swan Creek, Mich.—"I cannot speak too highly of your medicine. When through neglect or overwork I get run down and my appetite is poor and I have that weak, languid, always tired feeling, I get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it builds me up, gives me strength, and restores me to perfect health again. It is truly a great blessing to women, and I cannot speak too highly of it. I take pleasure in recommending it to others."—Mrs. ANNIE CAMERON, R.F.D., No. 1, Swan Creek, Michigan.

Another Sufferer Relieved.

Hebron, Me.—"Before taking your remedies I was all run down, discouraged and had female weakness. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used the Sanative Wash, and find today that I am an entirely new woman, ready and willing to do my housework now, where before taking your medicine it was a dread. I try to impress upon the minds of all ailing women I meet the benefits they can derive from your medicines."—Mrs. CHARLES ROWE, R. F. D., No. 1, Hebron, Maine.

I Want Some of THE BLACK SHELLS

THE BLACK SHELLS primer gives a hotter and more uniform flame than any other—because it has none of the ordinary mercury and ground glass. Mercury is heavy—glass is light. Judge the difficulty of combining them evenly, so that each tiny cap load shall be uniform. A big per cent of your misses has been due to varying primers and to nothing else. Our priming mixture is a strictly chemical combination and must be uniform. Again, ground glass absorbs 16% of the heat, while our primer materials are all combustible and so increase the heat.

To reach the main charge the primer flame goes through the flash-passage which in THE BLACK SHELLS is twice the ordinary size. This again means increased speed, because twice as much of the primer flame rushes directly into the main charge.

The third of THE BLACK SHELLS big advantages is a perfection of waterproofing that is unknown to other shells. Fog, rain and ducking don't make them misfire or swell.

Send for booklet and learn about other Moderisms of THE BLACK SHELLS.

There are three of THE BLACK SHELLS—Romax for black powder; Climax and Ajax for Smokeless.

SAY WILSON WANTS LONG REST

FRIENDS DECLARE PRESIDENT IS READY FOR ADJOURNMENT.

Executive Will Take No Part in Coming Campaign, as Had Been Planned—Is Under Nervous Strain.

Washington, Aug. 31.—Close friends of President Wilson say that he is now anxious that congress shall adjourn as soon as possible and that contrary to the plans he made several weeks ago he will take little or no part in the congressional campaign of this fall. The president is said to be under severe mental and nerve strain because of the events of the European war and the death of his wife, and he is hoping for a long rest. He will probably not make more than one or two speeches in the campaign.

The fact that Mr. Wilson is now anxious to have congress get away is shown by the intimation through his friends that congress may let the railway securities bill go over till the next session.

Senate Democrats will caucus on a program and it is expected will agree to lay aside the railway securities bill.

With the railway securities bill dropped, this leaves as indispensible for the action of congress, before adjourning, an agreement on the trade commission bill which is in conference and on the Clayton bill, which will pass the senate sometime next week; also certain emergency legislation arising from the war will be passed.

This emergency legislation includes the war tax bill. The war risk insurance bill, which has been passed by the senate, will be hurried through the house. While it is possible that such legislation will keep congress here all fall, the opinion of most of the members is that adjournment will be possible late in September or about Oct. 1. This would give time for members to go home and take a hand in the fall campaign.

NORWEGIANS SEE SEA FIGHT

Steamer Caught During Recent Naval Battle But Escapes With No Fatalities—Description of Fray.

Stockholm, Aug. 31.—The officers and men aboard the Norwegian steamer King Guttorm, bound from Krageroe to Bremerhaven, witnessed the sea fight at Helgoland.

There were about 25 vessels on each side. When the fleets drew close the cannonading sounded like the continuous roar of the thunder and the sea was in great commotion. The most advanced of the battle lines were only a quarter of a mile apart.

Before getting away the King Guttorm was completely surrounded by the battling fleet and her terror-stricken crew found themselves in the midst of a shower of shells. The crew believed that their last hour was near.

The steamer's stern was struck by a projectile which penetrated her hull without, however, going through. Several of the crew were wounded. The crew saw many Germans killed.

WINNIPEG HAS WAR MEETING

Urge 100,000 Men for Field Service and Suggest Mounted Police Be Increased.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 29 Mayor Deacon called citizens of Winnipeg to a "war meeting." Nearly 10,000 responded and unanimously expressed determination to do their full duty in the defense of the empire and the carrying on of the war.

Mayor Deacon presided and after many speakers had told of the cause of the war, and of the empire's part in it, two resolutions were passed, one requesting the government to undertake the organization of an additional force of active militia of 100,000 men, in order to be enabled to send successive divisions to support or augment the army in the field, this to be in addition to the regular militia. The other resolution requested the government to increase the Northwestern Mounted police to at least 3,000 men for service between the Great Lakes and the Pacific.

Montreal Boy Sentry Killed.

Montreal, Aug. 29.—Sixteen-year old Gordon Betts, private in the Fifth Royal Highlanders, was shot in the eye and killed by an unseen assailant while on sentry duty at the canal at Soulanges. Since the outbreak of the war a guard has been placed over all canals in the Dominion to prevent their being injured by dynamite. Soldiers at Soulanges, guarding the canal, have been fired on repeatedly during the last few days.

Germans Burn City

London, Aug. 29.—The war office officially confirmed the report that Louvain, Belgium, has been completely destroyed by the Germans as a military measure.

Russian Prince a Hero

London, Aug. 31.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg recites a daring act credited to Prince Eristoff, a colonel in the Russian horse artillery. When the Germans were retreating from Stallupoehnen, a town of east Prussia, the prince ordered his men to unhitch their horses from tehir own guns, mount them and gallop after the Germans. Under a heavy fire the Russian cavalrymen, led by the prince, went forward, captured the German guns and brought them back to their lines.

BECOMES ASSOCIATE JUSTICE

JAMES C. M'REYNOLDS.

Washington, Aug. 31.—The senate has just confirmed the nomination of Attorney General McReynolds to be an associate justice of the supreme court. Senators said the vote was "very decidedly" in favor of the confirmation. The senate later confirmed Thomas W. Gregory to be United States attorney general. The vote on the McReynolds confirmation was 44 to 6. The principal speech in opposition was made by Senator Norris, of Nebraska.

CORN CROP WILL FALL SHORT

BIG CROPS WILL KEEP ROADS BUSY, HOWEVER.

Special Preparations Made to Care for Movement From West—Lifting Embargo Will Benefit.

Chicago, Sept. 1.—Reports received by the big granger railroads centering in Chicago indicate that the expected 3,000,000,000 bushel corn crop will not be realized, but that the crop will be large enough to furnish traffic for all the cars which will be available. Special preparations to care for the corn movement is being made by each of the lines, with those reaching the southwest showing most activity.

The Chicago & Northwestern road reports that recent rains have benefited corn, vegetables and pasture along its lines. General conditions are good. In Nebraska the corn is reported to have been damaged by high temperatures.

Reports made by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway pay less attention to corn as that grain furnishes a smaller proportion of its traffic than is the case with the other systems to the south.

Reports of all lines indicate a decided slump in the grain traffic. There has been fair tonnage of other kinds moving during the past month, but the drop in grain offered has caused most of the roads to show less traffic moving during August, 1914, than was the case a year ago. Traffic is expected to be improved following the lifting of the embargo and at the gulf ports and all of the granger lines will accept grain for shipment to the sea board, indicating that terminal problems have been solved and that sufficient ships have cleared to handle such grain as had been blocking terminal yards.

Kaiser's Fall Foretold.

London, Aug. 31.—It is recalled at this stage of the European conflict that a long time ago German newspapers gave an account of a supposed interview of the kaiser with a gypsy. "Germany," she told him, "will have a great war in 1914, and," she added, ominously, "Germany will 'go under' when it is ruled by an emperor who mounts his horse on the wrong side. His heir will perish on the scaffold." It is significant, if one be at all superstitious, that the kaiser, owing to his lame arm, has to mount his horse on the off side.

Belgian Congo Attacked.

Paris, Aug 29.—A dispatch to the Havas Agency says that Libreville in Belgian Congo has been attacked by German troops. The Belgian administration, in accord with Great Britain has taken defensive measures and has informed the French government of its action.

Japanese Boats Draw Fire

Tsing-Tau, China, Aug. 31.—Two small Japanese cruisers drew the fire shots from the Tsing-Tau fortifications. Several shots dropped around one of the cruisers, whereupon the vessel fired one shot in reply and withdrew. It is reported that one German shell found its mark.

Belgians Threaten Reprisal.

Antwerp, Aug. 31.—Reports of a wanton destruction of Louvain by the Germans have aroused Belgians to such an extent that threats of reprisals are being freely made. This "act of barbarism," as it is described in the official reports, "coming on top of the scores of instances of violation of the laws of nations," has aroused all Belgium. The foreign minister personally visited the neutral representatives here and asked that they bring the matter to the attention of their respective governments.

WANTED TO EXCHANGE SEATS

Man Sitting In Draft Had Reason for Inquiring as to Presence of Christian Scientist.

Dr. Henry Moskowitz, president of the New York civil service commission, tells this story.

It happened at the state convention of the Progressives at Syracuse.

"A quiet-spoken man near one of the doors arose and inquired if there happened to be a Christian Scientist among the assemblage.

"In answer to his question a lady left her seat and wended her way to the man.

"'I am a Christian Science teacher,' she said. 'What can I do for you?'

"'If you do not mind changing seats with me, I would appreciate it very much,' hesitatingly replied the man. 'This draft is not very good for my cold.'"

DANDRUFF SCALED OFF SCALP

P. O Box 395, Berkeley, Cal.—"My hair was dry and falling out and my scalp scaly. At times there were pimples on my scalp. The pimples were small and red, would fester, dry and itch. My hair would grow a certain length and break off and fall out. The falling out was always preceded by the breaking out of the pimples and itching. Dandruff scaled off my scalp and could be seen in my hair.

"I saw Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertised in the newspaper so I wrote asking for a free sample. I applied the Ointment and let it remain over night. In the morning I washed the scalp thoroughly with Cuticura Soap and water. I then bought some Cuticura Soap and Ointment from my druggist. I treated my scalp for nine months. Now the scaly crust and pimples are gone and I have a new growth of thick, dry, brown hair." (Signed) Mrs. E K. Mcllvaine, Apr. 8, 1914.

Water Is Good Medicine

Many people who have weak kidneys fail to appreciate how much water can do for them—but while it is good to drink water freely, it must be pure water. In many sections, the lime or alkaline water starts kidney trouble of itself.

Doan's Kidney Pills are a most reliable remedy for weak kidneys. When backache or urinary disorders first appear, take Doan's and be sure to assist the kidneys by drinking plenty of pure water. Prompt treatment will assist the danger of gravel, gout, rheumatism.

Doan's Kidney Pills are successfully used all over the civilized world and publicly recommended by thousands.

Miss Iverson went to Warren Monday to make out the final papers on her homestead.

Even the bird dogs are getting anxious to go hunting. Can the men and boys be blamed?

An expert was here Monday to make some repairs on the engine belonging to Ole Davidson.

Grain has commenced to come in to the elevators. All grain is a good price and farmers ought to be happy.

In planning a rotation of crops, be sure to include a few acres of corn. It will give your land a rest from small grain and furnish lots of feed.

Flour was rather a scarce article in our little burg last week. Since then a car has been received and now everybody is well supplied and happy.

A company of five farmers got a corn binder of Kolden & Co. and took it out monday. We believe the day is coming when corn binders will be quite generally used.

Nile Engebretson cut his third crop of alfalfa Wednesday. He tells us all the crops have been good and that this one is especially fine. Samples can be seen at this office.

Ole Garthus of East Valley hauled a load of oats in the bundle for Carl Surmo, the past week, that threshed out 62 bushels machine measure. That sounds pretty good to us Mr. Farmer.

Henry Hennemuth of Crookston, repair man for the Red Lake Falls Milling Co., was here Friday and Saturday and put a water tank in the engine room and made some minor repairs about the elevator.

Rag chewing over Lee and Hammond will not make votes for either of them. The people are too intelligent to be deceived by such tactics. T'is better to deal in facts, and facts alone, for that is what really counts in summing up the worthiness of a man or party.

Olson & Jorgenson, who are farming 7 miles south in town of Esplee threshed oats, last Friday the 21st, from about 25 acres which yielded 1000 bushels or 40 bushels per acre, machine measure, they weigh out about 50 bushel. The best we have heard of this year.—Grygla Eagle.

The Holt public school opens Sept. 14th with Misses Cora Hanson and Dagny Bakke, of Thief River Falls, as instructors. Miss Hanson will have charge of the upper grades and the old school house will be used. It is probable the Woodman hall will be used for the lower grades.

Rev. E. J. Nordlander of Worcester, Mass., will preach in the Free Mission Church on Saturday evening Sept. 12th at 8 o'clock, in English, and on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock in Swedish, and at 8 o'clock on Sunday evening in English. Remember the dates, Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 12th and 13th. Rev. Nordlander preaches to large congregations every Sunday and is well worth hearing.

D. Ward King of Missouri was the first man to use a road drag. He used a split log for the work, which was always done just as soon as it quit raining. Nearly all road drags are called king drags, in honor of the Missouri man.

E. J. Warner did a part of his threshing Monday and Tuesday. He had 20 acres of oats which yielded forty-six bu. per acre, and 10 or 12 acres of winter rye that went 32 bu. to an acre. We think this is fine and wonder if anyone can beat it.

P. E. Baumgardner, vice president of Deposit Bank of Winona was here Wednesday and Thursday of last week. B. Docken took him on an auto trip over the country and Mr. Baumgardner expressed himself "as will pleased with this part of the state."

L. S. Kolden and wife came Thursday from Nielsville for a few days visit with the families of S. S. Kolden and D. Payne. Their two little granddaughters, Edna and Lillian Payne, accompanied them home and will attend school there the coming year.

Last week our genial postmaster received a letter from a lady in Colorado, stating she had been reading about a young lady, in this country, holding down a claim with a shot gun and that there was no use of it as there was plenty of land in other places, etc. So it seems the rush for the Mud Lake lands is known far and wide. It pays to advertise.

Deposit Here Check on Us

A bank account is both a necessity and a convenience to the farmer. With a check book in his pocket and his money in this bank, he can pay out in any amount he has occasion to use, make exact change and know that the proper party will receive his money.

During the busy season, he may send his checks by mail, often saving a long trip to town.

Likewise, such checks as he may receive can be mailed to us and his account credited. These sums are then subject to his order or check.

The one fact that his checks, when cancelled and returned to him, are receipts for each payment made, makes a check account with this bank an important factor in the proper management of the farmers' business.

We will be glad to have your account at this bank.

GERMAN ADVANCE MEETS MUCH RESISTANCE; RUSSIANS CRUSH AUSTRIAN FORCES AT LEMBERG

ALLIES PREVENT ATTACK ON PARIS FOR THE PRESENT

GERMANS FALL BACK AND BEGIN GREAT TURNING MOVEMENT IN SOUTHEASTERLY DIRECTION, IT IS REPORTED.

TEUTONS EVIDENTLY TRYING TO CRUSH ALLIED ARMY

Siege of Capital of France Not Likely to Be Attempted Until Fighting In Open Assures Kaiser of Less Resistance From the Fortifications of Objective City.

Paris, Sept. 8.—The allied forces are in contact with the German line of invasion at four points scattered along the front. In two engagements, the most important at present, the fighting has resulted in successes for the allies and in the other two no definite result has been reached.

Maubeuge Holds Out.

Aside from this activity the allies are engaged in the defense of Maubeuge which holds out heroically.

On the left wing of the allies the right wing of the enemy was struck on the banks of the Grand Merin and after considerable fighting the position of the French and British forces was reported to be good.

German Right Falls Back.

The allies continued to press back the flank of the advanced guard of the German right to the northeast of Paris in an engagement which has endured some time, with the result that the Germans have been forced across the Ourcq. The advance of the allies met with no marked resistance. The allies plainly had the advantage of this movement and their situation appears to be good as a whole.

Situation Elsewhere Unchanged.

On the center and on the right in Lorraine and in the Vosges the situation remains unchanged, according to the war office statement, both the allies and the Germans being more concerned with the movement about Paris and that on the eastern frontier which are the vital strategical theaters of action in the present situation.

Abandon Advance on Paris.

The Germans have been forced to abandon their advance upon Paris and their fore army of invaders have commenced a gigantic turning movement in a southerly direction from the points they occupied in the east and northeast of Paris.

Apparently the German movement is being carried out because of the fear that the German forces may be forced into a defensive position. Or it may be a maneuver to extricate the enemy about Paris from threatened attack from the northwest.

Joffre Has Million Men.

The four German armies, against which is arrayed a force of 1,000,000 men under General Joffre, divided into seven armies, were distributed as follows before the southern movement began:

The first army had reached La Ferte and Bontmirail; the second was at Chantilly; the third occupied and was to the south of Rheims and the fourth rested on the Ourcq river, tributary of the Marne.

Cannot Besiege Paris.

General Cherfils of the French army declares it would be impossible for the Germans successfully to besiege Paris.

"Our army is as strong as that of Germany; it is concentrated, and our lines are intact," he said.

Despite the proximity of the German lines and the source of supply thus cut off, there is no scarcity of food in Paris. The markets are well supplied with fish, fruit and vegetables, and potatoes are selling for $1.60 a hundredweight. Seventy-five oxen were slaughtered Sunday.

Paris Official Statement.

Paris.—This official communication was issued: "First, the allied armies have again come into contact on our left wing, under good conditions, with the right wing of the enemy on the banks of Grand Morin.

"Second—Fighting continues on the center and right in Lorraine and the Vosges. The situation remains unchanged."

"Situation Appears Good."

"Third—Around Paris the engagement begun Saturday between the allied army and the flank of the advance guard of the German right has extended. We have advanced to the river Ourcq without great resistance. The situation of the allied armies appears good as a whole.

"Fourth—Maubeuge continues its heroic resistance."

England Makes Move.

Washington, Sept. 8.—German and Austrian consular officers have been ordered by British authorities to leave Egypt at once.

Roumania With Italy.

Roumania has announced officially that if she abandons her position of neutrality, it will be to follow the course taken by Italy.

Great Britain has informed the United States that she would look with favor on the sending of American warships to Turkish ports to care for Christians in case there was a Mohammedan uprising against them.

Conveyed to U. S.

These developments in the highly critical situation, brought about by the feeling of the Triple Entente that Turkey is certain to join the conflict on the side of Germany and Austria were conveyed to official dispatches to the United States government.

Great Britain's expulsion of German and Austrian consular officers were taken here to mean that she had determined to put an end to the pro-German propaganda which she believes these consular officials have been circulating since the outbreak of hostilities.

Affairs of Egypt.

The affairs of Egypt, a semi-sovereign state, under the suzeranity of the sultan, have been practically administered by Great Britain ever since the bombardment of Alexandria and the suppression of the Arabic insurrection, 32 years ago. The natives have never entirely lost their aversion, however, for the intruders and Britain believes Germany has, for a decade, been busy fomenting anti-British feeling.

Charges of France.

France has openly charged, in her communications with the American government, that German propaganda is busily astir inciting Mohammedan uprisings, not only in Egypt, but in India and Turkey.

Look for U. S.

England, France and Russia have reiterated that they wished to do nothing which might aggravate Turkey to abandon her position of neutrality. All three nations, therefore, are now looking to the United States to protect their subjects in case the expected Mohammedan uprising develops.

The North Carolina's Course.

While the cruiser North Carolina has been sent on a mission of relief, it is generally understood she will rendezvous in eastern Mediterranean waters for the salutary effect of her presence. There is even talk of sending the Tennessee with her so as to be ready for an emergency in Egypt.

Austrian Rout Complete.

London, Sept. 6.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company from Rome says a message received there from Petrograd states that the Russians have completely routed the Austrians near Tomazew and that two generals are among the Austrian dead.

Russians Move Northward.

The Rome correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph company says dispatches from Vienna announce that following its success at Lemberg, the Russian center has suddenly begun a movement northward against the flank of the armies under the Austrian Generals Aufenburg and Dankel, who have been successfully operating against Lublin and Zjamohac.

Czar Is Notified.

A Petrograd special to the Reuter Telegram company says the commander-in-chief has notified the emperor of the occupation by the Russians of Lemberg, the capital of Galicia, and also Haliez, after severe fighting and completely routing the Austrian forces. The commander-in-chief's message was as follows:

"With the extreme joy and thanking God I announce to your majesty that the victorious army under General Russky has captured Lemberg. The army of General Brussiloff has taken Haliez."

Staff Gives an Account.

The Russian general staff yesterday issued the following account of the fighting which led to the capture of Lemberg:

Crossed Frontier Aug. 20.

"Our troops in the Lonthk, Dubno and Proskuroff districts crossed the frontier on Aug. 20, and marched on Lemberg for the purpose of thwarting the Austrian covering movement and acting against the flank of the enemy.

"In the period between Aug. 17 and Sept. 3, the Russian left wing advanced 220 versts (about 147 miles, fighting all the time. The bulk of the hostile forces entrenched in powerful positions at Kamenka and Dalitch, offered battle and were thoroughly defeated in a desperate contest.

Austrians Lose 12,000.

"Between Aug. 31 and Sept. 1, in one district of the upper course of the Guila Lipa alone, where the enemy's line was broken, the Austrians lost 12,000 men in killed or wounded.

"The retreat of the enemy after his defeat at Lemberg assumed the character of disorderly flight and panic, and the Russians took 200 guns, together with the baggage and tens of thousands of prisoners. It is believed that the remnant of the second Austrian army is now no longer of any military value."

GERMAN VICTORY.

London, Sept. 3.—On the eastern war stage, Russia frankly confesses to disaster to two army corps with the loss of three generals. A dispatch from Berlin announces that German and Austrian troops have occupied Lodz, the largest manufacturing center in Russian Poland.

Will March On Berlin.

The Russians size the situation up as follows:

"The operations in eastern Prussia, while subordinated to the general campaign to crush the Austrian resistance, will be continued in force. The fortress of Konigsberg is now completely invested and a part of the city is held by the Russians. The Germans have been very heavily reinforced from the western armies and are now in great strength all along the lines of their first fortifications. Despite this fact, however, the march on Berlin will be begun just as soon as the Austrian army is annihilated."

U. S. Ambassador Remains

Paris, Sept. 4.—The president and members of the government and all embassies of the allied nations have gone to Bordeaux, where they will remain during hostilities.

U. S. Ambassador Herrick, who has taken charge of the archives and embassies of all the belligerent powers, will remain in Paris with First Secretary Bliss and the second secretary.

Orders have been issued for the removal of the wounded from Paris to Rennes and Nantes.

The United States is now represented in Bordeaux by John W. Garratt, U. S. ambassador to Argentine, who went with the government, accompanied by Third Secretary Sulzeton.

Proclamation Explains Removal

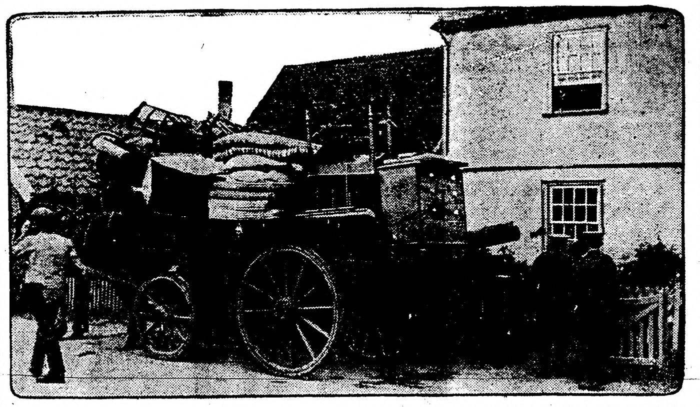
The removal of the seat of the French government to Bordeaux followed almost immediately upon the issuance of the proclamation by the minister of the interior who explained the reasons for the transfer. The proclamation said that the military authorities were responsible for the removal, having decided that the fortifications of Paris while not positively certain to be attacked, undoubtedly would be the pivotal point of the field operations of the opposing armies

Big German Victory.

The official statement of a big German victory against the Russians at Allenstein attracted wide attention. Military observers pointed out that if the number of Russians taken prisoners had been correctly estimated at 70,000 there must have been great casualties.

The text of the German dispatch begins:

"Official report of the victory at Allenstein shows that it was even greater than known before. Three Russian army corps were annihilated. Seventy thousand prisoners were taken, including two commanding generals, 300 officers and the complete artillery of the Russian army."



FLEEING FROM THE ADVANCING TEUTON

As the armies of the kaiser slowly push their way through northeastern France, the inhabitants flee from their path, with such of their possessions as they can carry with them. In many cases they destroy their own homes before abandoning them.

WAR SEEN IN BRIEF.

The Germans are reported to have been forced to abandon their advance upon Paris and to be now attempting a gigantic turning movement towards the southeast where a Berlin dispatch says the kaiser and his general staff are personally directing an attack upon the forts of Nancy.

* * *

The allies have been in contact with the invading Germans at four points. The two most important engagements are reported to have resulted successfully for the allies. The results of the other two engagements are not yet known.

* * *

One million men under the command of General Joffre are declared to be now arrayed against the Germans. Great Britain has sent her fifth army across the channel.

* * *

London is confident the German plan of advance on Paris has been checked temporarily at least while there is also the belief in some quarter of the British capital that Paris may never be besieged.

* * *

An army of 150,000 Russians has been brought from Archangel and landed in Belgium to attack the Germans' rear according to an American writer who has just arrived in New York. He says he saw detachments of Cossacks marching to the English ports to take the cross-channel transports for the continent.

* * *

The British cruiser Pathfinder and the liner Runo have been sunk in the North Sea by German mines. Two hundred and thirteen of the 238 passengers on the latter vessel were rescued

* * *

The British losses in the fighting of the past week are placed at 15,000 by the London war bureau

* * *

The Russians claim to have severely defeated the Austrian army, seizing Lemberg and capturing 12,000 prisoners and a year's supply of provisions for the army

* * *

German and Austrian consular officers are ordered by British authorities to leave Egypt at once

* * *

Grand Duke Nicholas, the Russian commander-in-chief, has ordered the captured territory in Austria-Hungary administered by the Russian general in command in that country.

* * *

Austrians said to have lost 100,000 men in a series of battles culminating with the surrender of Lemberg to the czar's troops.

* * *

European war paralyzes trade in foodstuffs, with South America republics turning to the United States as the only possible solution to the problem.

* * *

Three vessels, a Danish steamer and two trawlers, have been lost in the North Sea, two striking mines and one trawler being sunk by German warship.

* * *

The people of Paris witness fight in midair between German and French aeroplanes. Three German airships hover over city, and two French machines sent up to engage them. One of the German ships separated from others, but flew to higher level and was saved.

* * *

French capital removed to Bordeaux, which lies 358 miles southwest of Paris and not far from the Atlantic coast. The embassies of the allied nations accompany the president and other state officials, but U. S. Ambassador Herrick remains in Paris to care for American interests.

100,000 ARE REPORTED DEAD

Copenhagen Correspondent of London Daily so Estimates—French Loses 100,000 in One Army.

London, Sept. 5.—The Copenhagen correspondent of the Standard says: "The Germans are mourning one hundred thousand dead."

The Standard's Paris correspondent in a telegram says that the losses of the French northern army which has been operating in Belgium and between Paris and the Franco-Belgian frontier, are estimated at about 100,000 killed, wounded and missing. It is assumed that the majority of the missing are dead and the total number of dead is said to exceed 30,000.

St. Petersburg Now Petrograd.

Petrograd (St. Petersburg), Sept. 2.—Czar Nicholas by an imperial edict, has renamed the Russian capital city, and St. Petersburg, capital of the Russian empire since 1712, will henceforth be known as Petrograd. This change eliminates the Teuton construction in the name by which the chief city of Russia has been known since it was founded by Peter the Great in 1707.

WORK ON WAR REVENUE BILL

DEMOCRATS EXPECT TO PASS MEASURE VERY SOON.

Would Raise $100,000,000 Fund and Avoid Political Pitfalls—Some of the Suggestions Being Made.

Washington, Sept. 8.—Interest in war revenue legislation overshadows everything else in congress and administration leaders are moving cautiously, eager to submit within a few days a measure to assure $100,000,000 in additional revenue and also to avoid political pitfalls.

Democratic members of the ways and means committee are confronted this week by the problem of raising $25,000,000, all having agreed on means to procure $75,000,000 of the estimated deficit due to the falling off in customs receipts. Increased levies on beel, malt liquors, domestic wines, proprietary preparations, soft drinks and like commodities have been decided upon. In many other available sources of internal revenue, however, Democratic leaders find themselves confronted either with economic or political objections.

A score of suggestions are under consideration by the committee. Automobiles, amusement tickets, moving picture films, magazines and weekly publications, circulations, railroad transportation, gasoline, whisky and other distilled liquors, inheritance, incomes, tobacco and many other sources have been suggested for taxation. Distilled liquor and tobacco are giving the Democrats considerable concern. Tobacco as a material of extra tax is opposed because it is already heavily burdened.

Distilled liquors may be taxed slightly, though there is great opposition to this also. Distillers have been anticipating a heavy tax, it is said—probably as high as 50 cents a gallon, and have been making heavy sales, many of them on long time payments. Information to this effect has come to the committee from many sources. If it is true, Democrats argue, money could not be realized quickly on distilled liquors.

FIFTH BRITISH ARMY IS SENT

Censors Conceal Strength of Latest Force Which Has Gone to Reinforce the French.

London, Sept. 8.—Great Britain has sent her fifth army across the channel to reinforce the French.

The censor conceals its strength and destination.

It is learned also that British East India troops have reached the front.

A great squadron of aeroplanes is being dispatched to the continent by Britain to assist the allies in the critical movements about Paris.

A dispatch to the Times from Paris says the aim of the German army is now clear.

"The Germans clearly realize that a siege of Paris and even occupation of the city would avail little while the allied army remains unbroken. Devoting themselves to the costly task of an assault upon the defenses of the capital, they apparently intend to make another attempt to inflict so crushing a defeat on the French and English forces that further resistance would be impossible."

POLISH UPRISING EXPECTED

Russians Hope Occupation of Lemberg Will Have Far-Reaching Effect—Official Report.

London, Sept. 4.—The Russian occupation of Lemburg, the capital of Austrian Galicia, may have a far-reaching effect on the campaign in eastern Europe, apart altogether from the loss of Austrian prestige through the fall of the city. More than three-quarters of the population are Poles and the Russians anticipate that their entry to the city will contribute toward the hoped-for Polish uprising against Germany.

Nine Neutral Vessels Sunk.

Washington, Sept. 8.—Nine neutral merchant ships have been destroyed by German mines according to British foreign office advices to the British embassy here. The message says: "The following neutral merchant vessels are known by the admiralty to have been destroyed by German mines, in most cases with loss of life among the crews: Five Danish, two Dutch, one Norwegian, one Swedish."

News Kept From Berlin.

Rotterdam, via London, Sept. 8.—The news of the capture of Lemberg by the Russians has been carefully kept from the German public. Some of the newspapers had the story but they either were stopped from printing it or the editions containing it were suppressed before they got on the street.

Belgian Town in Flames.

Ghent, Sept. 8.—Termonde is reported in flames as a result of the German bombardment.

Berlin Issues Statement.

London, Sept. 8.—The following German official statement was received last night by the Marconi wireless telegraph company: "In the eastern theater of war the Austrian attack on Lublin continues and the armies commanded by Generals Dank and Auffenberg are still engaged in dispersing the enemy so as to obtain the fullest advantage from their glorious victories at Kranik and Zamoso. Those victories, which were achieved after three days of bitter fighting, resulted in the flight of the enemy."

A Music Teacher Saved From A Catarrhal Disease By Peruna.

Prof. W. L. Perkins, Waynesboro, Va., writes:

"I was under the care of a doctor for four months, but did not improve at all. At last he gave me up to die of bronchial catarrh. So I thought I would try a bottle of Peruna. I began to feel better at once. Now I feel as well as I ever did in my life. I want to thank you, Dr. Hartman, for your advice. I shall always praise your Peruna for catarrh of the lungs."

GOODYEAR TIRES AT ANTE-BELLUM PRICES

The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. announce "No war prices on Goodyear Tires." Mr. F. A. Sieberling, president of the Company, thus explains their unique position.

"We advanced Goodyear prices, as others did theirs, when the rubber panic came. Almost in a day crude rubber rose in New York from 55 cents per pound to much over a dollar.

"The New York supply was too small to consider. We cabled our London people to buy up the pick of the rubber there. By acting quickly and paying cash they obtained 1,500,000 pounds of the finest rubber.

"That big supply of rubber is now nearly all on the way to the Goodyear factory in Akron. It constitutes the best of the London supply.

"We are using the same grade of rubber and the same amount of it as we always have used in these tires.

"We are running our factory with three shifts of men, twenty-four hours a day. So long as we remain in this fortunate position on rubber, we shall supply tire users at before-war prices to the limit of our capacity."

The Psychology of It.

Stuyvesant Ogden, a San Francisco millionaire, said in Washington the other day:

"The present business depression—if, indeed, there be a business depression—is psychological. There is, I mean, no smallest excuse for it. It is born of the nightmare fears of men's minds. In a word, it reminds me of a music hall girl.

"The stage manager of a music hall rushed to the proprietor the other night and said:

"'Turn 14 refuses to go on with her trained mice. She says she's been completely unnerved ever since that young student was eaten in Chicago.'"

Too Dangerous to Overlook

Kidney trouble is too often overlooked and too often neglected. But the kidneys give early signals of distress that should not be mistaken. Backache, headaches, dizzy spells, rheumatic pains, too frequent, scanty or painful urination are all signs of kidney weakness and should not be mistaken.

When these warnings appear, use Doan's Kidney Pills, the reliable, successful, strongly recommended kidney remedy. Help the medicine by drinking water freely, hold to good habits and a serious attack of kidney disease may be avoided. Public testimony is the best proof of merit.

A North Dakota Case.

Mrs. M. A. Woodbury, 822 Washington St., Minot, N. D., says: "I had such a bad attack of kidney trouble that I was laid up. My head ached terribly and dizzy spells bothered me. My health was all run down. Doan's Kidney Pills did me so much good from the first that I kept on taking them and they cured me. I have used Doan's Kidney Pills since, as a kidney tonic with fine results."

Rare Minerals in Tasmania.

The number of rare minerals found to exist in Tasmania is constantly being added to, and the latest addition is molybdenite, which is used in the manufacture of "molybdenum steel," to which it gives a special hardness and toughness that makes it suitable for use in propeller shafts, guns and boilers. It is also used, to lesser extent, in the making of pottery glass and other things. The price of molybdenite is now $2,500 a ton, or nearly four times the present price of tin.

WILSON TO STAY ON JOB DURING FALL CAMPAIGN

PRESIDENT DECLARES "UNLOOKED FOR INTERNATIONAL SITUATION" MAKES THIS NECESSARY.

"AMERICA GREATER THAN PARTY," SAYS EXECUTIVE

Points to "Fruitful" Session of Congress and Asserts Great Constructive Program Has Been Carried Through Upon Which to Make an Appeal.

Washington, Sept. 8. — President Wilson has announced he will not make a speech during the coming campaign. He declared his intention of "staying on the job" because of the "unlooked for international situation."

Information in Letter.

The president made known his intentions in a letter to Representative Doremus of Michigan, chairman of the Democratic congressional committee, who had written him asking whether he would make a speaking campaign this fall. The correspondence was made public at the White House.

Days Big for Destiny.

"America is greater than any party," the president wrote. "America can not properly be served by any man who for a moment measures his interest against her advantage. The time has come for great things. These are days big for destiny for the United States as for the other nations of the world.

"A little wisdom, a little courage, a little self-forgetful devotion may, under God, turn that destiny this way or that. Great hearts, great natures will respond. Even little men will rejoice to be stimulated and guided and set an heroic example.

Let Men Forget Selves.

"Parties will fare well enough without nursing if the men who make them up and the men who lead them forget themselves to serve a cause and set a great people forward on the path of liberty and peace."

Despite his determination to make no speeches, Mr. Wilson "will take occasion as opportunity offers to state and perhaps restate to the country in the clearest and most convincing terms I can command, the things which the Democratic party has attempted to do."

Asks Congress to Remain.

The president asked that congress "Remain to do their work of necessary and pressing service and bring it to a successful conclusion."

He said, however, that he saw nothing to keep congress in session after the emergency work is finished.

The president had been asked to speak in Iowa, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Maine, and other states. He had previously told those who asked him that he would make no promises until he saw what the general situation was.

Calls This Fruitful Session.

The letter opens as follows:

"The close of a very extraordinary session of congress is at hand which has, I venture to say, been more fruitful in important legislation of permanent usefulness to the country than any session of congress within the memory of the active public men of our generation. A great constructive program has been carried through, for which the country has long waited, and has been carried through with the approval and support of judicious men of all parties; and we have abundant reason to congratulate ourselves upon the record that has been made during the busy 17 months we have devoted to our legislative task. Certainly, in ordinary circumstances, if we were free to disengage ourselves for the purpose, we would be warranted in now directing our energies to a great campaign in support of an appeal to the country to give us the encouragement of its indorsement at the autumn elections."

War Costs $50,000,000 Daily.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—The European war to date has cost the countries involved the vast total of $1,870,000,000. This total is based on the figures of $55,000,000 loss a day, estimated by the most eminent French and English statisticians. The daily estimate of $55,000,000 includes lost earning power, economic loss, loss by destruction of warships, destruction of ammunition, loss by normal bombardment of towns, economic loss through casualties, loss in animals and industrial and commercial loss. It does not include such abnormal losses as the destruction of Louvain, which was approximately $100,000,000.

Germans Neglect Paris Now

Paris, Sept. 5.—The war office at Bordeaux sent the following communication to the press bureau here: "On our left, the enemy appears to neglect Paris to pursue its turning movement. It has reached La Ferte-Sous-Jouarre (department of Seine and Marne, 11 miles east of Meaux) passed Rheims, and descended on the west bank of the river in Argonne. On our right, in Lorraine and in Vosges, the fighting proceeds with alternative fortunes. Maubeuge, which is being violently bombarded, resists."

U. S. BANKS TO OPEN OCT. 1

RESERVE SYSTEM TO BE ORGANIZED AT ONCE.

All-Day Conference of Clearing House Delegates and Board at Capitol Results in This Decision.

Washington, Sept. 7.—After an all day conference with clearing house delegates from many large cities the federal reserve board announced it would proceed immediately with the organization of the 12 reserve banks provided for by the new currency system. Although predictions were lacking it is generally accepted that the system can be put in operation about Oct. 1. The actual opening may be delayed, but it was said the 12 banks would be ready for business within the next six weeks.

According to members of the board there was little hostility shown at the conference to the early opening of the new system, and government officials hope all opposition by bankers will be overcome before the time of opening arrives.

The conference was confined closely to the question of opening and to a discussion of the foreign and domestic exchange situation. Delegates furnished such information as they possessed, but left the board without much concrete knowledge as to the exact situation throughout the country. A committee was named to consider foreign and domestic exchange and formulate a plan by which American obligations to Europe could be adjusted without taking gold out of the country.

In consequence of the meeting there will be no effort on the part of the reserve board to name the Class C directors for the reserve banks for some time. Every other step which must precede the opening of the banks will be laid out before the directors are announced.

PALMER CHOSEN G. A. R. HEAD

Detroit, Sept. 5.—Comrade David C. Palmer of Washington, Iowa, member of the Eighth and Twenty-fifth Iowa regiments in the Civil war, was elected commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic at the closing session of the forty-eighth annual encampment which has been in session here for a week. Washington, D. C., was unanimously chosen for the encampment place next year.

Although there were several candidates in the race for commander-in-chief, most of them withdrew at the last minute and Mr. Palmer had no serious opposition. Other officers elected were:

Senior vice commander-in-chief, J. B. Griswold of Grand Rapids; junior vice commander-in-chief, F. W. Conners of Dallas, Texas; surgeon general, L. S. Pilcher, Brooklyn, N. Y., and chaplain in chief, Orville J. Nave of California.

Say Paris May Surrender.

London, Sept. 5.—In a dispatch from Rouen, France, a correspondent of the Chronicle says he has learned that the French authorities in Paris are considering the surrender of the city to the Germans in order to avoid the destruction of property from artillery fire This will only be done, the correspondent declares, in case the outer line of the defenses of Paris are passed by the invaders. British, French and Belgian wounded are being transferred from Paris to other cities, and the great exodus of the populace south continues.

Papal Secretary of State.

Rome, Sept. 5.—It is officially announced that Cardinal Dominic Ferrata has been appointed papal secretary of state. Cardinal Dominic Ferrata, the newly appointed papal secretary of state, was born in 1878 at Montfiascone, Italy. His work as papal nuncio at Paris and as a prefect of the congregation of bishops in Rome stamped him as a finished diplomat. In 1901, when the late Cardinal Rampolla resigned as papal secretary of state, Cardinal Ferrata was mentioned as a probable candidate.

Refugees Present Sad Spectacle

Paris, Sept. 3.—Mrs. Herman Harjes, wife of the Paris banker, who with other American women has been deeply interested in relief work, visited the North railroad station and was shocked by the sights she saw among the Belgian refugees. "The station," said Mrs. Harjes, "presented the aspect of a shambles. It was the saddest sight I ever saw. It is impossible to believe the tortures and cruelties the poor unfortunates had undergone."

German Boats Crippled.

London, Sept. 5.—Seven German torpedo boats have arrived at Kiel badly damaged. It is understood others have been sunk in the vicinity of the canal. This is official.

British Claim Command of Sea

Washington, Sept. 8.—The British view of the first month of the war is set forth in the following cablegram to the British embassy: "At the end of the first month of the war the command of the sea is left unchallenged in the hands of Great Britain and her allies. The main German and Austrian fleets remain in their harbors under shelter of their mines and batteries. Four German cruisers, one auxiliary cruiser, two destroyers and a submarine and an Austrian cruiser have been sunk."

Russian Successes in Austria Continue, Austrian Losses Being Enormous—Germany Rejects Austria's Request for Loan—Reported Annihilation of Troops Under German Crown Prince

Paris, Sept. 8.—The following official communication was issued today:

"First—The allies have advanced their left wing without energetic opposition from the enemy."

"Second—The situation is unchanged on our center, and in the region of Verdun. Our forces are alternately advancing, and retiring. There have been some partial successes on our right in Vosges.

"Third—The advancing troops of the allies, defending Paris, have have several combats on Ourcq river with results in favor of the allies."

Petrograd, Sept. 7.—The following official announcement was given out today:

The Austrian army corps is between the River Vistula and the River Bug, retreating with enormous losses.

The resistance of the enemy has been broken. There are evidences of a possibility of famine in Austria.

London, Sept. 7.—A Boulogne dispatch to the Evening News says a telegram has been received from General Pau announcing a victory by the allied forces at Precy Sur Ois. The imperial guard under Crown Prince Frederick William is reported to have been annihilated by the British force which oposed him.

Paris, Sept. 7.—From official communications given out here today it is learned that the engagements which began Saturday and Sunday to the east and northeast of the French capital, developed today into one of the most important battles of the campaign.

The armies of the allies are opposing the German advance over a front extending about 120 miles from Nanteuil-Le-Haudouin, 25 miles northeast of Paris, to the great fortress of Verdun, in the department of Meuse and 20 miles west of the German frontier.

The number of men engaged is not generally known. The French troops are strongly supported by the British soldiers, who passed through Paris several days ago.
